TWO FIGHTERS OF SIN MARRY

NOVEL MARRIAGE OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

A Plainfield Army Lassie and a Montclair Warrior Join Lives to Continue in the Work of Their Own Choice.

Two fighters in the war with sin were united in marriage last evening at the Salvation Army hall under rather novel circumstances, novel, at least, for Plainfield.

The hall was thronged with people who came to witness the ceremony each contributing fifteen cents to the treasury of the army. The platform and the whole room, in fact, was bright with decorations. Flags, both of the Salvation Army and the United States, bunting and greens were artistically arranged, while two large cedar trees acted as sentinels on the sides of the platform. On the platform was seated part of the Plainfield corps and visitors from Orange, Bound Brook, Newark, No. 3, Brooklyn, New Brunswick and New York, No. 7, about forty in all, dressed in the regulation uniform. A passageway was curtained off on the right side of the hall.

At eight o'clock, there was a cheery "hallejuah" and Brigadier R. Evans and his staff escorted the bride up the passageway and on to the stage. The groom had passed in with the rest of his comrades. Both were dressed in the well-known Salvation Army uniform; the bride did not wear any hat, however, and wore a white muslin scarf over her left shoulder. The bride was Lieut. Paule Scott Dabo, of the Plainfield corps. Archibald Low, of the Montclair corps, was the bridegroom.

The service began with the song, "I Now Believe," and after and earnest prayer, Staff Captain Dunham, secretary of this division of the army, took charge of the musical and testimonial service. He led the singing on his cornet and his enthusiasm waked up the assemblage and they sang with a hearty good will.

"Everybody sing," exclaimed the captain. "You married people should give them a hearty welcome, and you who are not married, should sing with a faith that you'll get there some day," and everybody did sing after that. Short and earnest testimonies were given by the workers, some of whom had grown grey in the service. Staff Captain Dunham then announced that a collection would be taken up, and as it was the first one this year, he expected a good one. While it was being taken, Captain Taylor, of the New York headquarters, sang one of his own army songs with guitar accompaniment.

Brigadier Evans next read the Twenty-Third Psalm, commenting on each phrase. The marriage ceremony followed. Brigadier Evans stood in the centre of the platform with the bride and groom, one on either hand, while the flags of the Salvation Army and the United States were held over the couple soon to be united.

Brigadier Evans read the terms upon which the couple were to be married. These were as follows: First, they declared they had not sought marriage for their own happiness and interests, although they hoped that these would be furthered thereby, but in order that their union might enable them the better to please God. Second, they promised not to let this marriage lessen their service to God. Third, they promised never to do anything likely to prevent each other from suffering anything to assist the army. Fourth, they promised to use their influence with each other to start self-sacrifice in fighting in the rank of the army. Fifth, they agreed to regard their home as a Salvation Army officers' quarters. Sixth, they promised, whether together or apart, to do their utmost, as true soldiers of Jesus Christ to carry on the blessed war, and never allow the army to be injured or hindered without doing their utmost to prevent it. Seventh, if, through sickness or any other cause, either one should cease to be an efficient soldier, the remaining one promised to fulfill all the foregoing promises.

The usual marriage ceremony, altered to suit the Salvation Army, was read and the responses made. The couple were then pronounced husband and wife. Mr. Low placed the simple wedding ring on his wife's finger, and then all heads were bowed while Staff Captain Duhham offered a prayer for the future happiness of the newly married couple. Then the groom stepped forward and kissed his wife, while the cornet, bass drum and tamborines added to the thunderous applause.

The bridegroom spoke a few words and said that all that was needed to complete his happiness was to know that some poor soul had turned about and started on the right road. He ended by reading a congratulatory telegram from the headquarters in New York. The bride then seconded her husband's remarks. The Brigadier then invited all who would try to work harder for the Lord in 1896 than they had in 1895 to stand, and as the audience rose in a body, the nuptial event came to an end.

MRS. VALIANT'S AT HOME.

A very pleasant New Year's tea was given yesterday by Mrs. John Valiant, of Craig place. The cosy home was thronged with friends who were received by Mrs. Valiant, assisted by Mrs. H. K. Carroll and Mrs. A. A. Taft. The parlors were prettily decorated with smilax and cut flowers while an immense cactus plants, with over one hundred magnificent pink blossoms on it, attracted the attention of all.

The dining table, decorated in pink and white, was presided over by Mrs. H. F. Randolph and Mrs J. C. Garey. The dainty refreshments were served by the Misses Alice and Grace Carroll, Clara and Mary Steiner, Florence Valiant, of Baltimore, Bessie Valiant and Mrs. E. E. Winckler.

In the evening a salamagundi party was given to those who assisted. The prizes were won by Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Randolph, E E. Winckler and Dykman Winckler.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boss, Mr. and Mrs. John Carney, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Davis. Mr. and Mrs. John McNorton, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Sperry, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. T. Wilfred Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Church, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howell, Mr. and Mrs. David King, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lunger, Mr. and Mrs. James Lunger, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crosley, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Swain, J. C. Garey, Dr. H. K. Carroll, Rev. H. F. Randolph, Mrs. William M. Smalley, Miss Smalley, J. Smalley, Mrs. Charles Smith, the Misses Marsh, John Steiner, John McLaughlin, Charles French, Raymond Carroll, S. B. Joseph, Miss Libbie Joseph, Miss Lunger, Mrs. O. T. Jenkins, Mrs. J. H. Carman, John H. Van-Winkle, Sr., John H. Van Winkle, Jr., H. B. Drake, Miss Crosley, Rev. C. H. Scudder, the Misses Ginn, Miss Petrie, William Slape, the Misses Swain, Voehl, Anna Carney and Loughlin.

HAPPY SURPRISE PARTY.

Friends of Mrs. Charles Conover Give Her an Unexpected Call.

An enjoyable and complete surprise was given Mrs. Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, last evening, the occasion being the anniversary of her birthday. It was aranged by her husband and only those invited were let into the secret.

At 7:30 o'clock the party met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins and at once proceeded to arrange for surprising Mrs. Conover. When they entered the house, she was completely taken back and words failed her. It was fully five minutes before she could speak. Of course she welcomed them all heartily, and the jolly crowd made themselves very much at home.

The evening was spent in playing interesting games and about 10 o'clock refreshments were served, after which the guests departed. They all extended hearty congratulations to both Mr. and Mrs. Conover and wished them many years of happiness and prosperity.

There were about twenty-five intimate friends present.

A Present to the Superintendent.

A very pleasant event was the chasing of the old year out at L. A. Rheaume's, when the employes gathered around their Superintendent Mr. J. D. Loizeaux and in a few well chosen words presented him with a fine bicycle lamp.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." CUPID'S NEW YEAR SCORE.

HAPPY NUPTIAL EVENT ON SANDFORD AVENUE LAST EVENING.

Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Carman's home, 36 Sandford avenue, was the scene of a beautiful wedding last evening at 7:30, when their daughter, Miss Virginia Carman, was given in marriage amid a massive bower of palms, to Charles A. Fulcher, of Newark. Rev. Samuel H. Virgin, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, New York, performed the ceremony. The bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, preceded by the bridemaids, Miss Clara Fulcher, sister of the groom, Miss Charlotte MacBride, of New York, and the maid of honor, Miss Julia May Carman, D. D. S., sister of the bride. They were met by the groom and best man, J. Franklin Mulligan of Newark. The Lohengrin wedding march was finely rendered by Mrs. Dr. R. S. Carman, of New York, as the bridal party made their appearance, and during the ceremony the variations of the march were executed. While congratulations were being extended, favorite selections from Mendelssohn were played. The bride's gown of white satin, trimmed with duchesse lace and orange blossoms, was exquisite. She also wore a veil and carried bridal roses. The maid of honor was gowned in pink brocaded satin, trimmed with duchesse lace and carried pink roses, while the bridemaids wore gowns of white organdie over Nile green silk and carried white carnations.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Fulcher left on the 10:17 train for a two weeks tour. On their return they will make their home in Roseville, Essex County. Among the guests were:—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hebert, Mrs. Letitia Hebert, Miss Georgiana Hebert, Miss Jeanette Bryan, Richard Menzell, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wright, W. A. Brintzinghoffer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Crane, Fred Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour S. Rowe, Miss L. Florence Rowe, Miss Lizzie Rowe, Isaac Rowe, Charles H. Doremus, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Springsted, Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cooney, Robert H. Phillips, Newark; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Stedman, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Harris, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fulcher, Chas. Burroughs, Mr. and Mrs. A. Fulcher, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Miller, East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Browne, Mrs. J. Tate, Staten Island; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Curwood. Miss Anna Curwood, Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Carman, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Harrow, David Arrowsmith, Miss R. MacBride, Harry MacBride, Mrs. H. MacBride, Fred Virgin, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. C. Poindexter, Miss Grace Dunham, Edward Kinney, Edward Mackay, George Braden.

Monumental Gall.

Monumental gall and inflated officiousness was on exhibition at the dance of an atmospheric-titled society on Watchung avenue New Year's Eve. An event arranged solely for private gain, one of the promoters was highly incensed because The Daily Press did not give them $25 worth of free advertising, and with a quite dazzling colored badge, gaudy with brass or nickle, he gave vent to his superficial indighity by insolently demanding 50 cents from a representative of The Press who had called there to report the affair. As The Daily Press had charitably given them a moderate amount of advertising, The Press man gracefully withdrew without handing forth the 50 cents, leaving the officious doortender to his temporal glory.

Thrown From a Train.

While attempting to board a moving train at the Grant Avenue station yesterday morning between 11 and 12 o'clock David Cummings, of Brooklyn, was thrown to the ground with considerable force and badly bruised. It was at first thought that he had been seriously injured, and the ambulance was called. He was taken to the Muhlenberg hospital where it was found that his injuries were not serious and he was discharged this morning. He had been visiting James Chamberlin on West Third street.

Smalley Brothers Purchase.

Charles H. Lyman has sold F. H Martin's four-story brick building, No. 136 North avenue, the store of which is occupied by Chas. C. Lister, to Smalley Brothers, David, Albert and Newton. They will not move their business there, having only purchased it on speculation.

SOCIETY AT THE ASSEMBLY.

MOST SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL FUNCTION OF THE SEASON.

The Casino Beautifully Decorated With Pretty Effects—List of Patronesses and the Guests Who Attended the Event.

The New Year's Assembly was held last evening at the Casino and was, probably, the most successful one ever held in Plainfield. The attendance was large. The music, furnished by Elliott of New York, was delightful and Max Wiertz provided the excellent refreshments. The ball room itself presented a beautiful picture. Rugs, portieres and greens, artistically festooned about the wall, made a charming background for the ever changing panorama of beautiful women, beautiful gowns and the more soberly dressed escorts. Pink shades over the electric lights threw a pleasing pink glow over the scene, while on the stage the musicians kept up an almost increasing melody of music.

The patronesses were Mrs. Robert L. Burnett, Mrs. Joseph W. Reinhart, Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mrs. Louis G. Timpson, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, Mrs. Frederick H. Wills, Mrs. Orville T. Waring, Mrs. James T Scott, Mrs. William J. Roome and Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury.

Those who were present at the assembly were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roome, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wills, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. L. G Timpson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. VanBuren, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. E. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell, Jr., Mrs. O. T. Waring, Mrs. R. L. Burnett, Mrs. A. C. Vail, the Misses Holly, the Misses Sprague, May Waring, Katherine Reinhart, Annie Murphy, May Evans, Molly Lawrence, Daisy Shepard, Caroline Vail, Maud Middledith, Annie Stewart and Florence Abbott, Miss Sandford, of New Haven, Miss Anna Waring and Miss Sydney Wharton, of Pittsburg, Miss Emily Reinhart, of New York, Miss Richardson, of Brooklyn, Miss Mimmack, of Baltimore, the Messrs. Waring, VanBoskerck, Shepard, VanBuren, Finch, Walz, Frost, Dwight, Lowe, Miller, Place, Peck, Middledith, Murray, Talmadge, Cox, Murphy, McGee, Sykes, Hutchins, Bull, West, Corlies and Moore; W. E. Billings, S. F. Reynolds, L. R. Brewster, Mr. Clark, Mr. Emmett, Elliot F. Shepard, George Phelps and Mr. Childs, of New York; G. H. Mather, of Bound Brook; P. G. Stillman, of Elizabeth; J. J. Robinson, Robert Loomis and Horace Loomis, of New Haven; and Heath Bartow, of Bartow on-the-Sound.

The next assembly will be held at the Casino on January 27th.

NO PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION.

The Holiday Was Marked by Quietude in This City.

New Year's was an unusually quiet holiday in Plainfield. Few people appeared on the streets, the day being mostly given up to family gatherings and events of that kind. The time honored custom among the liquor dispensers of treating customers to Tom and Jerry, Roman punch and seductive decoctions of that sort was in vogue and many a man with an overdose was seen ambling along in zig zag tracks to a haven of rest.

People of conventional and unperturbed minds, who went home early New Year's Eve to enjoy a night of rest in the arms of Morpheus, were rudely awakened at 12 o'clock by the ringing of many bells and tooting of tin horns, but the demonstration of escorting the old year out and the new one in was rather tame this year to what it has been in times past.

He Remembered His Name.

Policeman McCue found a man wandering about West Fourth street this morning with his face and head badly cut and in a state of intoxication. He was arrested and left to get over the effects of his New Year's spree before appearing in court. He faintly remembered that his name was Frank Conshay.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

SEEING THE OLD YEAR OUT.

The very novelty of it brought out many to the watch meeting held in Vincent chapel Tuesday evening. An invitation had been extended to all the Christian Endeavor societies and Epworth leagues in the city, and a large number accepted it, filling every vacant seat on the main floor of the chapel. Unlike the usual meeting, the refreshments preceded instead of followed the services, and from ten o'clock until after half-past ten the young people of the First M. E. church were kept busy passing tea, coffee, crullers and a variety of crackers. The refreshments were served under the charge of the following committee: Miss S E. Jackson, Mrs. Winter, Mrs. N. Y. Hull and Miss Sharp.

Rev. C. R. Barnes, D. D., acted as leader and spoke on "The Past." "The Present" was the topic of a short address by Rev. C. E. Herring, and Rev. J. W. Richardson concluded the series by speaking on "The Future." Ira W. Travell gave a five-minute talk on the work of the visitation committee preparing for the coming revival. A short service of prayer and testimony was led by E. E. Anthony, president of the Christian Endeavor Local Union. After several hymns and prayers the meeting came to an end while the deep sonorous tones of the big bell in the church belfry proclaimed that '95 had run its course and '96 had begun.

Much credit is due George R Cornwell who arranged the meeting and had more to do with making it the great success that it was. The meeting was the first of its kind ever held in Plainfield but it will not be the last.

PARK CLUB STARTS GOOD.

Sociability Was the Element That Ushered in the New Year.

Ninety-five was danced out and ninety-six was danced in at the Park Club Tuesday evening by about one hundred and fifty guests from this city and the borough. The ball room was filled throughout the evening with the gay dancers, the men in their conventional evening suits and their partners in their beautiful evening gowns. In the gallery sat those who preferred to watch rather than participate, while those who cared for a quiet chat could be found in the reading or in the game rooms. Billiards, pool and bowling offered a change to those who cared for them and the click of the balls and the crash of the pins showed that their devotees were plentiful. Coffee and sandwiches awaited those who cared for them in the dining room.

The evening passed off most successfully, and the house committee had made every arrangement possible for the comfort of their guests, and that fact was properly appreciated by all. The house committee is composed of the following: Elston M. French, Samuel Townsend and William N. Runyon. The inspiring music that kept the many feet moving about the brilliantly lighted room in rhymatic measures, was furnished by P. Ludwig Conde.

READING HISTORY OF THE FRIENDS.

Young Friends' Association Hear Interesting Papers.

The Young Friends' Association met last night in regular session in the committee room of the Friends' meeting house on Watchung avenue. The reading of Janney's History of Friends' was continued, giving an account of the religious experience of James Naylor, a Friend of the Seventeenth century, and of the persecutions he endured in his work in the ministry.

In the report of the Current Topics Section, many subjects of interest at the present time were touched upon. Among others, the earnest appeal of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward to President Cleveland asking him to use his influence in settling peaceably the Venezuela difficulty.

A paper was read entitled "The Ministry Among Early Friends." The roll call was responded to by sentiments on Faith, after which the meeting closed with a short silence.

New Year's Calls.

A partial revival of the once honored custom of receiving calls on New Year's day was made yesterday, when at several homes groups of young girls received their friends informally, after the manner of an afternoon tea. The old custom was too pleasant to fall into disuse, and many would hail with delight signs of its return.

KRIS HAD TO ADOPT WHEELS.

THE JOLLY OLD FELLOW FINALLY GOT TO THE PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS.

Lack of Snow Delayed Him a Week, But When He Arrived He Made Everyone Happy—A Pie With a Golden Plum.

Kris Kringle did not forget the Park Avenue Baptist church children. The absence of snow delayed him but he put wheels on his sleigh and Tuesday evening arrived, buried under a load of packages. The entertainment for the occasion was a Christmas story illustrated by shadow pictures. It told the experiences of the writer on a trip with good old Santa Claus. There was a good little girl, the naughty boys that tried to wreck Santa Claus's sleigh and received nothing but two big rocks for their Christmas present, the poor little brother and sister, and other characters that were visited. At last there was a sound of sleigh bells and in came the jolly Santa Claus in his sleigh. He had discarded the old fashioned reindeer and adopted the petroleum motor. He was pushed up the aisle by some of his friends, however. The presents were then distributed, while boxes of candy and oranges were passed. When the children had all received their gifts, Santa Claus produced a pie of small dimensions which he presented to the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson and his wife. Rev. Mr. Richardson put in his thumb and pulled out a valuable plum grown in the treasury of the United States.

The Christmas story was read by its author, Miss Florence G. Hawkins. Joseph Hawkins was the impersonator of Santa Claus. The rest of the committee in charge of the entertainment were Superintendent D. W. C. Skaden, Baird Runyon, Mrs. C. E Ryder, Miss Alice Spangenburg and Miss Adelia Runyon. The children who assisted in the shadow pictures were Miss Marion Shotwell and Masters Smith, Remson, Shotwell and Nash.

SANTA CLAUS WAS A LITTLE LATE.

Glad indeed were the hearts of the twenty little ones at the Children's Home, Tuesday afternoon, when the handsome Christmas tree freighted with lots of goods things was shown to them. If there is an institution in this fair city that deserves the hearty support of all, it is the Children's Home. It would have brought pleasure to everyone to witness the joy evidenced by the children over the feast provided. They sang Christmas carols just as heartily as a large school of children, after which they were given lots of useful things in the way of clothing, etc.

They also reeeived dolls, toys, books, games, candy and fruit. Those in charge were Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. Cahoone, Miss Ella Serrell, Miss Lewis and James Kimball.

A SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. James K. Arnold Entertain a Large Number of Friends.

One of the most delightful events accompanying the opening of the New Year was the celebratio of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Arnold at their home on Manning avenue last evening. It was one of those occasions where genuine sociability reigns and the lines of formality are so finely drawn as to be invisible. The hours were from 7 to 11, and during that time a large number of intimate friends and relatives called and extended not only their hearty congratulations, but their wish for a very happy New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold were to be found at one end of the parlor where they welcomed everyone in a hospitable manner. They entered into the festivities with the same interest as when first they met. Choice selections of music were furnished by Guttman, while the guests were arriving and departing, and this added not a little to the pleasure of the event. An elegant supper was served during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold were the recepients of a large number of presents, including all kinds of silverware and cut glass. One present came from a brother in Wisconsin.

Later in the evening the younger folks indulged in dancing.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

ENDORSED OUR COURSE

Four Thousand Citizens of Panama March to the Strains of "Yankee Doodle" to the Consul-General's Residence—He Delivers an Address on the Monroe Doctrine.

Panama, Dec. 25.—The Standard Herald says: Panama to-day saw a public demonstration, the like of which has never occurred in its history before. The demonstration as already announced was organized for the sole purpose of giving expression of approval for the firm stand which President Cleveland has taken in the Anglo-Venezuelan dispute. From an early hour people began to assemble in the Santa Ana Plaza, the starting point of the procession, and at 8 o'clock p. m., there had congregated fully 4,000 persons. The procession was headed by a cavalcade of about fifty, each rider bearing a flag representing the different republics of America. Two bands of music came after, followed by the fire brigadr with torchlights. The procession after leaving Santa Ana Plaza defiled through Carrerande Constitucion and Bolivar on to Plaza Cathedral and turned into Carrera de Narino, then passed the governor's palace where a viva was given for his excellency. The procession then turned into Carrera de Sucre and again proceeded through Plaza Cathedral, then into Carrera de Ricaurte and lastly into Carrera de Acevedo Gomez, until it reached Plaza Sanfrancisco, where the United States consulate is.

Band Played "Yankee Doodle."

On the arrival of the procession here the band played "Yankee Doodle," at the close of which the stars and stripes were raised and dipped three times amid ringing cheers from the assembled multitude, and simultaneously the band struck up the Colombian national anthem. This over, all eyes were turned to the balcony of the American consulate where several gentleman assembled in respore to the consul general's invitation. As soon as Dr. Pable Arosemena stepped forward a loud cheer was given and on order being restored this gentleman began his speech, in the course of which not the slightest reference was made to England.

Consul-General Vifquain's Speech.

Victor Vifquain, the consul-general of the United States, replied. He thanked the Colombians for the appreciation of President Cleveland's message and congratulated them upon the grand and fitting demonstration, which he characterized as patriotic. He said that he would like it to be understood that the demonstration was not hostile to England nor was the Monroe doctrine a declaration of war. The speaker briefly outlined the early history of the Magna Charta, stating that it was not originally a written law of England, but it formed now the basis of the political fabric of the nation. He likened the Monroe doctrine to the Magna Charta, stating that the Monroe doctrine was to the United States what the Magna Charta was to England. At the close of the demonstration the consul entertained about one hundred persons at a splendid repast, when President Cleveland's health was toasted and drunk.

KILLED AT A DANCE.

Two Negroes Fight Over the Affections of a Girl.

Camden, N. J., Jan. 2.—Silas Gould, colored, was shot and instantly killed at a New Year's dance here by William Robinson, also colored. The murder was the outcome of a quarrel between the men over affections of a girl. The belligerents pulled pistols simultaneously, and when they fired Gould fell dead with a bullet through his heart. Robinson escaped, but he was captured later in the day and committed to jail.

His Body Cut Into Seven Parts.

Waldick, N. J., Jan. 2.—John Greenleaf, of this place, met with a horrible death while working on one of the tracks in the Erie railway yard. A switch engine backed and ran him down, cutting his body into seven parts. Greenleaf had a wife and four children in Scotland.

Maryland Legislature.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 2.—The Maryland legislature was organized yesterday by the election of William Cabell Bruce of Baltimore as president of the senate and ex-Congressman Mudd of Charles county as speaker of the house of delegates.

Charged with Attempted Assault.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 2.—Christopher Yessen has complained to the police that Gustav Miller, a shoemaker in the west end, attempted an assault upon his 10-year-old daughter when he sent her there for his shoes. Miller has been arrested.

Boston & Lowell Directors.

Boston, Jan. 2.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Boston & Lowell railroad corporation yesterday the directors were re-elected, the only change from those of last year being the substitution of George A. Gardner for William Powell Mason.

May Be Compromised.

Greenfield, Mass., Jan. 2.—There is a prospect that the Davenport will case may be compromised. Oliver Davenport of Leyden left an estate valued at $750,000, and Stephen T. Davenport of Brattleboro and Martin V. Davenport of Bernardston are making a contest.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Members Sworn In, Officers Elected and Governor's Message Read.

Albany, Jan. 2.—When the assembly convened yesterday 134 members were present. Rev. Wm. L. Smith delivered the opening prayer. Hamilton Fish, as speaker, and the other officers selected by the republican caucus were elected. Speaker Fish's speech upon taking the chair was heartily applauded. After the reading of the governor's message, the death of Assemblyman Kerrigan of New York was announced, and the assembly out of respect adjourned until next Wednesday evening. Proceedings in the senate were opened by prayer by Rev. George Hite. After an address by Lieut.-Gov. Saxton many of the senators were sworn in. The officers chosen by the republican caucus were then elected. The senate then listened to the governor's message. Senator Ellsworth was elected president pro tem. His resolution endorsing the action of President Cleveland in the Venezuelan boundary matter was then adopted. The senate also adjourned until next Wednesday evening. Many bills were introduced into both houses.

THE BOUNDARY DISPUTE.

Earl Granville Virtually Concluded a Treaty in 1885.

London, Jan. 1.—The Chronicle today prints an article saying that it has learned on the highest authority that Earl Granville in 1885 virtually concluded with Blanco a treaty containing an arbitration clause covering the Venezuelan international boundary dispute. The Marquis of Salisbury, however, on coming into power later in the same year virtually cancelled this clause by limiting the provisions of the treaty to commercial questions. Nothing could have been more unfortunate, says the Chronicle, inasmuch as the boundary dispute was on the eve of a permanent settlement. The Chronicle adds that it is convinced by careful researches that there is debatable land north and south of the Schomburgk line, and that it would be a grave error to imagine that a rigid insistence on the Schomburgk line and a declaration that there is no ground for arbitration constitute the essence of the English case.

PATTY RICHARDSON DEAD.

One of the Widow Pensioners of the Revolution.

Rutland, Vt., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Patty Richardson, the eldest of the eight widow pensioners of the revolution, is dead at her home in East Bethel. She was born in Connecticut February 1, 1801. In 1830 she married Godfrey M. Richardson of Cambridge, Mass., who, at the age of sixteen, ran away from his father's home in Cambridge, Mass., and helped throw up the redoubts on Breed's Hill. Her husband received a pension as a minuteman by special act of congress, and this devolved upon Mrs. Richardson. Mrs. Richardson was 29 and her husband 56 when they were married.

BURGLARS AT GREEN LANE, PA.

Pottstown, Pa., Jan. 2.—Charles Holder, telegraph operator at Green Lane, on the Percemen railroad, was held up at midnight by a gang of burglars. Holder fought desperately with a poker, but was overpowered. The thieves then plundered the station, securing some money. After ransacking the place they compelled Holder to walk a mile and then released him. A posse started out in search of the robbers, but no trace of them was found.

UTICA SPORTS IN LUCK.

Their Birds Win Six Straight Battles at a Cock Fight.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 23—A cock fight took place near Schenectady in which birds from Albany were pitted against Utica. Six battles were fought and Utica won them all. The stakes were $250 a side. The Utica sports have returned here about $1,000 richer than when they left. In the experience of old cock fighters that is the first time a clean sweep was made in six battles.

Forger Patten at Rockville.

Rockville, Conn., Jan. 2.—Ex-Sheriff Kibbe arrived yesterday afternoon with ex-postmaster Arthur H. Patten of Tolland, who was arrested in Pittsburg for forgery. Efforts are being made to settle the case outside the courts as the government will proably make no effort to convict him, a settlement having been effected with his bondsmen.

Tramp Weaver Attempts Suicide.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2.—John Feeley, a tramp weaver, attempted suicide in the Warren police station last night. He cut a three-inch gash in his left wrist and also jabbed himself behind the right ear. The weapon was a pocketknife and the fact that it was dull saved the man's life. He says he has been on a spree for three weeks.

$1,000 for His Son's Death.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2.—Peter Reynolds of Westerly, administrator of his son, Peter, jr., who was killed at the granite quarry of Charles P. Chapman, obtained a verdict of $1,000 against Chapman in the United States circuit court yesterday.

MORTON A CANDIDATE

His Presidential Boom Set in Motion in New York.

Launched at a Dinner at Chauncey M. Depew's Residence—Prominent Politicians Promise a Solid Delegation—If Unsuccessful He May Go to the Senate.

Albany, Jan. 2.—Gov. Levi P. Morton has finally announced to his friends that he will stand as a candidate for president before the national republican convention to be held at St. Louis. He stated his position at the dinner given at Chauncey M. Depew's residence in New York city on Monday night. The others present were Hon. Thomas C. Platt, Benjamin F. Tracy, Hon. Warner Miller, State Comptroller James A. Roberts of Buffalo and ex-United States Senator Frank Hiscock of Syracuse. These gentlemen had at a dinner tendered Gov. Morton in New York city ten days previous assured him that he could have a solid delegation from this state and the undivided support of the republicans of the state without regard to leaders. The first step in securing him this unanimous endorsement was the resignation of State Comptroller Roberts as president of the State club which was organized by John E. Milholland of New York city as an anti-Platt organization. Mr. Roberts is preparing a statement which he will give out for publication this afternoon, in which he will endorse Gov. Morton's candidacy and show why, in his judgment, Mr. Morton should be nominated. Mr. Platt and other prominent republicans will also be interviewed and give like statements to that of Mr. Roberts.

May Go to the Senate.

These publications will be with Gov. Morton's full knowledge and consent, as he is now satisfied that the republicans of the state are anxious to give him a hearty and unqualified endorsement. It is stated that when Gov. Morton acceded to the wishes of the party leaders to become a candidate for president, he at the same time announced that no matter what the result of his canvass might be he will not be a candidate for re-election as governor when his term expires on January 1 next. If he is unsuccessful, which is not for a moment expected that he will be by those who are cognizant of the circumstances which have led Gov. Morton to announce his candidacy, he would, it is thought, go to the United States senate as a successor of David B. Hill, whose term expires next year.

Speculation as to Next Governor.

The decision of the governor has led to much speculation as to who among the many candidates for governor is likely to succeed him. State Comptroller Roberts, Speaker Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State Palmer, Adjt.-Gen. McAlpin and J. Sloat Fassett have time and again been mentioned as possibilities, while there are some who seem to think that Hon. Warner Miller would profit by the governor's declination of a second term, under the circumstances which have caused the governor's announcement of his candidacy for the presidency.

ITALIAN TROOPS RETREAT.

Vanguard of the Abyssinians Now Occupying Adowa.

London, Jan. 2.—The correspondent of the Central News at Rome telegraphs that in accordance with Gen. Baratieri's plans the Italian troops occupying Adowa, in Abyssinia, retreated allowing Ras Mangascia and the vanguard of the Abyssinian forces to occupy the place. The troops will join Gen. Baratieri at Adigrat.

Common Sense Reasoning

Hood's Sarsaparilla Had Cured Others, and It Cured Me.

"It was sixteen years ago my right leg began to swell and pain. Four years ago it broke out in three dreadful sores. I tried all kinds of salves and liniments but the worse the sores became.

I Had to Walk on Crutches

and a greater part of the time was confined to my bed. I could not sleep nights and my eyes became affected. I have worn glasses for over six years. Since I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills two of the worst sores on my limb have healed and the third is almost closed. My sore eyes have been benefited as I can see to read and write and also thread my needle for sewing without the use of glasses. I came to use Hood's Sarsaparilla by noticing advertisements. I reasoned that what has cured others as do other diseases caused by an impoverished condition of the blood, when Bovinine is used. It is not a medicine, but the most perfect food product, containing all the vital principles of lean, raw beef. It is quickly assimilated, and by its wonderful power of creating new flesh tissue and enriching the blood, soon puts the patient in a physical state where disease can find no footing.

Hood's Pills cure habitual constipation. Price 25c. per box.

Erysipelas

Yields Quickly

Bovinine

besides its wonderful effect as a food, is invaluable in such cases as an external application, nourishing by absorption, and creating new, healthy flesh, where the disease is manifested. Dr. H. M. Sanger of Providence, R. I., says that he effected very rapid cures with slight spreading and no suppuration in three cases of erysipelas, two by simply applying gauze saturated with, and the third by injecting Bovinine at the border of the inflamed patch. (ESTABLISHED 1830.)
Volume CXXXII begins January, 1896
During 1896 Godey's Magazine will contain
TALKS WITH SUCCESSFUL WOMEN
Valuable hints about various branches of industry which are open to women, by women who have succeeded in them.
MUSIC IN AMERICA.
Discussions of musical subjects or people. Illustrated each month with portraits, autographs, and one or more pages of music. This music alone will make a valuable collection. This series of articles is a unique feature among monthly magazines. The papers are interesting to all readers, and are of positive value to those who play and sing.
THE STAGE.
Illustrated articles upon the best and newest plays and the foremost actors, particularly the best American productions. These are much more than gossip of players. They are entertaining discussions of the dramas that are talked about. Such treatment is not found in any other magazine.
ILLUSTRATIONS.
The Magazine will be well and thoroughly illustrated from cover to cover. Competent artists and improved methods of making and printing the plates will be employed.
THE COVERS.
The covers are different every month. They are designed by popular artists, and the covers for a year will be valuable as an art collection in themselves.
THE FASHION DEPARTMENT
which for years has given the latest fads and fashions, is of particular interest to women.
A HOME MAGAZINE.
Godey's is a magazine of this country and of today. It is a family magazine, with a larger scope than it had as the "Lady's Book." It is a monthly feast of wholesome, interesting reading, fit for every member of the household.
In addition to the features mentioned above each number will contain a liberal amount of fiction, by the best writers, articles on subjects of general interest, book reviews, etc.

BOND MEASURES'S FATE

Free Coinage Bill May Take Its Place in the Senate.

Best Judgment of the Situation Indicates Its Destruction in Committee—Tariff Bill May Be Reported Without Amendment—Republican Caucus May Be Called.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The senate committee on finance will hold its first meeting since reorganization to-day. Although final action may not be taken on either the bond or tariff bill recently passed by the house, some members of the committee will urge speedy action, and, if possible, an immediate report. The best judgment of the situation indicates that the bond bill will be destroyed in committee and a substitute in the shape of a free coinage bill reported. Nothing short of this will satisfy the silver men on the committee and as they have eight votes to five against silver, any measure they agree upon can be easily adopted in committee. Mr. Wolcott of Colorado, one of the new men added to the committee, has not been in Washington this winter owing to ill health, but his absence makes little difference, the silver men still having a working majority of two in committee and a clean majority in the senate of ten or twelve.

The Tariff Bill.

It is probable that the tariff bill will be reported to the senate without amendment. Republicans have been making every effort to get together on this measure and the silver republicans who will vote for free coinage as a substitute for the bond proposition, it is believed, can be persuaded to refrain from putting such an amendment in the tariff bill. Republican leaders hope to see the bill pass the senate as it came from the house. It is not unlikely that after the bill is reported a republican caucus will be held to discuss the subject and agree upon a policy.

A NIGHT IN THE RIGGING.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 2.—Schooner Carlotta, Capt. Gale, from St. John for New York with a cargo of lumber and laths, dragged both anchors and went ashore on Tuckernuck shoal, where she pounded heavily and filled with water. The crew set signals for assistance, transferring their luggage to the top of the after-house, and were compelled to pass the night there. In the morning they were taken off by United States revenue cutter Dexter and brought here. It is thought that the vessel and cargo will be saved, weather permitting.

COL. M'BRIDE'S SUICIDE.

Worried Over His Mother's Illness and Took His Own Life.

Middletown, Conn., Jan. 2.—Col. McBride, a wealthy bachelor, living on a farm near Greenville, worried about his mother's illness with the result that he became temporarily deranged. He left his home at 8 a. m. and soon afterwards was found hanging from a window of the barn. A piece of rope was about his neck and he was in a sitting posture, thus causing death.

WILL PAY THE FRICK SCALE.

Notice of Advanced Wages Posted in the Rainey Plants.

Scottdale, Pa., Jan. 2.—Notices of an advance in wages have been posted at all the Rainey plants. Rainey will pay the Frick scale of wages except in one instance in which the Frick rate will be higher. The Rainey employes are satisfied with the turn the affairs have taken and there is no prospect of any trouble.

Spanish Princes for the Army.

Havana, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 2.—Don Fernando and Don Carlos de Bourbon arrived in this city on the Spanish transatlantic steamer San Fernando. They are princes of Spain, who have volunteered for active service in this island. They belong to the Spanish army, and will be detailed for active duty in the field.

Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The house yesterday chose Geo. L. Von Meyer as speaker, Captain Adams as sergeant-at-arms and Rev. David Waldron, chaplain. The senate organized by the election of Geo. P. Lawrence of North Adams as speaker and H. D. Coolidge of Concord as clerk. The election was unanimous.

Killed by a Woonsocket Street Car.

Woonsocket, R. I., Jan. 2.—Henry Butler, 7-year-old son of Philip Butler of 5 Winfield street, Worcester, Mass., is dead here from injuries inflicted by being struck by an electric car on Social street, this city. This is the first fatal or even serious street car accident in this city.

Counsel to New York's Sheriff.

New York, Jan. 2.—Sheriff Tamsen announces that he has appointed Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy as his counsel, in place of Supreme Court Justice MacLean, who was the sheriff's counsel before his recent election to the bench. The salary of the office is $6,000 a year.

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 2.—Edward Joseph Starr, a prominent citizen and member of the board of water commissioners, died last evening, aged 33. He was a seamless tube caster by trade.

Androscoggin Free of Ice.

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 2.—The ice left the Androscoggin river yesterday.

VENEZUELAN COMMISSION.

President Cleveland Announces the Names of Those Selected.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The president last night announced the composition of the Venezuelan commission which will consist of five members, as follows: David J. Brewer of Kansas, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States; Richard H. Alvey of Maryland, chief justice of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia; Andrew D. White, New York; Frederic R. Coudert, New York; Daniel C. Gilman of Maryland, president of the Johns Hopkins university.

GOV. MORTON'S MESSAGE.

Various Questions, Including Finance and Excise, Touched Upon.

Albany, Jan. 1.—Gov. Morton's message, sent to the legislature yesterday, touched upon various matters, including the new constitution, President Cleveland's attitude on the Venezuelan boundary dispute, finances, excise and extravagance in public printing. In regard to taxation he attributes the increase in the rate to the fact that the state must now take care of the insane. He recommends, in regard to the liquor question, that legislation be enacted looking to the reduction of the number of saloons. He upholds President Cleveland, but deprecates all idea of war, and condemns the extravagance of public printing bills.

NEW BICYCLE FACTORY.

Woolen Mills at Rockville To Be Put to a New Use.

Rockville, Conn., Jan. 2.—The Windermere woolen mills, with fourteen tenement houses and thirty-five acres of land on the outskirts of this city, have been sold to George H. Proctor of New York for $30,000 by the owners, George Follett of New York and A. D. Pitkin of Providence. The mill has been idle for five years and was unoccupied. The property originally cost $156,000. The mill will be started as soon as possible as a bicycle factory, employing 400 hands.

WANTED FOR FORGERY.

J. R. Campbell Arrested at Chicago and Taken to Pittsburg.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—J. R. Campbell has been arrested here on a charge of forgery preferred by John C. Reed of Pittsburg and left last night in charge of Officer Coulson for the east. Campbell is charged with forging Reed's name to a $100 check. It is said the man will have other charges to face, among which is that of forging the name of a man named Miller to a check for $1,000 in Cleveland.

WAR PREPARATIONS.

All Venezuelans Ordered To Enroll in the Militia at Once.

New York, Jan. 2.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Caracas, Venezuela, says: Garcia Gomez has been appointed chief of the national guard of the republic. The government has issued an order that all citizens between the ages of eighteen and fifty years shall be enrolled in the militia under the penalty of fine and imprisonment.

HELD UP BY MASKED MEN.

A Mississippi Sheriff Bound, Gagged and Robbed of $8,000.

St. Louis, Jan. 2.—A special to the Scripps-McRae league from Meridian, Miss., says that Sheriff Duval of Jones county was found bound and gagged in his office and the safe robbed of $8,000. He says a number of masked men did the job. Their trail has been found and a strong posse with bloodhounds are in pursuit.

ATLANTA EXPOSITION CLOSED.

The Expenditures Slightly Exceed the Receipts.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 2.—The work of breaking up the exposition began yesterday. Exhibitors were busy packing. All the buildings remained open, however, except the government building. The exposition receipts will hardly meet the expenses, but the deficit is small. The exact amount has not been ascertained.

Coggswell-Nickerson Wedding.

Dedham Centre, Mass., Jan. 2.—At noon yesterday in St. Paul's Episcopal church, C. Van Renssellaer Coggswell, a wealthy New York clubman and a son of the late Judge Coggswell, was married to Eugenie, the eldest daughter of the late Albert W. Nickerson, the millionaire railroad director and personal friend of President Cleveland.

Czarina Opens a Charitable Bazaar.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 2.—The czarina opened a great charitable bazaar in the winter palace yesterday in the presence of a large company of guests. Her majesty had a long and most cordial conversation with Mrs. Breckenridge, wife of the United States ambassador. The American stall in the bazaar was much admired.

Letter Carrier Arrested.

Boston, Jan. 2.—Joseph W. Jenkins, a letter carrier for sixteen years, was arrested yesterday charged with holding back mail matter. He had borrowed money from business men on his route and not being able to repay it, he was ashamed to face his creditors, and so did not deliver their mail. He was held for trial.

Plymouth as a Port of Call.

Hamburg, Jan. 2.—The Hamburg-American Steamship company have definitely adopted Plymouth, England, as a port of call instead of Southampton.

Intercollegiate Chess.

THE BATTLE OF COLON

Insurgents Jubilant Over Their Great Victory.

New York, Jan. 2.—A correspondent sends the following from Havana: Every night in all the churches of the city prayers for peace are offered. The insurgents are, of course, jubilant over the victory achieved at Colon three days ago. Details of the battle are still rigidly suppressed by the government and the Havana newspapers publish meagre accounts of it. But witnesses of the battle arriving here confirm the early rumors, and say that the Spanish forces suffered a terrible defeat. It is known that one general was killed and another mortally wounded, but it would be idle to estimate the loss on either side. It is certain that no such battle has ever before been fought in Cuba.

Flower of the Spaniards Routed.

Gen. Martinez Campos had at Colon and vicinity between 18,000 and 20,000 men, horse and foot, with seven batteries of artillery. His position was considered almost impregnable, and no one dreamed that the insurgent army would make an attack. But the attack was made and the flower of the Spanish army was routed, and a part of the artillery fell into the hands of the insurgents. Of course, the rebels will not be able to hold the positions they have taken, because of the immense number of troops hurried forward to reinforce Campos, but the moral effect of the victory has weighed against the government, even in Havana, the stronghold of the loyal party.

Entire Garrison Killed.

Since the arrest of Father Balles, the patriotic priest of Cobre, who sold the ornaments of his church and house and sent the proceeds to the rebels, the beautiful little chapel has been occupied as a garrison by Spanish troops. On Friday night of last week a large body of rebels made an attack upon the edifice. The garrison of seventy men made a desperate resistance, but the rebels gained entrance through the doors and windows. The fight was terrible and quarter was neither asked nor given. The insurgents became masters and held the church for four hours, but were finally dislodged by a battery of artillery arriving from Santiago de Cuba. The building itself, having walls thirteen feet thick, was not seriously damaged, but the beautiful interior was a mass of ruins. Under cover of the darkness the rebels must have carried away their wounded, for not a living person was found among the many bodies in the church upon the arrival of the infantry which accompanied the battery.

Political Prisoners Liberated.

Wednesday night the rebels rode into the city of Trinidad, killed a number of guards about the jail and liberated twenty-two political prisoners before the government garrison could be aroused. On the following night the rebels in larger numbers returned and made an attack upon the military hospital, which was guarded by thirty men. The hospital is one of the largest in the interior, and the rebels wanted the medicine stores there. These were secured, as only feeble resistance was made. Stray shots killed a number of the sick and wounded soldiers at the hospital.

Spain's Novel Scheme.

The Spanish government has a novel scheme for rebuilding the navy. It asks all loyal Spaniards in Cuba, Mexico and Central and South America to agree to subscribe nine dollars annually each for a period of five years. The circular says that no repayment of the money thus loaned or given will be made, but that all "true sons will find in their pride at again seeing holy Spain a power on the seas" a sufficient reimbursement.

Rebel Goods Captured.

The Spanish warship Ardilla from Cienfuegos up the San Juan river on a cruise of observation was attacked by about forty insurgents in small boats. The ship's guns were turned on the rebels. Returning to Fort San Juan, at the mouth of the river, the Ardilla captured two rebel schooners laden with arms and ammunition. A large batch of Cuban revolutionary correspondence and 50,000 stamps issued by the junta in New York were also captured.

Scores of Bushwhackers Hanged.

Bushwhackers who did not obey the injunction of Gen. Gomez to join one army or another before December 15 have suffered badly during the past week. Scores of them have been hanged. It does not matter whether they voluntarily present themselves or not, death is certain. Gen. Carillo's men captured a party of seventeen in the vicinity of Caibarien, tied them to trees and cut their throats with the machete.

That tricky 5.

Will 1896 see city and borough under one municipal head?

A foot of snow in Shelbyville, Ind., and a foot, more or less, of dust in Plainfield. Queer country and queer weather.

Philadelphia is keeping up its reputation. The snail-like rapidity with which it settles the street car strike must be tough on those involved.

It is said that that the Czar of Russia does not believe in the Monroe doctrine. But that is all offset by his dislike of England, and so we would be all right anyway.

Governor Morton, of New York, is said to be an out-an-out candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. If he gets it he will have had a most remarkable career, from the very fact that he served four years as Vice-president and was afterwards heard of in public life.

Now that Cranford has completed her sewerage system the problem of how to get financial returns confronts the officials. There is a disposition, however, to charge rental fees. It is claimed that unless such a method is adopted the tax rate will be increased 40 cents on the $100.

Columns might be written in retrospect of Plainfield during the past year, but of what use? The city is progressing rapidly in growth and wealth and people know it, and those who do not soon become acquainted with the fact in the ordinary course of things.

A WONDERFUL REPAST.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:

I wish to call your attention to the great magnanimity of the Asbestos Limited Club for the bountiful repast given at their rooms on New Year's day, consisting of twenty-five courses prepared by a caterer of New York city.

The members of said club on Christmas day decided to keep open house on the coming New Year's day, 1896, and, therefore, put the wheels in motion to make it a perfect success and make it a day of happiness and rejoicing for all of its members. No pains were spared to entertain their friends in the most hospitable manner. Committees were appointed to wait upon the incoming guests and escort them to the overloaded supply of substantials and nic nacs, which their sideboards possessed. One thing I must say, they laid no intoxicating beverages before their members or visitors beyond sweet cider. And there was no discrimination made between poverty and wealth. All were attended alike in the same hospitable manner. You would see the bankers, brokers, retired merchants, men of leisure, Government officials, farmers, mechanics and laborers, who earn their living by the sweat of their brows, all comingling as one of accord, showing that the American people believe in the unity of strength when danger of foreign wars stares them in the face.

Since writing the above I have had pleasure of seeing the caterer's bill for the layout which was only $225, being remarkably low for such a grand display. I will say the bill was receipted in full, so the public need not feel sorry for the caterer.

SCHOOL FOR NETHERWOOD.

A Taxpayer Complains of Poor Educational Facilities for That Section.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—A report has gained credence that another public school is to be built on Third, near Berckman street. A school in that neighborhood would be a great mistake, as it would not accommodate the great majority of children that attend the Bryant School, who have to walk over a mile, and some of them nearly two miles. There are a great many small children that have to attend a private school in Netherwood on account of the great distance they have to go, and others that do not attend school, as their parents cannot afford to send them to a private school. Should a school be built, and it is certainly needed, it should be located no further west than Netherwood avenue to meet the requirements of the East end children. The accommodations at the Bryant School for children that have to eat their lunch there are certainly not what they ought to be; the scholars have the choice of being locked in the cellar while the janitor goes home to a hot dinner, or eating theirs out of doors.

Taxpayer.

SHOULD BE ONE.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:

Borough annexation? No, this is not the popular term—for the word annex would mean different elements—when in reality Plainfield and North Plainfield are one—one in every interest that can make our people one. Streets and avenues cross the imaginary dividing line, people resident in North Plainfield do business in Plainfield, our churches derive much of their membership from the borough, and social and friendly intercourse touch elbows at every entertainment, but aside from all these, sanitary reasons and sewer construction all demand one head and concentrated action. Extensions of streets already projected and in construction would be facilitated. And I feel that no one will contend but that police jurisdiction under one head would mean better service and less expense to each. Whatever may be one's prejudices on the liquor question, I feel that the most liberal will admit the absurdity of two systems or policies with only an imaginary line to divide them. With all deference to the abilities, qualifications and dignity of the two respective Mayors, I confess it always provokes a smile on gala days to see two heads, as city mayors, acting as chief functionaries, when grander dignity and force and better economy would be accomplished through one.

TRUTH IN RHYME.

Cider joints flourish with impunity,
In this otherwise pure community.
They guzzle forth iniquitous stuff
And make imbibers very gruff;
Zigzag their victims walk,
Befuddled thoughts they talk
Then a policeman comes along
And the arm of law so strong
Descends in one mighty swoop
And off they march to the coop.
A night of horrors is spent
With pockets containing not a cent.
Arraigned in court the next morn
The victim looks hopelessly forlorn.
At the prisoner the judge gives a gaze,
He hears the charge—Drunk!—thirty days!
And thus ends the little escapade
Of the results of hard cider trade.

PASTORS AT HOME.

Three Gospel Teachers Entertain Members of Their Churches.

Rev. C. E. Herring greeted a large number of the members of his church yesterday at his home, 403 East Second street. He was assisted in receiving by his sister, Miss Pansy Herring. Those who served chocolate and crackers were Miss Nettie Remsen, Miss Wood, Miss Grace Petrie, Miss Agnes Blair, Miss Bessie Blair. A feature of the affair was the presentation to the pastor, by Mrs. P. P. VanArsdale, of an exquisite collection of water color paintings, taken from the texts of sermons preached by Mr. Herring. It is in book form, and a choice bit of holly tied with satin ribbon, makes it an exceedingly valuable present. During the evening Mr. Herring made several flash-light pictures of the young people.

A delightful social affair yesterday was the tea given by Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Richards at their home on East Front street from 4 to 7 o'clock. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Ostrom, Mrs. Bushnell, Mrs. Leal, Mrs. Pierson and Miss Richards, of Germantown, Pa., sister of Dr. Richards. Those who served as waitresses were Miss Munger, Miss Miller, Miss Erskine, Miss Kate Martine, Miss Tracy, Miss Janes and Miss VanDeventer. About 160 persons, chiefly members of the Crescent Avenue church, were present and extended hearty congratulations. The decorations of the table were pink.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Barnes, of Grove street, were at home yesterday afternoon to the congregation of the First M. E. church. They were assisted in receiving the numerous guests by the Misses Barnes.

New Year's Eve Ball.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the A.O.H. gave a ball in T. A. B. Hall, Tuesday evening. There was a large number present. Prof. O'Reilly furnished the music. The committee in charge was Edward Buringham, N. Nugent and T. Fitzgerald. D. Shay acted as floor manager.

OF

Muslin Underwear,

Waists,

Wrappers, Corsets.

Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look Before You Buy.

So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.

We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well-made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so-called sales.

An exciting match was bowled on the Park Club alleys Tuesday night between two two-men teams. One was composed of S. St. John McCutchen and Dr. Chas. R. Thiers, and the other of Wm. M. McCutchen and William Thiers. The first team, the veterans, won both games by the respective scores of 351 to 302 and 350 to 313. The young men were not in it but expect to try again. The game was the result of a challenge made by the junior team to any two-men team in the Park Club.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

A chess club was formed Tuesday afternoon among the young men of Park and Madison avenues and vicinity. Its organizers were Henry Leal, Stanley Peck and Irving Clark. The playing resulted in a score of three victories for Peck. Meetings will be held during the winter.

AT THE TRAPS.

Several shooting matches were held at the grounds of the Climax Gun Club yesterday. In the first match Benner and Darby divided first money and Goodman took second money; in the second, Blimm was first and Goodman second; in the third, Benner first and Terry second; in the fourth, Benner first and D. Darby second.

THE DAY AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Sports and Sociability Marked the Opening of the New Year.

The Y. M. C. A. kept open house yesterday afternoon and evening and quite a number of people visited the building. During the afternoon selections were given on the Symphony and at four o'clock a basket ball game was held in the gymnasium between the Junior teams from Plainfield and North Plainfield. The game was exciting and the boys played very well, showing that they had taken advantage of Physical Director MacPhie's coaching. The North Plainfield team won by a score of 4 to 2. The goals were made by North Plainfield.—Waring 2, Overton 2. Plainfield—Long 1, Whitney 1. Then followed a bowling match in the alleys down stairs which resulted as follows:

FIRST TEAM.		SECOND TEAM.
E. Laing	135	Rockwel	134
R. Carroll	133	Snedeker	175
M. Sutphen	134	Smith	115
Lederer	150	Moraller	88
C. Sutphen	118	C. P. Sutphen	107
Total	700	Total	619

In the evening Jere M. Cobb, the elecutionist, assisted by Mr. Duncan, trombone player, entertained for an hour. Another game of basket ball followed and the High School team had no difficulty in defeating the Spartans 10 to 5. The game was hotly contested, however. The goals were made by High School—Smith 5, Schoonmaker 3, Sutphen 2. Spartan—Pike 2. Barnes 1, Jessup 1, Martin 1.

The Gun Was Evidence of Guilt.

The Misses Arrowsmith, of Elm place, were very much frightened yesterday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock. They were quietly reading in their dining room, which is in the front part of the house, when they heard the report of a gun and two bullets came flying through a front window. One bullet just missed striking one of the ladies. Looking out doors they saw John Burns, a neighbor, with a gun. He was slightly intoxicated, and in that state denied having shot the gun, but others saw him. They will probably enter a complaint before the proper authorities, and have the man dealt with according to law.

Sons of Temperance Officers.

The following officers were elected at the meeting of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, last evening: Worthy patriarch, Mrs. Anna Angleman; worthy associate, Miss Alice Scribner; recording scribe, Sylvester Scribner; financial secretary, Mrs. Emma Cox; treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Mattox; chaplain, Mrs. Corwin; conductor, Mrs. Sarah Koyer; assistant conductor, Mrs. M. E. Clum; inside sentinel, Harry Mattox; outside sentinel, Wm. Koyer; past worthy patriarch, Miss Try Mattox. They will be installed Tuesday evening, January 14th.

A New Year's Eve Surprise.

A very pleasant New Year's Eve party was given by Mrs. Harry Lavell, of Putnam avenue, Tuesday evening in honor of her sisters, the Misses Lydia and Ethel Fuhrmann, of Albany. Games and dancing made the hour of midnight come only too soon. Among those present were the Misses Finch, Ethel Finch, May Simpson, Florence R. Beal and Messrs. John Chandor, Richard G. Simpson, Edward S. Simpson, Percy V. Wheeler, Edward Finch and Albert P. Simmonds.

Piles of people have piles, but De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. When promptly applied it cures scalds and burns without the slighest pain. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

THEATRICAL.

Charles T. Ellis, undoubtedly the greatest stage favorite with ladies and children everywhere, comes to Music Hall, on Monday evening next, when he will be seen in his grand new scenic production "The Alsatian," an Irish-German comedy drama in three acts. He is always a welcome visitor and has as many friends among our theatregoers as any actor of whom we know.

Dunellen.

J. F. Snell, of Somerville, spent yesterday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. S. VanArsdale spent yesterday at Lyon's Farm.

Mrs. Stengen and children have returned home from a visit at High Bridge.

Miss Maggie Turmame, who has been visiting, Mrs. Dickinson, has returned to Indiana.

Miss Alice Apgar, who has been visiting at Annandale, has returned.

Miss Maud Titsworth, who has been visiting her sister at Hartford, Conn., has returned home.

Mr. Wedemeyer, who has been visiting his daughter at the home of Mrs. Frote, has returned home.

The G. E. Club met at the home of Miss Emma Nelson yesterday afternoon and received New Year's calls.

Mr. and Mrs. Chickester, of Poughkeepsie, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Craig, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Snell, of West Dunellen, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. G. Waldron, of Washington Valley.

A sociable was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. H. Burdick, of New Market, and ended in a watch meeting which was held in the Seventh day Baptist church.

The Schubert Musical Club, of New Market, gave a reception in Friendship Hall, New Year's Eve, at which every one reported having a delightful time. Dancing was the feature of the evening, for which the music was furnished by the orchestra. This is the last reception of the club for this season.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

J. Evarts Tracy and family have removed to 11 East Forty-fourth street, for the winter.

L. L. Manning went to Philadelphia this morning to superintend the erection of a large monument.

Miss Clara Williams, of Madison avenue, entertained a few friends on New Year's Eve. The evening passed very pleasantly in games and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs Stewart Hoyt Patterson have returned from their western trip and will receive their friends Mondays in January, at their home, 346 Franklin place.

Joseph A. Robinson, of East Fifth street, has just returned from a trip to Southern California. He is loud in his praise of the delightful climate, only to be found in that country of sunshine and flowers.

An Error of Figures.

Through an error of a compositor in correcting proofs of ex-Mayors Saunders' statement in The Press of Tuesday, the tax rate in the city for 1894 appeared as $2.06. It should have been $2.22. The 1895 tax rate in the borough should have been $2.06 instead of $2.32, and the assessed valuation $600 instead of $500.

A loud ring of your doorbell in the dead hours of night is alarming. So is the first hollow sound of a cough from one's husband, wife, son or daughter. It is disease knocking, with perhaps a certain silent visitor waiting not far away. Arrest that cough. Stop it. Stop it at the start. A few day's use of Ely's Pineola Balsam and the danger is past. Relief is immediate; a cure certain. This remedy is rich in the curative principles of the balsams and also contains certain ingredients that are new.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

For the New Year

We promise you the best of service, the best of goods and prices to make our store as you would have it, as near perfect as possible. Sometimes a complaint is made but never a one but we are more than willing to right it and where 1895 has been the best year we have ever had and we thank you for it. We look forward into '96 with greater expectations and know we can only realize them by following the same liberal policy that we have worked out during the past years, of making every customer a satisfied one.

Its not a question of profit this month, we are anxious to reduce stock, and to do it we name prices on goods that you want and can have for little money. Read

BEYOND THE SEA.

What dreams are born, what sweet eyes softly shine,
What golden lyres make happy melody,
What thrilling lips break forth in song divine,
Beyond the gleaming gateways of the sea?

If I but step into the silvering wave,
And launch my soul upon the ebbing tide,
What hand shall be outstretched from thence to save,
And draw me swift unto the other side?

O love, this is the way thy feet have passed,
And still the foam crests glow with rosy light!
O love, herein death found thy lips at last,
And where ye twain embraced the sea is bright!

And I will follow thee! 'Tis not so far
But I shall soon behold thy radiant eyes
Lighting the world where blest immortals are,
As dawn illumes the dark and sunless skies.
—St. James Budget.

NOT DISORDERLY CONDUCT.

A Man May Kiss and Embrace His Wife In Public if She Doesn't Object.

It has been established as a legal principle that a man can kiss his wife on the street with impunity, without fear of the law or without interfering with public peace and good order. And he may not only kiss his wife, but he may hug her to his heart's content. The decision was rendered in the case of Ezekiel Martin, a United States soldier of Fort McPherson, who was arrested by Patrolman Phillips on a charge of disorderly conduct.

It seems that Martin and his wife met on West Peters street, and upon sight fell into each other's arms and wept tears of joy and sorrow, the cause of which seems to have been that the wife was about to go on a visit to her grandmother for a stay of some time—at least, that was the reason given by Martin for the conduct of himself and wife. Martin said that he met his wife, and as she was then going away to visit her grandmother he kissed her, not thinking it was against any law for a man to kiss his wife. The evidence in the case showed that he did more than kiss his wife, however. Two young men testified that Martin warmly embraced his wife on divers sections of Peters street for a distance of several blocks, and that the performance created disturbance and disorder in the locality of Peters and Fair streets, so sensational did it become. The couple fairly reveled in the performance of bidding each other a long farewell, the festivities being prolonged for such a length of time that a policeman arrived on the scene and arrested the affectionate husband, complaint having been made to him by W. F. Westley, a storekeeper, and others of the conduct of the man and woman.

Officer Phillips said that it had been reported to him that the man and woman had been hugging and kissing each other in a store, and that they were made to get out by the proprietor, who said that he didn't want any such conduct at his place of business.

After hearing the evidence the court said that the disorderly conduct charged had not exactly been established in his mind, the court not being able to see anything particularly harmful in a man kissing his wife on the street or elsewhere, although it might not be exactly "Peachtree etiquette." The court didn't think there was anything disorderly or immoral in a man kissing and hugging his wife, and he dismissed the case.

Martin and his happy consort left the courtroom beaming with satisfaction. The woman occupied a seat in the rear of the courtroom during the trial and was an interested spectator. When last seen, they were going up Decatur street hand in hand, congratulating each other on having been the means of establishing a principle of law that may be hailed with delight and joy by every affectionately disposed husband and wife.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Brain In Your Throat.

Did you know that the throat has a brain of its own? I suppose few people are aware of it, but it's a fact. There is a small ganglion which exercises direct control of the muscles of the throat and acts as its brain. Of course, it is subservient to the genuine brain, but, at the same time, does a good deal of independent thinking for itself. It is very timid and suspicious of any strange objects that come near the throat.

For this reason it is very difficult for a physician to operate on the throat. Before anything can be done in this direction it is necessary for the operator to gain the confidence of the little brain that dominates it. It frequently takes weeks before this confidence can be secured, and until it is secured it is impossible to perform any operation.

Woe to the man who attempts rough treatment to the throat before gaining the little brain's confidence! His operations will be resented with violent paroxysms, first of the throat, then of the diaphragm, and, if the operator still persists, the patient will be thrown into convulsions. Still more curious is the fact that this little brain has a memory, and if once frightened in this way it is almost impossible to ever gain its confidence, no matter how gentle the operator may be.—Pearson's Weekly.

Watch Was a Stemwinder.

A tough fish story is related which may or may not be true, and as it relates to an Atlantan we print it. The story goes that one spring, while a party of Atlantans were fishing at the dead lakes, in Florida, a well known Atlanta lawyer lost his gold watch from the boat in which he was sitting. The next spring he made another visit to the lakes and during the first day's sport caught an eight pound trout. His astonishment could be imagined when he found his watch lodged in the mouth of the trout. The watch was running and the time correct. It being a stemwinder, the supposition is that in masticating his food the fish wound up the watch daily.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Evil Eye.

Antiquitie hath held that certaine women of Scythia, being provoked and vexed against some men, had the power to kill them only with their looke. The Tortoises and Estriges hatch their eggs with their looks only, a signe that they have some ejaculative vertue. And concerning witches, they are said to have offensive and harmeworking Eies.—Montaigne.

A Clear Coast.

Catterson—We are going to have a big revival at my church next week. Come up and spend some evening with me.

Hatterson—Great Scott! I don't go to revivals.

Catterson—Neither do I, but my wife does.—New York Herald.

Man is beyond dispute the most excellent of created beings, but the sages agree that a grateful dog is better than an ungrateful man.—Saadi.

LIGHTHOUSE LIBRARIES.

Uncle Sam Furnishes the Watchers by the Sea With Free Reading Matter.

The popular impression concerning the lighthouse keepers is that they spend their leisure time in resting their heads on their hands and gazing far out to sea, watching for shipwrecked mariners, sea serpents and other things. As a matter of fact, however, they don't spend any more time in this manner than they can help. They have their domestic operations just the same as people on shore. In favored locations they are even able to cultivate a little ground and raise their own vegetables. But they are really very often lonesome, and were more so until recently, when it occurred to some philanthropic government official that it would be a good idea to provide these watchers by the sea with something in the way of reading matter. The idea took shape in the construction of portable libraries, to be filled by the government, sent to one lighthouse station, and at regular intervals to be called for and passed on to the next one on the list.

The library furnished to light stations is about 2 feet high, 2 feet wide and 8 inches deep, of shellacked white pine, strengthened with heavy brass trimmings. It has two shelves. Its two doors are secured, the one with an inside bolt and the other with a mortised lock. On the sides are hinged handles. When locked, the library cases can stand rough handling.

The cases of the libraries are so constructed that they make a neat appearance when set upright on a table; when closed and locked, they are ready for transportation. Each contains on an average about 40 volumes of a proper admixture of historical and scientific works, besides poetry and good novels. An exchange of libraries takes place once in about three months, usually at the time when the lighthouse inspector makes his quarterly inspection. Each station to which a library is furnished thus has the use of about 150 different books each year. There are now about 700 of these libraries in circulation, and more are in preparation. Preference is given in their distribution to those lighthouse stations most distant from towns and villages.—New York World.

THE TOPICAL SONG.

Tony Pastor Thinks It Has a Power to Mold Public Opinion.

Tony Pastor, in the New York Mirror, has this to say of the topical song:

"I am a great reader of the newspapers. I believe not only in the public press, but in its utility. It is the most valuable agent the vocalist has ever had for securing subjects for popular songs. The comic vocalist must be quick to perceive the peculiar topic or phrase of human life which is liable to interest the amusement going public and must be a little ahead of time. Having selected my subject for a song, I jot down a few ideas about it as they come to me and afterward put them into shape.

"The fads and the ultra fashions of both women and men are always fair game for the comic singer. Songs on some of the most commonplace themes will often entertain an audience, such as a fellow's best girl, the old man's boot, the mother-in-law, the scolding wife and so forth.

"It has been found that the comic song exerts an influence in political contests and in bringing about social reforms. The comic vocalist of the specialty theater may claim with the journalist and the statesman the ability to mold public opinion. His shafts of melodious ridicule do much to reform flagrant abuses and cause the general public to laugh to scorn the foolish fads of the day."

The First Notice of a Steamer.

Among the curiosities of advertising may surely be placed the first advertisement of the first steamer that plied for hire in Great Britain—namely, Henry Bell's Comet. Thus ran the advertisement in the Glasgow Courier of 1812:

"Steam passage boat, the Comet, between Glasgow, Greenock and Helensburg. For passengers only. The subscriber having at much expense fitted up a handsome vessel to ply upon the river Clyde between Glasgow and Greenock—to sail by the power of wind, air and steam—he intends that the vessel shall leave the Broomielaw on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays about midday, or at such time thereafter as may answer from the state of the tide, and to leave Greenock on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in the morning to suit the tide. The elegance, comfort, safety and speed of this vessel require only to be proved to meet the approbation of the public, and the proprietor is determined to do everything in his power to merit public encouragement. The terms are for the present 4 shillings for the best cabin and 3 shillings for the second, but beyond these rates nothing is to be allowed to servants or any other person employed about the vessel."

What would poor neglected Henry Bell have said could he have seen his humble little Comet, of whose elegance, comfort and speed he was so proud, alongside a modern ocean racer or one of the latest palatial river steamers of the Clyde or Thames, all so well advertised?—Chambers' Journal.

The Difficulty of Saving Money.

"Talking about saving money," said a veteran millionaire, "it is 100 times harder now to keep cash in your pockets than it was when I was a young fellow and didn't spend a cent. I tell you it's hard for them to save in these times. Every young man wants a bicycle, and it's mighty hard to stand on the street and see your friends spinning by on wheels and not invest yourself. Again, it's a great privation for a young fellow not to be well dressed. The distinction between good clothes and poor is so sharp nowadays that it is galling to be conspicuous by cheap attire. Again, there are the theater, the excursion boat, the races and a score of other inducements to spend money which hardly existed in my day, and I'm glad they didn't, for if they had I honestly think I would have been a poor man now."—Buffalo Enquirer.

Perplexed.

Talking of the unconscious arrogance of the writing tribe and the fictitious importance allowed by youthful minds to the claims of that class and the pedagogical class, a Boston mother of much knowledge of the world said lately:

"I'm puzzled what to do with my boys. I wish them to be educated—but how to do it without submitting them to association with books and schoolmasters!"—Boston Transcript.

No Stoves In Mexico.

"In old Mexico we have no stoves," said Antonio Estrado. "Most of the houses are built of adobe bricks, without floors, and the fires are built on the ground, where all cooking is done. In the more aristocratic families the American pattern of cooking stoves has been introduced, but only a few of them are in use."—New York Journal.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

Matildy Perkins' Opinions

By GERTRUDE F. LYNCH.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

The busy days glided by, grew into weeks, months and even years. The village life moved on in its monotonous round of petty pleasures and petty pursuits. The old died, the young married, the children were born, but through all her opinions on matters social and domestic were still called for and still paid for. Each year brought an additional wrinkle to her forehead and an additional debt of gratitude and respect to her exacting neighbors.

All at once rumors became rife that she was to be married. The man for whose sake gossip pronounced her ready and willing to make the necessary sacrifice after years of solitary existence was Deacon Smith, a widower, whose deceased wife, dead one long year, had left him the care of six small children and a household disorganized and disordered. A decent season of mourning having elapsed, his intentions of seeking a successor were soon apparent. No one answered his requirements so well as Matildy, and from suggestions and hints the report was soon widespread. The match was a suitable one, and Deacon Smith was not averse to its consummation. He realized Matildy's fitness for the position and considered he was offering her no mean equivalent for her future advice and companionship.

His visits to her, urged forward by the interest of his neighbors, who seemed to consider that by promoting this marriage they were paying off their own long arrears of indebtedness, and his own predilections, were many in number and suggestive in detail. Matildy was not ignorant of the object of his attentions, but with her accustomed shrewdness and ingenuity managed to prevent his coming to the point until she had satisfactorily settled in her own mind whether it would be worth while for the sake of having her future decided to exchange a life of freedom for that of stepmother to the six young Smiths. The question was a hard one to settle; it presented so many aspects, was bristling with so many pros and cons. So Deacon Smith's anticipatory visits were many in number.

Rumors of her probable consent were wafted to Daniel Macquirk's ears and caused him many an unpleasant quarter of an hour as he meditatively smoked his pipe after the evening chores were finished and nothing interfered with the long retrospect of memory.

One night Matildy, having escorted Deacon Smith to the front door as usual, stood meditatively on the stoop, lamp in hand, the yellow rays throwing into prominence her angular figure and sharply cut face, on which an expression of abstraction rested. That night the deacon, having determined to be beguiled no longer by her woman's wit and worn out by the contentions and problems of his exacting household, had blurted forth his proposal.

Matildy, hesitating to the last, fearful of committing herself to an irrevocable step, asked a reprieve of the night to consider the question. No wonder she stood there forgetful of time and situation as she watched his sturdy figure melt into the gloom.

As he reached the gate the long tendrils of yellow lamplight fell on and softened his rugged face. The lateness and deathlike stillness of the hour, her isolated position and the lonely home toward which he was tending moved him to a sudden impulse.

"Evenin, Matildy!" he called out.

She, too, was softened by her environment. "Evenin, Dan'el!" she murmured.

A hesitating touch on the gate latch thrilled her with the knowledge that for the first time since her father's death he was voluntarily approaching her.

She trembled, waiting expectantly.

When he reached the step, he paused, hoping she would make the meeting easier by a friendly word of greeting.

But her mood had changed. She had tried so often to overcome his hardness and been repelled that she had become skeptical and feared a deep laid scheme for her future discomfiture.

Daniel Macquirk coughed; then seeing that, if the ice was to be broken, he must take the initiatory step, he said quickly and in a strangely humble tone, "I've come, Matildy, to ask your opinjon consarnin something."

Matildy would not be beguiled by the soft tone lest it should tempt her to an admission which might result in confusion. She straightened her tall, stiff figure and pressed more tightly together her thin lips.

"I'm usually paid in advance," she said laconically.

Her visitor hesitated, not that he grudged the coin, but its presence seemed to give too practical an import to the conversation.

His hesitation annoyed her.

"I thought so," she commented ironically as she turned to enter the house.

He caught her dress with one hand, while with the other he extricated a dime from his breeches pocket.

"Here, Matildy," he ejaculated as he laid the money in her outstretched palm.

"What is it?" she whispered huskily, conscious at last that he was in earnest and fearful of herself and him.

"I wanted ter ask yer, Matildy," he went on, "ef yer think there's any chance of yer ever consentin to be my lawful wife?"

A long silence ensued, during which the prospects of Deacon Smith and his large family, the hopes of her officious neighbors and her own loneliness were buried to rise no more. Then she turned and in embarrassed accents said, "Here's yer 10 cents, Dan'el."

Daniel Macquirk took the coin, hand and all, and so they stood, regardless of the prying eyes of a possible wayfarer, while they discussed her last unaided opinion.

THE END.

GIVE OLD WORDS A CHANCE.

Why Invent Barbarous Combinations of Letters to Patent?

When laws are made that tend to affect the purity of our language, a professor of literature should have a power of revision over the decision of mere M. P.'s.

At present an enterprising manufacturer may not patent an English word whereby to describe his goods, but he may coin a word and patent that. The legislators who brought this matter about deserve the warmest possible time in a future state.

What right have they to tamper with the purity of a noble language and cause walls and boardings to be crowded with offensive perversions of real words? England really requires a licensing committee on matters of taste.

I am not a patriotic enthusiast. I can't shout "Hurray!" when I see a regiment of soldiers, and I really think "God Save the Queen" a dreadfully bad composition, whose demerits are not covered by its good intention, but when I see a great language tampered with my dormant patriotism is aroused.

There is really no justification for the state of things I have described. The average Englishman does not use one word in ten of those placed at his disposal by the lexicographers. There are thousands of long words born to live unseen and waste their length within the dim recesses of a dictionary.

Why not hunt them out and place them at the disposal of patentees? Nobody wants them for general purposes. They are rusty for lack of use and only see life from the tip of the tongue of some old Dr. Dryasdust. Place them in the mouths of people more young and pleasant than old professors—give them something to live for.

The pathos of the situation is really intense, and it is a shame that trifles like Armenian outrages and Russian persecutions should close the ears of the people to the bitter cry of an insulted language.—London Sketch.

NO CHINESE IN LEADVILLE.

Its Rarefied Atmosphere Does Not Agree With Them.

There are no Chinese in Leadville. The atmosphere is too rare for them, and in other days when a Celestial would stray into the camp something or some one soon told him to stray out again, and he quickly obeyed the still, small voice. Some years since a resident of the camp brought in a Chinese cook. Within an hour the cook and his employer were waited upon by a committee of public spirited citizens full of information as to railroad time tables and the hour for the departure of the next train. The employer was careless as to train time and so announced. "Very well," replied the committee, "we will leave the time table with you and will be at the station to see your friend off, to speed the parting guest, so to speak. If he is not there on time, it will probably be necessary to hang him, and if you should get tangled up in the rope you will have no one to blame but yourself." And then the committeemen went placidly away to their respective gold and silver propositions.

At 3 p. m. the Chinaman and the afternoon train departed from the camp in each other's company. That was quite a good while ago, but never a Chinaman has since been seen here.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two Queer Cases.

Among the curious things in life few are more amazing than the constitutional peculiarities occasionally met with. The professor who delivered the introductory address to the students at one of the London hospitals thought it well to put his audience on their guard.

He instanced two very singular cases. One was that of a man to whom rice in any form was poison. Some friends wished to test this person's susceptibility, and at dinner surreptitiously got him to partake of biscuits in each of which was a grain of rice. He ate two or three biscuits and soon after had to leave the table, declaring that he was being poisoned by rice, though he was absolutely certain he had not partaken of any.

The other case was one in which the juice of a gooseberry acted as a powerful excitant and produced at once a virulent skin eruption. This man was so very susceptible that he could detect gooseberry juice even when it was masqueraded as champagne. At a public dinner he whispered to his neighbor that it was gooseberry wine they were drinking, and as proof he turned up his shirt sleeve and showed him the rash developing.—London Globe.

Real Excitement.

"Yes," said the meek looking man, "I've no doubt you've had some great hunting experiences in the west."

"I have, indeed!"

"Buffalo hunting"—

"Sure!"

"And bear hunting"—

"Of course!"

"Well, you just come around and let my wife take you house hunting and bargain hunting with her. Then you'll begin to know what excitement is."—Washington Star.

ENTRE NOUS.

Two souls there are upon this earth
Whose daily lives touch mine.
The one is steady, full of worth,
With thoughts almost divine.

The other is a rogue perchance,
A villain, yet so bright
He like a meteor seems to glance
And dazzle all in sight.

The one has kind and genial ways;
The other's full of ire.
The one gives me long, happy days;
The other, moments dire.

To one I talk of many things,
Birds, books and flowers and rhymes;
His comrade gives ill tempered flings
And rasps me oftentimes.

These two are quite as far apart
As Ghibelline or Guelph,
Yet here's a secret—in my heart,
I think they're both myself.

WAITED ON JOHN WILKES BOOTH.

Recollections of Lincoln's Assassin by One of Mrs. Surratt's Slaves.

Nathaniel Simms, who, in the early sixties, was Mrs. Mary E. Surratt's colored waiter boy, lives north of Oxford, Pa. He is a native of Prince George's county, Md. Simms says when 14 years of age he was bound out to Mrs. Surratt, there being seven other colored boys on the place. He tells in the Philadelphia Inquirer the following respecting his mistress:

"The missis lived at Surrattsville, about seven miles from Washington, and being a lady of wealth owned considerable of the village. She possessed fine features and a temperament that was excitable. Her favorite hobby was riding horseback. I have seen her put one hand on the saddle pommel and vault up into the seat without assistance. Mrs. Surratt was fond of wine. She could wield a rawhide with vigor, and it always came upon the backs of us boys so unexpectedly.

"She entertained frequently. John Wilkes Booth was a frequent visitor at the house, he being very intimate with my mistress' son, John Surratt. Booth, a kind of a helpless fellow, required a good deal of waiting on, and from him I received the first money I could say was mine. About two months before the taking off of President Lincoln Booth was at the Surratt mansion steady. A few days before the shooting of the president Mrs. Surratt and I went into Washington, and she bought 9 or 12 pistols at a gunsmith's. They were put in a little coffin, which the undertaker hauled in his hearse across the eastern branch bridge. The guards supposed it was a funeral and made no attempt at searching. Mrs. Surratt, after reaching home, hung the pistols around on the walls of her room.

"On the night of the assassination Booth and John Surratt ate supper together and left the house. About midnight Booth returned, and I heard Mrs. Surratt clap her hands and exclaim, 'I'm glad the old rebel is dead!' meaning our noble Lincoln. That same night I helped Booth into the saddle, and he shot down the pike as if the demons were after him. On opening the house next morning I was surprised to see the piazza and yard full of soldiers. One of them asked if Booth had been at the house during the night, and I replied that he had. In a short time my mistress and all hands about the place were taken into Washington."

Catching Your Shadow.

"You go out," said the Malay lady, "on the night before the full moon and stand with your back to the moon and your face to an ant hill, so that your shadow falls on the ant hill. Then you recite certain jampi (incantations), and bending forward try to embrace your shadow. If you fail, try again several times, repeating more incantations. If not successful, go the next night and make a further effort, and the night after, if necessary—three nights in all. If you cannot then catch your shadow, wait till the same day in the following month and renew the attempt.

"Sooner or later you will succeed, and as you stand there in the brilliance of the moonlight you will see that you have drawn your shadow into yourself, and your body will never again cast a shade. Go home, and in the night, whether sleeping or waking, the form of a child will appear before you and put out its tongue; that seize, and it will remain, while the rest of the child disappears. In a little while the tongue will turn into something that breathes, a small animal, reptile or insect, and when you see that the creature has life put it in a bottle, and the pelsit is yours." — Swettenham's "Malay Sketches."

How They Telegraph In Persia.

Telegraphic communication in Persia is said to work fairly well in dry weather, but in times of rain and damp it is unfortunately far otherwise. This arises from the fact that the insulators are not fixed to poles of wood or iron, as with us, but are driven into trees that have branches growing round the hooks and touch the wire, thus intercepting the current.

When a large tree is not available, a small one is resorted to, which often breaks, or the shaking of the slender tree by the wind dislodges the insulator or hook on which it is fixed, and the wire trails on the ground.

A case is officially reported of a high foreign official telegraphing to Teheran from Europe announcing his intended arrival at Resht, in which the telegram was received in the sender's presence 18 days after its dispatch.—New York Herald.

Every Housewife Should Know This.

"William," she said gently, and yet in accents of reproof, "you remember that I gave you several letters to mail last week, don't you?"

"Y—yes. I remember it."

"But this is the first time you have remembered it since I gave them to you, isn't it?"

"I—I must confess that it is. How do you know?"

"I put a postal card addressed to myself among the lot, and it hasn't yet reached me. It only cost a cent, and I find that it is a very effective way of keeping check on the rest of my mail. Now, dear, if you will hand me the letters I'll run out and post them myself."—Washington Star.

Properly Named.

"I want to buy a makeup box," said the young married man.

"A makeup box?" the confectioner echoed. "We don't keep theatrical supplies."

"I mean a box of candy, to take home to my wife. I promised to be home three hours ago."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Westfield Surprise.

Quite a number of young people from Plainfield attended a surprise sociable at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lambert, at Westfield, on Monday evening. It was given in honor of a new home just completed for Mr. Lambert and wrs a genuine surprise to him and his estimable wife. Good music, plenty of dancing, followed by a bounteous supper, mace the evening a very enjoyable one to the large number present. Miss Etta Raybert, of North avenue, this city, is entitled to much of the credit for the success of the affair.

Saengerbund Festivities.

The Saengerbund and Turn Verein societies entertained their friends New Year's Eve in their hall by presenting a short programme, consisting of singing by the society, a dialogue in German by August Wolff and M. Schoetlin and a comical recitation by Otto Kellar. Prof. Schroeder, leader of the singing society, was presented with a handsome rocking chair and a large long pipe. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Yesterday there was "open house" at the hall, and many called and enjoyed the refreshments and sociability.

The Great Soubrette Lillian Kennedy

Will open a two nights engagement commencing Wednesday, January 8th, in the great scenic production "She Could'nt Marry Three" and on the second night will play the great New York success "The Little Rebel." These plays are full of the latest songs, medleys and dances of the day notwithstanding that this company is very strong and expensive the prices will be popular—10, 20 and 30 cents.

War On the Central.

There came very near being war on one of the trains on the Central Jersey railroad yesterday. A man got on the train and when the conductor asked him for his ticket he said he had none. He refused to pay his fare and wanted to thrash the conductor and all the rest of the train crew. He was arrested at Plainfield and locked up. This morning in the city court he gave his name as Charles Ferguson. He was sent to jail for thirty days.

Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Pruden, of 148 East Second street, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last evening, at which time a large number of friends called and extended congratulations. Many costly presents were received.

Emancipation Anniversary.

The thirty-third anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation will be celebrated at Bethel chapel with appropriate ceremonies next Thursday evening. The public are invited. Rev. W. A. Alexander will deliver the address.

A Nuisance.

Evan Jones was arraigned before Judge Coddington in the City Court this morning charged with dumping obnoxious substances in the vicinity of Netherwood. He promised not to do so again and sentence was suspended.

Celebrated With Cannon.

Some of the young men of this city and the borough celebrated the arrival of 1896, Tuesday evening, with salutes from a large cannon. They chose Westervelt avenue as the scene of their operations.

—Charles Vanderbeek, head nurse at the Brookside Sanitarium, was married, Tuesday afternoon, to Miss Hall, of Flagtown.

—This evening in Bethel chapel there will be held an emancipation proclamation celebration, which will be attended by the survivors who were liberated by this document.

—Sexton Clark Mundy, of Trinity Reformed church, rang the old year out and the new one in with the church bell. Five minutes before 12 o'clock he tolled the twelve months.

—Miss Florence Hawkins entertained sixteen colored children with a Christmas tree at her home on La Grande avenue yesterday afternoon. Among the features was an address by Judge Mosher.

—Mrs. Corlies entertained the Central Avenue Euchre Club at her home, Road Ending, New Year's Eve. The first and second ladies' prizes were secured by Mrs. J. Parker Mason and Mrs. C. L. Case, while Henry McGee and Mr. Booth were awarded the seconds. Mrs. Ladd drew the consolation prize.

Messrs. P. A. and J. P. Emmons attended the golden wedding of their parents at South River, Middlesex county, yesterday.

Mrs. John Rowland and daughter Miss Grace Rowland, of East Second street, have returned home from Hunterdon county, where they were guests of relatives.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Eleanor T. Van Deventer by ten of her friends on New Year's Eve. The time passed quickly with games and conversation.

$3.00 for Ten Lessons.

In vocal sight reading, Miss Anna O. Marsh expects to start a class for young ladies and married ladies at her residence, 915 Madison avenue, on Wednesday afternoon, January 8th, at 2 o'clock.

Since Miss Marsh has also received applications for an evening class of mixed voices, she will (if enough names can be secured) start such a class Tuesday evening, January 14th, at 8 o'clock. Prompt applications are desired for both classes.

Miss Marsh's teaching is similar to Mr. Frank Damrosch's, of New York, as both graduated from Mr. Holt's Normal Institute of Vocal Harmony, in Lexington, Mass. t s t

The Letter Carriers Annual.

The Letter Carriers Annual was distributed yesterday by the postal servants of Uncle Sam. It is a neatly arranged book, containing much postal information, and also has an interesting history of the Plainfield post office written by Charles E. Buell.

A Representative Resigns.

Iona Council, Degree of Pocohantas, met last evening, the attendance being very good. David C. Allen resigned as representative to the Grand Council on account of holding a similar position in Miantonomoh Tribe. J. H. Carney was elected to fill the vacancy. Arrangements were made to receive the deputy and his staff at the raising up of the chiefs Wednesday evening, January 15th. A collation will be served, to be followed by a dance.

FORTY YEARS OF BLISS.

Two Score Years Have Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Karner Lived Together.

The fortieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron B. Karner was celebrated at their home on Bradford avenue, Evona, Wednesday, in a manner suitable for the occasion. Refreshments were served both afternoon and evening. The presents were many and various. On one table were arranged forty different articles from their two daughters, while on the wall over the table were placed the figures 1856 and 1896 in silver letters; also their portraits taken before their marriage and others recently. Among the presents were forty new pennies from each of their four grandchildren. There were many other articles both useful and ornamental. The rooms were appropriately decorated with evergreens and ferns. There were four generations represented at the gathering. About fifty guests took part in the celebration, some of them coming a long distance to show their kind regards for the couple who had lived so many years together, and whose friendship they esteem very highly. Among the guests invited, but not able to be present, was a brother of Mr. Karner, living in Massachusetts, who is eighty-seven years of age.

ESCAPED FROM THE ASYLUM.

Then Learned That He Was Heir to a Large Fortune.

William Appleton, of Cranford, escaped from the State Asylum for the Insane at Morris Plains about two months ago. He managed to borrow money enough to reach his old home in England. There he learned that his mother had recently died, leaving him a fortune of several thousand dollars. As soon as he could get the estate settled and secure his money, Appleton sailed again for this country and landed in New York several days ago. He has now secured counsel and intends to spend all of his fortune, if necessary, in order to secure the punishment of all those who, he claims, were instrumental in illegally having him placed in the asylum.

A BOY'S MAD LOVE.

Benjamin Redfield Gives Vent to His Jealousy.

Benjamin Redfield, fourteen years old, Wednesday evening attempted to murder Emma Langleh, eighteen years old, and her sister Eve, who is fifteen. The girls were out driving near Piscataway, and as they passed Redfield's house the youth ran from the house armed with his father's shotgun and fired one shot, striking the elder girl. It is said that Redfield is in love with the younger sister, and became angry when she ignored him. A warrant was issued yesterday morning charging the boy with atrocious assault with intent to kill.

A Well-Known Society.

Among all the patriotic societies there is none of more importance or higher social standing than the Sons of the American Revolution. This evening the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution give a grand dinner at Delmonico's. Representatives will be present from many of the other States, while the list of speakers will include such prominent men as Chauncey M. Depew. George P. Mellick, of LaGrande avenue, is one of the members of the society and will be present at the dinner.

Rang Out the Old Year.

The Schubert Club, of Plainfield, Dunellen and New Market, gave a dance New Year's Eve at Friendship Hall, New Market. The dance was a great social success and all those who attended spent a very pleasant evening. A large bell was hung from the centre of the ceiling, hidden from sight by greens. At 12 o'clock the guests were startled to hear the bell ring out loud and clear.

Lillian Kennedy Coming.

She Couldn't Marry Three, with the original scenery and mechanic effects will be used and will be the opening bill for Wednesday, January 8th, and on the second night she will play the great New York success, A Little Rebel. Notwithstanding the terrible big expense of this attraction the prices will be popular, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Secure your seats at once.

To Celebrate Their Anniversary.

Next Tuesday evening Howell Division will celebrate their anniversary. It is expected that several grand lodge officers will be present besides several divisions from this State and New York.

NO FEAR OF INJUNCTIONS.

DUNELLEN PEOPLE WILL NOT APPEAL TO THE COURTS.

The Dunellen Call Says They Realize That They Have No Grounds to Go Before a Court and Have the Sewage Beds Closed

Last Tuesday The News published an article to the effect that the Dunellen officials were going to immediately endeavor to secure an injunction to prevent the city from using the sewage beds. The Dunellen Call yesterday says the statement is utterly untruthful. The Call says:

No member of the borough commissioners made the statements referred to and we challenge the writer of this article to mention the name of this prominent official.

The citizens of this place are not "Up in Arms," and they have no large sum of money at their disposal. Even if they had they have got more common sense than to squander it in trying to obtain an injunction without the shadow of success.

We have quietly and unsuccessfully entered our protests in the most friendly manner to the officials of Plainfield, and knowing the nature of the soil from practical experience, tried to convince them they were making a mistake, but were informed that we were totally ignorant on sewage matters and they knew the business from a to z.

Since the beds have been in preparation we have complacently watched the operations and are more than ever convinced that they will prove a total failure and therefore the people of Plainfield will be the greatest sufferers.

We are perfectly well aware that we have no grounds for an injunction until the system becomes a nuisance, and no large sum of money would then be needed to get redress from the State Board of Health. There is much more fear of an injunction from their own citizens than from us.

It is not the wish of the citizens of Dunellen to put any obstacles in the way of the disposal of Plainfield's sewage and never has been, but the publication of such items as the above, without any foundation in fact, is infinitely more injurious to us than the sewage farm, and can only be the product of a brain that has no regard for truth or others. "Give a calf rope enough and it will hang itself."

FORMER PLAINFIELDER WEDS.

Joseph Hankinson, Now of Newark, Married to a Hackensack Belle.

A very pretty home wedding took place at Livingston, yesterday afternoon, when a former Plainfield young man, Josegh Hankinson, of Newark, carried away one of the belles of Hackensack, Miss Anna E. Bunn. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents. She has been living with her uncle in Hackensack.

The large residence of Mr. Bunn was beautifully decorated and the one hundred guests who attended were treated in the most hospitable manner. Frank Steck, of Newark, was best man while Miss Dumont, of North Branch, made a charming bridemaid. A number of handsome and valuable presents were received, among which silver was prominent.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Huff, of West Fifth street, were the only guests from Plainfield. A number had been invited, but were unable to go.

Mr and Mrs. Hankinson will reside at 29 Grant street, Newark.

Big Water Supply Pipe.

President Frank Bergen, of the Water Supply Company, is the authority for the statement that a 24-inch pipe will be laid between Elizabeth and the South Plainfield ponds next spring to furnish water to the former place. This will relieve the demands on the Netherwood wells to a considerable amount.

A New Law Student.

Abram Cornish, a Harvard graduate, has taken a position as clerk in the office of ex-City Judge W. R. Codington. Mr. Cornish is a native of Morris county, and is to take the place of J. P. D. Kirch, who was a former clerk in the office of the ex-Judge.

A Holiday Frolic.

The members of the Kitchen Garden will have a holiday frolic next Monday at 4 p. m. instead of the regular lesson. All members of the class, whether they have been regular attendants or not this winter, are invited to be present.

Supreme Court Judgment.

R. C. Williams & Co., through their attorney, W. R. Codington, have secured a judgment in the Supreme Court against Thomas Carty for $520.75. City Judge DeMeza represented the defendant, Carty.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

PROCLAMATION ANNIVERSARY

Interesting Service Held at Bethel Chapel Last Evening.

The thirty-third anniversary of the emancipation proclamation was celebrated last evening at the Bethel chapel by appropriate services, which were attended by a large number of survivors of the memorial public paper, and also many other people. The programme was opened by prayer by Rev. P. S. Gibson, followed by instrumental selections by Otis Bush and a vocal solo by Miss Cully. A feature of the evening was the reading of a history of Bethel chapel, which was written in Biblical language and in which the names of those who first started the society were alluded to in a complimentary manner. The paper was prepared by Mrs. W. A. Alexander. The emancipation proclamation was read by Miss Edith Sohnson.

Rev. W. A. Alexander delivered the address of the evening on "The Progress of the Race." He told of the conditions that surrounded the colored people thirty years ago and how hard it was for them to make much advancement in the world, but how different it was now when every facility was afforded to educate themselves and go out to grapple with the world. The address was enthusiastically received by those in attendance at the meeting. Those who took part in the exercises were among the first attendants at the chapel. At the close of the exercises refreshments were served.

PROGRESSIVE HEARTS.

Pleasant Social Event at a Westervelt Avenue Home.

A very pleasant progressive heart party was given on Wednesday night by Miss Mabelle Smith and Thomas U. Smith, of Westervelt avenue. Miss Molly Garretson, of Newton, L. I., and Miss Elsie Smith tied for highest among the young ladies, while George B. Snediker won first prize among the other sex. The evening passed away very pleasantly and all were sorry when the time came to depart.

Those present were the Misses Garretson, of Newton, L. I., the Misses Smith, Miss Ferris, of Brooklyn, Miss Grace Tenbrook, of Rutherford, Miss Louise Holmes, Miss May Woodruff, Guernsey Nevius, Charles H. Angleman, George B. Snediker, Thomas N. Smith, Charles Hazeltine, Robert Green, of Newton, L. I., and Howard Martin.

$3.00 for Ten Lessons.

In vocal sight reading, Miss Anna O. Marsh expects to start a class for young ladies and married ladies at her residence, 915 Madison avenue, on Wednesday afternoon, January 8th, at 2 o'clock.

Since Miss Marsh has also received applications for an evening class of mixed voices, she will (if enough names can be secured) start such a class Tuesday evening, January 14th, at 8 o'clock. Prompt applications are desired for both classes.

Miss Marsh's teaching is similar to Mr. Frank Damrosch's, of New York, as both graduated from Mr. Holt's Normal Institute of Vocal Harmony, in Lexington, Mass. t s t

Only Waiting for the Proper Time.

Several day ago two representatives of the Consolidated Traction Company were driven over the routes of the Plainfield Street Railway Company with Secretary Riker. After inspecting the property in this city they were driven over the proposed route to Bound Brook. It is pretty generally understood that the local corporation will be bought up in the near future by the capitalists who are going to build the through road to Philadelphia.

Saengerbund Society Elects.

At the annual meeting of the Sanger Turnverein last night the following were elected for the ensuing year: President, M. Schoethlin; vice-president, John Richter; corresponding secretary, Henry Hurand; financial secretary, Ignatz Kohner; treasurer, L. Moraller. The election of marshal and special committee will be held on Thursday, January 16th. A masquerade ball was arranged for in February.

Brought Home a Wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Green, who were married yesterday at Newburgh-on-the-Hudson, returned to Plainfield and will take up their residence on Manning avenue in a few days. Mr. Green is employed at the station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company at Netherwood.

Not Accepted the Call.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, states that he has not accepted the call to a church in Massachusetts.

UTILIZES ALL COMBUSTION.

Seymour G. Smith Has Perfected a Device for Saving Fuel.

Seymour G. Smith, of this city, has invented and applied for patents for a new device for setting horizontal boilers. He states that it is an established fact that only 27 per cent of the combustible properties of coal are actually utilized, the remaining 73 per cent going up the stack in the form of gas and carbon. He claims that by his invention a large percentage of the waste combustion can be utilized so as to maintain the required pressure on a large boiler with the consumption of only about one-half the usual amount of coal now used. He has made long and thorough study and expensive experiments on the problem of combustion, and now claims that he has it as near perfection as can be obtained, as demonstrated in his crematories for garbage and all other city refuse and his patent deodorizer, smoke condenser and consumer that is now successfully working on a plant in New York city that had previously been condemned by the Board of Health. He also claims that he can burn soft coal without emitting black smoke, soot or cinders from the chimney.

A BIG CATCH.

Eighty Fresh Water Terrapins Caught in a Few Hours.

On New Year's day three "Old Hunterdon" County Democrats went hunting fresh water rough-back terrapin along the mountain streams of Warren township, just back of this city. The trio was composed of G. W. Bourne and Martin Johnson, of Cranford, and D. F. Godown, of Somerset street, Plainfield. They left this city promptly at 8 o'clock and covered a distance of probably eighteen miles and returned home at 5 o'clock with eighty-eight fine rough back fresh water terrapins that will average over two pounds each in weight. The writer saw, last evening, sixty of them at Mr. Godown's residence in water barrels.

This is one of the largest finds of this species that was ever picked in so short a time in this section of the State. These beauties are soon to be served at a private suppar.

The Janitor Stays With Them.

Stevenson R. Hope, janitor at the Bryant school building, called at The Press office this morning and stated that the letter signed by Taxpayer was slightly inaccurate with reference to the statement that he goes home and locks the children who carry their dinners in a room by themselves where they are obliged to stay until released. They are locked in the room to prevent them from meddling with the steam pipes, but Mr. Hope remains with them till some of the teachers return.

Another Cadet Company.

There is considerable talk among the boys of the North Plainfield public school about the formation of a cadet corps very much on the plan of the High School Cadet Corps of this city. The boys will be uniformed and an effort will be made to secure guns from the state. About thirty boys are interested in the new company.

To Go to the Inauguration.

The Colored Republican Club will meet on Tuesday evening to make final arrangements for the trip to Trenton to witness the inauguration of Gov. Griggs. About fifty are expected to be of the party which will be the Union county delegation. They will be the guests of the Union Republican Club, of Trenton.

Last Meeting of the Old Council.

The last meeting of the old City Council will be held tomorrow evening. The new Council will meet Monday evening, January 6th.

Only Thirty-seven Alarms.

During the year 1895 there were thirty-seven alarms of fire, including still alarms. The total damage was nominal, owing to the efficient fire department.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold a meeting this evening of special interest to all.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." A VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES

DR. RIGGS THUS CHARACTERIZES THE SULTAN OF TURKEY.

Foreigners Cry Out for Him to Concede Certain Things, and His Own People Say He Has Conceded Too Much Already.

A large meeting in the interest of the Armenian sufferers was held last night in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Mayor Gilbert presided, and spoke briefly at the beginning.

"Doubtless you are all aware," he said, "of the terrible tidings which have been coming to us from the East during the past few months. It is estimated that over ten thousand people have been massacred in cold blood. The Turks think that they are divinely appointed to exterminate the Christians. Something ought to be done for the relief of these unfortunate people. But the war ships of Europe are lying quietly at anchor tonight in the harbor of Constantinople. However, a peaceful movement for their relief has been organized, and tonight we shall have an opportunity to help along this good work."

Mr. Gilbert then announced that Dr. James F. Riggs, in whose lectures on the Eastern Question Plainfield is so much interested, would address the meeting.

Dr. Riggs began by stating some important facts about the Armenians. They are of our own blood; of Aryan or Indo Germanic race, not of the Semitic, the race of which Mohammed came. They have a highly cultivated language and literature of their own; they have one of the finest versions of the Bible in existance. Their number has been estimated as from two and a half to four million; probably the latter figures are more correct. About one million of them are in Russia; most of the remainder live in the Turkish Empire, but they have a different language and religion, and come of a different race, and there has been no amalgamation.

There is no such country as Armenia; the name is commonly given to that part of the Turkish Empire chiefly inhabited be the Armenians, a region of Asia Minor. They were once a powerful, independent people, with kings of their own, but were obliged to yield to one power after another. They were the first people to acknowledge the Christian religion, as a nation. They were greatly influenced by the preaching of St. Gregory, whom they called "The Illuminator." Their church is Episcopal in form, and they are governed by bishops.

They have been for a long time under the rule of the Turk, and this rule has been steadily growing worse and worse from the beginning. The Turks think that they have nothing to fear from Europe; that if anyone interferes with them, England will step in and prevent them from suffering at their hands.

"Why not reform the Turk?" has often been asked. Why not teach him what is considered right and wrong in European governments?

Just as soon as the Moslem ceases to believe in his own system, he ceases to be a Moslem. It is not the bad Moslem who persecutes the Christians; it is the good Moslem; the more a Moslem believes, the more he persecutes.

What is meant by Turkish atrocities? It is what happens when there is removed from the inhabitants all restraint upon doing whatever they please to their Christian neighbors. They come down upon a village and demand all their cattle; next day they demand them over again, and because there are none left, perhaps, they will carry off a hundred of their choicest young women to the mountains, there to suffer a fate that only the imagination can picture. Perhaps there is resistance; then the regular troops are sent against the village. The people are rebels, and must be exterminated.

Men and women and children are mutilated and tortured; the skin torn from their bodies, chopped to pieces alive, with axes, or turned out half-dead into the snow to die, old women stripped of their clothing, babies bayonetted in their cradles.

The men at the head of the Turkish Government are the off-scouring of the earth, morally. The Sultan is the poor victim of circumstances. On one side, the foreigners, with their iron-clads in his harbor, cry out to him to concede certain things; on the other side, the Moslem population cry out that he has already conceded too much.

Dr. Riggs closed by speaking of the relief movement under the control of the Red Cross Society, saying that he was sure all present would desire to take part in this plan of help, which seemed to have been divinely opened up to them.

Dean Rodman then read a copy of resolutions, which are to be sent to Congress and printed in the newspapers, and they were heartily approved. Dr. Richards announced that an offering would then be received; he had already received one hundred dollars towards it, and hoped that it would be a very generous one.

The resolutions set forth the atrocities that have taken place and called the attention of Congress to them. They protested against these outrages and asked that Congress take some action at once in the matter.

During the collection, Dr. Rodman suggested that a committee be appointed by the chairman to collect from the citizens of Plainfield an additional offering. This suggestion was approved, and, announcing that this committee would be appointed later, Mr. Gilbert dismissed the meeting.

The amount of the collection was $70.

REFORM CLUB INSTALLATION.

Officers For the Coming Year Take Their Places.

There was a large attendance at Reform Hall last evening when the newly elected officers were installed. H. N. Spencer and Jacob Voehl acted as masters of ceremony. The officers are as follows: President, W. C. Smith; first vice-president, F. M. Marcley; second vice-president, S. Scribner; third vice-president, E. Lanphear; recording secretary, Wm. B. Ayers; treasurer, J. D. Spicer; financial secretary, J. W. A. Bauersachs; marshals, John Hensey, George Rockafellow; sergeant-at-arms, W. C. Smith, Jr. President Smith then appointed the following committees: Finance, S. P. Hoffman, W. R. Codington, N. B. Smalley; executive, H. N. Spencer, J. A. Hubbard, W. R. Codington, Jacob Voehl.

Speeches were then made by Mrs. Opdyke, Mrs. Corwin and the officers-elect, after which a collation was served. Through the influence of several women present three signers to the pledge was secured.

Thought It Was a House.

Some small boys of the East End, in search of amusement, found a large chestnut tree in a yard. They dragged it to East Fifth street where they set fire to it. Several of the passersby saw the flames and started to give an alarm of fire before they discovered the cause of the fire.

Officers Installed.

Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., met last evening and installed the officers recently elected. One new member was received. A collation was served at the conclusion of the meeting. There was a large number of members present besides a number of visitors.

The Borough Solons.

The Borough Council will hold their first meeting in the new year this evening, when it is expected that the Watchung avenue commissioners will report. The fire alarm matter will be settled tonight and other business of more or less importance will be transacted.

A New Bicycle Store.

James Babbitt will move his store from its present quarters on East Front street and occupy other quarters. Vetterlein, the bicycle repairer and machinist, will take possession of Babbitt's old quarters in a short time and will open a bicycle store there.

Relief Association Gets the Trumpet.

Those in charge of the recent firemen's fair were unable to decide in the contest for the silver trumpet and in consequence it will be presented to the Firemen's Relief Association.

The Old Bell Ready to Ring.

The old fire-alarm bell has been hung on top of Warren Engine Company's house, with a rope attached. It will be used temporarily until other arrangements are made.

Board of Education to Re-organize.

The Board of Education will meet on Monday evening when they will re-organize for the year. A president of the board will probably be elected and committees appointed.

Let Off With a Fine.

Dave Hooper, who was arrested for stealing a pair of clippers from Dan Roberts, was this morning fined $10 in the Union County Court at Elizabeth, which he paid.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

FOR COAST DEFENSE

The Matter To Be Immediately Considered.

Senator Squire Will Push His Appropriation Bill To an Early Hearing—Fortifying Our Coasts, He Considers, a Matter of Vital Importance—Several Cities Anxious.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Senator Squire has called a meeting of the committee on coast defense for immediate consideration of his bill on fortifications and coast defenses. Gen. Craighill, chief of engineers, U. S. A., will make his statement to the committee to-day as to the needs of the seacoast cities and his ability to erect the fortifications if the appropriation of $87,000,000 shall be made as called for by the bill of Senator Squire. Gen. Flagler, chief of ordnance, will also make his statement to the committee as to the manufacture of guns, mortars, gun carriages and projectiles as soon as he can be heard. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, will also make a statement to the committee showing the necessity of immediate and energetic action by the government. It is desirable to get this matter in an official form as soon as possible to enable congress to act with intelligence and promptness.

Coast Cities Anxious.

Petitions to congress are pouring in from Charleston, Savannah, Galveston, New Haven and other cities on the Atlantic coast, and similar action is being taken in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and San Diego, on the Pacific coast. Senator Squire introduced his bill at the beginning of the present session, prior to the message of the president on the Venezuelan question and the excitement which followed. He subsequently reintroduced the same bill, containing an additional provision making the whole $87,000,000 immediately available in the discretion of the president. Senator Squire, having had a conference with Secretary Olney, feels that it is necessary for the United States to go forward immediately in its preparations to maintain its position on the great questions which affect the national life and honor. Therefore he regards the question of coast defenses as one of most vital importance and that any neglect on the part of congress to attend to this matter will amount to an abandonment of the position we have already taken as a nation.

REBEL DEFEAT REPORTED.

News at Madrid of Heavy Loss to the Insurgents.

Madrid, Jan. 3.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that a body of government troops under Col. Galvis has defeated near Alfonso XII. a strong detachment of rebels belonging to Maceo's command. Heavy loss was inflicted on the insurgents. The dispatch adds that the rebels are retreating from the interior to the province of Matanzas.

Political Prisoners Deported.

Santiago de Cuba, Dec. 22, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 3.—The Spanish trans-Atlantic steamer Baldomero Iglesius, that sailed yesterday for Havana, embarked the following political prisoners from Guantanamo for Ceuta on the coast of Africa: Manuel Justiz, Manuel Rodiles, Porfirio Carcases, a lawyer; Dr. Joaquin Ros, Pedro Perich and a mulatto named Pascasio. The following political prisoners were embarked from this city: Augustin Lafaurie, Ensebio Carabado, Antonio Figuerdo Pavon and Jose Carmen Ramjres.

Vanderbilts Leave Biltmore House.

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 3.—George W. Vanderbilt and his guests from New York, who have been at Biltmore house during the holidays, left last night for the north by a special train. The unexpected departure of the party was occasioned by the receipt of a telegram conveying the intelligence of the death of Mr. Vanderbilt's niece, Miss Alice Twombley at Madison, N. J.

U. of P. Will Be Represented.

Philadelphia, Jan. 3.—The University of Pennsylvania will be represented at the indoor games of the New Jersey Athletic club in Madison Square Garden, New York, early in February, by George W. Orton, G. M. Coates and George O. Jarvis. These crack athletes will compete in all the running events scheduled at these games.

Trouble at Cripple Creek.

Cripple Creek, Col., Jan. 3.—It is estimated that 500 claims in this district on which owners have failed to do full assessment work in 1895 have been jumped. Althoug armed men are holding claims in all the outlying portions of the district, no fights have yet been reported.

Pooled Their Interests.

Baltimore, Jan. 3.—The Manufacturers' Record reports that the three companies which have been operating in the south to introduce cylindrical cotton compress systems have pooled their interests. Each of these companies was capitalized at $1,000,000 or more.

Four Persons Break Jail.

Murphysboro, Ill., Jan. 3.—Four prisoners broke jail here Wednesday night. Henry Jones, a murderer, was among the number, the others being petty offenders. Tools were supplied from the outside.

The Public Debt.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The debt statement shows a net decrease in the public debt, less cash in the treasury, during December, 1895, of $1,179,349.80.

SHOT A HIGHWAYMAN.

Police Justice Blume, of Chicago, Kills a Would-Be Robber.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Police justice Jarvis Blume, while passing the Thirteenth street Alley "L" station at 1:30 in company with his daughter May, was attacked by two masked men, who sprang from the shadow of the structure. One of them threw his arms about Mr. Bloome's neck and tried to strangle him. The other made an attempt to find his pocketbook. Justice Blume drew his revolver and fired. One of the men uttered a cry of pain and tried to run. He went a few steps and fell, with blood streaming from a wound in his abdomen. Before the police arrived the man was dead. Justice Blume turned the revolver upon the other man and fired several shots after him as he ran, but none took effect so far as known.

THE SHOOTING ACCIDENTAL.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The secretary of state has received from Gov. Foster of Louisiana a communication concerning the shooting of the mate of a British vessel at New Orleans during the levee riots there last year. The British government, through Sir Julian Pauncefote, called on the state department for an explanation of the treatment given a British subject, and Mr. Olney wrote to Gov. Foster asking for the facts. Gov. Foster's answer shows that the matter was referred to the attorney general of the state for investigation, and the report made by him indicates that the shooting was accidental and was done with no evil intent towards the mate.

A GREATER CINCINNATI.

Twelve Square Miles, Including Five Villages, Annexed.

Cincinnati, Jan. 3.—Twelve square miles of territory have been added to Cincinnati, increasing the area from twenty-four and one-half square miles to thirty-six and one-half, and increasing the population to 355,000. It also increases the taxable valuation $11,000,000, which is about a 5 per cent. increase; it also increases the bonded debt about $1,500,000, which is also an increase of about 5 per cent. The villages annexed are Linwood, Avondale, Clifton, Westwood and Riverside, five villages with an aggregate population of 16,000.

LAWYER CLEMENT A SUICIDE.

Put a Gas Tube To His Mouth and Found Dead in His Office.

Nyack, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Elbert Clement, a lawyer of Haverstraw, 38 years of age, committed suicide there. He went to his office early in the morning and put a tube from the gas jet to his mouth. At 9 o'clock he was found dead. He was a son of the Rev. Elbert Clement, a Methodist clergyman of the Newark conference. He was formerly a police justice of Haverstraw and his standing in social circles was high. Ill health was probably the cause of his action. His body was discovered by the office boy, who entered to open the office.

STATE CORPORATIONS.

Albany, Jan. 3.—During the last year 1,423 stock companies were incorporated with the secretary of state, as compared with 1,229 in 1894. The amount paid for the privilege of organization was $180,000 in 1894, and will approximate half a million dollars in 1895. This is almost twice as much as the largest amount of revenue received in any one year since the enactment of the tax act of 1886. It is noticeable also that more companies with large capital were incorporated last year than ever before.

Improvements at Northampton.

New Haven, Jan. 3.—Plans have been perfected on the part of the New Haven company for costly improvements at Northampton, Mass. They include an elevated structure through the city, a union station, a change of the New Haven company's freight yard, and the elimination of six grade crossings. The expense will be borne by the city, the state of Massachusetts and the New Haven and Boston & Maine companies.

SOUTH AFRICAN CLOUD

Chartered Company Calls Off Dr. Jameson.

Requested To Return Immediately to the Company's Lands—Reported That Queen Victoria Has Ordered the Duke of Fife To Resign His Directorship of the Company.

London, Jan. 3.—The Times of Africa asserts that Queen Victoria has peremptorily ordered the Duke of Fife, husband of Princess Louise of Wales, to resign his directorship of the Chartered British South Africa company, whose administrator, Dr. Jameson, is reported to have led a force of 500 armed men to Johannesburg, capital of the South African republic, to assist the foreign residents in enforcing their demands. The duke denies that he has been ordered to resign and says that he may possibly issue a statement on the subject later. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary for the colonies, has issued the following signed statement regarding events in the Transvaal: "The high commissioner is leaving Cape Town this afternoon for Pretoria to deal with the situation in furtherance of a peaceful and satisfactory settlement in obedience to my requisition." The Chartered company directors have telegraphed to the managing director at Cape Town directing him to immediately inform Dr. Jameson that the company dissents from and objects to the action he has taken, and requires him to return immediately to the company's lands.

Jameson at Johannesburg.

It was affirmed on the stock exchange that a cable dispatch had been received from Johannesburg stating that Dr. Jameson had arrived there with his followers and that all was quiet there. The Globe publishes a news agency dispatch from Berlin stating that it is said there Dr. Jameson has arrived at Johannesburg and has had friendly and pacific communication with President Kruger of the South African republic. The Westminster Gazette states that it is reported that Dr. Jameson has been made a prisoner. The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that 1,000 armed men in readiness at Buluwayo to march into the Transvaal are probably now en route for that territory.

SIX BURNED TO DEATH.

Terrible Result of an Early Morning Fire at Columbus.

Columbus, O., Jan. 3.—By the burning at 4 a. m. yesterday of the residence of John H. Hibbard, 1398 East Long street, Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard, their son Allen, aged 5, an infant named Dorothy, Miss Fay Hibbard and Mrs. Grace Hibbard Lee, of Barnesville, O., were burned to death. Mr. Hibbard was secretary of the Central Ohio Natural Gas & Fuel company. Four sons, all under fifteen years of age, and the colored servant, aged 18, and originally from Palatka, Pa., escaped by jumping from second-story windows.

AUTOMATIC MACHINE GUNS.

Washington, Jan. 3.—As a result of the recent tests of the automatic machine guns of the same calibre as the navy small arm, the naval ordnance bureau has ordered fifty of the guns submitted by the Colt Manufacturing company. An opportunity will be given the manufacturers of the Nordenfeldt and Hotchkiss guns to submit their inventions for another test after some alterations in their construction have been made.

TOOK ALL HIS MONEY.

A Connecticut Station Agent Assaulted and Robbed.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 3.—George Olmstead, the station and Adams express agent at Wilton, Conn., was held up by masked burglars during the night and relieved of $250. He locked up the station and took the money with him. Half a mile away from the station he was knocked down by two masked men and robbed.

Yacht Peregrine Launched.

Bath, Me., Jan. 3.—The yacht Peregrine was launched at the Bath Iron works yesterday and christened by Eleanor Hyde. The yacht is 158 feet over all, water line 131 feet, beam 23 feet, draught 10 feet, schooner rig, steam speed 14 knots, sail area 4,500 yards. All the yacht's appointments are of the most modern style. The owner is Ralph H. White of Boston.

Massachusetts Republicans.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The annual meeting of the republican state committee was held yesterday afternoon and George H. Lyman was unanimously elected chairman for the ensuing year. E. C. Benton, chairman of the executive committee, was made vice-chairman and Thomas Talbot secretary.

WOMEN ARE CARELESS.

They Over-Estimate Their Physical Strength. Advice to Young Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are very apt to over-estimate their strength and overtax it.

When they are feeling particularly well, they sometimes take chances which in the long run cause them much pain and trouble. This is due largely to their not fully realizing how delicate their sensitive organism is.

The girl who has just become a woman can hardly be expected to act wisely, everything is so new to her. She, however, should be told; and every woman should realize that to be well her "monthly periods" should be regular. Wet feet, or a cold from exposure, may suppress or render irregular and fearfully painful the menses, and perhaps sow the seed for future ill health.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will ever be the unfailing remedy in such cases as well as all the peculiar ailments of women. Millions of women live to prove this. Mrs. M. L. Verrill tells plainly what it has done for her:—

"I will write you a few lines to tell you what my troubles were before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It was the same old story,—my back and lower part of my abdomen and painful menstruation. Of course it was female weakness. The doctors (I have tried five different ones) called it chronic inflammation of the womb.

"I had leucorrhœa for over eight years, ulcers on the neck of the womb, terrible headaches and backaches. Your medicine completely cured me."—Mrs. M. L. Verrill, 223 Newell Ave., Pawtucket, R.I.

GODEY'S MAGAZINE
(ESTABLISHED 1830.)
Volume CXXXII begins January, 1896

During 1896 Godey's Magazine will contain
TALKS WITH SUCCESSFUL WOMEN
Valuable hints about various branches of industry which are open to women, by women who have succeeded in them.
MUSIC IN AMERICA.
Discussions of musical subjects or people. Illustrated each month with portraits, autographs, and one or more pages of music. This music alone will make a valuable collection. This series of articles is a unique feature among monthly magazines. The papers are interesting to all readers, and are of positive value to those who play and sing.
THE STAGE.
Illustrated articles upon the best and newest plays and the foremost actors, particularly the best American productions. These are much more than gossip of players. They are entertaining discussions of the dramas that are talked about. Such treatment is not found in any other magazine.
ILLUSTRATIONS.
The Magazine will be well and thoroughly illustrated from cover to cover. Competent artists and improved methods of making and printing the plates will be employed.
THE COVERS.
The covers are different every month. They are designed by popular artists, and the covers for a year will be valuable as an art collection in themselves.
THE FASHION DEPARTMENT
which for years has given the latest fads and fashions, is of particular interest to women.
A HOME MAGAZINE.
Godey's is a magazine of this country and of today. It is a family magazine, with a larger scope than it had as the "Lady's Book." It is a monthly feast of wholesome, interesting reading, fit for every member of the household.

In addition to the features mentioned above each number will contain a liberal amount of fiction, by the best writers, articles on subjects of general interest, book reviews, etc.
Subscriptions $1 a Year, 10 Cents a Number.
Send 10 cents for a sample copy. None free.

WHITE HOUSE DINNER

The President's First State Function of the Season.

Cabinet Members and Their Wives and Others Well-Known in Official and Social Circles Present. The Parlors and State Room Resplendent with Flowers.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The president gave his first state dinner of the season last night, thus inaugurating the social gaieties of the winter. The dinner in its official sense was a dinner to the members of the cabinet but the guests included several others well known in official and social circles. Following is a full list of those present at this state function: President and Mrs. Cleveland, Vice-President Stevenson, secretary of state and Mrs. Olney, secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Carlisle; secretary of war and Mrs. Lamont; attorney general and Mrs. Harmon; postmaster general and Mrs. Wilson, secretary of the navy and Miss Herbert, Secretary of the Interior Smith, secretary of agriculture and Miss Morton, Speaker Reed, senator and Mrs. Palmer, senator and Mrs. Gray, senator and Mrs. Brice, representative and Mrs. Catchings, James T. Woodward, Mrs. Charles S. Fairchild, Edward R. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Stewart, Frank Thompson and Miss Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Kennedy, Mrs. Minot, Miss Boardman, Miss Frances Walker, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Henderson, Mrs. Vilcon. The parlors and state room of the executive mansion were as usual resplendent with tasteful floral and artistic decorations and the electric light display formed no small part of the pleasing spectacle.

COMMENT IN ENGLAND.

Courtesy Urged To Be Shown to Our Venezuelan Commission.

London, Jan. 3.—The Westminster Gazette in an article on the subject of the appointment of the United States Venezuelan boundary commission, says: "Great Britain should treat the Venezuelan commission with perfect politeness and give them all possible informal assistance, though not admitting their jurisdiction, but should not allow British officials to give evidence in their public capacity." The St. James' Gazette regrets the absence of ex-United States Ministers Lincoln and Phelps from the commission, but highly commends the appointment of Messrs. White and Gilman. The Chronicle will say it must be admitted that President Cleveland has succeeded in forming a body that is calculated to command respect.

GOING TO EGYPT.

Duke and Duchess of Marlborough Leave Italy Saturday.

Rome, Jan. 3.—The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, who have been spending a few days here, have gone to Naples, from which place they will sail for Egypt to-morrow.

RUSSIA OFFERS US GOLD.

Reported That She Is Willing To Lend 60,000,000 Roubles.

Vienna, Jan. 3.—A report is current on the bourse here that Russia has offered a gold loan of 60,000,000 roubles to the United States.

Denial from Chamberlain.

London, Jan. 3.—In reply to an inquiry on the subject the colonial secretary, the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, stated that the report that the government was disposed to arbitrate the question of the British Guiana boundary out of deference to President Cleveland's threats was absolutely unfounded.

Aid for the Armenians.

Constantinople, Jan. 3.—At the request of Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, instructions have been sent by the Turkish government to the vali of Kharput to permit Dr. Hermann M. Barnum, the American missionary, to distribute to the destitute Armenians the relief funds subscribed for them in England.

Preston Will Resign Next Monday.

Albany, Jan. 3.—Supt. Charles M. Preston of the state banking department will file his resignation with Gov. Morton on Monday, to take effect when his successor is appointed. Mr. Preston resigns in order that he may continue president of a New York city financial institution.

Storm's Work in Costa Rica.

Colon, Jan. 3.—All the passengers and mails that have arrived at Limon, Costa Rica, during the past three weeks are detained at that place, it being impossible to reach the interior of the country by rail owing to the fact that the railroad was badly damaged in a recent storm.

Drowned While Skating.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 3.—Edward M. Stanton, 15, and Alfred M. Shepard, 12 years of age, were drowned in a small pond in Sutton grove while skating yesterday afternoon.

Newfoundland's Revenues.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 3.—The revenue for the past six months amounted to just $700,000. This is slightly over the receipts for the corresponding period last year.

Must Not Use the Mails.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The postoffice department has denied the privilege of the mails to the Empire Candy company of Rochester, N. Y., on the ground of fraud.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Bursting Boiler Wreaks Death and Destruction in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 3.—Yesterday afternoon a series of explosions laid waste the vicinity of Second and Vine streets, where printing houses and allied trades are numerous. Just after the clock struck 1 a boiler in George E. Merritts' printing office basement of 308 North Third street, just across the alley from the storage and commission house of H. B. Grubb, exploded. In the rear of the Grubb establishment a large quantity of fireworks was stored and a second explosion occurred, followed immediately by a third that lifted the Grubb building and then dropped it in a mass of wreckage Eight bodies have been taken from the ruins. The police have made as complete a canvass as possible to ascertain the number of the missing, and the result is disheartening. The list has grown to nineteen, though it is hoped some of these are temporarily housed with friends. As late as 8 o'clock last night groans were heard in the wreck and the police had difficulty in restraining the anxious relatives of the missing. The city dispensary was turned into a hospital and fully thirty slightly injured persons were treated there. The scene of the wreck all last night was the centre of anxious inquiry from the kindred of the missing ones. They stood in the biting cold and watched with tearful eyes the work of the wreckers.

"FATHER" BILL DALY WED.

His Bride a Young Brooklyn, N. Y., Woman.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 3.—William C. Daly, the horseman of this city, was married to Miss Ellen O'Mahoney in the church of Our Lady of Mercy, Brooklyn, N. Y., late Wednesday afternoon. Miss O'Mahoney was for several years in the cloak department of Wechsler Brothers' store in Brooklyn, where her sister is now employed. Her father died several years ago and left his two daughters over $20,000 with the provision that they could not use the money until they were married. Miss O'Mahoney was born while her father's vessel was on the ocean and her younger years were spent in Africa, where she learned the Zulu language.

THE CASKET BROKEN OPEN.

A Runaway Horse Demolishes a Hearse at Albany.

Albany, Jan. 3.—A runaway horse yesterday afternoon dashed into a hearse which was in a funeral conveying the remains of Mrs. Mary Valentine along South Pearl street to the cemetery. There was a loud crash as the horse struck the hearse, the thrills of the wagon and the horse's head smashing into the large side plate glass. The animal's throat was cut by the glass and it died in a few minutes. The hearse was demolished and the casket was broken, but after half an hour's delay the funeral proceeded.

ACCEPTED BY THE SULTAN.

Constantinople, Jan. 3.—The Turkish government has accepted the offer of the representatives of the powers to mediate between the port and the insurgents of Zeitoun, who are surrounded by Turkish troops. At the request of Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, instructions have been sent by the Turkish government to the vali of Kharput to permit Dr. Hermann H. Barnum, the American missionary, to distribute to the destitute Armenians the relief funds subscribed for them in England.

IMPORTANT PAPERS FOUND.

Rome, Jan. 3.—The representative of the United Press learns that important documents have been found in the archives of the vatican relating to Catholic missions in Venezuela. These documents show that the missions within the territory claimed by Great Britain were included in the diocese of Caracas prior to Great Britain acquiring Guiana.

FIVE CITIES WANT IT.

Bidders for Democratic National Convention File Applications.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 3.—P. Sheerin, secretary of the democratic national committee, has received and placed on file the applications of five cities which aspire to entertain the democratic national convention. They are Chicago, New York, St. Louis, San Francisco and Cincinnati.

Drew Company Disbanded.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 3.—The dramatic company headed by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew has disbanded here on account of poor business. The company was booked for an extensive western tour. All the players return to New York to-day.

Belgium Statesman Dead.

Brussels, Jan. 3.—M. Hubert Joseph Walther Frere-Orban, the distinguished Belgian statesman, who, with short intervals, had been a cabinet minister for nearly half a century, and who had twice been president of the council of ministers, is dead.

What the Governor Says.

Albany, Jan. 3.—Gov. Morton read with care the different reports of his candidacy for the republican nomination for president and then declined to talk on the subject further than to say: "You see my friends are doing all the talking."

Naval Transfer.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Commander E. T. Strong, U. S. N., has been ordered to the Brooklyn navy yard.

FREE SILVER COINAGE

Senate Will Embody it in the Relief Measures.

Finance Committee Again Wrestling with the Subject To-day—An Adjournment Expected This Afternoon Until Tuesday Next When a Report Will Probably Be Made.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The senate committee on finance met yesterday to consider the bond and tariff bills that came from the house last week. Mr. Morrill, rep., Vt., presided as chairman of the committee, but there was not a full attendance present. The absentees were Mr. Wolcott of Colorado, Mr. Jones of Nevada and Mr. White of California. Mr. Sherman did not reach the committee room until quite late, having been detained at home in the preparation of the speech which he will deliver in the senate this afternoon. The committee then adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock. No vote was taken on any proposition. The bond bill was the only one under consideration. The committee, it is said, intends to adjourn this afternoon until next Tuesday, when it will make its report to the senate. At the conclusion of the meeting the republican members of the committee remained in session to consider the subject that had been under discussion, while the democrats, accompanied by Mr. Jones, pop., Nev., held a similar conference in the rooms of Mr. Harris.

Insist on Silver Coinage.

It was apparent in full committee that no conclusion could be reached which did not contemplate the free coinage of silver and the silver men suggested that Mr. Jones of Arkansas be designated as a sub-committee to prepare a bill that should be submitted to the full committee this afternoon. Mr. Jones made the statement on behalf of the silver men that the bill to be reported from the committee would provide for the free coinage of silver, and that no issue of bonds would be permitted. He was not so positive about the issue of certificates of indebtedness authorized by the house bill to meet the deficiencies, but was rather disposed to believe that the committee would report adversely thereon.

APPLICATIONS FOR BONDS.

Amount Signed For Not Far from $175,000,000.

New York, Jan. 3.—Applications to participate in the bond syndicate are still being made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. No official statements are forthcoming as to the amount signed for, but it is thought that the total is not far from $175,000,000. So it is probable that applicants for participation will find their subscriptions scaled. According to the agreement or invitation issued by J. P. Morgan & Co. the measure is contingent, and the syndicate is forming "to make" a contract with the government. In view, however, of the depleted condition of the gold balance of the treasury, it is plain that the bond issue will not be delayed further, and it is reasonable to suppose that a tacit understanding has been reached between the secretary of the treasury and the managers of the syndicate.

Importations of Gold.

The other general features of the situation more or less affected by the operations of the syndicate have assumed more normal conditions. The money market is easier and the market for sterling exchange is quiet and firm. Sight bills of exchange on London are quoted at 4.89@4.89¼, at which rate it would be profitable to export gold, but the prevailing premium on the metal offsets this, and it is thought that next week's incoming vessels will bring from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 gold, imported on account of the syndicate of subscriptions.

Carlisle Confers with a Banker.

Washington, Jan. 3.—J. T. Woodward, the New York banker, was in close conference for some time yesterday with Secretary Carlisle upon the expected sale of $100,000,000 bonds for the purpose of recouping the treasury gold reserve.

Overdue Vessel in Port.

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—The overdue barkentine Modoc, fifty-five days from Hakodate, Japan, has arrived. From Nov. 15 until Nov. 23 the Modoc battled with a series of hurricanes which carried every thing above decks away and flooded the cabin. Two sailors were badly injured. Five hundred mats of sulphur were jettisoned to save the vessel.

William M. White Dead.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 3.—William M. White, president of the second National bank of this city, died of apoplexy last night in his 63d year. He was the most prominent lay member of the Protestant Episcopal church in central New York, having been a delegate to the diocesan convention for the last thirty years.

Eaton Exonerated.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The joint committee of the Somerville city government appointed some weeks ago to investigate charges of irregularities in the office of the late city engineer, Eaton, pending which investigation Mr. Eaton committed suicide, made its final report last night completely exonerating him.

Mrs. Martha Tyson Dead.

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 3.—Martha Tyson, wife of R. E. Marshall, superintendent of the Altoona division of the Pennsylvania Railroad and daughter of the late Henry Tyson of Baltimore, died here yesterday.

COMING EVENTS.

Announcements of all meetings, etc., will be made in this column, free of charge, if copy is furnished by 10 a. m.

January 3—Perseverance Lodge meets.

The Atlanta Exposition was formally closed on Tuesday night. The turnstiles indicated that since the opening day 1,286,863 persons had been admitted to the grounds. Of this number 817,028 paid. According to the statement of S. M. Inman, who handled the financial department of the exposition, the total receipts of the company will approximate a million and a quarter of dollars, while the expenditures were not above these figures.

Confidence nowadays, remarks Adolf Ladenburg, in the January Forum, has to be universal and shared by the whole world, which is practically one great commercial centre, and as all values depend on their exchangeability for coin, or rather upon confidence in their being so exchangeable, it should be the policy of good financial laws to establish all possible safeguards against disturbance of the confidence as well as to prevent dangerous overconfidence.

The New Jersey Board of Riparian Commissioners has forwarded to Gov. Werts its annual report, in which mention is made of the gradual destruction of the Palisades by the quarrymen, and the introduction of a bill to cover the deficiencies of the act of 1895 is promised. The report says:

The board has been advised by the Attorney General that, under the act of 1895, it is compelled to make grants or leases, when applied for, to the owners of land along the line of the Palisades, and can impose no restrictions on the defacement of the upland running from the water's edge back to the vertical wall of the Palisades. Such grants or leases, when made for quarrying purposes, involve the destruction of the immense piles of broken stones that lie in picturesque profusion at the foot of the Palisades, and of the trees and shrubs that in summer partly conceal their gray bareness with a mantle of green. The broken rocks and foliage constitute one of the chief beauties of the scenery, and the law of 1895 is therefore inadequate for the purpose for which it was enacted.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Lovers of good cream cheese can get that article at Fulper's at only 10 cents per pound.

—The regular meeting of the Plainfield Catholic Club will be held on Tuesday evening.

—Mrs. John McCan, of Park avenue, entertained a few of her friends at dinner yesterday.

—The preparatory service for the communion will be held in the Congregational church this evening.

—Fulper has an extra fine quality of dairy butter which he is selling at the low figures of 22 cents per pound.

—The Catholic Benevolent Legion met last evening and transacted routine business. The officers will be installed on Jan. 15th.

—Owing to the absence of the rector, the regular Friday evening service of the Church of the Redeemer for this week will be omitted.

—The Sunday-school of the Warren chapel will have special music at their service on Sunday afternoon at 2:30, and invite the public to attend.

—Past Deputy State Councilor Charles I. Young installed the officers elect of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., last evening. Two propositions for membership was received. The past councilors were also presented with a neat copy of the minutes of the last session of the State Council held last October in Trenton.

Firemen to Give a Series of Dances.

Routine business was transacted at the meeting of Alert Hose Company last evening, as was also the case at the meeting of Gazelle Engine Company. No. 2 Engine Company decided at their meeting to give a series of social dances, the first of which will probably come off the last of this month. The object of the dances is to raise money to help purchase the uniforms for the members.

THEATRICAL.

Charles T. Ellis has composed a number of new songs which will be heard here for the first time on the occasion of his coming visit. They are said to be of a high musical order and far superior to the composer's previous efforts. Mr. Ellis will be seen at Music Hall on Monday, January 6th, when he will present for the first time his new Irish German comedy-drama, "The Alsatian," with an excellent company of twenty-five people and a carload of magnificent scenery.

If You Doubt the Popularity of the "Clyde Line" from New York to Jacksonville, Fla.,

Without change, just call at their Pier 29, East River, New York any sailing day—Monday, Wednesday or Friday—at 3 p. m., and see for yourself the number of passengers on board. There are many reasons for this, a few of which are because there is no change between New York and Jacksonville, Fla., they make the run in about two and a-half days, including half-a-day's stop in Charleston, and because their officers are such courteous, genial fellows they make you feel right at home as soon as you get aboard. Their rates are the lowest, and it will pay you to write "Clyde Line," New York, for descriptive matter, if you anticipate going to Charleston, Jacksonville, Fla., or any interior points in the South or Southwest.

OF

Muslin Underwear,

Waists,

Wrappers, Corsets.

Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look Before You Buy.

So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.

We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well-made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so-called sales.

The next game in the Central Journal Bowling League that will be rolled in Plainfield is scheduled for Tuesday, January 14th, between the Crescent Wheelmen and the New Jersey Athletic Club. The N. J. A. C. is the only team which has defeated the Crescent Wheelmen so far in the League.

A five-men team from the Y. M. C. A., visited the junior members of the Crescent Wheelmen at their alleys last evening and rolled two games with them. The home team had it much their own way in the first game, but the Y. M. C. A. boys began to get used to the alleys, while the wheelmen bowled in hard luck. The second game went to the Crescents by only eleven points. The individual scores were as follows:

FIRST GAME.

CRESCENTS.		Y. M. C. A.
Smith	149	Sutphen, C.	132
Baker	178	Sutphen, M.	122
Giles	148	Carroll	149

There is nothing like being number one in a love affair, a bowling league, or anything else, and the Crescent Wheelmen still hold that enviable position in the Central Journal Bowling League. Last evening their ten-men team went to Elizabeth and strengthened their hold on first place by defeating the Elizabeth Athletic Club in fine style. The bowling of the wheelmen was remarkable for its evenness, the lowest being 147 and the highest 172. The "Terrible Ten" of the Elizabeth Athletic Club or, at least, all that was left of them, started in and took the lead for the first frame. Plainfield got down to work in the second and shot ahead only to be 42 pins behind in the next. The fourth frame showed another change and the visitors set a steady pace that soon put them in the lead and in the ninth frame had it by 120 pins. The men from the Union county seat rose in protest and began to roll a winning game. It was too late, however, but the lead was cut down to 92 pins and the game was over. There was the usual cheering for the victors and the wheelmen came home. A glance at the following individual scores will show the even bowling of the Crescents:

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

For the New Year

We promise you the best of service, the best of goods and prices to make our store as you would have it, as near perfect as possible. Sometimes a complaint is made but never a one but we are more than willing to right it and where 1895 has been the best year we have ever had and we thank you for it. We look forward into '96 with greater expectations and know we can only realize them by following the same liberal policy that we have worked out during the past years, of making every customer a satisfied one.

Its not a question of profit this month, we are anxious to reduce stock, and to do it we name prices on goods that you want and can have for little money. Read

STRANGE MARINERS.

BOATMEN WHO PASS THE LARGE CITIES DURING THE NIGHT.

They Transport the Dreadful Nitroglycerin. Pilots Have Great Respect For the Boats With a Little Red Flag—Avoided as If They Were the Cholera.

Ofttimes by night, when the twin cities are wrapped in slumber, when only the "night owls" are out, and every sound can be heard with greater ease than in the daytime, a close observer, stationed on one of the many bridges that cross the Allegheny river from city to city, might detect a small craft, perhaps a skiff, going down the river. If an attempt were made to learn more about the boat and its occupants or cargo, it is probable that the self appointed investigator would at once be repulsed.

From the mysterious actions of this craft's crew any ordinary mortal would quite innocently and naturally suppose that it would be a fit subject for police investigation. The observer could call up stories he may have read of the "river rats of London," who frequented the old piers of the historic London bridge, that has been falling down in the songs of childhood for many decades, but which still sustains the weight of tramping multitudes. The Thames river is yet so infested with river thieves that a separate and peculiar system of police service patrols its waters nightly and explores its 'secret places, when they may be discovered.

However, the Alleghany river does not compare in any way with the slimy and ill famed Thames, neither are the cities of Pittsburg and Alleghany infested with the parasites known as "river rats," the worst of all thieves and thugs. The man that may be in the little boat and keeps so strangely away from all things animate or inanimate is not employed in any questionable work, but, on the contrary, is engaged in a calling that is most strictly honest and terribly dangerous. The curious observer, whose inquisitiveness might be aroused, would, if he knew the business of this exclusive individual, give him a wide berth and heave a great sigh of relief when he disappeared.

It is quite possible, and, more than possible, it is probable that the thousands of sleepers in the down town districts of the two cities and the hundreds of night toilers and idlers may some night be awakened and startled by the noise of the most tremendous explosion, such as will shake the very foundations of the cities and leave no trace of its destruction unless it be the remains of a few spans of several bridges, for these men who slip through so silently and unobtrusively on the waterway between the shores of Pittsburg and Alleghany are engaged in carrying that dreaded explosive, nitroglycerin, from where it is made up the Alleghany river to places down the Ohio and on the Mississippi and other rivers.

This greasy explosive cannot be transported by railroads for obvious reasons, and only men who by constant contact with the substance, and who have had bred in them a contempt or carelessness for its dangers, can be induced to take it, for even a short distance, in wagons fitted with the nicest adjustment and safest springs. Thus the placid waterways are perhaps the safest highways whereby this most dangerous substance can be transported.

Half a dozen or perhaps more men are engaged in this perilous occupation. They go past large places like Pittsburg in the nighttime, when they will encounter very little traffic, and when the waters are at rest. They are the terrors of rivermen. No matter how anxious a pilot may be to reach port, the sight of the little red flag shown by these wanderers of the waterways is more than sufficient for him to have the engines stop to let the boats glide past each other with as little agitation on the aqueous as possible.

A year or more ago the towboat Pacific left Pittsburg for Cincinnati. It had not gone down the Ohio very far when a lone boat asked for a lift. It is customary on the river for a man who may be out in a skiff to tie to a tow, and thus be taken the length of his journey.

This individual tied up and went along all day. It was noticed that whenever another boat passed he would go out and keep his skiff away from the barges and was altogether very solicitous regarding its welfare. This strange caution and the strained manners of the lone traveler excited the suspicions of the captain and crew, and it was demanded of him what the boat contained, to which he replied that he was taking a load of glycerin to be shot in the oil and gas wells of Indiana. This information blanched the faces of the crew, who recognized that they were harboring instant death, and they gave him two minutes to cut loose and get away. He did not, and the captain very gingerly helped push the boat away, so that it would not accidentally bump against the barges.

A witness to the terrible explosion out in the river from Parkersburg several weeks ago, during the hot spell early in June, told a Leader man that the explosion was probably due to the excessive heat or a sudden change of temperature. He said he saw the man wet a blanket and lay it over something as if to protect it from the sun. The next instant he heard a mighty detonation and saw the flash of the awful explosion.

Many steamboat men are of the opinion that the steamer Cargo, which blew up in the Alleghany river opposite Eleventh street seven years ago, was blown up by nitroglycerin. It is thought that a can had somehow been dropped into the river and washed to the city, where the boat struck it. A big hole in the river bottom after the explosion made this theory very plausible.

These men are ostracized just about as much as they ostracize other people for their own safety. When on their trips their lives hang on the mere possibility of their being able to keep their boat from being jarred. They are avoided as though they were the living reality of Asiatic cholera.—Pittsburg Leader.

The Dark Horse.

The "dark horse" probably originated with Disraeli, who, in "The Young Duke," refers to an exciting race as follows: "The first favorite was never heard of; the second was never seen after the distance post; all the ten-to-ones were in the rear, and a dark horse, which had never been thought of, rushed past the grand stand in sweeping triumph."—Galveston News.

Good Excuse.

Frank comes into the house in a sorry plight.

"Mercy on us!" exclaims his father. "How you look! You are soaked!"

"Please, papa, I fell into the canal."

"What? With your new trousers on?"

"Yes, papa. I didn't have time to take them off."—Philadelphia Times.

CALIFORNIA YELLOWS.

Some Reasons Why California Should Be Called the "Golden State."

California might be called the Golden State as much because of the gold of its flowers as that of its mines. No one will dispute its claim to this title who has seen its roadside gay with orange hued popples, its meadows radiant with yellow daisies and wild mustard, and its hillsides glowing with masses of yellow bloom.

While nature here supplied the richest soil and the rarest climate on earth, she withheld a sufficient rainfall, so that the California valleys lay, until 20 years ago, parched and arid during six months of the year. A singular instance of the fineness of the line between poverty and riches before irrigation reclaimed this country was found in the massacre of horses in 1869 and 1870.

There was in the state about that time an enormous number of bronchos. This fine species of horse has hardly an equal for grace, speed and endurance, and thousands then ran wild over the country. They lived on alfalfa, a kind of grass which there grows abundantly. When the crop dried up in the drought succeeding the rainy season, the horses were not worth the cost of their living. Their owners shot them by hundreds.

One clear sighted man saw a golden opportunity in the situation. He sold his ranch and bought 6,000 horses at $2 each. A condition of the sale was that he should take them out of the state within a week.

He started with them for Denver, and for six months braved the perils of a journey over mountain and desert and through a country peopled by Indians, whom he had alternately to fight and cajole. Arrived at last, the best horses in the "string" brought $50, the poorest about $20. At the end of seven weeks the impromptu horse dealer went back to California with a fortune.—New York Dispatch.

HIS LITTLE SCHEME.

How He Proposed to Get Even With His Enemy.

He stopped the big blue coated officer on Woodward avenue. "Say!" he exclaimed, "I want you to arrest a man up here for me. Can you do it?"

"You'll have to have a warrant first. What did he do?"

"What did he do? He threw me out simply because I asked him to subscribe for"—

"The best book in its line that was ever written," the officer hastily broke in.

"Why, yes. How did you know?" he asked the wielder of the club.

The officer smiled a knowing smile and said:

"But you can't get a warrant for that. There's an unwritten law in this town that permits a man to throw out a book agent."

The little man looked down hearted a minute, and then suddenly brightening up eagerly seized the officer's arm and remarked:

"The law can't touch me, can it, if I work a nice little scheme I have in mind?"

"Depends on the scheme."

"Well, you see, I have a friend who's quite a scrapper. Now, I'll take him in tow and give him a good insight into the business, and after two or three weeks I'll send him around to his place, and I won't say a word to him about how mean the man is who lives there. If the man pitches on to him—well, well, you just want to be around to see that my friend doesn't hurt him too much. The law couldn't touch me, could it?" he inquired anxiously.

The guardian of the peace assured him that he thought he was safe. And after thanking the officer profusely he disappeared down the street, again ready to take up the burden of life.—Detroit Free Press.

On the Increase of Survivors.

Among the curiosities of the United States census is the fact that the number of veterans drawing pensions on account of service in the Federal armies during the civil war, instead of decreasing from year to year, seems rather to increase. Those familiar with military statistics will not, however, be surprised at this. Take, for example, the "thousand" who accompanied Garibaldi to Marsala. To speak with absolute accuracy, this heroic band consisted of 1,051 souls, including two gallant Frenchmen. They fought with utter recklessness and suffered terribly from lack of food and shelter. Nevertheless it is computed that the survivors of the "thousand" in Italy now numbers fully 7,000 men, and to those should be added at least 10,000 more who are at present either in the United States or in the Argentine Republic.

I do not know precisely how many survivors of the six hundred of Balaklava there are now in Great Britain, but there is not a town of any size in the United States that does not boast of at least one of these gallant men, and we may safely assume that there are fully 2,000 survivors of the six hundred in the United States alone, without counting those in Canada and the other colonies.—W. L. Alden in Idler.

Sundowners In Australia.

Titled lords, baronets, parsons, lawyers, captains, architects, clerks—all these are to be met with on the roads. They can be divided into two broad classes—viz, those who are looking for work and those who are seeking to avoid it. The former consist of a fine set of men of all ages, ready and willing to undergo the hardships of a weary tramp of hundreds of miles, along which they push forward hopefully to find the work which is generally to be had by those who are willing to search for it.

Their "swag" is generally made up of a pair of blankets and a pair of trousers, a spare coat, two or three shirts and pairs of socks, a brush and comb, towel, needle and thread, etc. For stores they carry bread or flour, sugar, tea, carbonate of soda for making damper, a billy pannikin and knife and fork. This is a fair average swag, though it will often be supplemented by sundry little additional luxuries, according to the individual idiosyncrasy of the owner.—Temple Bar.

"Hello! Where did you get that box of cigars?"

"Louders & Pounders—just paid a six months' account and the manager made me a little present."

"Why, I've bought goods there for five years and was never given even a box of matches."

"Oh, yes, but you pay cash."—Chicago Record.

A Feather In His Cap.

"A feather in his cap" has a Hungarian origin. During the centuries when war with the Turks was constantly going on a Hungarian soldier was allowed to wear one feather on his cap for every Turk he had killed, and so the slaughter of an additional foe meant one more feather.

DYSPEPSIA THE CHIEF CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION.

Facts With Which Few Are Familiar.

Dyspepsia or ordinary indigestion is seldom regarded as a dangerous disease, yet doctors now realize that any disturbance of the digestive function is but a stepping stone to the most dangerous and fatal of all diseases—dread consumption.

This appears very clear when we consider that consumption, as the name implies, is but a consuming of the body's substance. Weakness and emaciation naturally result.

The body of a person who does not properly digest food undergoes wasting, and you may safely assume that every pale, thin person of your acquaintance is not properly digesting and absorbing food. In other words, the substance of the body is being consumed and when the cough puts in an appearance they will be regarded as consumptives.

The symptoms of consumption and those arising from certain forms of indigestion are practical identical. Therefore don't despair even if you think your lungs may be affected. First try to repair your stomach and put it in order. This is best done by a very harmless though very ingenious remedy—the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

This product, prepared by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, aids the digestion of food in the stomach, and when food is once digested, it is quickly absorbed.

If you are dyspeptic, don't wait until some more dangerous disease has appeared. Correct the trouble at once.

A single 10 cent bottle of Shaker Digestive Cordial will be sufficient to convince you of its merit, and its continued use is almost certain to effect a cure. All drugggists keep it and can supply you with an interesting descriptive pamphlet.

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

THE BEATTY CLAN

By ALFRED R. CALHOUN.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

CHAPTER I.

The Beattys were quite a large family in the fall of 1861. Their home was and had been for three generations in Beatty's creek—"Batty's crick," the people down there call it. This creek is an unmapped and not at all an affluent tributary of the Clinch river, rising in the heart of the Cumberland range, just south of the Kentucky line. As the crow is supposed to fly, but never does, the Beatty settlement is about 35 miles west of Cumberland Gap. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say "was about 35 miles," for when I saw the place a few years ago it was covered with a fine second growth of timber, and, except the rusting ironwork scattered about the site of the little grist mill, there is nothing to indicate that men ever lived there. A careful search up the creek from where the dam stood would show, however, that persons had died or been buried there, for, as my guide on the occasion of my last visit said:

"Yes, thar's a right smart lot of graves in that bunch, and they wuz all kinder kin to each other."

All this region is splendidly wooded, well watered, and the valleys that seam the irregular mountain spurs in an intricate maze are as fertile as the heart of the blue grass country to the north. It might have been a land of wine and honey and oil, with proper cultivation and a population that did not believe that pork, corn and whisky are the trinity that make life worth the living.

At the breaking out of the war there were 14 buildings, not counting corncribs and outhouses, at Beatty's. All these structures were log and much better built and more commodious than the majority of mountain abodes. Indeed they might be called "houses," for the smallest had more than the one room of the average mountain cabin. The oldest and by no means the best of these houses was the home of old Hugh Beatty, the patriarch of the hamlet and at this time a tall, well preserved man of 73. Five of the houses were occupied by Hugh Beatty's five married sons, the oldest, "young Hugh," being 50 and Andy, the youngest, 23. These mountain folk marry early, and as there is no danger as yet of overcrowding, and they are blissfully ignorant of the Malthusian theory, large families are the rule. Three daughters—two of them were married to brothers named Mullins, and the third to a cousin of the Mullinses named Martin—had three of the dwellings. The remaining three residences were occupied by two of young Hugh's married daughters—the husbands were Martins—and by Sam Mullins and his wife. Sam was the oldest son of Mag, old Hugh's second child.

It may be noticed that there was quite a mixing of the Beattys, the Mullinses and the Martins, but this is not unusual. The mountain people intermarry a great deal, and first cousins hardly count in reckoning consanguinity, though a fourth cousin, particularly if of the same name, is "counted kin" if it is necessary to espouse his quarrel for the sake of the family honor.

The thirteenth building was a little corn grist mill, the exclusive property of the old man. It was the only mill within a day's journey, Jellico being the nearest point at which corn could be ground when Beatty's dam broke down or the simple machinery got out of order. All the grist arrived on horse or mule back. There were two wagons at Beatty's, and young Hugh had a buggy which, on its first appearance, excited the mountains round about, and people came for miles to see it and then shook their heads, for the bravest felt that it would be "temptin o' Providence to ride in sich a slim, resky thing."

The fourteenth building, known as "the store," was the largest in the place and was "run" by young Hugh. Cheap prints, yarn, hats, tinware, tobacco and snuff, with nails, coffee and dried codfish, all wagoned from Knoxville, constituted the principal stock in trade of the store. Whisky, perhaps, should be given first place, but that was purely a domestic article, manufactured by Andy and his brother Dan in a stillhouse about half a mile down the stream—not to avoid the internal revenue officers, for there was none in those days, but to be free from the offensive odor of the pigpens, the pork fed on the still "slops" being a prime source of income.

Old Hugh Beatty had been a soldier, and so something of a traveler in his time. In the war of 1812 he marched to Nashville with his rifle on his shoulder and joined General Jackson's brigade, and then he marched to New Orleans and helped to win the battle and marched home again without ever drawing a cent of pay. It was this contact with the outer world that made him more ambitious than his neighbors. He cleared the land and planted an orchard and grew corn and oats and hay. He had a kitchen garden that was a source of wonder to his neighbors, none of whom could be tempted to "take sich truck into their innards." He raised cows and chickens and turkeys, and he carried a silver watch and could tell the time by it, and, still more amazing, old Hugh could read, and he taught his children the same mystery.

At uncertain times a circuit rider would drop down on the settlement, and then the store would be turned into a meeting house, particularly if it was the winter season, and messengers would be sent up to invite the neighbors for 10 miles round about to "come down to meetin." These meetings often lasted for two weeks and were seasons of great physical excitement and spiritual refreshment. On such occasions old Hugh always professed religion and went up to the mourners' bench, and all his family and neighbors followed his example in this, as they did in his subsequent lapses from grace.

All this and much of what is to follow I learned from the lips of old Hugh himself.

Tinker Dave Beatty is a name well known to the surrounding officers and men of the Seventh and the Ninth Pennsylvania cavalry and of the First Kentucky and other mounted Union regiments that operated along the Cumberland plateau at different times in the course of the war. He was a Confederate guerrilla of the most vicious, cunning and bloodthirsty stamp and would have stretched a halter had he ever been captured. It is possible that this man was related to old Hugh Beatty, but the latter indignantly denied it.

Before the war Tinker Dave Beatty made a living by traveling on horseback through the mountains mending tinware, and he frequently took excursions into the slave lands to the south, where it is believed he contracted his secession notions. His life gave him a knowledge of the roads and trails that subsequently was of the greatest value to the Confederates, and an acquaintance with the mountaineers that resulted in the exile or annihilation of many a Union family.

Secession as a doctrine, practical or theoretic, was something old Hugh Beatty and his sons and kinsmen did not understand, but when they heard that the stars and stripes had been torn to shreds and trampled under foot, and that Tennessee had joined a new republic, and that many of her sons were enlisting to uphold it, they saw into the situation and its necessities at once.

Hitherto the mountaineers had taken but little interest in the affairs of their own state and none at all in the states beyond, but now they made journeys down to the postoffice towns and villages to learn the news and then went back to their cabins to discuss it.

"The rich slaveholders have grown tired of the old Union because they can no longer run it, and now they have set up a government of their own and brought on a fight. They say the mountain men must side with them for our lives and property and liberty, but we don't see it in that light."

This is how the men in the Cumberland range reasoned. Their hearts were with the Union. They could not give perhaps a logical reason for this inclination, but they stood ready to attest their devotion by the strongest evidence of sincerity—they would fight for the stars and stripes till the death.

The store at Beatty's, in October and November, 1861, was crowded day and night as if a revival were in progress as in truth there was, but there was neither psalm singing nor preaching nor praying, nor, for the matter of that, much talking, but there was a great deal of earnest swearing and a great deal of quiet discussion as to the right thing to do in the very unusual circumstances that confronted them. There was a strong hope, if not a strong belief, that neither side would bother the Cumberland mountain men, but old Hugh Beatty, the man who had fought under and shaken hands with Andrew Jackson, and by virtue of this had become an authority that it would be folly for less favored men to dispute, held to it that no man able to fight could keep out of the trouble.

Scouts were sent down to the Holston, even as far south as Knoxville, and over to Powell's valley, and soon they began to return with the news that Andrew Johnson had fled north; that Parson Brownlow was in jail, and that Jeff Davis' soldiers were conscripting men in the Great Smoky range and would soon come into the Cumberland hills for the same purpose. When old Hugh heard this, he addressed the tall, butternut clad men in the store as follows:

"Boys, we uns is in fo' it. We uns hez got to be carried off like d——d niggahs to fight fo' Jeff Davis or else show his doggone hounds our teeth and go in for the ole flag and the Union. Seein my chillen and growed gran'chillen 'bout me, I was jist 'bout gittin to think that mebbe I was comin nigh to be a ole man, more particklar as this fall I failed to chip a squir'l for the first time in 60 years, but a man is a heap sight bigger'n a squir'l, and, by the eternal, the man that forces me to be a rebel agin my will must be able to shoot quicker and straighter and off'ner nor me.

"Me and my sons and my gran'sons and the gals' husbands hev got our rifles in good order, and the wimmin is a-moldin bullets and a-greasin patches. If any of you uns want ammunition, h'ar's young Hugh ez will tell you uns to help yo'sels. Git ready to wunst. Tell the wimmin folks you uns may be 'bleged to leave fo' a bit and light out fo' Kaintuck or som'eres north, whar thar's men with bayonets a-guardin the ole flag Tell the wimmin that hit may so be that they'll hev to plant the co'n and keer fo' things next spring, as hit may take till after that to fotch back to the Cumberland hills w'at we uns is gwine after, and w'at's 'bleged to come, by G— and with his help, and that's the ole flag!"

The tall men greeted this speech with a yell such as had not been heard in that valley since the last fight with the Indians in 1809, when old Hugh's father was killed, and for some minutes it would have been difficult for an outsider to tell whether the men were indulging in a swearing match or there was a particularly earnest revival in progress.

Two days before this declaration of independence on the part of the mountaineers at Beatty's, Andy, old Hugh's youngest son, and a number of other young men went over to spy out the land in the neighborhood of Jellico, to which point it was reported that General Zollicoffer, at the urging of Governor Harris, had sent from Nashville a regiment of men to scour the Cumberland mountains and "bring in every man capable of pulling a trigger or sitting a horse." It was further rumored that the troops were being guided by Tinker Dave Beatty, and that they were to begin operating along the Kentucky line, so as to prevent the escape of Union men in that direction.

Young Hugh was filling powder horns and handing out caps and lead, with the help of his young sister-in-law, Andy's wife, when a shrill yell was heard far up the creek, and every one in the store rushed out the door. They saw Andy Beatty's horse flying down the trail, but Andy was not in the saddle. The rider was Cor McNeil, a young man who had accompanied the scout to Jellico.

"W'at's the news?" "Whar's the boy?" "Whar's my Andy?" These were the questions hurled at the rider by the men and the wild eyed young wife, who gathered about Cor McNeil as he flung himself from his panting horse.

The young man had not the art of breaking bad news gently. He held up his right hand and showed that it was wrapped in a crimson rag, from which the blood still oozed. Then he shouted, as if eager to have the mountain peaks hear his words:

"Andy Beatty is murdered! And so is young Sam Mullins! All the rest is took by the men Tinker Dave is a-leadin!"

Shouts of horror and fierce imprecations burst from the men, and the young widowed wife, white faced and dumb, clung to the arm of her husband's father.

Old Hugh Beatty's son and a grandson were murdered, and another was in the hands of "the conscriptors." Yet, without giving a sign to tell of the awful agony at his heart, he showed his natural ability to lead by remaining the only cool man present.

"Take the gal to the house, Hugh," said the old man to his son, "and let the wimmin comfort her like, fo' she needs hit. But we uns must hev yo' har. Andy was yer brother, my last bawn, and he's gone. Them ez tuk him is a-livin. This ain't no time fo' weepin, my son."

Respect for and obedience to parents are the strongest canons in the unwritten creed of these mountaineers. Young Hugh, although a grandfather himself, promptly did as he had been ordered, and then Cor McNeil, after having been refreshed with a half gourd of whisky, finished his story and replied to the battery of questions fired at him.

On the return from Jellico he and his four companions found themselves unexpectedly surrounded by a large body of armed men on foot, who shouted to them to surrender. They knew that these were soldiers from Nashville, and Andy Beatty, calling to his friends to follow his example, fired at the men in gray, then threw himself along his horse to charge through. The result was as stated. Cor McNeil alone got through. His own horse had been killed, but he found Andy Beatty's and galloped down to spread the news and to assure the Union men that the soldiers would be in the settlement by daylight.

It was now dark in the valley, with the last glint of day, like a fading hope, on the ridge to the east. The deathwail came from the houses up the slope, like the "keenin" cry with which the Celtic Irish peasants and the Highland crofters still mourn their dead.

"Hit's the wimmin," said old Hugh to his friends. "The tears'll do 'em good, pore things, but sich isn't fo' men who hez the livin to think of. Git to yer homes, boys, and tell yer folks w'at I've done tole you uns to tell 'em. Ef thar's bread baked and meat handy, fotch along a few days' lastin. Ef it'll take too much time, don't wait. We uns must be a right smart way to the north afore sun up."

In discussing the possibility of just this state of affairs with his family old Hugh Beatty had declared that every man and boy who could shoot a rifle must either volunteer to fight on the side of the Union or be forced to do so on the side of the rebellion. His sons agreed with him in this, but they urged that he should stay at home, not because he was feeble, for they did not believe that, but to watch over the women and the children. To this the old man replied:

"My grandfather and my father and all his brothers fought in the Revolution, and at one time—that was when they lived over on the Big Kanawha in Varginny—they didn't see their wimmin folks for nigh onter three year. Yet things went on jest nigh 'bout ez good ez ef they'd staid home. Then, ef I was to stay back, I'd be took like Parson Brownlow and toted off to Nashville or Knoxville to rot in a jail. Why, boys, if they was to put me—me ez hez lived my life in these mountains—in sich a place it'd kill me plum dead in a week. But I tell you uns ef so be hit ain't knowed to all that I can march with the youngest and tire him out, and while I can't thread the needle fo' the ole mother any more without usin them doggone specs I won't ax no odds f'om any man in all aist Tennessee whin hit comes to drivin a nail with a bullet. Besides all that I've been a sojer and you uns ain't, so I'll take the crowd up to Camp Dick Robinson in Kaintuck, whar the Union men is a-makin ready to give Governor Harris h—l."

In the Naval Reserve.

THE BURRO.

The Sure Footed Animals Are as Obstinate as They Are Plodding.

One afternoon, astride diminutive burros, we left the hotel and drove down into the cool shadows of the canyon. We were bound for a giant fig tree far up the mountain side. As far as we could see were vast vistas of mountains and valleys. The denuded sides of Eagle rock rose above a growth of manzanita and madronyo. A hawk in gradually lessening circles glided down the gray walls of a volcanic slide and ascended in another moment with a rabbit in its talons. The sun found its way in blotches of light through the network of leaves and wild grapevines above our heads. The burros, impervious to our blows and threats, hardly moved along the narrow trail that at times wound along shifting beds of gravel where but one misstep would have dropped the rider down hundreds of feet among the great bowlders in the bed of the creek. Ofttimes the trail was so steep that we held on with difficulty, and yet our long eared, short legged beasts plodded on with the same unvarying regularity that we had found fault with on the level.

Vast clouds of steam were issuing from the "Tea Kettle" to our right that met the sun and formed a dozen miniature fleeting rainbows. A deep, stony arroyo separated us from the great man fig. We were forced to dismount and crowd our burros into this gulch and up the opposite side. That they resented this treatment we found on our return, for one and all positively refused to take one step downward into the arroyo. We pleaded and begged, patted and whipped to no purpose. They simply braced their four small feet, laid back their long ears and took it all alike in scornful silence. At last we ranged them along the edge of the arroyo, and then I took a run and a jump and threw my shoulder against the most stubborn of the lot. The move was successful. Like a shot the little fellow went over the bank and landed on his feet at the bottom. The others surrendered and scrambled meekly down.—Overland Monthly.

CONVERTING LIGHT INTO SOUND.

Simple Explanation of an Interesting Operation.

One of the marvels of modern science is the conversion of a beam of light into sound. The light ray is thrown through a lens on a glass vessel containing lampblack, colored silk, worsted, or other substances. A dish having slits or openings cut in it is made to revolve swiftly in this beam of light so as to cut it up, making alternate flashes of light and shadow. On putting the ear to the glass vessel, strange sounds are heard so long as the flashing beam is falling upon it. Another phase of this remarkable discovery is still more interesting. A beam of sunlight is passed through a prism. The disk is turned and the colored light of the solar spectrum is made to break through it. If the ear be placed to the vessel containing the silk, wool or other material, as the colored lights fall upon it, sounds will be given by different parts of the spectrum and there will be silence in some other parts.

To illustrate, if the vessel contains red worsted and the green light flashes upon it, loud sounds will be heard. Only feeble sounds will be heard if the red and blue rays fall upon it and other colors make no sound at all. Green silk gives sound best in red light. It is by no means improbable that this discovery foreshadows a new law of harmonics, and Remington's experiments in tone color may possibly, by this new application of sight and sound, result in some practical theory which will give us an entirely new scheme of music. The thing is but in its infancy, but the mere fact that such a discovery has been made cannot but forecast important results.—Invention.

Telling Fortunes With Apples.

There are three fortunes to be told with an apple. Peel the fruit without breaking the skin, and holding the long spiral skin daintily by the end swing it three times around the head and let it fall to the ground. Whatever letter the skin then forms is the initial of the sweetheart or friend who loves you best. Then, before eating your apple, have some one "name it," as they say, and after you have saved all the seeds begin to count them thus:

One, I love; two, I love; three, I love I say:
Four, I love with all my heart,
And five, I cast away.
Six, she loves; seven, he loves; eight, both love.
Nine, he comes; ten, he tarries;
Eleven, he courts, and twelve, he marries.

A more amusing fortune is that of placing a fresh apple seed on each eyelid and naming each. The one which remains there longest is the truest and best. A famous custom consists of pouring a very little molten lead into a tub of cold water. There follow a splashing and hissing as the lead cools suddenly, and the shape of the lead reveals the future. Just as in all oracles ever since the days of Delphi and Diana of the Ephesians the scientific work lies in reading the doubtful forecasts aright.—"Reading the Book of Fate," by Louise Willis Snead, in St. Nicholas.

Home Studies.

In teaching your little girl geography try to make it something more than a dry list of names to be learned by rote. Take her imaginary voyages and journeys from one country to another. Tell her something of the manners and customs of the people and anything you can learn yourself about the lives of the children. Describe to her how the Swiss boys herd their cattle under the shadow of the Alps and the Eskimos are made daring by being thrown into the icy water in their strange fur garments. Tell her of the stunted lives of the pit boys in the coal mines and of the German girls who learn to use their five knitting needles almost as soon as they can hold them. Books of travel will furnish you with many interesting incidents which you can turn to account. Geography will not be a wearisome task to her. Her mother's wisdom can make the first steps attractive.—Ladies' Home Journal.

INDIAN SUMMER.

It Does Not Come Until the Bright Days of Mid-November.

Many persons, if they were asked about it, would say, without hesitation, that the last days of October are the real Indian summer. The term is vaguely employed, and at one time or another has been stretched to include almost all the attractive weather with which we are blessed between the close of August and the 1st of December. Thanks to the almanac, we have got the idea very thoroughly into our heads that summer ends on the 31st of August, and when we find the skies still warm and grateful after that date, and the woods and fields still calling to us with persuasive voices, we are a little perplexed as to what we ought to think about it and whether it is really autumn or summer come again. Thus we fall back upon the familiar term, "Indian summer," which seems a sufficiently appropriate compromise, although there is no special justification for our selection of this uncertain phraseology.

It would be much more satisfactory if we should disabuse ourselves at once of the notion that summer proper ends with the month of August. There is nothing in the atmosphere or in the appearance of the natural world to indicate any radical change in the season at or about that date, and the increasing custom of lengthening the vacation outing at the seashore or in the mountains is proof sufficient that we are gradually coming to appreciate the fact that summer really extends through September, to say the least. Let us say, for example, that summer ends only when the frosts of October have put a change upon the face of things, and this will not only be nearer the truth than the established conception of the season, but will enable us also to get a fairer conception of when Indian summer makes its appearance. The lexicographer Worcester quotes Dr. Freeman as saying that the term Indian summer is used in North America to define a season of pleasant weather in the late autumn, and this notion of its date is brought out in various ways by most of the poets and versifiers who have discoursed upon this subject. And a very prolific source of verse it has been.

Here is one rhymer, for instance, who tells us that Indian summer comes in "the autumn's dotage, mid-November, when skies seductive woo the earth," and another who places it within the period when "the woodland foliage is gathered by the wild November blast," when "even the thick leaves upon the oaken bough are fallen, to the last." Samuel Longfellow says: "Summer is gone, but summer days return. The winds and frosts have stripped the woodlands bare." And a fourth poet tells us that the season comes "after October's biting frosts." From all of these quotations and many more like them, it is apparent that the pleasant October days are not the Indian summer, after all.—Providence Journal.

TRIP TO A FIXED STAR.

Would Be a Long Journey Even With Transportation Facilities.

There is a perpetual fascination about the stars and the immense distances at which they lie from one another and from us. To demonstrate the vast distance of Centauri from this planet a popular scientist gives the following illustration in Answers: "We shall suppose that some wealthy directors, for want of outlet for their energy and capital, construct a railway to Centauri. We shall neglect for the present the engineering difficulties—a mere detail—and suppose them overcome and the railway open for traffic. We shall go further and suppose that the directors have found the construction of such a railway to have been peculiarly easy, and that the proprietors of interstellar space had not been exorbitant in their terms for right of way.

"Therefore, with a view to encourage traffic, the directors had made the fare exceedingly moderate—viz, first class at 1 penny per 100 miles. Desiring to take advantage of these facilities, a gentleman, by way of providing himself with small change for the journey, buys up the national debt of Britain and a few other countries, and, presenting himself at the office, demands a first class single fare to Centauri.

"For this he tenders in payment the scrip of the British national debt, which just covers the cost of his ticket, but at this time the national debt from little wars has been run up to £1,100,000,000.

"Having taken his seat, it occurs to him to ask:

"'At what rate do you travel?'

"'Sixty miles an hour, sir, including stoppages,' is the answer.

"'Then when shall we reach Centauri?'

"'In 18,663,000 years, sir!'"

Misplaced Sympathy.

Under a spreading elm near the reptile house, in the Zoological gardens, there lies a nameless grave. A simple little rounded mound of earth, with no stone to mark it, but caressed by the soft tendrils of clinging ferns and moss, reposes at the foot of the forest Titan. It has been there many years—so many years that none of the keepers now employed about the gardens remembers when or how it came there. Thousands of curious people have strolled unheeding by the little grave, and not one has turned aside to shed a tear. Yes, there was one. He was a tall, slender young man, with a soulful and melancholy eye. He found the little grave, and he leaned against the trunk of the tall elm and fell to musing sadly. Superintendent Brown, happening along, called to the man that he was trespassing on forbidden ground. "Pardon me," said the sympathetic visitor. "I forgot myself in the sorrowful contemplation of this humble grave. Can you tell me who lies buried here?" "Oh," said Mr. Brown, "that's the grave of a Skye terrier, whose mistress, an eccentric old lady, requested permission to bury him there many years ago."—Philadelphia Record.

The Lay of a Bachelor.

A bachelor old and cranky was sitting alone in his room. His toes with the gout were aching, and his face was o'erspread with gloom. No little one's shouts to disturb him—from noises the house was free. In fact, from cellar to attic 'twas as still as still could be. No medical aid was lacking. His servants answered his ring, respectfully heard his orders and supplied him with everything. But still there was something wanting, which he could not command—the kindly words of compassion, the touch of a gentle hand. And he said as his brow grew darker and he rang for the hireling nurse, "Well, marriage may be a failure, but this is a jolly sight worse."—London Standard.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., SATURDAY, JANUARY 4, 1896. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

AN OLD DOCUMENT.

A Deed Made in 1725 in the Possession of Lawyer VanWinkle.

Old documents are always interesting in that they tell something of the manuevers and customs of the past. Those that have seen a century pass by are considered curiosities, but one that is over one hundred and fifty years old is indeed a rarity outside of a museum. A century, three score and ten is the age, however, of an old deed, laborously written on sheepskin, which is now in the possession of ex-Mayor John H. VanWinkle, of Duer street. The documents, for there is another a year younger, were presented to Mr. VanWinkle by John A. Staats and were back titles to some of his property on the Passiac river.

During the time, 1725, that the deeds were drawn, it was the custom to write the two copies of the deed on the same piece of sheepskin and then cut apart, leaving indented edges so that they might be recognized, giving them the name of "Indenturies" which is used to this day although the practice of cutting them has long been discontinued.

The deed commences, "The Indenture made the twentyeth day of January in the twelth year of the reign of Our Sovereign Lord George, by the Grace of God over Great Brittain, France and Ireland, King Defender of the Faith & Anogo. Dom. 1725." Chas. Dunster, "of the Province of New Jersey, esquire," was the new owner and Hendrick Rynearse, "of Somerset county of the Provence of New Jersey," was the other party in the sale. Seven hundred and fifty pounds was the consideration for a tract of land on the north branch of the Raritan river. The entire document was filled with quaint, old fashioned phrases, while the carefully printed letters were gradually growing dim and indistinct.

The second deed was between Charles Dunster and another man and was drawn upon the same plan as the first.

$3.00 for Ten Lessons.

In vocal sight reading. Miss Anna O. Marsh expects to start a class for young ladies and married ladies at her residence, 915 Madison avenue, on Wednesday afternoon, January 8th, at 2 o'clock.

Since Miss Marsh has also received applications for an evening class of mixed voices, she will (if enough names can be secured) start such a class Tuesday evening, January 14th, at 8 o'clock. Prompt applications are desired for both classes.

Miss Marsh's teaching is similar to Mr. Frank Damrosch's, of New York, as both graduated from Mr. Holt's Normal Institute of Vocal Harmony, in Lexington, Mass. t s t.

Business and Sociability.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church last evening. The business meeting was held first. After opening with singing and prayer, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Ida Angleman, and then reports were made by the treasurer and the chairmen of the various committees. Six new members were elected. After the routine business was transacted the meeting adjourned and an informal social followed under the direction of the social committee. A potato race came first and the rest of the evening was spent in other games.

Extensive Repairs Made.

The Scott Machine Works will start running Wednesday, after being closed for eight days, during which time extensive repairs on shafting, engines, cranes and tools have been made and new machinery put in position. The electric lighting machinery has been improved and enlarged. They now have a lighting capacity of sixty-five arc lamps of two thousand-candle power each and six hundred incandescent lamps of sixteen-candle power each.

Take Their Places.

The officers-elect of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., were installed last evening by District Deputy C. M. Ulrich. The tribe was honored by a visit from Grand Sachem William Forsyth of Jersey City. An enjoyable time was had in the good of the order, when speeches were made and a collation served.

PROHIBITS SUNDAY WORK.

EXCEPT TO THOSE WHO HABITUALLY OBSERVE THE SEVENTH DAY.

Borough Council Will Pass an Ordinance to Stop City Barbers From Opening Shops in the Borough on Sundays Only.

The Borough Council members attended the first meeting of the year last evening in full force, Mr. Howell being the only member absent. Clerk Arnold started to read the minutes of the previous regular and adjourned meetings, but by mistake read the minutes of the meeting held one year ago. He discovered his mistake very soon and after the members had indulged in a good laugh he returned to the right minutes. They were approved, and he then presented his financial report for the past month, which was received and filed. It was as follows:

	Balance.	Deficit.
Borough	$ 256.25
Fire department		$ 148.20
Light	105.45
Roads		408.12
Poor		113.57
	$ 361.70	$ 669.89
		$ 361.70
Total balance		$ 308.19

He also reported $13 50 collected as fines and from licenses.

Tax Collector H. N. Spencer's report for 1895 was then read as follows:

Previously reported	$8,206.58
County tax	3,670.38
State school tax	2,359.73
Borough tax	1,747.80
Light tax	2,009.97
Road tax	1,746.20
Fire department tax	1,218 93
Board of Health tax	262.03
Poor tax	611.79
Special school tax	4,369.50
Poll tax	272.00
Dog tax	94.00
Sidewalk tax	33.00
Total	$26,601.96

This was also received and filed.

A communication was read from L. E. Barkalew and others asking that the name of Emily street be changed to Lincoln place. It was referred to the street committee.

Residents in the vicinity of Somerset street, near Mountain and Summit avenues, petitioned council to lay crosswalks at both corners of the latter street on Somerset, and complained of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk between Mountain and Summit avenues. This was also referred to the street committee.

A batch of monthly bills were presented and after being audited were ordered paid. Mr. Peck, of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported progress in the matter of securing a fire-bell and the erection of a tower and stated that a few bids had been received. He hoped to be able to report more fully at the next meeting of the Council. The report was received and filed.

In regard to the complaint made against the poor service given by the Plainfield Electric Light Company he stated that he had communicated with the company and had been informed that it was due to the fact that an unreliable inspector had failed in his duty. He had been discharged and better service would be given.

Mr. Valiant reported that the laws and ordinances of the borough had been compiled by the borough council and were now in shape to be printed. Mr. Smith, of the street committee, stated that with the exception of one sidewalk, part of another, and one crosswalk, the work as planned and directed by the council had been completed. He hoped to have the above done by the next meeting. In regard to the petition for crosswalks at Mountain and Summit avenues, he said that the walks now there were higher than the street, and he would not advise any change being made. His report was received and filed, as was also the following, which shows the amount of money expended on the streets from December 6th to Jan. 3d, 1896:

Bridge Harrison street	$23 75
Crosswalks Westervelt avenue	7 00
Clearing ditch, Harrison street	4 00
Work on Myrtle avenue	7 25
" Watchung avenue	5 00
" Grandview avenue	2 75
" Washington avenue	8 00
" Somerset street	11 00
" Wilson avenue	2 12
" Craig place	4 00
" Rockview avenue	3 00
" Giraud avenue	5 00
" Greenbrook road	7 50
Total	$90 37

Mr. Valiant spoke about changing the name of Emily street and said that he had been seen in regard to the matter by a man interested, who told him the residents wanted the name changed. He thought the present name objectionable.

Mr. Lounsbury thought that all continuous streets should bear the same name, and an effort will be made to remedy this difficulty.

Mr. Schutt offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the street committee be authorized to have Westervelt avenue renumbered from Mountain avenue to the city line, on account of the many duplicate numbers on that avenue, the work to be done by the property owners.

Mr. Lounsbury offered a resolution that a warrant be drawn for $1,540.77 to pay the note of $1,500 with interest due January 14th. It was adopted, as was also one by Mr. Peck for $1,518.75 to pay another note of $1,500 with interest due at the same time.

Mr. Valiant said that he thought a record should be in possession of the Council of all the property on which there was a deficiency in taxes, also of the property on which liens had been effected to bear the expense of laying sidewalks. He also thought same method should be adopted for keeping such records.

At this point, Mayor Hegeman was excused and President Lounsbury took the chair. Before the Mayor left he stated that before the laws and ordinances were printed they should be examined carefully, and the one in regard to allowing cyclers to ride on the borough sidewalks during certain hours be changed.

An ordinance was then introduced which prohibits Sunday work on the part of all who do not habitually observe Saturday and worship on that day. It was placed on first and second readings and laid over till next meeting. The ordinance provides a penalty of $20 or ten days for each offense.

After Mr. Schutt moved that the Council meet Friday evening, January 10th, an adjournment was made.

STOLE $18 AND A HAT.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilmont on Duer street was very mysteriously entered some time during Thursday night by thieves, who took about $18 in money and a new derby hat. Mrs. Wilmont had placed the money in her pocketbook and laid it away in a closet, as she intended to pay the house rent, which was due. Her husband did not even know where the money was. It was discovered yesterday morning that the catch on a rear window was thrown back, which gives the idea that an entrance was effected through the window. As yet nothing else has been missed, though there were many valuable articles about the house. Close to where the hat was hanging were two overcoats worth considerable, beside a quantity of silverware on the first floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmont's little boy was taken ill during the night, and Mr. Wilmont was obliged to get up twice, but he did not hear a sound about the house.

Demented Woman's Cold Stroll.

Mrs. Hines, an aged woman living at Mine Brook, near Bernardsville, who has been for sometime demented, strayed away from her home yesterday and wandered to North Plainfield. She was not very warmly clad and the extreme cold weather last evening had its effects. About 8 o'clock last night Marshal Doud found the woman the Crescent Hotel, endeavoring to secure lodging. He found Overseer of Poor David Weaver and, after an examination of the case, they secured a place for her at the hotel. This morning Marshal Doud took her home wi h his horse and wagon.

Farland Concert.

The world-famous banjoist, Alfred A. Farland, has decided to play here before he starts on his concert tour through the Western States. He will be assisted by Miss Rosa J. Stults, soprano; P. Ludwig Conde, violinist; Wilhelm J. Klobus, 'cellist, and Richard Menzel, pianist. The sale of tickets will begin Monday at the Y. M. C. A. and F. S. Taylor's music store.

An Old Lady Gone.

Mrs. James Glasby, one of the oldest persons in Union county, was buried from her home in Elizabeth on Thursday. She was a daughter of Col. William Brown, who fought in the Revolutionary War, and was born on September 21st, 1800, in a house, still standing, near Evergreen cemetery, at Lyons Farms.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

ORCHIDS IN BLOOM.

Beautiful Floral Display at Councilman Ginna's Conservatory.

Upon the invitation of Councilman S. A. Ginna, a representative of the Daily Press paid a visit to his conservatory yesterday afternoon to witness the display of orchids now blooming at their best. George Jackson, who has charge all of Mr. Ginna's plants and flowers, very kindly described the character, etc., of the orchids.

The orchid is practically an air plant and is exceedingly rare. This collection, with one exception, is the only one in this vicinity, which is due to the fact that they are a very hard plant to raise. Several persons have attempted it but they have met with such poor success that they have given it up also from the fact that they are very expensive, as they are imported. Mr. Ginna has a large variety of the plants. Of the Cattleya percivallana he has two varieties, and about twenty varieties of Cattleya trianea. In all he has about 100 plants and fifty of the latter variety are now in bloom. They started to open in October and are now at their heighth, and will continue to bloom until March.

One variety, called the King of Angrecum Sesquipidale, is in the shape of a star with a long stem attached. This is the first time it has opened and is certainly very beautful. Another variety, the Dendrobium Farmeri, is very atrractive and odd. Other varieties called the Cyprepidium Spiceriana, Cyprepidium Dominyana, and Brassivolo Glauca, are also remarkable for their oddity. When the plants are in bloom they are resting in a botonical sense and require very little moisture.

A peculiar thing in regard to their growth is the fact that no earth is used, but instead of the dirt, they are grown in what is called fern root, a substance that holds moisture, which is needed very much. The plants require the best of care and attention possible to give them. Mr. Jackson takes great pleasure in showing the plants and describing them, as many know who have called. He is to be found at the conservatory most of the time and is glad to see any one who is int rested in flowers.

Officers Installed.

District Deputy Grand Master Marsh, of Elizabeth, installed the following officers elect of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., last evening: Master workman, J. W. A. Bauersachs; past master workman, William A. Woodruff; foreman, G. T. Dunham; overseer, E. C. Pease; recorder, R. H. Loughlin; treasurer, E. M. Laing; guide, H. Nischwitz; inside watchman, M. Kohler; ouside watchman, C. Mills. It was decided to hold the memorial service, Friday evening, January 17th, in the Y. M. C. A. building. A collation was served after the business was transacted.

Perseverance Lodge Installs.

A delightful evening was spent at the meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 14, Knights of Pythias, last night when Deputy Grand Chancellor James Patterson, of this city, and staff installed the following officers: C. C. Louis Mohring; V. C., Thomas Milligan; P., Robert Jackson; M. of F., John Wakefield; M. of E., W. H. B. Drake; K. of R. and S., Charles McGinley; M. of W., J. S. Higham; M. at A., Edwin Mackey; I. G., Wm. Norrie; O. G., Peter Stremm. A smoker followed the installation.

A Good Speaker.

R. J. Hunter, of New York, who spoke to a large and interested audience at the Y. M. C. A. meeting last fall, has been secured to speak to young men at Association Hall tomorrow at 4:15 p. m. Chas. Lewis and Elmer E. Runyon, of the Crescent Avenue church choir, will render special music.

A Colored Man Dead.

H. Garrison, colored, died last evening about five o'clock at his home on Arlington avenue. He had been suffering with consumption for some time past. A wife survives him. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the A. M. E. church, West Fourth street.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S Armstrong, manager.

AN ARCHITECTURAL BEAUTY.

MODEL STORES AND FLATS IN THE NEW JACKSON BUILDING.

One Mammoth Store Will be Made a Furniture and China Emporium by Two of Plainfield's Leading Retail Merchants.

Plainfield is not only growing as a city of homes but as a business centre, and a number of new buildings are in course of construction to supply more room for the ever increasing demands of the merchants. One of the handsomest of the new edifices is the Jackson building at the corner of Madison avenue and West Front street. It is a four-story structure, built of buff brick, with a plain front and sides only broken by slightly projecting brick pillars. A brick cornice extends around the top of the wall. The roof is flat. The building itself is a long one, extending 177 feet down Madison avenue and has a 45-foot front on West Front street. One large double door on the front and four on the side open into an immense store which occupies all the ground floor except the space devoted to the three flights of stairs which lead to the floors above. Double doors open into the stairways which project out into the store. This floor is to be jointly occupied by Garret Q. Packer, the furniture dealer, and W. R. Gavett & Son, dealers in china and glassware, who will combine their stock and exhibit them together. The spaces between the doorways will be filled by large show windows, extending almost to the ground. The second-story is divided into flats, each consisting of a parlor, two bedrooms, dining room kitchen, bath room and numerous closets. The front stairs connect with three flats, two facing on Front street and one on the side. There are two side flats connecting with the second flight, while the last flight opens into only one. The rooms are all of fair size and are lighted by windows opening on either of the streets, or on a narrow roof and the court at the side of the First M. E. church. The third floor is arranged essentially the same.

Below the first floor is the commodious basement, lighted by vault lights in the sidewalk. Entrance is gained to this part of the building by the stairways from the interior of the store, and several trap doors on the Madison avenue side. The building was designed and the plans drawn by Oscar S. Teale, of this city.

JACK FROST IS HERE.

He Comes and With Him Comes the Piercing Cold North Wind.

Jack Frost is here at last in all his glory, while the chilly north wind acts as his attendant. The thermometer stood at 14 degrees F. this morning but the biting wind made it seem ten degrees colder. The commuters this morning took refuge in the depot or huddled near the door to escape the bitter blasts while the wind did its best to steal their hats. The gale also had the effect of making the ponds freeze very slowly to the disgust of the lovers of skating. The wheelmen did not find yesterday and today ideal riding days. The clouds of dust bothered riders and pedestrians alike, filling eyes, nose and mouth with dust, while the sidewalks on North avenue had a layer of an inch of dust deposited on them by the kindly wind.

Death of Mrs. Chamberlain.

The death of Mrs. Rynear R. Chamberlain occurred last night from bronchitis. A short time ago she had an attack of pneumonia but had entirely recovered from it. She was about sixty-eight years of age and well known throughout the city. A husband and two sons, Herbert and Arthur, survive her. The former is in the employ of the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company, and the latter is an expert telegraph operator located in Chicago. The sympathy of all is extended in their sad bereavement.

McDermott and Fisk.

Announcement was made in Jersey City yesterday that Allan L. McDermott and Willard C. Fisk had formed a co-partnership, and that McDermott, as soon as Gov. Griggs relieves him of the duties of Chancery Clerk, will devote his entire attention to his law business. The offices of the new firm will be in the Hudson County Bank building. Mr. McDermott and Mr. Fisk studied in the law office of the late Leon Abbett. They have been closely associated in politics for many years.

Pleaded Guilty.

Nicola Lombardi, who was recently brought from Brooklyn on a requisition for stabbing a fellow-countryman, was arraigned in the Union County Court yesterday and pleaded guilty. In default of $2,000 bail he was remanded to jail for sentence.

WON THE CASE ON APPEAL.

A Long Contested Suit Over a Disastrous Runaway Settled.

The case of Blair & Day against Douglass, on appeal, was decided yesterday by Judge McCormick in favor of Mr. Douglass. The case was tried in Plainfield before Justice Newcorn who gave judgement in favor of Blair & Day for about $110 and costs.

An appeal was taken by Craig A. Marsh, who was retained by Mr. Douglass, and it was on the trial of the appeal that Mr. Douglass was successful in reversing the judgement and obtaining a judgement in his own favor. The case grew out of a runaway last winter. Mr. Douglass was driving a mare hired of Blair & Day and harnessed to a cutter. Blair & Day claimed that the animal was the quietiest of drivers and women constantly drove her without trouble. Mr. Douglass claimed that the mare took the bit in her teeth and ran away. She turned a corner abruptly, thereby upsetting the cutter.

Much damage was caused not only to the mare and cutter, but also to other vehicles with which the runaway collided. The claims against Mr. Douglass were dependent on the Blair & Day case, and hence its importance. As stated above, the Common Pleas Court vindicated Mr. Douglass.

A Modern Sunday Paper.

During January a complete change of machinery will be made in the Newark Sunday Call office. Boilers, engines, press, stereotype and type setting machinery will be supplanted by the latest improved designs. This shows what pluck and brains can do, right alongside of the great New York Sunday papers. Messrs. Ure, Schoch & Company are to be congratulated on their success.

Injury to the Eye.

Charles Wilson, a tinner, of Arlington avenue, sustained a severe injury to his left eye yesterday while working on the roof of a house on East Second street. A small quantity of hot solder was blown into the eye, causing intense pain. He consulted a doctor, but is unable to determine as yet whether he will lose his sight or not.

District Deputy Work.

District Deputy Grand Master L. S. Pocock, of this city, and staff went to Somerville last evening to install the officers in Somerset Lodge, No. 43, I. O. O. F. After the installation an elaborate collation was served. On Monday evening they go to White House Lodge, No. 207, to install the officers and on Wednesday Westfield Lodge, No. 169, will be their destination.

Reception and Banquet.

A large time is in preparation for the Knights of Pythias of this district. Grand Chancellor Ralph Donath, of the State, and his staff will make their formal visit on Unity Lodge on Wednesday evening. All lodges in the district have been invited to be present. After the reception a banquet will be given to the guests.

To Be Retried.

The Whitehead—Weber case, which was tried in the September term of Union County circuit court, and on which the jury disagreed, will be retried at the same court on Wednesday. S. S. Swackhamer represents the plaintiff and Craig A. Marsh the defendent.

Worth Knowing.

The image of men's wits and knowledge remain in books, and the proofs of their artistic genius are nowhere more attractively shown than in the new designs of jewelry and silverware to be seen at Collier's; call and be convinced.

Changes at Edsall's.

Thomas Neely, manager of the crockery department at Edsall's Commercial Palace, has sent in his resignation to take effect February 1st. J. Linn Edsall will manage the department after that time.

Popular Meetings.

One hundred and thirty-nine was the average attendance at the young men's meetings at the Y. M. C. A. for the month of December.

A Public Instillation.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

HIS FATE IS UNKNOWN

Rumors About Jameson's Death Unconfirmed.

No Private Telegram Received from South Africa in Several Days, the British Government Monopolizing the Wires—Report Probably True, as the Boers Are Strong in Wrath.

London, Jan. 4.—The fact that the telegraph wires in south Africa have been devoted to government work since the trouble in the Transvaal occurred and the fact that no private cable messages have been received from south Africa for four days has led to all kinds of rumors being put in circulation regarding the situation in the south African republic and the fate of the British invaders of that country. One of these reports has it that Dr Jameson has been shot by his captors, and another is that the Uitlanders in Johannesburg have risen against the Boer government and given the city over to flames. What truth there is in these stories it is, of course, impossible now to ascertain owing to the government monopoly of the telegraph lines, but it is judged that most, if not all, of the reports are based upon the fears engendered by the uncertainty regarding the fate that the Boers, slow to anger but strong in wrath, may have meted out to the ill-advised and foolhardy Englishmen who attempted to compel the Boers to grant concessions by force of arms. It may be, however, that the report of the shooting of Dr. Jameson is true. If he has been tried by court martial and convicted there is scarcely a doubt that execution would promptly follow the passing of sentence. This morning a representative of the United Press called at the foreign office to confirm, if possible, the report of the shooting of Dr. Jameson. He was informed by officials there that they had received no information further than had already been made public. No news had been received from the Transvaal within the past twenty-four hours. Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, was at the office waiting for dispatches. He has had frequent conferences with the war office and admiralty officials, but no special instructions bearing on the situation have yet been issued to the naval or military authorities.

400 Cut to Pieces.

The report that Dr. Jameson had been shot yesterday after a drum-head court martial was followed by a story that the second body of men belonging to the British Chartered company, numbering about 400, which, it was said, had started out to re-enforce Dr. Jameson's troopers, had been cut to pieces by the Boers.

A WARNING TO GERMANY.

Her Attitude Regarding the Transvaal Matter Unfriendly to England.

London, Jan. 4.—The Daily News today says that it sees nothing hostile to Great Britain in the words of Emperor William addressed to the president of the South African republic. It adds that they are not agreeable reading for Englishmen, but they will impress some minds sorely needing such impression that the encouragement of filibusters is playing with edged tools. The Post advises Great Britain to concentrate a fleet by recalling the Mediterranean squadron now in the Levant, to join the channel squadron. The Standard says that Emperor William's message is a strikingly unfriendly act. It raises the presumption that he wishes to either challenge or destroy British suzerainty in the Transvaal. Germany, it adds, has no more locus standi in the Transvaal than Great Britain has in Havana. Great Britain cannot and will not tolerate the slightest interference between the Transvaal and herself. The paper will dilate upon German hostility to Great Britain everywhere and avows the latter's desire for friendship. It then issues a warning, saying: "If Germany insists upon tresspassing upon our rights we are well able to defend them. We are a peaceable people, but if others will not permit us to remain in peace we are capable of accepting the unwelcome ordeal with composure."

Does Not Consider It Hostile.

London, Jan. 4.—Sir Charles Dilke, M. P., who is generally regarded as one of the best English authorities on foreign affairs, was interviewed in connection with the Transvaal trouble. He said he did not regard the interest that Germany is showing in the matter as evidence of positive unfriendliness to Great Britain. It rather arose from trade and similar relations with the republic.

Favors European Intervention.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—The semi-official North German Gazette invokes public opinion in Germany to favor European intervention in the Transvaal trouble. Subscriptions are being raised in Germany in behalf of the Boers wounded in the engagement with Dr. Jameson's force at Krugersdorp. The sum of 100,000 marks has been collected.

Carl Peters to Help the Boers.

Hamburg, Jan. 4.—It is reported that the Colonial society has placed 100,000 marks at the disposal of Dr. Carl Peters, German commissioner in east Africa, for the purpose of organizing an expedition to help the Boers.

Wrecks in Penobscot Bay.

Bangor, Me., Jan 4.—The big gale of Tuesday broke down the wires connecting the islands in Penobscot bay with the mainland and news is slow in getting here. Reports have been received of a number of wrecks at Green's landing.

NATIONAL CYCLE SHOW.

New York, Jan. 4.—With the great National Cycle show in the Madison Square garden only two weeks off the importance of the annual exhibition impresses everybody in any way connected with the sport and trade. During the week just closed many arrangements have been perfected both by exhibitors and the general management which cannot fail to lend importance to the event. It has been Manager Sanger's idea to introduce novelties in the line of decorations, and visitors to the show will observe his great success. It is evident that the display of electric signs alone will in themselves be truly wonderful. It is anticipated that during the week many, if not all, of the shining lights in the League of American Wheelmen will visit the show, and for their convenience Mr. Sanger has tendered to them the use of the royal boxes over the Madison avenue entrance. It is now apparent that the opening night and Monday night will be made memorable by the attendance of the club members. It is fair to predict that every club within a radius of 300 miles will be represented. Bicycle dealers and others coming from a distance will do well to observe the conditions under which special railroad rates can be obtained by them. Many roads have agreed to sell tickets for the return passage of persons attending the convention at one-third of the fare. For the convenience of visiting dealers the bureau of information has made a very satisfactory arrangement. A book will be provided in which an alphabetical list of visitors will be kept. The mail will be received in this department and visitors may have their letters sent direct to the garden. The show will be opened every afternoon and evening, Sunday excepted, from January 18 to 25 inclusive. The only exception to this rule will be on the opening day, when the show will not be opened until the evening.

THE VENEZUELAN COMMISSION.

Four of the Members To Confer in Washington To-day.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Four of the five members of the Venezuelan boundry commission will assemble in the diplomatic room of the state department to-day for the purpose of having an informal talk over the work before them. Those who will be present are Justice Brewer, Prof. Gilman, who arrived in Washington from Baltimore last night and delivered a lecture, Chief Justice Alvey who came over this morning from Hagerstown, Md., and Mr. Coudert who is expected from New York. Mr. White will be unable to be present and it is likely that in his absence organization will be postponed. No quarters have been secued and until they are the commission will probably hold its sessions at the residence of Justice Brewer.

CAPT. BATCHELLOR DROWNED.

Quarantine, S. I., Jan. 4.—The British steamer Ardle, at this station, reports that on December 13 she met a strong gale during which an enormous sea struck her bows causing the steamer to roll heavily to starboard. Capt. Batchellor, who was on deck at the time, was washed overboard. Chief Officer Smith stopped the ship and turned her head around, but nothing could be seen of the unfortunate man. Capt. Bachellor was 33 years old and a native of Dundee, Scotland.

S. T. MEYERS APPOINTED.

To Be Assistant Superintendent of Railway Mail Service.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Postmaster-General Wilson has appointed L. T. Myers of Richmond, Va., assistant general postmaster of the railway mail service. This office has been vacant for over a year and a half, being formerly filled by Second Assistant Postmaster General Neilson.

ALL CUBA NOW IN WAR

Marshal Law at Last Declared in Havana.

Many Led To Desert the Government Since the Daring Dash of the Rebels into Matanzas, a Heretofore Invulnerable Territory — Government Muzzles the Press.

Havana, Jan. 4.—The authorities confess the grave condition of affairs by proclaiming martial law in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio. Late last night the insurgents were almost on the borders of the city, though in what numbers cannot be accurately stated. The advance guard of their cavalry has reached Tapasto, eighteen miles from Gunabacoa, the latter being a suburb of this city. The Spaniards are in despair.

Many Joining the Rebels.

Havana, Jan. 4.—There is no doubt that the insurrection is gaining strength daily and that the rebels are obtaining assistance from sources that have hitherto been thought to be loyal to the government. The success of Gomez and Maceo in passing the hitherto invulnerable Trocha, the military line that in previous insurrections kept the rebels in the province of Santiago de Cuba, and their dash across the province of Santa Clara into Matanzas, has led many men and youths who were wavering in their allegiance to the crown to throw aside their doubts and cast their lots with the insurgents. The whole island is now in a state of war. The restlessness in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio, the two westernmost political divisions of the island has caused the government officials to adopt measures to prevent risings there. Heretofore the leading papers here have had correspondents with the army who have sent reports of the various engagements, which, after being so prepared as to meet the views of the censors, have been published. These papers will now not be permitted to publish even news of this character, an order having been issued that the newspapers shall print no news concerning the insurrection except such as is contained in information officially furnished them by the government.

Garza Given a Command.

Ranchuelo, Cuba, Dec. 23, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 4.—For three days no letters or newspapers have been received from Havana. This is due to the interruption of railway traffic by the rebels. Antonio Nunez, the rebel commander in this district, with 600 men left day before yesterday in the direction of Trinidad. It is said that he will convey ammunition from that locality to the rebel forces in the field in Las Villas. The rebel supply of ammunition has been under the special care of Jose Maceo and his following. Before Nunez left for Trinidad he deposed Aniceto Hernandez, a mulatto, who had charge of a band of rebels in this department. His bad conduct led to his dismissal. Catarino Garza, the famous Mexican revolutionist, succeeds Hernandez in the command. Garza, owing to his daring and experience, may have command of the rebel department of the Ranchuelo district. Catarino Garza is a bold and uncompromising fighter. He will cause much trouble.

Rebels in Havana Province.

Havana, Jan. 4.—The insurgents are invading the southern part of the province of Havana, their line of march being in the direction of Melena. Several columns of troops have been ordered to oppose them. A smaller rebel force is also marching on Agucate. Two columns are operating against them.

LOSS NEARLY $100,000.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 4.—Fire broke out last night in the Cranberry breaker at Cranberry, near Hazleton. The immense structure, which was recently rebuilt, was destroyed in less than an hour, causing a loss of nearly $100,000. A fierce blizzard was raging at the time and the sparks from the burning breaker were carried to a number of company houses, which were also destroyed. Six families have been rendered homeless.

Hot Senatorial Fight.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 4.—The senatorial fight which begins in the legislature next week will be a very active one. Of the five avowed candidates, Col. Hooker, Col. Money, "Private" John Allen, ex-Gov. Lowry and Gov. Stone, it is possible, Col. Money will have the largest vote on the first ballot, but the friends of the others declare he will not have enough to elect.

BUSINESS IS QUIET

Usual Dullness Which Follows the Holidays.

Mercantile Trade the Most Affected, But Manufacturing Lines Also Show a Slackening of Activity—Jobbers Are Confident as to the Outlook in the Near Future.

New York, Jan. 4.—Bradstreet's will to-day say: The week which ended 1895 and ushered in 1896 has been very dull in mercantile circles, as is usual at this period. The volume of business has fallen away sharply, owing to the new year's holiday and to quiet in trade circles at a time when stock-taking and preparing samples for commercial travelers are taking the attention of jobbers and commission houses. A slackening of activity in some of the important manufacturing lines is likewise noticeable, and it is significant that telegrams from many centers report mercantile collections slow, the exception being a few points in southern states. Jobbers in leading lines at many centers are confident as to the outlook for trade in the near future, although in instances fears are expressed of an unfavorable effect, due to inability to secure necessary legislation on financial questions.

Heavy Bank Clearings.

December bank clearings are the largest for any month last year but one, October, 1895, and furnish a satisfactory closing chapter to a year's large gains in bank clearings. Total clearings at sixty cities for December aggregate $5,026,056,187, a gain over December last year of 17.6 per cent. and an increase over December two years ago of 24 per cent., while compared with December three years ago there is a decrease of 15 per cent. Heaviest gains occur in the middle and in New England states, due partially to speculative activity. Total clearings at sixty cities for 1895 aggregate $52,823,539,249, an increase of 16.8 per cent. from the total in 1893, and a falling off of 14 per cent. from 1892, the record year in bank clearings.

Prices Start Upward.

The price movement has taken a start upward, and for the first time in many weeks a large majority of staples quoted close higher than one week ago. Quotations for lumber and for coal remain firm at the levels of the preceding week, as do cotton goods, notably print cloths, the increased price of which has not enjoyed relatively the advance shown by cotton. The prospect does not favor a relief from the existing weakness in the iron market, as the production is ahead of all records, with an output of about 1,000,000 ton per month, and stocks are accumulating. Some furnaces may have to shut down soon to relieve the pressure.

Available Wheat Stocks.

Stock values at New York were favorably affected by expectation of a $100,000,000 4 per cent. government bond issue, and the probable oversubscription of a syndicate to take the bonds. World's available wheat stocks Jan. 1 are less bullish than anticipated, amounting to nearly 170,000,000 bushels, about 15,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, 20,000,000 bushels less than two years ago, and 25,000,000 bushels less than three years ago, but more than were held at corresponding dates in years previous to 1893. Stocks of wheat east of the Rocky mountains, United States and Canada, increased more rapidly in December than expected, while on the Pacific coast the usual falling away took place. As is usual at this season, there is a considerable increase in number of business failures in the United States, the total reported being 403 this week, against 316 last week, 373 in the week one year ago, 480 two years ago, and as compared with 313 in the week three years ago.

THE HORSA EXPEDITION.

The Danish Government Regards the Vessel Guilty of Piracy.

Madrid, Jan. 4.—It is announced here that the Danish government has expressed the opinion that the steamer Horsa, flying the Danish flag, which conveyed a filibustering expedition to Cuba in November last from Philadelphia, ought to have been regarded as a pirate by the United States authorities, who recently decided at Philadelphia to hold her captain and two mates for trial.

POPE OFFERED TO MEDIATE.

Rome, Jan. 4.—It is reported in clerical circles here that the pope offered to mediate in the Venezuelan boundary dispute, but that England refused to accept the offer. Orders have been issued to the keeper of the archives of the propaganda fide to make further researches for documents connected with the Venezuelan missions.

Home for Friendless Women.

Albany, Jan. 4.—The Bethany Mission and Home for Friendless Girls of Brooklyn has been incorporated to maintain a home or refuge where charitable aid may be extended to homeless and friendless women, assisting them to gain employment and encouraging female delinquents of the county of Kings to reform.

Government Contract Awarded.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The contract for the construction of the United States appraisers' warehouse in New York city has been awarded to Post & McCord of New York at $339,550.

MAGNIFICENT CEREMONY.

Mgr. Satolli Will Receive the Beretta of a Cardinal To-morrow.

Baltimore, Jan. 4.—The investure of Monsignor Satolli with the beretta of a cardinal to-morrow will be one of the most splendid ceremonials that has ever taken place within the walls of the famous old cathedral of Baltimore. He will have been the second prelate receiving there the insignia of a prince of the Catholic church and invested with the authority and privileges of a member of the sacred college of cardinals, and a right to cast a vote for the election of a pope of Rome, the present primate of the American church, Cardinal Gibbons, being the first. At least forty of the hierarchy of America, archbishops and bishops, are expected to attend, together with hundreds of priests, many of whom will come from other states. Archbishop Kane of St. Louis, who will preach the sermon, accompanied by Bishops Jansson of Belleville, Ill., Hennessy of Wichita, Kan., and fifteen priests from Missouri and Illinois, arrived to-day. The party were driven to the cardinal's residence and paid their respects to his eminence.

CONTRIBUTIONS COMING IN.

New Yorkers Working Hard To Secure the Democratic Convention.

New York, Jan. 4.—The finance committee of one hundred which is booming New York as the place for holding the democratic national convention met yesterday afternoon, but did little more than discuss the general situation and to call for a meeting of the committee of twenty-five at the Fifth Avenue hotel on Monday night. Contributions are coming in all the time, and by the time the delegates start for Washington it is expected that $75,000 will have been subscribed. The committee of one hundred has already the assurance of many members of the democratic national committee that they will work for New York.

A DISMAL FAILURE.

Philadelphia's Second Traction Strike Was Very Tame

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—The second strike of the motormen and conductors of the Union Traction company was a dismal failure, and was over before it was fairly began. The strike was ordered by the more hotheaded and dissatisfied of the men, inflamed by outside agitators, and when it was inaugurated only about 1,000 of the 5,000 employes of the traction company went out. At no time were any of the divisions of the road completely tied up, and within five hours the cars were practically runing on every division on schedule time.

MONEY ISSUED OR COINED.

$1,579,206,724 in Circulation and $617,793,512 in the Treasury.

Washington, Jan. 4.—On January 1, 1896, according to a treasury official statement, there was of all kinds of money issued or coined up to date, $2,197,000,236, of which $1,579,206,724 is in circulation and $617,793,512 in the treasury. During December the amount of circulation decreased $14,988,756, making the per capita circulation January 1 $22.36. During the calendar year the amount of money in circulation decreased $47,461,898.

RELIEF FOR ARMENIANS.

Americans Granted Permission To Distribute the Contributions.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The state department confirms the information cabled to the United States from Constantinople that the porte has granted permission to Americans to distribute relief at Harpoot. A dispatch to this effect has been received at the department from Minister Terrell. No official advices have come to hand concerning the departure of Consul Jewett from Rivas on the relief work.

QUEEN VICTORIA, PLAINTIFF.

The Suit Against the Standard Asphalt Company Discontinued.

New York, Jan. 4.—The suit brought by her majesty, queen of Great Britain and Ireland and empress of India, against the Standard Asphalt company, has been discontinued. The action is an old one and grew out of a controversy regarding a grant given the Standard company by the English authorities permitting them to mine asphalt in the island of Trinidad.

Threaten To Lynch Shortis.

Beauharnois, Que., Jan. 4.—Valentine Shortis, the Valleyfield murderer, who was to have been hanged yesterday, but whose sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, left for Kingston penitentiary last evening in charge of sheriff's officers. There is much indignation here at the sentence being commuted and a mob of about one hundred left here last night to try and intercept the train carrying Shortis and lynch him.

Red Bank Cottage Burned.

Red Bank, N. J., Jan. 4.—The large cottage of W. F. Capen, a retired dry goods merchant of Brooklyn, on the Shrewsbury river, near this place, was burned last night. The wind was blowing a gale from the northwest, which fact saved another cottage a few feet to the west. The Capen family were at supper when the fire broke out in a bedroom, probably from a curtain catching fire from a gas jet.

To Annex Newfoundland.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Sir William Whiteway met Sir Mackenzie-Bowel this morning, and, it is said, the question of annexing Newfoundland to the Dominion of Canada is being discussed.

For a Russian Bank in New York.

Chronic Alcoholism
is a disease hard to cure, as is the morphine habit. Every organ of the body is affected. A continual demand for a stimulant is called for. Food ceases to gratify, in fact, often cannot be retained on the stomach, or when it is the vitiated blood ceases to absorb nourishment from it. Give such sufferers that greatest of food stimulants, blood-enrichers, flesh-creators, a highly concentrated extract of the vital principles of lean beef, it is retained by the weakest stomach and nourishes quickly, so that with renewed tissue and returned strength morbid cravings vanish. Dr. J. B Mattison of the Brooklyn "Home for Habitues" writes of Bovinine. "It is the best thing on earth of its kind. It is sustaining, nourishing, helpful in every way to patients of my special class."

A loud ring of your doorbell in the dead hours of night is alarming. So is the first hollow sound of a cough from one's husband, wife, son or daughter. It is disease knocking, with perhaps a certain silent visitor waiting not far away. Arrest that cough. Stop it. Stop it at the start. A few day's use of Ely's Pineola Balsam and the danger is past. Relief is immediate; a cure certain. This remedy is rich in the curative principles of the balsams and also contains certain ingredients that are new.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character, and if instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases, and always with like results. It never fails. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

OF Muslin Underwear,
Waists,
Wrappers, Corsets.
Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.
Look Before You Buy.
So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.
We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well-made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so-called sales.

Morton and Bradley is the team suggested for the Republicans.

Cider joints are morally wrong. They ought to be legally wrong.

The Bound Brook Chronicle passed its twenty-ninth birthday this week. The Chronicle is a good paper.

Outside of North Plainfield, Somerset county does not seem to regard consolidation with the city with much favor.

The Elizabeth Journal thinks that the Republican party could do better than to select Morton for the Presidential nomination.

The New Brunswick Times starts the New Year in modernized form and style. The Times' resolution to be as good as the best will doubtless survive under the new and aggressive management.

It was a long time coming—that street railway extension ordinance. But the Mayor signed it last night and before the twitter of the birds leave us next summer the hum of the trolley will be heard in sections that will result in the further progress of the city.

The Somerville Unionist-Gazette has the following editorial this week on the subject of consolidating the city and borough, doubtless taking its cue from those who are opposed to the scheme:

We wonder not that the residents of North Plainfield object to any legislation which may transfer them over to Union county and join them in that way to the city of Plainfield. They would have little gain and so much to lose. They have a good economic government with all the advantages of city life without the big tax rate which exists in Plainfield. They can now control their own internal affairs, spend what they please on streets and other improvements and are an influential borough in Somerset county. If they go over to Plainfield what do they gain? They simply lose their identity and become the nonentity that all suburban annexes are. They will lose control of their beautiful borough and its streets will get no further improvements until the greater thoroughfares of the larger city are attended to. Assemblyman Reed is right in his opposition to such a plan. His plan is that if consolidation is advisable at all, Plainfield should unite with the borough and become a part of Somerset county. And there is much more reason in his contention than in the other. The city and borough united would make a city of considerable importance in Somerset county which would be an advantage to Plainfield and to Somerset county as well. In Union she would still be overshadowed by larger places.

Protesting for the Armenians.

The following are the resolutions passed by the Armenian meeting held Thursday evening:

The Christian people of Plainfield, N. J., gathered tonight, January 2d, 1896, in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church to consider the condition of their fellow Christians, of Armenia, and their duty in regard to them, most solemnly adopt this preamble and these resolutions:

Whereas: Reports have continued to come to us for some months past of the most atrocious acts of brutality, inflicted upon men, women and children, of Armenia, with the knowledge and apparently by the direction and command of the authorities of Turkey, for no other reason than that these Armenians refuse to renounce their faith and become Mohammedans, therefore

Resolved, That in the name of our Christianity and of our common humanity, we do most earnestly protest against the deeds of savagery as a disgrace to the human race, and to this the nineteenth century of the world's progress.

Resolved, That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be requested to bring this matter to the attention of Congress, and to take such other action as in their judgment may be calculated to put a stop to these horrors which have shocked the Christian world.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the Plainfield papers, and a copy signed by the chairman and secretary of this meeting be sent to the Members of Congress from New Jersey. Alexander Gilbert, Chairman.
Isaaac L. Miller, Secretary.

Great Work of Paine's Celery Compound.

A Blessing to Every Household in the Land.

If another huge petition, like the famous one now going round the world on quite another mission, were to be signed by all the men, women and children who have been cured of disease or saved from a weak, nervous condition by Paine's celery compound it would take a stout conveyance to carry the enormous document from city to city.

Such a growing testimonial would receive additions from every tiny village and small town, not to mention the cities, on its journey across the United States.

It would be signed by thousands of women no longer tortured by sleeplessness, pains in the back and sides, continual headaches, neuralgia, dyspepsia, and Bright's disease.

There would be fully as many men who had been permanent y cured of kidney and liver diseases and rescued from chronic bad health by means of this great invigorator.

A vast number of children would be represented to testify to the ability of Paine's celery compound to restore a healthy appetite, to take away that constant tired feeling and to purify the blood of harmful humors.

The number of testimonials for Paine's celery compound from men and women of high standing in every state in the Union that have already been published, would fill a large volume. These testimonials have been written without solicitation. They have been published verbatim as they were received.

Necessarily the testimonials that have publicly appeared have been but one or two, here and there, taken almost at random from an enormously large number that every day and every week steadily increases.

Besides, it is to be remembered that not one tithe of all the magnificent cures fairly due to Paine's celery compound ever get beyond the knowledge of the immediate family; that, in fact, few people have any appreciation of the number of families throughout the United States where Paine's celery compound is kept constantly on hand and is being taken or has been taken by some one of its members.

Paine's celery compound has already done an enormous work. It has saved lived lives. It has saved health. It has saved homes.

But its work as the greatest nerve and brain strengthener and restorer the world has known, is only well started.

It is not beyond the reach of the most modest household, while a much greater expenditure will procure nothing else so effective.

Paine's celery compound, the remedy that makes people well, is within reach of all!

The Park Club bowlers go to Roselle on Tuesday night to roll another game in the Standard Bowling League.

The greatest game of the season at the Park Club will be rolled this evening between the old rivals, the Benedicts and Bachelors. Each team has one game and the victor this evening will be the winner of the match so some lively times may be expected. Over one hundred people witnessed the last game, but the crowd will probably be much larger tonight. Arrangements have been made for extra seats. Both teams are confident of victory and will bring all their rooters with them.

CYCLING COMMENT.

F. R. Stevens, of Park avenue, is riding the '96 Cleveland wheel.

Fred Bird is anticipating a trip through the west on his wheel next Summer, taking in Chicago, San Francisco and Texas.

F. L. C. Martin is now dividing his time equally between his Plainfield and Newark cycling establishments He is in Plainfield on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and in Newark Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The New York Cycle Show opens on Saturday, January 18th, at Madison Square Garden, and will continue until Saturday, January 25th. Clarence E. Teel, chairman of the racing board of the Crescent Wheelmen, will supply all members of the club with tickets good for either the 18th or the 20th, if they will make application before the 11th, stating which night they wish to go.

There is some talk of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey trying to secure the annual Irvington-Milburn road race next season, and as it cannot again be held over the Springfield road, an effort will be made to get permission to run this famous road race over the Hudson County Boulevard, with the course two laps of ten miles each and one of five miles. It would make one of the finest courses for a road race in this country, and could probably be run inside of the hour.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Ferdinand Denecklau, of East Second street, owns a number of pigeons, among which are several carriers. Wednesday afternoon he took two of the latter and liberated them at Westfield. They made their way directly home where they arrived together.

AT THE TRAPS.

There will be a big pigeon-shooting tournament held next month on the grounds of the Elizabeth Gun Club. Most of the crack shots in the country are expected to compete. Each man will shoot at 100 birds. The entries already number eighteen.

GOLF.

The golf course of the Hillside Club has been closed for the winter and the work of covering the greens is nearly completed. The course has been so recently completed that it was deemed advisable to close it at this time to insure good sod and smooth greens for the season of 1896. The grounds have been recently improved by the addition of a large earth bunker between the fifth and sixth holes and several other attractive features will be added before the opening of next season which will occur as early in the spring as the condition of the grounds will allow. Although the greens are covered and the fixtures removed, it is quite possible for members, who so desire, to practise through the ordinary green of the course while the good weather holds out. An instructor will be engaged by the club in the early spring so that members who choose to do so may take lessons in the game. The indications at present are for a most prosperous season, and greater interest than has been shown locally is expected with the advent of tournaments.

If not, stop in at Estil's, the Park avenue dealer, and get one while he is selling them for 25 cents bound in cloth, with a design by George Wharton Edwards. This book has been selling for $1.25.

Wife—Here's an account of a man who shot himself rather than suffer the pangs of indigestion. Husband—The fool! Why didn't he take DeWitt's Little Early Risers? I used to suffer as bad as he did before I commenced taking these little pills. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

THEATRICAL.

That magnificent production, "The Alsatian," will come to town on Monday night and will be seen at Music Hall. The "Alsatian" is our old and familiar friend Charles T. Ellis, and that he will be greeted by a throng of ardent admirers there can be no doubt, as he is always a loveable fellow and one with whom we can always sympathize and delight in. The scenery is the finest that can be produced and the introduction of a new system of electrical effects will make it possible to produce some stage pictures whose superiority have never been seen heretofore on the stage. To the music of the play much attention has been paid. Mr. Ellis will sing the following original compositions: "Please, Mr. Santa Claus, Don't Forget Me," "The Green Hills of Erin," "Mother's Maxims," "Oh, No, Jackie," "What I Found in Baby's Pocket," and many others. As is well known, Mr. Ellis is the possessor of a sweet and highly cultivated voice and as he sings in his inimitable way he never fails to charm.

There is such a thing as having too much of a good thing, and that's what happens to Bess Brandon, the heroine of "She Couldn't Marry Three," in which Miss Lillian Kennedy will appear at Stillman Music Hall Wednesday, January 8th. The luckless but lovely little fisher maiden has three sweethearts at once, and of course she can only marry one. One of the rejected suitors, a first-class villian, tries his very hardest to make Bess a widow and his wife by all sorts of plots. He comes pretty near succeeding sometimes, especially when he binds Bess' husband to the steel rails in front of an express train. But even at this exciting point, brave little Bess is too much for the cowardly scamp. She saves her husband and his assailant is shot down by the other fellow whom Bess couldn't marry. A real passenger locomotive dashes at full speed across the stage during the sensational episode above narrated. Some lovely views of England's fairest seacoasts are included in the special scenery painted for this production.

For the New Year

We promise you the best of service, the best of goods and prices to make our store as you would have it, as near perfect as possible. Sometimes a complaint is made but never a one but we are more than willing to right it and where 1895 has been the best year we have ever had and we thank you for it. We look forward into '96 with greater expectations and know we can only realize them by following the same liberal policy that we have worked out during the past years, of making every customer a satisfied one.

Its not a question of profit this month, we are anxious to reduce stock, and to do it we name prices on goods that you want and can have for little money. Read

CHINA'S GREAT BELL.

For the last 400 years—that is, ever since the discovery of the new world—China's bell of liberty, the largest and most finished on the globe, has raised its tongue of peace and prayer in Peking. The famous bells at Moscow and Mandelay are both unhung, the former being fractured and otherwise defective, but the Peking bell is ringing on, suspended by its wooden beam and sheltered beneath the roof of an open fan, still as bright and sound as when it left its matrix.

China's bell of liberty is in many respects the finest work of art in China, a product of native skill, which could probably not be duplicated by the highest ability or resources of western foundries. It weighs 120,000 pounds, stands 14 feet high, with a circumference of 34 feet and nearly a foot in thickness. Without a flaw or defect, it is completely covered in relief, both inside and out, with myriads of Chinese characters, each one an inch in size. They form prayerful extracts from Buddhistic classics.

It is one of the vagaries of Buddhism that its prayers of the faithful may be infinitely and acceptably repeated by mechanical helps, as, for instance, by revolving wheels. So here, when the lips of this mighty and eloquent bell are moved by fitting tongue, they breathe forth in deep, sweet, prolonged and wonderful vibratory voice these prayers to Buddha and call as well all devotees to worship.

One of the chroniclers of the fifteenth century states that it was a period of supreme suspense in Peking among all lovers of art and religion, from emperor down to humble craftsman, as the day and hour approached for pouring the molten metal into that myriad lettered matrix, and for producing Ta Chung, the noblest bell in all the world, and no doubt an almost equal interest was awakened when it rung out the advent of peace with Japan and the restored liberty of the empire.

The artists who successfully accomplished the molding and casting of this great bell were not only congratulated by Buddhistic ecclesiastics and their followers, but they were ennobled by the emperor, while their work itself, amid changing creeds and dynasties, is imperishable, being as clear cut and perfect today as when it first came forth from the crumbling mold of sand.—Baltimore Sun.

Laurence Hutton's Dog.

Mop was the first person who was told of my engagement, and he was the first to greet the wife when she came home, a bride, to his own house. He had been made to understand from the beginning that she did not like dogs—in general—and he set himself out to please and to overcome the unspoken antagonism. He had a delicate part to play, and he played it with a delicacy and a tact which rarely have been equaled. He did not assert himself. He kept himself in the background. He said little. His approaches at first were slight and almost imperceptible, but he was always ready to do or to help in an unaggressive way. He followed her about the house, up stairs and down stairs, and he looked and waited. Then he began to sit on the trail of her gown; to stand as close to her as was fit and proper; once in awhile to jump upon the sofa beside her, or into the easy chair behind her, winking at me from time to time in his quiet way.

And at last he was successful. One dreary winter, when he suffered terribly from inflammatory rheumatism, he found his mistress making a bed for him by the kitchen fire, getting up in the middle of the night to go down to look after him, when he uttered in pain the cries he could not help, and when a bottle of very rare old brandy, kept by me for some extraordinary occasion of festivity, was missing I was told that it had been used in rubbing Mop!—"Three Dogs," by Laurence Hutton, in St. Nicholas.

Humanity Always Seeking Equality.

Perhaps it is because we know society to be merely a make believe in its equality that so many society people regard a real equality as impossible and are content to remain in the make believe. But even the pretense of equality is precious, and it has more honesty in it than the pretense of inequality. There is nothing so essentially false as that, and the superior, when he takes thought, is as distinctly aware of the fact as the inferior. Humanity is always seeking equality. The patrician wishes to be with his equals because his inferiors make him uneasy; the plebeian wishes to be with his equals because his superiors make him unhappy. This fact accounts for inequality itself, for classes. Inferiority and superiority were intolerable to men, and so they formed themselves into classes, that inside of these classes they might have the peace, the comfort, of equality, and each kept himself to his own class for that reason.—From "Equality as the Basis of Good Society," by W. D. Howells, in Century.

"Clock of the Dead Kings."

The most peculiar clock in the world is that in a tower in the courtyard of the palace of Versailles. It has but a single hand and is known as "L'Horloge de la Mort du Roi" to the French people, and to all other Europeans by words which signify "Clock of the Dead Kings." It has no "works," but consists merely of a face and a single hand, the face being in imitation of the sun. Upon the death of a king in any portion of Europe the hand is set at the moment of his demise and remains in that position until another king passes away. This curious custom is said to have originated in the time of Louis XIII. The Clock of the Dead Kings is about the only relic of royalty in Versailles that escaped the furious mobs of the time of the French revolution.—St. Louis Republic.

Custom of Saying Grace Not Falling Off.

The old fashioned habit of saying grace before meals is not dying out. In some families the custom of saying a silent grace is observed, but, to my mind, the old fashioned method of asking God's blessing on the "food which we are about to receive," while all stand reverently, is the most proper way in which to observe the custom.—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Artist's Enthusiasm.

"There is only one thing," she said to her dearest girl friends, "that makes me doubt Herbert's affection for me."

"What is that?"

"He thinks that some of the snap shot photographs he has taken of me are good likenesses."—Washington Star.

He that has energy enough to root out a vice should go farther and try to plant a virtue in its place; otherwise he will have his labor to renew. A strong soil that has produced weeds may be made to produce wheat.—Colton.

MILITARY PUNISHMENTS.

The Terrible Tortures That Were Inflicted In the Eighteenth Century.

The military punishments in 1746 were terrible. The Duke of Cumberland's general orders contain on three consecutive days sentences of 800, 500 and 800 lashes for theiving, "mutinous expressions" and "insolent behavior." Three days afterward a sentence of "1,000 lashes" is recorded. It is fair to say the man deserved to die, but death would have been a merciful punishment. A martinet of that day might be and was a terrible tyrant to his men. Strange, out of the way punishments were inflicted for trifling offenses without adding one iota to the efficiency of the army. The soldier might either be "picketed" or made to ride the "wooden horse." In "picketing" the culprit's naked heel rested on a sharpened stake driven into the ground, his right wrist and right leg being drawn up as high as they could be to a hook fixed in an adjoining post. The whole weight of the body rested on the sharpened stake, which, though it did not break the skin, inflicted exquisite torture. The only means of alleviation was to rest the weight on the wrist, the pain of which soon became unendurable. Soldiers were frequently sentenced to stand on the "picket" for a quarter of an hour, and in the cavalry it was often inflicted by order of the colonel without authority of court martial.

The back of the "horse" was formed of planks so arranged as to form a sharp ridge 8 or 9 feet long. The legs, 6 or 7 feet in length, rested on a stand moving upon wheels. To complete the resemblance a rough wooden head and tail were added. The offender was placed on the back with his hands tied behind him, and to increase the punishment a heavy musket was not infrequently tied to his legs. This punishment, which might be inflicted by sentence of court martial or by order of the colonel of a regiment, wrought so much injury to those subjected to its discipline that it had to be discontinued. Francis Grose tells us that so late as 1760 the remains of a wooden horse were standing on the parade at Portsmouth.—Chambers' Journal.

IT WAS A GOOD JOKE.

But the Obtuse Barber Could Not Get a Line on Nicks.

As he took his seat in a Brooklyn barber's establishment the fat, jolly looking customer turned to the knight of the shears and said:

"Dot vas a bretty goote joke on Hans, vat keeps the barber shop around the corner. Don't it?"

"Vat vas it? I guess I don't already hear of it," replied the elongated German barber as he stropped a razor before beginning work on his customer.

"You don't have heard dot joke?" said the latter. "It vas so funny I laugh myself all over efery time I think of it. It vas like this: A man come into Hans' place, und Hans shave him. He says to Hans, 'There vas someting der matter mit dot razer,' und Hans he say, 'Nix!' Then the man laugh like the divul nearly out of his chair and say, 'Yes; dots it—nicks, ha, ha, ha!' Bretty good joke, vasn't it?"

"I don't see where dot joke comes out," replied the barber as he daubed the lather in the customer's left eye.

"You don't see that joke—nicks?" asked the customer impatiently.

"Nix; I see me no joke mit nix, und I tink you vas crazy," replied the barber emphatically.

"Vell, if you don't see some joke mit nicks, you vas bretty thick headed," answered the customer in an angry tone of voice.

"You vas foolish or drunk—maype sunstroked," sarcastically replied the barber.

"Maype I vas a drunkard loafer!" yelled the customer, "but I find me a barber who vasn't so thick headed he sees no joke mit nicks." And with that parting shot he went out of the shop, slamming the door after him.

"Next!" called out the barber, and as the new victim took his seat in the chair he said, "Dot feller vat goes out vas a flam flimmer or a crazy luniticks."—New York Tribune.

Stevenson's Sustained Power.

Much splendor in treatment, much richness in the elements employed, may be perfectly managed in little pieces of work or may make a large one so dazzlingly gorgeous that only a trained eye will perceive discrepancy between its parts. But this discrepancy must exist. The limitations of human power forbid that a cathedral shall be elaborated, chiseled and jeweled all over like a small shrine for the bones of a saint, and if the thing were done the laws of art would forbid its looking well. No one could write a book from end to end as Ruskin has written his most sumptuous passages, and if he could it would weary and distress the reader. But "The Pilgrim's Progress" is homogeneous from end to end. Its beauty is complete because the great artist who wrote it was classically serene and simple in style. And none of the emphatic and violent, the sweetly sentimental, the elaborately "precious" or the pervervid, luscious and luxuriant writers of our day approaches Stevenson in his power to be always at his best. Yet in saying that his work is beautiful I have affirmed, of course, that its simplicity is never monotonous, bald or hard. It is like the work of a Greek sculptor, which would be grievously deformed were it besprinkled with East Indian jewels.—"Robert Louis Stevenson and His Writings," by Mrs. M. G. Van Rensselaer, in Century.

Develope or Develop.

Whether this word should or should not be spelled with a final "e" seems to be a puzzle of modern orthographers. "Develope" was undoubtedly used at one time—Burke and others are quoted as illustrative works—and yet certain modern dictionaries omit it altogether. A good instance of strict impartiality appears in The Saturday Review of Aug. 24, page 227. The chronicler of the week, describing Mr. Chamberlain's first speech as colonial secretary, closes with a seeming quotation, thus: "If we are not willing to develope countries ourselves, we should hand them over to those who will develop them."—Notes and Queries.

Encouragement.

Richard—Miss Coye says you are no man to follow her up as you do.

Harry—Good! That's the best news I've heard in a month. The last time I saw her she said she was in love with no man. I hadn't any idea she meant me.—Boston Transcript.

The man who keeps his mind on the good times coming is a lot more sensible than the man who keeps thinking of the troubles he has had.—Somerville Journal.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

PRAISE FOR MUNYON.

A Sufferer from Dyspepsia Tells of His Wonderful Cure by Munyon's Improved Homoeopathic Remedies.

Mr. W. T. Brashears, 2343 McElderry street, Baltimore, Md., says: "For years I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia. I could not eat anything except soft boiled eggs, and was reduced to a skeleton; my stomach would swell to twice its size, and felt as though I had lead in it. I had become so weak that I was obliged to use a cane to get around. I had given up all hope of recovery. I had tried several physicians, but all of them failed to help me. Finally, I began to use Munyon's Remedies, and, to the surprise of myself and friends, I immediately improved, and after taking three bottles of Dyspepsia Cure was completely cured."

A Specific for Each Disease.

Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure is guaranteed to cure all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles. Price, 25c.

Munyon's Vitalizer restores lost powers to weak men. Price, $1 00.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

THE BEATTY CLAN

By ALFRED R. CALHOUN.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

There was no setting aside this argument. The old man was going, not as impedimenta, but as a leader, and his gray haired wife "'lowed hit would be best fo' the boys."

When it became known that all the men of the settlement would leave that night, the towheaded children and the gray eyed women ceased their wailing, and working with an awful earnestness for the living they forgot to sorrow for the dead. They made bread and cooked meat for husband and father and brother. They tied up the bullets and patches and rolled blankets to be slung at the shoulder, for the nights in the hills at that season were "powahful cold." Before the death of Andy Beatty and his nephew, young Sam Mullins, there were 18 men in the settlement, including the old man, able to bear arms, though two of them, Dan Mullins and Burt Martin, were under 17. They had horses, but as there was snow on the ground and it would be difficult, if not impossible, to get fodder in the mountains to the north, it was decided to make the trip on foot.

By 11 o'clock that night 21 men came in from the hills with their rifles at their backs and said they were ready. This made a force of 37 all told, and they felt strong enough to annihilate the regiment then in the mountains, but a bitter experience cured them of this confidence.

Although old Hugh knew little or nothing of military discipline—and indeed these mountaineers never took kindly to military restraint—he had a natural leader's appreciation of the necessity of obedience, and by way of having a reason for the authority he meant to exercise he proposed that two officers, a captain and a lieutenant, be elected. This was soon settled by the selection of himself for the first position and young Hugh for the second.

A great many of the women in the adjoining valleys had come with their husbands, brothers and sweethearts, and these, with the women and children from the Beatty settlement, made a crowd that filled the store. Old Mrs. Beatty replenished the bottles of all the women with snuff, and they manifested their suppressed nervousness by "dipping" a great deal.

When midnight came and the men were ready to move, old Hugh told them to uncover and kneel, and when they had done this each man, with a group of shrieking women and children about him, "the captain," as they called him till the greater Captain summoned him, raised his white bearded face to the black rafters and prayed as no revivalist had ever prayed before in that building, and the women sobbed, and with broken voices the men called out, "Praise God!" and "Amen!" Two scouts were sent ahead along the designated trail; then the men kissed their wives and little ones—an unusual thing, for these people are as undemonstrative as the Indians whom they superseded—and the march for Camp Dick Robinson, 150 miles across the tempest tossed Cumberland range to the north, began.

Neither then nor at any time during the terrible struggle on which they had so suddenly and so daringly entered did these men or any of the survivors believe that they were heroic or even doing anything that was particularly praiseworthy. Nor were they impressed with the notion that they were acting from a high sense of duty to God and themselves, as did their Covenanter ancestors when they went psalm singing to battle. They had simply made a choice in which the feelings only were consulted, and, come victory or defeat, come life or death, they were ready to accept the result—even the worst—without a murmur.

There were three bodies of men whom the captain cautioned his scouts that they must learn about and avoid. First, the troops that Tinker Dave Beatty was guiding; second, the men who were assembling at and fortifying Cumberland Gap, and, lastly, the large bodies of young Kentuckians who at this time were making their way south to join the Confederate army.

From midnight till noon of the following day they kept on, with the long tireless, stride peculiar to these mountaineers, stopping at daylight for a few minutes to heap some stones on the shallow graves of Andy Beatty and Sam Mullins and drawing some comfort from the fact that on the other side of the spring there was a cluster of six graves, with the names of the dead penciled on pieces of bark at the head.

The men were halted and had just finished eating when the two scouts—one of them was Dan Beatty, the old captain's son—returned and reported the hills "'bout a half hour's run to the no'th" covered with men in gray. The younger men, burning to avenge their dead, were for keeping right on, confident that they could sweep any number of rebels from their path, but the old captain shook his head and gave the order to leave the trail and make for the trackless and more inaccessible mountain heights.

It had been snowing since daylight, a fact that made against them, but they hoped that they would have passed beyond the line of the enemy before their tracks were discovered. With a view to throwing the Confederates off the trail, the old captain divided his force into two parties, the younger men, under young Hugh, to make a detour of Oak mountain, while he, with the others, kept along the western side, both parties to meet at the Point of Rocks, due north of the mountain, about dusk that night. This plan appeared to work admirably, and the men, now pretty well exhausted, were about to make a camp for the night, when one of the pickets came running in, shouting at the top of his voice:

"They are comin, boys! Comin f'om every p'int!"

CHAPTER II.

The news brought in by the scouts did not demoralize Captain Hugh Beatty or his men. They did not expect to get out of Tennessee without a fight, and if it had to come there could be no better time nor place. A great fire had been lighted near the spring, but it would be fatal to remain about the light with the enemy in the outer circle of darkness. Calling to the men to follow him, old Hugh made for a pile of rocks that crowned, like a ruined castle, the crest of a hill a hundred yards north of the place selected for a camp.

They reached these rocks in time to head off the Confederates, who, seeing the advantage of the position, made a dash to seize and hold it.

"Shoot at every movin thing and make sure to hit it."

This was the old captain's advice to his men, and acting on it they poured a murderous fire into the soldiers in gray, who were not a hundred feet from the rocks when the Union men seized them.

"After shootin, the next thing is to load ez quick as God will let you."

This was another of old Hugh's standing commands, and with the allusion to Deity left out it might take a prominent place in tactics designed to meet the necessities of irregular troops.

Oaths, shouts of anger and cries of agony told that the fire of the Union men had been effective, and the captain reasoned that the enemy would not attack again before daylight. He knew that country, to use his own language, "Ez well's ez if I'd dug out the valleys and piled up the hills." He realized that, while the rocks were a good place for temporary defense, they might be turned into a trap if he remained there till the enemy could collect all his force and surround the place.

"We uns must git out o' heah afore sun up, and so's to keep from shootin each other in the dark, we uns must keep a-holerin 'The Union! the Union! d—n you!'" The men understood this. They made a supper of the cooked bacon and corn bread they had brought with them; then in a circle of 100 yards about the rocks several of the force acted as pickets, while the others, under the captain's orders, slept as best they could.

"Two o'clock by my watch." This was the time set for starting, the hour in the morning which Napoleon believed most severely tested the courage. The old captain knew this quite so well as did Napoleon, and he also knew that the advantage, numbers apart, was always with the party attacking in the darkness. The best course from the rocks was due north in the direction of the Kentucky line, and the old man reasoned, and rightly, too, that the Confederates would place their largest forces in that direction.

At 2 o'clock, and after all the men, himself excepted, had had about four hours' sleep, he gave the order to move "to the south still as death and shoot down everything in front." In addition to his rifle every man had a knife in his belt and one or two revolvers strapped over his hips, and the youngest of the old man's grandsons could shoot as well as himself, and that meant a phenomenal expertness in the use of firearms.

There are times when prisoners cannot be taken—when to accept a surrender would mean ruin—and this was one of the occasions. The Union men, silent as the night shadows about them, came upon the drowsy pickets of the enemy and shot them down, then shouting, "The Union! the Union! d—n you!" Captain Beatty and his kinsmen and neighbors dashed into a camp in which there was a force twice as strong as their own. They fired, and the demoralized enemy, after a wild fusillade, broke and ran, while Beatty's men reloaded and then dashed back to the Point of Rocks. The other Confederates ran in the direction of the firing, leaving the road to the north open.

One of Captain Beatty's men, a neighbor named Campbell, was killed, and young Hugh, the lieutenant, had a bullet in his right breast. The brave fellow, with the blood frothing from his mouth and nose, kept on till daylight; then he fell on the trail and begged his friends to go on and save themselves. The old man's first born was stricken down, and his youngest born was already dead, yet he still retained his courage and calmness, still kept to himself the terrible agony at his heart, still was resolved to do his duty by the living and to his country till he was called himself.

Making a stretcher of a blanket and two poles, young Hugh was laid on it, and men were detailed to carry it. This interfered with their progress, but though they knew that the lieutenant could not live for many days, or even hours, they bravely determined to stand by him till the last and to die by him if need be.

The enemy followed close behind. The Kentucky line at daylight was only 20 miles away, and Captain Beatty hoped that the Confederates would not follow into that territory. About the middle of the afternoon they were in Kentucky, but to their surprise they found the men in gray ahead of them. Here death came in mercy to young Hugh, and at the base of a rock directly on the border, his kinsmen and neighbors hollowed a grave with their knives, wrapped him up in his blanket and laid him to rest, "till sich times as the good Lord will let the livin tote him back to Batty's crick," said the old man as he arose from his knees beside the grave.

"Hit was like drivin a knife into my heart to leave Hugh thar," said the old man, with a suppressed sob, as he told me this part of his story. "He was a son, and a brother, and a friend, all rolled into one. He was 50 when he died, but he allus called me 'dad,' and he was never sot on doin a thing that I opposed. He never gin me a crost word nor a angry look. He was allus my boy, even whin the great Master sent him boys of his own. Hugh wasn't so d——d pious ez some folks, but he had a clean soul, and I reckon thar wasn't a stain on it ez his blood shed for the old flag wouldn't wash clean ez rain and pure ez the snow on the hilltops. The angels guardin the gates of heaven will be kep' right busy a-lettin souls in and a-barrin souls out durin this wah, but whin they seed my Hugh they didn't chin fo' long, but jest swung the doah wide open and said: 'Enter, ole feller. This is the place built since the foundation of the world and glorified by the blood of Jesus Christ, jest fo' men o'yo'r build.'"

Captain Beatty had heard of Kentucky's "neutrality," to him a very vague word, but he had an idea that it meant that armed men from Tennessee could not or would not enter that state. He knew nothing of the doings of Zollicoffer and Albert Sidney Johnston, nor did he try to reason out why General Thomas of the Union army should have established a camp over near Danville, which had then continued to be for more than a year the rendezvous of the mountain Union men of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Leaving their own state did not bring rest or safety to the men from Beatty's creek, and they soon saw that the men who wanted to break up the Union under the plea of state rights had no respect for state lines. They entered Kentucky at the southeast corner of Wayne county, and here they were joined by little parties of refugees who increased the force to about 50 men. The newcomers were Unionists and all mountaineers, and Camp Dick Robinson was their objective point. These men knew or had heard of old Hugh Beatty, and one and all were ready to take service under him.

"We uns ain't huntin no fight yet, boys. Ef so be the d——d rebs will keep out of our way and let we uns go up to Camp Dick Robinson, thar won't be no shootin to hurt, but if so be they wants to stop us then we uns'll give 'em the best we has."

This was Captain Beatty's advice to the new men, and they agreed with him, as they were ready to do if he had proposed to hunt up the enemy and fight him. But there was no need to hunt for the enemy. He was all about them, and from the time Captain Beatty's men crossed the line till they reached the Cumberland river, on the 1st day of January, 1862, there was not an hour when they were not fighting or within sight of the Confederates.

When Captain Beatty started out, he believed that he could reach Camp Dick Robinson, 150 miles to the north, within a week, and his party carried enough provisions to last for that time, but he was forced to change his course so many times and to double back on his trail so often that they had made only 100 miles after three weeks, and out of the original 37 nearly one-half had been killed in the frequent skirmishes. Many of the others were so severely wounded that they had to be helped or carried, and all were ragged, shoeless and starving.

The mountaineers who joined the old captain were as poor as his own men, and the mountains had been stripped of supplies by the army under Zollicoffer, who was then pushing north to the field where he was to meet death and his overconfident troops to suffer the first and most complete defeat of the war.

It was midwinter. The mountains were covered with snow, and the trails, rough or indistinct at the best times, were no guide or aid to the brave men pushing north. For 72 hours they had marched night and day, and during that time they had been without food, while nearly every man left a bloody track in the frozen snow. On the afternoon of Jan. 1 they were brought to a halt on the banks of the swollen Cumberland. There was neither bridge nor boat in sight, and behind them the enemy, who had followed them night and day from Tennessee, were in sight.

At any time in these 21 days and nights of marching, shivering and starving, if Captain Beatty had halted and agreed to surrender he and his men would have been treated as prisoners of war or given the choice of entering the Confederate army. A professional soldier, realizing the terrible odds against him and the certainty of destruction if he kept on, would have asked for honorable terms and given up, but from first to last the thought of surrender never entered the old man's mind, though the thought of death was never absent from it.

PURA BLOOD

It is a grave mistake to consider diseases of the blood incurable, even if all treatment and medicines have proved unavailing. Thousands of people from all over the world who have visited Hot Springs, Arkansas, for all kinds of blood diseases, and have been cured by its wonderful healing waters, which, under grant from the United States Government, are permitted to be used in the preparation of "Pura Blood," are living testimonials of its worth. It is in diseases of the kidneys that the waters of Hot Springs, Arkansas, have derived much of their renown. "PURA BLOOD" is a sure cure.

For scrofula, Pura Blood" has no peer for its cure. Parents should see that their children are given "Pura Blood," for if taken in the early stages it will prevent all abcesses, scars, pimples, blackheads, eczema, etc.

"Pura Blood" will cure paralysis, neuralgia, nervous debility, headache, and all other blood diseases, as thousands can testify who have received the same treatment at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

If any one cannot afford time or expense to go there, they can afford to buy "Pura Blood" from druggists. Price, one dollar per bottle. Physicians indorse it. Billups & Co., 26 Cortlandt street, N. Y., are sole agents, and will send free to any address descriptive book.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

A. V. D. Honeyman, of Duer street, is kept at at home by illness.

Miss Alice Ross, of New Canaan, Conn., has been a guest at the home of Chas. E. Horne, of Willow avenue.

Rev. E. M. Flinn, pastor of Sterling Place Church of Christ, Brooklyn, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. VanMiddlesworth.

Robert M. Clark, of Newark, will spend every Sunday in Plainfield, and will sing in the choir of the Trinity Reformed church.

SATISFACTORY SO FAR.

Sewage Beds Are Working All Right—Cold Weather a Test.

The sewage system is now in use by the North avenue residents, many of whom are connected. Already thirty permits to connect have been granted. There is a small flow of water at the sewage beds which is twice a day run into the small screening bed which amply accommodate it. So far everything has proved very satisfactory, and today, with its low temperature, will be a fine test.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Scott Press for the Newark Call.

During the week the proprietors of the Newark Sunday Call visited the Scott Machine Works and inspected a large triple printing machine ordered by them. This machine will produce papers of two, four, six, eight, ten and twelve pages at a speed of 25,000 per hour, and sixteen, twenty and twenty-four pages at 12,000 per hour, delivering the copies folded, cut, pasted and counted in packs of fifty. The press is fed from three rolls of paper at one time. An entire new set of stereotype machinery will also be sent with the press.

Wanted to Die.

AN ORDINANCE

locating the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and regulating the construction and operation of the same, and also concerning the compensation to be paid by said Plainfield Street Railway Company to the City of Plainfield.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield:

Route 1. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung ave through Watchung ave to East Fifth street, through East Fifth street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to Putnam avenue, and through Putnam avenue to Woodland avenue, through Woodland avenue to South avenue, through South avenue to the station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Netherwood. Also from Watchung ave., through Fourth st. to Grant ave.

And in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on map filed in the office of the city clerk of said city entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turn-outs and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway, No. 2, and signed by John T. Fritts, Vice-President, dated, Sept 1895," to which reference is made and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance; and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to; the same being such restrictions and regulations as the common council hereby deem requisite for the public interests, as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereafter enacted by said common council. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the City Clerk by said company, and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Sec. 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of the street, except on Watchung avenue, between North Avenue and East Fourth street, and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the points and places indicated for the same on said map.

The poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground, and wires strung on poles on the line of street railways now operated in the city of Plainfield by the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Sec 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets, the paving or other surface materials of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double tracks, or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks" shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of a street, the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's tracks and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repair, said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Sec. 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said track or tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when moving said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its officers, servants agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately levelled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practicable to level the same as aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall pay its pro rata of the expense of the removal of said snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for every city block on which any such violation shall take place but said penalty shall not aggregate more than one hundred dollars in any one day; said penalties to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employees so offending for each and every offence.

Sec. 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city, entitled, "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars", approved April 27, 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as a part of this ordinance.

Sec 6. That the guage of the tracks of the said company to be hereafter laid shall be four feet eight and one-half inches, and the other tracks of said company already laid may be made of the same guage. That all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the common council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity, and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs, and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks.

For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Sec. 7. That said company shall on or before the first day of March, 1896, equip each street railway car by it operated or run within the city of Plainfield, with fenders of the most approved pattern, to be approved by the Mayor of the city, and so attached to the car as best to protect from injury persons or vehicles using the streets or riding on the said cars; that after said last mentioned date no street railway car, the motive power of which is electricity, shall be operated or run upon any of the streets of said city, unless such car is equipped with fenders as above required, and in case any such car is operated or run contrary hereto the said company and every person or persons who shall either as president, manager, conductor, motorman or otherwise be engaged in so operating or running any such car shall be deemed to have violated this section and on conviction shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for each day during which such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars for any one conviction.

Sec. 8. The said company shall build or construct its extensions in the order specified in Sec. 1 and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 1 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within nine months after the passage of this ordinance, and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 2 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within twelve months after the passage of this ordinance; or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance, shall thereupon cease and determine, and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such right, power and privilege to said company is concerned, and in either of such cases the common council expressly reserves the right to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them, and to sell and dispose of the materials thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets, and of restoring the same nearly as possible to its or their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the federal courts in New Jersey, shall not be included within the nine and twelve months within which the said extensions are to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Sec 9. The said company shall for each and every mile of street occupied by its tracks laid already or that shall hereafter be laid by said Company, whether under the provisions of the ordinance hereinabove referred to, approved April 27, 1891, or the amendment thereof approved May 4, 1892, or under the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance authorizing the Plainfield Street Railway Company to extend the location of its tracks", approved Oct. 4, 1892, or under this ordinance, or under any other ordinance, and also for every mile of street occupied by tracks that may be owned or operated or that may be hereafter owned or operated by said company within the limits of the city of Plainfield, pay or cause to be paid to the collector of taxes of said city for the use of the said city, the following sums, to wit: For the year beginning Jan. 1, 1896, fifty dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1897, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1898, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan 1, 1899, one hundred dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1900, one hundred dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1901, one hundred and twenty-five dollars a mile, for each and every mile of track; said payments to be made each and every year on or before the last day of each year.

For the years succeeding that beginning 1901 the said company shall pay at the same rate as for the year 1901, provided that when the gross receipts in any one year from the entire system within the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield shall equal or exceed eighty thousand dollars, then for that year and annually thereafter, the said company shall pay annually to said city collector for the use of said city five per cent. of the gross earnings of said company, and said gross earnings shall be construed to include all earnings of said company and full proportion on all earnings on through traffic to be calculated according to the proportion between the entire length of the journey and the number of miles travelled within the limits of the city of Plainfield or the borough of North Plainfield or both as the case may be. That to enable the city to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of said company the books of the company shall be open to inspection by the finance committee of the common council or such other person or persons as the common council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall be in lieu of all license fees for cars, whether provided for in prior ordinances or not.

Sec. 10. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks, and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U.S. mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company, and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corners, and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Sec. 11. That in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer, a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance, and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto, and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons or corporations shall acquire any rights in the premises except subject to the same terms and conditions as herein provided.

Sec. 12. That said company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby, shall as a condition precedent file with the city clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the corporation counsel, wherein said company covenant and agree with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein, on the part of said company required to be observed, kept and performed; that it will, at any and all times hereafter, fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained, or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of, the adoption or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns of said electric system aforesaid, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or any of its agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Sec. 13. That said company shall also at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract, file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the common council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained, on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the conditions or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by said company, its successors or assigns.

Sec. 14. The company shall file with the city clerk, within thirty days next after the passage of this ordinance, their acceptance, under their corporate seal, and signed by their president, of the terms and provisions, restrictions, and regulations hereof, and every one of them, and, in default thereof, it shall be understood and held that they decline to accept the same, and thereupon all rights, powers and privileges, to them granted thereby, shall forever cease and be at an end, in the same manner and with the same effect as if this ordinance had never been passed.

AN ORDINANCE

TO CREATE THE OFFICE OF INSPECTOR OF BUILDINGS AND TO DEFINE HIS POWERS, DUTIES AND COMPENSATION.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That there shall be appointed by the Common Council within thirty days after the approval or final adoption of this ordinance, and annually thereafter, on the first Monday of February in each year, an officer to be known as Inspector of Buildings, who shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic. The term of office of every person so appointed shall expire on the first Monday of February following the month of his appointment. His duties shall be such as devolve upon him as Inspector of Buildings by the laws of this State, and this and other ordinances of the City of Plainfield, and his compensation shall be the sum of five hundred dollars per annum. For brevity, said officer is hereinafter designated as Inspector.

Section 2. That the said Inspector is hereby charged with the performance of all services necessary to ensure the strict enforcement of the ordinances of the City now existing or that may be hereafter adopted, relating to the erection, construction or alteration of buildings therein. He shall keep a record of all applications for permits and preserve and properly index such drawings as may be filed of all plans on which permits shall be granted.

Section 3. That after any permit shall have been granted as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the said Inspector diligently to inspect said building while in course of erection, and to see that it is constructed in conformity with the ordinances of the City relating thereto. The said Inspector shall also keep a full and complete record of all buildings in course of erection or alteration, their style and proposed uses, and make a report of the same in writing once a month to the Common Council.

Section 4. That for the purpose of ascertaining all violations of ordinances designed for the more effectual prevention of fires, it shall be lawful for him, the said Inspector, whenever he shall have good and sufficient reason to believe that any of such ordinances are being violated, to enter into or upon any lands or building for the examination of hoistways, trapdoors, fire-places, hearths, chimneys, stoves and pipes thereto, receptacles for ashes, ovens, boilers, heaters and chemical apparatus, which may be dangerous as tending to cause or promote fires; and it shall be his duty to direct, the owner or occupant of any defective building, by notice signed by said Inspector, to alter the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as he may deem necessary. He shall also examine, at reasonable hours in the daytime, and it shall be lawful for him for that purpose to enter into and upon all buildings and places where any gunpowder, saltpetre, hemp, flax, tow, hay, rushes, firewood, boards, shingles, shavings, or other combustible materials may be lodged; and whenever he shall discover any violation of any of such ordinances, or anything that is detrimental to public safety, he shall notify in writing the owner or occupants of the building wherein such unlawful or unsafe conditions exist to immediately cause the same to be corrected, and it shall be the duty of the person so notified to comply with such notice. And in case of the neglect or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building, or the possessor of such combustible materials to correct said unlawful or unsafe conditions and to alter, remove or secure the same within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the person offending shall on conviction thereof pay a penalty of five dollars for each and every day after the expiration of the time in such notice stated he shall neglect or refuse to comply, not exceeding one hundred dollars in any one suit.

Section 5. That in case the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department of said City shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic, he may be appointed to said office of Inspector of Buildings, and hold both offices at the same time, and in that case, he shall devote all his time to the performance of the duties of said offices.

Approved by the Mayor Jan. 3d, 1896.

OFF THE BRIDGE TO DEATH.

JOHN JOHNSON FALLS FROM A BRIDGE WITH FATAL RESULTS.

Was Walking Along the Railroad Track and Does Not Remember Whether He Fell or Was Knocked Off by a Train.

John Johnson, a Swede, employed as a coachman by John Lavery, 327 Clinton avenue, sustained injuries Saturday night, from which he died this morning at 6:15.

During the early part of the evening he started for the Clinton avenue station to take a train. He crossed the railroad bridge, but does not remember whether he was knocked or fell off the bridge. He was discovered about 11 o'clock that night by John Kriney close to the bridge in an unconscious condition. Mr. Kriney carried him to a grocery near by and went at once to the railroad station and telephoned for the ambulance, which arrived shortly after 11 o'clock. The man was taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition. Yesterday morning the hospital staff examined him and found that his spinal column was fractured. Johnson regained consciousness, but talked such poor English that it was difficult to understand him. He is about forty years old and has no family, and has always had the reputation of being a steady man. He will be taken to the home of his employer who will arrange for his burial.

WANT MR. GOODRICH TO STAY.

Congregationalists Are Anxious to Have Their Pastor Remain.

At the conclusion of the services at the Congregational church yesterday morning a meeting of the church and society was held, presided over by John M. Whiton, at which the following preamble and resolutions were presented and adopted by a unanimous vote:

Inasmuch as overtures looking to a call have been made to our pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, by the Union Congregational church, of Marlboro, Mass., and it is understood that he has been constrained to take these into serious consideration. Therefore

We, the members of the church and society of the Congregational church, of Plainfield, N. J., desire to make a public acknowledgment of our appreciation of the services of our pastor, Mr. Goodrich, and of our entire satisfaction in him and his ministry.

We desire also to express our hearty wish that he would consent to remain with us as our pastor.

We earnestly request him to consider the unbroken harmony that has marked his long and happy ministry among us, and the undiminished love and esteem with which he is today regarded by his people. And should he consent to remain with us, we pledge ourselves again to sustain him and his, and to uphold him in all his efforts to advance the Kingdom of God among us.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Wadsworth, Whiton, Dwight, Wiseman and Raymond, were appointed to present the resolutions to Rev. Mr. Goodrich.

Week of Prayer Topics.

The usual custom of a week of prayer following the first Sunday of the year will be observed in the Crescent Avenue church this week. A circular has been sent out by the Session asking for an especially large attendance. The subjects for the week of prayer are as follows: Monday—Confession and Consecration, Ps. 51; Tuesday—For the Church, for the Holy Spirit, Luke 11:1-13; Wednesday—For the Nations; For peace and righteousness, Ps. 85; Thursday—For missions, near and far, Acts 1:1-8; Friday—Prayer; how to use it and enjoy it, Luke 18:1-14.

An Icy Plunge.

The new ice on Berkeley pond came very near proving to be a death trap for a twelve-year-old lad living near Berkeley Heights Saturday afternoon. Will Burgmiller broke through the ice in the middle of the pond while skating there. He was finally pulled out by his older brother, Walter, completely exhausted and almost frozen. Prompt treatment saved his life.

New Year Remarks.

In the Sunday-school of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon there were short addresses by Stephen H. Cahoone and John Leal appropriate to the beginning of the new year.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. JOHNSON WON'T GET OUT.

HE REFUSES TO GIVE UP THE COLLECTORSHIP TO E. H. BIRD.

Says He Will Not Vacate the Office Unless the Courts So Declare—Richard V. Lindabury is His Adviser.

"Good morning?"

"Good morning!"

Thus begins the story which promises to end in a battle in the courts between the City of Plainfield and a private individual, who, though serving the city in the capacity of an official, will be made the defendant in a suit seeking to vacate his office and place another man in possession. The time was shortly after the hour of noon today. The scene the City Collector's office. The first salutation was spoken by Mr. Bird, which was replied to by Mr. Johnson in a calm voice, but it was like the stillness of the sea before the tempest.

"I have come to take possession of the office of City Collector and the books and papers thereof," said Mr. Bird.

"My term of office has not yet expired," was the declaration of war on the part of Mr. Johnson. He didn't say he wouldn't get out in so many words, but Mr. Bird grasped the situation immediately and said:

"Then do I understand you to say that you refuse to vacate the office?"

"I do," said Mr. Johnson. "I have it on the best of legal authority that my term of office does not expire yet for another year."

Mr. Bird then retired, leaving Mr. Johnson in possession of the office.

Mr. Johnson was seen by a Daily Press reporter this afternoon and said he should not vacate the office unless the courts so declare. R. V. Lindabury is the lawyer who advised him to take such action.

Mr. Bird would have nothing to say.

Mr. Bird will undoubtedly retain counsel and bring suit to test the question of who is entitled to the office. It will be remembered that in advising an election in December, to avoid the possibility of a vacancy in the office, the Corporation Counsel stated in his opinion, on file, that it was a close question whether Mr. Johnson's term expired at noon of the first Monday in January, 1896, or 1897. The course taken by the city makes it sure that one or the other of the claimants is in office. Had there been no election, and the law hereafter should be decided the other way in some similar case, there would have beee a vacancy.

COLDEST DAY OF THE WINTER.

The Cold Wave Has Arrived and Sent the Mercury Down.

The weather prophets deserve a credit mark for the cold wave that they have predicted the last few days for it has come in all its frigidity. For the last week the thermometer in the northwest has fallen to 30° and 40° below zero. Saturday, Plainfield felt the advance, but last night and this morning it was right here.

This morning at 7 o'clock the thermometer in Plainfield registered 2° below zero, the coldest weather we have experienced this winter. Had the wind of last week continued, there would have been considerable suffering. There is one advantage of the cold weather, and that is for the lovers of skating, for the ice is forming and is of sufficient thickness on the smaller ponds to support the skaters. The Raritan canal is frozen over and skating from Bound Brook and New Brunswick is possible.

Lillian Kennedy Coming.

She Couldn't Marry Three with the original scenery and mechanic effects will be used and will be the opening bill for Wednesday, January 8th, and on the second night she will play the great New York success, A Little Rebel. Notwithstanding the terrible big expeuse of this attraction the prices will be popular, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Secure your seats at once.

Notice.

VanEmburgh & Son will close their place of business every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, until further notice. 6

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS RECEIVED.

The Sewer Committee Recommend That a Pumping Station Be Established Along Cedar Brook to Drain All Property South of Ninth Street, as the Sewer Level is Too High for That Section—The Street Appropriation is Fixed at $15,000—A Balance is Left With the Treasurer Over the Expenses of the City—Final Reports of the Other Officials.

Its to be hoped that this year's Common Council will try if possible to meet promptly at 8 o'clock. Last Saturday night it was nearly 9 o'clock when President See called the members to order. All were present except Councilmen Stockton, Erickson, Westphal and Frazee. Closing up the city's affairs for the past year was the chief business and a considerable amount of preliminary work was done previous to the call of the meeting.

After the reading of the minutes of the last two meetings which were approved, an opinion from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh in the Michael Watson case was read. It was a review of the latter's trouble with the city, and he advised that the proposition of Mr. Watson be accepted. It was so adopted by the council.

The reports of the city treasurer Alex. Titsworth, and chief of police, Geo. W. Grant was presented. The former will be found in another part of the paper. The latter report showed the following number of cases dealt with and the causes:—

Disorderly, 150; drunk and disorderly, 119; drunkenness, 59; stealing, 12; assault, 14; forgery, 1; fast driving, 8; trespassing on Central railroad property, 47; larceny, 3; receiving stolen goods, 1; disorderly houses, 3; gambling, 9; non-support, 3; insanity, 1; peddler's license, 9; violations bicycle ordinance, 61; hack ordinance, 8; truckman's ordinance, 1; liquor ordinance, 4; school ordinance, 1; health ordinance, 1. Both reports were received and filed and the treasurer's report was ordered printed according to law.

The report of Overseer of Poor A. Vanderbeek was presented as follows: Present cost of provisions, $706.45; fuel, $176.25; milk, $72.66; rents, $1,094.75; board and care, $704.35; burials, $105.00; city physicians and medical service, $201.35; salaries and rent of offices, $191.67; miscellaneous, $41.44; total $3,792.22.

The City Clerk's report showed that he had received from licenses, $735.00; $77.00 advertising fees from applicants for liquor licenses, and $704.00 from registry of dogs, making a total of $919.04.

In Chief Doane's report he recommended that all hose and the old truck be sent to the West End and that a fire alarm box be placed on West Front street between Grove and Somerset streets. His report gave the following synopsis of fires during the past year, showing cause and amount of losses:—

Loss on buildings, $1,768.90; insurance on buildings, $49,300.00; loss on contents, $1,826.55; insurance on contents, $33 350.00; total insurance involved, $82,650.00; total insurance collected, $3,195.35. The following causes are given: Ash barrell, 1; unknown, 2; defective flues, 8; overheated stoves, 3; out of city, 1; lamp exploded, 2; false alarms, 1; children playing with matches, 1; boxes burning, 1; gasoline stoves, 4; back drafts, 3; drapery, 1; spontaneous combustion, 2; candle sparks, 2; coal car, 1; spark from chimney, 1; spark from match, 1; sparks from locomatives, 2. These reports were also received and filed. Mr. Ginna, of the Alms Committee, was not able to report, but he would do so later. He recommended that buildings for the city poor be erected as soon as possible.

Mr. Dumont, of the Finance Committee stated that it would be unwise to appropriate $20,000 for streets the coming year, and offered a resolution that $15,000 be appropriated. It was so ordered. He stated that the city's balance a year ago was $11,500. This year it is $13,000, leaving the balance about $3,000 more for 1895. This together with the money received from the Board of Education would bring the total amount within $200 or $300 of what it was last year after the chemical engine was paid for. This would leave the city still ahead on finances. The report was received and filed.

Another resolution was offered by Mr. Dumont providing for the drawing of a note for $4,000 for sewer work. It was so ordered, as was also the resolution that the two notes of $2,000 and $5,000 which will soon be due, be renewed for a short time. He said that there would be arrangements made for more safe room for the city's needs. A communication he received in regard to street numbering was referred to the City Clerk.

Chairman Frost, of the Sewer Committee, made a report which was substantially as follows:

Actual construction on the sewer system was commenced October 1st, 1894, and on December 1st, 1895, there were 23.65 miles completed and ready for use.

Almost the entire area bounded by Grant avenue, Berckman street, Ninth street and Front street, together with the area adjoining Watchung avenue, Putnam avenue and Woodland avenue, are now sewered and ready for house connections.

Early in the season of 1895 negotiations for the purchase of land in the southwestern part of the city, to be used as sewage disposal beds, were commenced and after careful examination of the titles by the Corporation Counsel, as well as expert examination of materials to determine its physical value for the purpose intended, the purchase was concluded of two parcels of land, one formerly owned by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, containing thirty-three and a half acres, and the other owned by Mrs. Letitia Penfield, of Plainfield, containing about seventeen acres, making fifty and a half acres in all, situated on both sides of Rock avenue, from Front street to Green brook, and being also traversed parallel to Front street, by Dunellen avenue. Three dwelling houses and as many stables are located on these properties. The price paid for both properties was $23,500, and we think that the city has acquired therefore a very valuable asset.

Possession of the Mutual Life Insurance tract was obtained in September, and surveys and levels were at once commenced preliminary to preparation of plans and estimates for the proposed disposal area. Allen Hazen, formerly chemist at the experiment station of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, and recognized as a leading expert in all matters pertaining to water purification and sewage disposal, was engaged as consulting engineer in the planning and construction of the disposal area, so as to insure to the people of Plainfield the very best results attainable under the present knowledge of sewage purification and disposal.

The contract for the construction of the sewage disposal beds was let to Washburn & Washburn, of New York city, and work was commenced about October 10th, and is being prosecuted throughout the winter. The contract called for the completion of six beds and appurtenances and also the receiving basin and connecting pipes by December 15th, but the weather prevented such completion until the present time. The cost of preparing the beds is estimated to reach about $30,000.

Possession of the Penfield tract was not obtained until after the contract for the beds was awarded. This prevented certain items of the proposed work from being included in the estimated cost.

The house and barn on the Penfield property are rented to Messrs. Washburn & Washburn. The two dwelling houses on the Mutual Life tract are in very good condition and one is occupied by a good-paying tenant.

For the territory in the southeastern portion of the city drained by Cedar brook, plans and estimates for a main sewer have been prepared, and are included in the engineer's report hereto attached. This territory is rapidly being built up with a superior class of residences, and the construction of the proposed system together with the necessary laterals cannot long be delayed.

We repeat our remarks in last year's report as to the exceptionally favorable contracts made with the several contractors, and we have every reason to believe that the city has secured the very best of work and of materials throughout. The inspection has been severe and persistent; at the same time there has not been a conspicuous desire on the part of any contractor to evade the requirements of the specifications.

The engineering organization has remained as in 1894, viz: F. W. Farquhar, consulting engineer; Andrew J. Gavett, engineer of construction; F. J. Hubbard and H. C. VanEmburgh, assistant engineers; Allen Hazen, of Boston, Mass., was engaged as special consulting engineer on the planning and construction of the sewage disposal beds.

Inspectors and assistants have been engaged only as needed, the greatest number employed at any one time being nine; there is now only one—at the disposal beds—who also acts as assistant to the engineer in charge. A great deal of valuable work has been accomplished by the engineering department which will be of use to the city hereafter; at present, besides the regular field work on construction, work on the maps for assessment purposes is being diligently pushed, and will take several months to complete.

We are advised by Mr. Hazen that the disposal beds can be safely used throughout the winter without fear of any nuisance being created, especially as the material of the beds which are ready for use is of such excellent quality for the purpose intended. The sewer system was, therefore, on December 30th, declared ready for use by the Common Council, and house connections are now being made as rapidly as possible under the supervision of the committee on sewers and the Board of Health, as transmitted through their representative engineer. An ordinance should be passed regulating such connections, and imposing a sufficient penalty to secure its proper observance. The total expenditures on account of sewers to December 31st, 1895, amount to $128,790.13.

In Engineer Gavett's report he stated that for the information of the Council a plan had been prepared for a main sewer to accommodate that portion of Cedar Brook Valley lying too low to drain into the gravity system already constructed. Following this Consulting Engineer F. W. Farquar communicated with Council in regard to the above, which is substantially as follows:

The estimated cost of Cedar Brook Valley main sewer and pumping plant will be about $3,000 per mile. It will begin at Kensington avenue near Watchung avenue and discharge into a pump well at Plainfield and Pemberton avenues. The sewage will be raised by an electric pump located in a chamber under the street adjoining

GROOM FROM PLAINFIELD.

ALFRED F. H. STREULI TAKES A MONTCLAIR BELLE FOR A WIFE.

The Young Lady is Miss Elizabeth Ogilvie Barker — Large Number of Guests From Plainfield—Will Reside Here

St. Luke's P. E. church at Montclair was the scene of one of the prettiest weddings ever witnessed, Saturday afternoon at 3:30, when Miss Elizabeth Ogilvie Barker, daughter of David Sanford Barker, was united in marriage to Alfred Francis Hooper Streuli, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. Dr. Carter.

The bride was exquisitely gowned in white satin trimmed with chiffon and point lace. A tulle veil, orange blossoms and a diamond wreath, the gift of the groom, completed her costume. She also carried bridal roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Marion Atkins, of Montclair, wore a gown of white satin, also a large white hat trimmed with plumes. She carried white lilacs.

The bridemaids were Mrs. Sydney Page Whaton, of Pittsburg; Miss Mary E. Wilson, of Plainfield; Miss Elizabeth Price, of Philadelphia, and Miss Burr, of Montclair. They were charmingly gowned in Marie Antoinette coats, pink satin petticoats, and wore large black velvet hats trimmed with plumes. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, 134 Park street. Mrs. Barber was assisted by Mrs. Evarts Tracy, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Atkins, of Montclair, in receiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Streuli left after the reception for a month's tour through the South, and on their return will reside at 828 Arlington avenue, this city.

A Boiler Collapses.

One of Jack Frost's naughtiest trick is to freeze up the water pipes. He played his little game yesterday on the pipes in one of James Craig's houses in Dunellen, now occupied by Frank P. Haffner. As a result, the large copper boiler in the kitchen completely collapsed yesterday afternoon. No damage was done, but it was a narrow escape for those who had been in the kitchen previous to the explosion. Carney Bros., of this city, were called and a new boiler put in early this morning.

The Great Soubrette Lillian Kennedy

Will open a two night's engagement commencing Wednesday, January 8th, in the great scenic production "She Could'nt Marry Three" and on the second night will play the great New York success "The Little Rebel." These plays are full of the latest songs, medleys and dances of the day notwithstanding that this company is very strong and expensive the prices will be popular—10, 20 and 30 cents.

Too Cold to Study.

The pupils in Leal's School assembled at the school this morning after the holiday vacation, but they soon found that Jack Frost had been there before them, and despite the efforts of Janitor Johnson, the mercury would not rise high enough to make it comfortable. Mr. Leal than announced that owing to the cold he would dismiss school for the day.

A Quiet Sunday.

The cold weather was better than the best police force in keeping the city in order for over Sunday, and in consequence Judge Coddington had nothing to do on the last day of his term as city judge. At 12 o'clock Judge George W. DeMeza began his duties, and will hereafter mete out justice to the offenders of the city ordinances.

Installation of Officers.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., will have installation of officers tomorrow evening to serve the lodge for the ensuing year. A cordial invitation is extended to visiting brethren.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

OFFERING OF THE LIBRARY.

BENEFITS THAT BOROUGH PEOPLE WOULD GET FROM CONSOLIDATION.

A Total of 13,560 Books Are Now Accessible to Its Patrons—Increasing 1,000 a Year—All Departments Covered.

As in the arguments for the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield advanced by ex-Mayor Saunders and others, the Free Public Library has been spoken of as an additional reason for such consolidation, I present to the North Plainfield readers of The Daily Press a few facts regarding it that they may better realize the advantages that would thus accrue to them in this direction.

What then has the libray to offer in return for the tax which would be levied? This tax, by the way, is but five cents on $100 on the tax valuation

The library now has 13,560 books, all, but a comparatively few, of which are for circulation. These have been carefully selected and comprise books on practically all subjects. Its stock is being added to at the rate of from 900 to 1,000 volumes yearly. It has a scientific department, liberally endowed by the late George H. Babcock, which will enable it to spend $10,000 for scientific books, and to add from 300 to 400 volumes yearly to that department alone. The library is so catalogued and arranged, both in printed form and by card catalogue, that its contents can readily be ascertained. Through the courtesy of The Daily Press it publishes a monthly bulletin of additions.

All residents, over twelve years of age, and all public school children, although under that age, are entitled to draw books for home use. Each borrower is entitled to two books at a time, which, with a few exceptions, may be retained for two weeks and renewed at the end of that time if desired. The library circulates books every afternoon and one evening (Saturday). During the last library year it issued over 30,000 books; these figures, as well as the fact that applications for its use have been received from Dunellen, South Plainfield, Scoich Plains and Fanwood, serve to show its appreciation by the people. The public have free access to its shelves, and to the credit of the Plainfield people be it said, that although all ages, classes and conditions borrow freely among its shelves, the loss to the library from this cause has been too slight to be seriously considered.

Its reading room, well lighted and heated, is open every week day from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m., with the exception of the two closing hours at noon and one at night. It receives regularly 107 periodicals and newspapers, including the popular illustrated magazines, which are all accessible to the public. Over 40,000 people last year visited the library.

The reference work, i. e., the work of assisting all inquirers to find the information of which they are in search, is very large. All are invited to make known their wants, and every effort is made on the part of the library staff to assist the inquirer. In this way, the library is constantly being called upon to supply information upon subjects of the widest range. This is mentioned as an indicator of its great educational value, apart from its work of circulation. Another educational feature is its co-operation with literary and debating societies and especially with schools. The natural ally of the public school is the equally American institution, the public library, and between the schools, public and parochial, there exists a hearty co-operation. This is shown by the fact that in the last year 2,451 books were issued to teachers for use in the classrooms. Modern educational methods require the use of many books other than text books, and this demand is beyond the power of the public school library to supply. There is no doubt that, had the North Plainfield teachers the same privileges, the efficiency of the North Plainfield school would be greatly increased.

The library makes a point of its work with children, and for them is a liberal supply of the best juvenile literature. This will be appreciated by those parents who are aware of the mass of literature, constantly coming from the press, unhealthy and even impure as it too often is, which children, having nothing better to turn to, are so apt to get hold of.

In closing, I would call the attention of North Plainfielders to the fact, that if the two places were made one, they, without participating in the almost invariable struggle of a young library for support, would enter into the full privileges of a library which has passed through this stage and whose success is assured.

Librarian of the Public Library.

VESTED WITH SCARLET

Francis Satolli Elevated to the Cardinalate.

The Most Imposing Ecclesiastical Ceremony Held in Baltimore Since the Elevation of Cardinal Gibbons Ten Years Ago—Church Dignitaries and Others Present.

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Under the great dome of that classic edifice, the Baltimore cathedral, Francis Satolli, titular Archbishop of Lepanto, and papal ablegate to the United States, was yesterday elevated to the cardinalate and formally vested with the scarlet which marks the rank of cardinal. It was an event of extraordinary interest in the world of religion. It was a consecration for services rendered and a seal set on a settlement of religious and social affairs in the United States. It was an unusually grand and picturesque ceremony even in Baltimore where so many elaborate ecclesiastical events have been celebrated. Archbishops, bishops, monsignors and divines of various grades in the church, statesmen high in the affairs of the nation, diplomats representing foreign countries and hundreds of the great and lowly Catholics and non-Catholics witnessed the creation of a cardinal—exercises which were held yesterday for the second time in Baltimore and for the third time in the United States. Almost every Catholic diocese on the American continent was represented. It was the most imposing ecclesiastical ceremony that has been held in Baltimore since the elevation of Cardinal Gibbons, ten years ago.

A Great Pageant.

The ceremonies of the day were inaugurated with an imposing procession which moved shortly after 10 o'clock. It was made up of members of the hierarchy, clergy and seminarians to the number of several hundreds, and was, with possibly one excedtion, the greatest ecclesiastical pageant ever witnessed in the city which is called the "cradle of American Catholicism." At an early hour in the morning preceding the public functions of the day, Mgr. Sbaretti of Cardinal Satolli's household, called upon his eminence Cardinal Gibbons at the archiepiscopal residence and presented to him the holy orders known as the papal briefs. In delivering the papers to his eminence, Mgr. Sbaretti made an address in Latin and in a few well chosen words his eminence thanked Mgr. Sbaretti for his kind and complimentary expressions and added that he felt highly honored in accepting the proffered documents.

Little Special Decoration.

Before 11 o'clock had been tolled the entire procession had passed within the portals of the cathedral. As the seminarians, clergy and prelates moved down the centre aisle Hamerick's Marche Solennelle was rendered by orchestra, chorus and organ. It was expected until the last moment that Cardinal-elect Satolli was to accompany Cardinal Gibbons in the line of march, but for some unknown reason the new cardinal decided to enter the cathedral through the sacristy. The sidewalks were filled with persons and every window facing the Cathedral on North Charles, Mulberry and Cathedral streets were full of heads viewing the procession. There was but little special adornment within the cathedral. Every seat was occupied when the ceremony begun and the aisles were crowded with spectators.

The Ceremony Begun.

When all the chief dignitaries had taken their places in the sanctuary the ceremony of conferring the zuchetto was begun. Cardinal Gibbons occupied his throne on the gospel side of the sanctuary, robed in full canonical vestments, while the candidate occupied a temporary throne on the epistle side. A place was especially provided near the cardinal's throne for the member of the noble guard, Marquis Sacripanti. The latter was readily recognized by his brilliant uniform of scarlet and white and gilt helmet and heavy sword. For more than three hours, while the ceremony continued, the Noble guard stood erect, symbolizing the importance of his mission in protecting the signia and official documents, of which he was the custodian. These rested on a small table close at hand.

The Official Briefs Delivered.

At the proper time the noble guard handed to Cardinal Gibbons the official brief announcing that his eminence had been chosen by the pope as the apostolic delegate to confer the beretta. His eminence called upon his attendant priest, Rev. Dr. Magnien, to read the brief, first in Latin and then in English. Following the reading of this letter the other papal brief addressed to Cardinal-elect Satolli was presented. It was read by his assistant priest, Rev. Dr. Kennedy of Philadelphia. When the readings were finished the choir of seminarians sang "Let us pray for Holy Father Leo." Then Mgr. Sbaretti arose and made a long address in Latin in which he expressed gratitude at the honorable office which the supreme pontiff, Leo XIII. had deigned to confer upon him and congratulated his eminence Cardinal Gibbons, on the special honor which was conferred on him, and on this new manifestation of particular affection which was shown by his holiness "toward this most noble American nation and its flourishing church."

He Receives the Red Hat.

The red beretta, borne upon a silver tray, was then presented to Cardinal Gibbons by Mgr. Sacrapanti. His eminence invited Cardinal Satolli to approach. The latter was escorted from his throne by his attendant priest and deacons of honor. Taking the beretta in his hand Cardinal Gibbons addressed Cardinal Satolli at considerable length and at the conclusion of his remarks placed the suchette upon Cardinal Satolli's head as the latter knelt before him. Cardinal Satolli then arose, raised the beretta from his head and retired to the sacristy to change his purple vestments for a scarlet cassock, a cappa magna of similar hue and the other vestments of his new office. Upon his return to the sanctuary his eminence Cardinal Satolli ascended his throne and turning to Cardinal Gibbons made a fervent address in Latin.

A Cablegram from the Pope.

At the conclusion of Cardinal Satolli's address he was vested for mass, which was rendered with himself as celebrant. Beethoven's mass in "C" was the selection for the occasion, and Prof. F. X. Hale led a specially selected choir of seventy-five voices with orchestral accompaniment. Following the mass a Te Deum was sung. The sermon of the day was preached by Rev. John J. Kain of St. Louis. Previous to the benediction by Cardinal Gibbons Rev. Dr. Rooker of the apostolic delegation read the following cablegram addressed to Cardinal Gibbons: "The extraordinary splendor accompanying the conferring of the beretta upon Cardinal Satolli gratifies the holy father beyond measure, and he asks your eminence to express his satisfaction. Furthermore, as a token of his appreciation, he empowers your eminence to impart to all present at the ceremony his apostolic benediction. M. Cardinal Rampolla."

To Return to Rome.

After the ceremonies, which lasted a little more than three hours, Cardinals Satolli and Gibbons were entertained at a dinner at St. Mary's seminary. Two hundred prominent clergymen and laymen were seated at the tables. Cardinal Satolli and the members of his official household returned to Washington last night. After having been the representative of Rome in Washington, Cardinal Satolli will be, on his return to the vatican, the representative of Washington in Rome.

THE WEEK IN CONGRESS.

Senate Talking Finance—No Programme in the House.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The present week in the senate will depend entirely upon the progress made by the finance committee. If the ideas held by the members of that committee prevail, it is probable that there will be no more adjournments for two or three days at a time. Chairman Morrill of the finance committee expects to have his committee report both the bond and the tariff bill on the regular meeting day tomorrow. Democratic members of that committee, however, assert that it will be impossible for the tariff bill to be reported, for the good reason that it has never been considered in full committee and they will not agree to its report on that day. It is conceded that the bond bill will reach the senate with the enacting clause stricken out and a free coinage bill substituted. The debate on the free coinage bill may extend over a fortnight, although some of the republicans profess to believe that they can bring both the coinage and the tariff measures to a vote within that time.

Tariff Bill Not To Be Changed.

The present intention of the finance committee appears to be to report the tariff bill as it came from the house, although pressure is being brought to bear upon the committee to increase all the schedules from the 15 per cent. increase fixed by the house to 20 or 25 per cent. It is not probable that a caucus of republican senators will be held on the bill, but there have been numerous conferences between the rank and file and the leaders, having for their purpose the concentration of the whole strength of the republican vote against any and all amendments that may be offerred. The unfinished business before the senate is the resolution of Mr. Elkins declaring it to be the sense of the senate that hereafter no bonds shall be sold without advertising for bids, and the amendment thereto by Mr. Butler prohibiting the sale of bonds in any manner. The business will come up again during the morning hour to-morrow.

House of Representatives.

The house of representatives will probably settle down to the transaction of business according to the usual routine this week. At present there is no programme prepared, but several matters will be read in a day or two for consideration and action. The first thing to be presented, doubtless will be the report of the committee on rules. This may come in at to-day's session, but the probabilities are that it will not be ready before to-morrow at the earliest. Should the rules be disposed of to-morrow the committee on appropriations will submit the general pension bill on Wednesday for action by the house.

THE REPORT ABSURD.

Young Bayard Says His Father Will Not Remain Abroad.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 6.—Thomas F. Bayard, jr., son of Ambassador Bayard, when seen in reference to a report cabled from London recently that it was the intention of Mr. Bayard to remain permanently in England after the conclusion of his official term, said: "The thing is absurd. It is absurd for a moment to imagine that he, with all the interests he has here, and at his time of life, should even think of making his home in England."

Wilhelm Wyl Dead.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—Wilhelm Wyl, a well-known publicist, who for a long time was a resident of America, is dead in Munich.

NEW ISSUE OF BONDS

Secretary Carlisle Issues the Notice To-day.

Bids To Be Received Until Feb. 5 for the Purchase of $100,000,000 of 4 Per Cent. Thirty Year Gold Bonds—If the Law Authorizes, Another Issue Will Be Sold.

Washington, Jan. 6.—At midnight last night Secretary Carlisle prepared the following notice which will be issued to-day: "Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at the office of the secretary of the treasury at Washington, D. C., until 12 o'clock m. on Wednesday the 5th day of February, 1896, for the purchase of one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) of United States 4 per cent. coupon bonds, in denominations of fifty dollars ($50) and multiples of that sum, as may be desired by bidders. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved. The bonds will be dated on the 1st day of February, 1895, and be payable in coin thirty years after that date, and will bear interest at 4 per centum per annum, payable quarterly, in coin, but all coupons maturing on and before the 1st day of February, 1896, will be detached and purchasers will be required to pay in United States gold coin or gold certificates, for the bonds awarded to them, and all interest accrued thereon after the 1st day of February, 1896, up to the time of application for delivery. Payments may be made in instalments, as follows: Twenty per cent. (20 per cent.) upon receipt of notice of acceptance of bids and twenty per cent. (20 per cent.) at the end of each ten days thereafter; but all accepted bidders may pay the whole amount at the date of the first instalment, and those who have paid all instalments previously maturing may pay the whole amount of their bids at any time not later than the maturity of the last instalment. The bonds will be ready for delivery on or before the 15th day of Feb. 1896. Notice is further hereby given that if the issue and sale of additional or different form of bond for the maintenance of the gold reserve shall be authorized by law on the 5th day of Feb. 1896, sealed proposals for the purchase of such bonds will also be received at the same time and place, and up to the same date and upon the same terms and conditions herein set forth, and such bids will be considered as well as the bids for the four per cent. bonds herein mentioned.

J. G. CARLISLE,
Secretary of the Treasury.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The Two Great Measures of Importance To Come Up This Week.

Albany, Jan. 6.—On Wednesday night of this week the legislature will convene at 8:30; at that time the speaker of the house and the lieutenant governor in the senate will hand down the lists of their committee appointments. Of course this session will be unable to do much business this week, as the house will adjourn Friday at noon. Still there will be a great number of bills introduced. The two great measures of the session, the excise bill and the Greater New York bill, will be introduced, it is said, late in the week. Both will come before the session in the upper house. The excise bill, as now understood, will call for a higher license.

U. S. SUPREME COURT.

A Full Bench To-day for the First Time Since Last May.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The supreme court of the United States reassembled to-day after a fortnight's holiday recess. The occasion was made memorable by reason of the fact that the appearance of Justice Peckham, the new member the court, makes a full bench for the first time since the dramatic farewell last May of Justice Jackson, when he read his dissent from the opinion and judgment of the court in the income tax case.

WE DRINK LESS CHAMPAGNE.

Custom House Reports Show a Decrease in Imports.

New York, Jan. 6.—According to the custom house statistics published last evening, the import of champagne decreased 25,000 cases in 1894, and over 11,000 cases in 1895. The list is headed by G. H. Mumm, with 79,049 cases; Pomery & Greno, 33,937 cases; Moet & Chandon, 30,204 cases; Dry Monopole, 20,036 cases, and the balance is divided among thirty different brands. Total importation for 1895, 240,812 cases of twelve quarts or twenty-four pints each.

Approve of Exclusion of Chinamen.

Brockton, Mass., Jan. 6.—The Central Labor union at its meeting last night adopted a resolution endorsing the action of congress in excluding the admission of Chinamen to this country and in favor of giving to Americans the work now done by the Chinese.

TRUSTING WOMEN.

THEIR CONFIDENCE OFTEN LEADS TO SUFFERING.

An Ohio Woman's Experience, as Here Related, is Interesting to Every American Woman.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

It is a very sad fact that the more a woman trusts to the skill of her physician in treating her female complaints, the longer she is apt to suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham fully realized this fact when she commenced that exhaustive study that has enabled the women of the world to help themselves. She discovered the source of female complaints, and produced the Vegetable Compound, which is their absolute cure.

When such testimony as the following is given, the woman who thinks should act quickly, and no longer permit herself to trust to incompetent doctors. The Vegetable Compound is sold by all druggists, and every woman should have it.

"The doctors had told me that unless I went to the hospital and had an operation performed I could not live. I had falling, enlargement, and ulceration of the womb.

"I was in constant misery all the time; my back ached; I was always tired. It was impossible for me to walk far or stand long at a time. I was surely a wreck. I decided that I would give your Compound and Sanative Wash a trial.

"I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of Sanative Wash, and I am now almost well. I am stouter and healthier than I have ever been in my life. My friends and neighbors and the doctors are surprised at my rapid improvement. I have told them all what I have been taking."—MRS. ANNETTA BICKMEIER, Bellaire, Belmont Co., O.

GOSSIP FROM BERLIN

German Financiers Anxious To Buy Our Bonds.

Denied That Russia Has Offered Assistance—No Excitement in Germany Over the Transvaal Trouble. Quiet New Year's Day in Berlin. Hammerstein Still in Custody.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—Financial interest continues to be centured in the prospects of the issuance of an American loan. The bourses here and in Frankfort absorb the best of American stocks which are still being offered for sale in London, but the leading operators show a greater disposition to await the definite announcement of a bond issue. The latest communications from New York leave the situation so uncertain that neither the financial houses nor the operators on the bourses can advise inquirers. The correspondent of the United Press in Frankfort states that American financiers have sounded the bankers there as to whether a three per cent. coin loan could be placed at about par. To these inquiries the bankers replied that pure coin bonds could not be placed in Germany even at four per cent., but the three per cent. gold bonds might be placed if they were issued at a price slightly under par.

No Offer from Russia.

Advices received here from St. Petersburg say that M. De Witte, the Russian minister of finance, has definitely denied that Russia has offered to the United States the cash advances referred to in the story recently published in a St. Petersburg dispatch to the Tageblatt, a story which nobody credited. Another story comes from St. Petersburg alleging that Prince Labanoff-Rostovsky, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, has declared with all possible feelings of good will toward the United States that the czar would never recognize the Monroe doctrine and in regard thereto had taken a position similar to that assumed by Germany in England. This story has not been affirmed or denied.

The South African Trouble.

Sir F. C. Lascelles, British ambassador to Germany, has of late had daily interviews with the chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and these conferences have led to a much calmer tone in official circles and in the articles published in the semi-official newspapers. The violent tone displayed by the English press, especially in their tirades against the kaiser, does not agree with the character of the communications received at the foreign office from Lord Salisbury. If Lord Salisbury intends to remonstrate against the congratulatory message cabled to President Kruger by the kaiser he is obviously taking his time to ponder over the manner in which he will do it, as so far nothing has been heard at the foreign office as to how the government of Great Britain will treat what the English press calls a deadly insult which justifies war. The authorities at the foreign office deny that the Transvaal government has asked Germany to assume a protectorate over the south African republic.

Court Season in Berlin.

The court will leave Potsdam on January 11, for the Schloss in Berlin. The court season will then open and last seven weeks, the imperial family leaving on February 27 for Abbazia. The New Year's Day functions were devoid of any special features. There was a heavy snow storm on the previous night and the cafes were all closed by 11 o'clock. A strong police force was abroad and prevented the old-time noisy demonstrations. No horse-play was allowed as formerly and the people who were about at midnight quietly exchanged "Prosit Neujahr" and passed on. The consequence was that there were fewer arrests than has ever been known upon a similar occasion. The kaiser's New Year's reception was also devoid of interest. United States Ambassador Runyon had a pleasant chat with the emperor who inquired about the health of President Cleveland and asked the ambassador how he himself had enjoyed the holidays. In conversing with the generals at the arsenal the emperor confined himself to matters of military detail.

Hammerstein Still in Italy.

Baron von Hammerstein, the fugitive ex-editor of the Kreuz Zeitung, who was arrested in Athens last week by the German police, is still in custody in Italy. The formalities involved in securing his extradition will occupy a fortnight. He is being closely watched for fear he may commit suicide. His wife and two daughters are with him. The baroness has written a letter to a friend in which she says: "After being duped by others my husband possibly became a deceiver himself. We have lost everything, but legal action against him will prove more disgreeable to others than to us."

Her Decks Covered with Ice.

New York, Jan. 6. — The Cunard steamship Etruria, which arrived at her dock last night, presented a wintry appearance. Her sides and boats were covered with ice. The spray from the seas as the great steamer forged ahead at full speed had spread over the foredeck, burying the gangways and decks with slush and ice.

Olive Lake's Second Husband.

New York, Jan. 6.—Frederick L. M. Masury, who was quietly married on December 21 to Olive Lake, the divorced wife of James J. Corbett, is a grandson of the late John W. Masury, the wealthy paint manufacturer. Young Masury is handsome and possessed of a vast fortune.

RESPITE FOR "BAT" SHEA.

McGough Confesses That He, and Not Shea, Killed Robert Ross.

Albany, Jan. 6.—John McGough, a pal of "Bat" Shea, who is sentenced to be electrocuted at Dannemora prison to-morrow for the murder of Robert Ross of Troy, has confessed that it was not Shea who shot Ross but that he did it himself. Some surprise was expressed in official circles Saturday by the holding back of the decision at the executive chamber relative to the disposition which Gov. Morton had made in the matter of the application for the commutation of Shea's sentence. The significance of the matter developed when the following statement was issued from the executive chamber last evening: "Gov. Morton has received from Warden Thayer of Clinton prison a written statement made by John McGough, a prisoner, in which McGough confesses that it was he and not Bortholomew Shea who fired the shot which killed Robert Ross. The document is wholly in the handwriting of McGough and was written in the presence of the warden. The governor after examining the document and the accompanying letter from Warden Thayer sent for the Hon. Galen R. Hitt, Shea's counsel, and communicated to him the facts, and in compliance with Mr. Hitt's request decided to issue to-day a respite for Shea until Tuesday, February 4. In the interval the condemned man's counsel will have time to make a motion before the supreme court for a new trial." Galen R. Hitt of Albany and John T. Norton of Troy, Shea's counsel, were as greatly surprised as anybody at the news of McGough's confession and expressed an opinion that they had never anticipated anything of the sort. They will move immediately in special term of the supreme court for a new trial for Shea.

Look Upon It as a Ruse.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The confession of John McGough that he and not "Bat" Shea killed Robert Ross, created great interest here. McGough's confession is believed by many citizens to be a desperate attempt to save Shea from the electric chair at Dannemora. McGough is serving a nineteen years' sentence in Clinton prison for attempting to shoot, with intent to kill, William Ross, a brother of Robert. Nearly a score of reputable citizens swore positively on Shea's trial that they saw "Bat" fire the fatal shot.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

American Christians Will Join British in Supplications for Peace.

New York, Jan. 6.—A cablegram has been received from the British alliance requesting that Christians throughout the United States be invited "to join British Christians in fervent prayer next week, especially on Wednesday, that Christlike counsels may prevail in the present crisis." In response to the above the executive committee of the Evangelical alliance for the United States has passed the following resolution: Resolved, that in accordance with a cablegram from the Evangelical alliance of Great Britain, the Evangelical alliance for the United States invites the Christians of America to unite in prayer with their British brethren on Wednesday of the week of prayer, that in the relations of their respective governments pacific counsels may prevail.

FIRE LOSS OF 1895.

Property Valued at $126,839,700 Destroyed.

New York, Jan. 6.—The Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin says that the fire loss of the United States and Canada for the year 1895 amounted to $129,839,700. The total for 1895 was about $1,600,000 greater than the 1894 loss but was nearly $28,000,000 less than the 1893 figures. During the year 1895 there were 2,418 fires where the estimated loss in each case exceeded $10,000, and the largest loss by any one fire was $1,250,000. The property was the Warren Manufacturing company's plant at Warren, R. I. The indications are that 1895 has been the most prosperous fire insurance year for a long time past owing to the moderate losses.

ONE KILLED; ONE INJURED.

Guests Escape from a Burning Hotel at Altoona in Their Night Clothes.

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 6.—The fire early yesterday morning which destroyed the Central hotel, a large six-story building on Eleventh avenue, was the most stubborn conflagration that has visited this city in years. Frank Houseman was killed and Wm. Wareham was badly hurt and property to the value of $140,000 was consumed. Some of the hotel guests fled into the streets in their night clothing and some were rescued from the burning building by the firemen who carried them down the ladders. The weather was below zero and great suffering was endured.

PLANS OF THE INSURGENTS.

The Report That They Intend To Burn Havana Confirmed.

New York, Jan. 6.—The report that information has been received by the Cuban junta in this city that Gomez and Maceo, the chief military leaders of the rebellion in Cuba, had conceived a startling plan to make a sudden descent upon Havana with a tried column of their troops, surprise and thrust aside the resistance of the Spanish forces and burn the city is confirmed by the insurgent leaders here.

May Strengthen Her Forces.

London, Jan. 6.—The People, which is the weekly edition of the Globe, which is in touch with the government, says there is reason to believe that Prime Minister Salisbury and his colleagues, owing to the hostile attitude of Germany, will consider the expediency of immediately strengthening the British forces in those parts of the empire that are exposed to attack.

NOT ORDERED SHOT

Dr. Jameson and Others To Be Given a Fair Trial.

President Kruger Says the Invaders Will Be Treated in Sharp Contrast to Their Own Acts—Chamberlain Telegraphs a Promise To Prevent a Further Raid.

London, Jan. 6.—Late news from the Transvaal is most anxiously awaited here, but none has been received during the past twenty-four hours that causes any appreciable lessening of the feeling of anxiety prevailing. It may be that some information will be received later, but the outlook is not very bright, as the telegraph lines are still controlled by the government for its own business, and if any private news filters through there is no way to positively confirm or deny it. The dispatch below from President Kruger, while stating that he had not ordered the captured invaders to be shot, still leaves their future fate in doubt. His statement that they would be treated in sharp contrast to their own acts affords the hope that eventually most if not all of them will be set free, after undergoing the punishment that passionate observers here say they richly merit. It is believed in some quarters, however, that the anger of the Boers against the leaders of the invading force will have more or less influence on the tribunal before which the Englishmen will be tried, and that nothing will suffice to allay the excitement except a sentence of death. In this event all the influence of the British government will undoubtedly be exerted to secure a commutation, and President Kruger's pacific message leads to the hope that, in the event of Dr. Jameson and the other leaders being condemned to be shot or hanged under military law, the intercession of the British government will lead President Kruger to commute the sentence to imprisonment.

Chamberlain Pleads for Mercy.

The government has made public the following cable dispatches relative to the invasion of the Transvaal and the capture by the Boers of the invaders: On January 3 the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain cabled to President Kruger of the South African republic as follows: "It is rumored here that you have ordered the prisoners to be shot. I do not believe the rumors. I rely on your generosity in your hour of victory." To-day the Hon. Cecil Rhodes, prime minister of Cape Colony and the head in Africa of the British South African company, sent a dispatch reading: "The rumor that a force is collecting at Buluwayo is absolutely false."

President Kruger's Reply.

President Kruger, replying to Mr. Chamberlain's dispatch, cabled: "I have not ordered the freebooters, who are prisoners, to be shot. Their case will be decided strictly in accordance with the traditions of the republic and in sharp contrast to the unheard of acts of these freebooters. So many lies and false reports are published in even the influential newspapers in England that I deem it advisable to add that the freebooter prisoners have been treated with the greatest consideration by our burghers, despite the fact that the latter have been more than once compelled to take up arms in defense of the dearly bought independence of our republic. I hope you will kindly pardon the liberty I take when I say that our confidence in Rhodes has received such a rude shock that his repudiation of the proceedings at Buluwayo ought to be received with the greatest caution. Even now we have news that an armed force is collecting on our borders. If this is true I trust that not the word of Rhodes, but the influence of the government, will suffice to prevent further incursions. Will you, with a view to checking further lying reports, publish this?"

Will Prevent a Further Raid.

Mr. Chamberlain replied: "I thank you for your message, which I will publish as you desire. The press has not given credence to the rumors about cruelty to prisoners. I have always been confident of your magnanimity. I have sent an imperial officer to Buluwayo to see that my orders are obeyed and to prevent a further raid. You may rest confident that I will strictly uphold all the obligations of the London convention of 1894."

Kruger Thanks the Kaiser.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—President Kruger has, in reply to Emperor William's message, cabled the following from Pretoria: "I testify to your majesty my very deep and heartfelt thanks for your majesty's sincere congratulations. With God's help we hope to do everything possible for holding our dearly bought independence and the stability of our beloved republic."

A Suggestion from France.

Paris, Jan. 6.—The Temps asks Great Britain to immediately and absolutely revoke the charter of the British South Africa company, and continuing says: "France has no idea of humiliating Great Britain, with whom she entertains friendly relations, nor of falling in line behind Emperor William, but Great Britain ought to recognize that there is a Europe even in Africa."

Killed by a Deputy Sheriff.

Columbiana, Ala., Jan. 6.—Deputy Sheriff T. L. Seale killed Amos Robertson, a prisoner, Saturday. As Seale unlocked Robertson's cell door he and another prisoner ran over the deputy, knocking him to the floor. The deputy getting on his feet opened fire on the fleeing prisoners and Robertson fell dead.

January 6—Organization of the new Common Council.

January 6—Charles T. Ellis at Music Hall.

Utah is now a State.

Mr. J. Frost is making his presence felt.

It is now Judge DeMeza and ex-Judge Coddington.

It is more pleasant to hear bond talk instead of war talk, even if it does cost more.

New Brunswick papers are getting a wonderful hustle on them nowadays. The Fredonian appeared Saturday printed on a web perfecting press.

It is a creditable thing for the Common Council to so manage the affairs of the city as to have the balance on the right side of the ledger at the end of the year.

The potato is the latest thing that the Jersey capitalist is endeavoring to get a corner on. But he will never succeed. The potato is too good an American to become a thing of monopoly.

The New York Press says that not since the days of Cleveland's first administration has there been so many candidates for office in New Jersey as is now the case at Trenton with the Republicans.

A Kansas district has written a contract with a woman teacher to teach the school, chop the wood, make the fire, sweep, and find the matches for $35 a month. This must be a case of woman suffering.

Some people think that too much money is spent on the fire department. A glance at the small fire loses for the year, as reported by Chief Doane to the Common Council Saturday night, shows that it is money well spent.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Over one hundred colored electrical lights will be used in the great garden scene.

—The business meeting of the Young People's Society of the Trinity Reformed church will be held at 7:15 this evening, to be followed at 8 o'clock by a prayer meeting.

—The foreign missionary meeting of the women of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet at 829 Park avenue, Tuesday, at 3 o'clock. A paper on India will be read.

—Niely Davidson, of Crawford, N. J., writes: "I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for liver complaint and rheumatism, and it did me good." Hood's Pills cure sick headache, indigestion.

—Rev. F. W. Farr, of New York, Dean of the Missionary Training Institute, will address the Plainfield branch of the Christian Alliance on Tuesday evening, at 7:30, at the rooms of the W. C. T. U. on Watchung avenue.

All Like Mr. Passmore.

John H. Passmore, who was the first superintendent of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and who afterwards filled the same position with the Schuylkill Valley Company of Norristown, has severed his connection with that company. Last Tuesday evening he banqueted the employes of the company in a sumptous manner, and they in return, to show the esteem in which they held Mr. Passmore, presented him with a solid silver service set of ten pieces.

John Rafferty, of Park avenue, who fell down stairs Christmas day and dislocated his shoulder, still suffers considerable, and it will be a long time before he can use his arm.

Joseph Brown, who had his eye removed last week at the hospital, is getting along nicely. It will be remembered that a piece of steel got in his eye and after treatment it was found necessary to take it out.

C. E. Hepburn, of the borough, fell off his wheel a few days ago and cut his hand severely. Dr. Probasco found it necessary to take several stitches in the cut and he is now improving nicely.

Bitten by a Strange Canine.

While playing with a strange dog, Saturday morning, Charles Pierson, of Hedden's livery stable, had his hand badly bitten. The dog had been lounging around the stable and Pierson started to catch him, when the dog snapped and caught Pierson's hand. The injured member was dressed by T. S. Armstrong, at Reynolds's pharmacy, and then Dr. Murray was called to see if cauterization was necessary. It was thought not to be.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The contract cases of Griffin against Tobin, and Douglass against Peebles are returnable in Justice Newcorn's court Jan. 13th. This morning the contract case of Long against Grace was tried and judgment rendered for the plaintiff. Justice Newcorn has also issued a writ of execution in the case of Frucht against Wolf.

the pump well. The pumps are controlled by a float in the well and work automatically. The sewage is pumped from the well and discharged through a cast iron force main into the sewer at the corner of Grant and Sherman avenues, and from there will flow through gravity mains to the beds. Two and-a-half horse power will do the work, but five horse power would be better. The cost will be about $600 per year. Arrangements should be made to pay for the actual power used, at an agreed rate, which can be arranged after the first year, when the amount of sewage floating can be ascertained. A low power should be used such as is used for trolley roads and incandescent lighting. The reports and communication was received and placed on file.

A recess was then taken for ten minutes to allow the City Clerk time to write up the proceedings of the meeting, so they could be read and approved. After this was done the Council adjourned.

A CLASS RECEPTION.

The Misses Stevens Entertain the Graduating Class of the N. P. School.

A delightful time was spent at the home of the Misses Emma and Bertha Stevens, of Grandview avenue, on Friday evening, by their classmates in the class of '96 of the North Plainfield Public School. Games, music and conversation made the hours pass by unheeded, and all were sorry when the time came for them to depart. Dainty refreshments were served near the close of the evening. Those who were present besides the hostesses were: The Misses S. M. Cutter, Adel Kerby, Nellie Martin, Libbie Joseph; James Arnold, John H. VanWinkle, Clifford Braider, Charles Barlow and Roland Western.

Mr. Neeley Goes With White.

L. C. Neeley, who has had charge of Edsall's housefurnishing department, has resigned and has accepted a position with Edward White where he will have entire charge of the housefurnishing department. They will make many extensive changes in the department, adding many new lines, and will make it a perfect department in every way.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

Among the distinguished guests were George Phelps Mellick, J. Evarts Tracy and J. W. Reinhart, of Plainfield, besides President A. V. V. Raymond and Edward J. Chaffee, formerly residents of this town. The dinner was fine, the toasts brilliant, the speeches capital and the participants, in all this feast of reminiscence and glory of ancestry, an enviable set of people.

The new set of pins for the Hope chapel bowling alleys have arrived.

The Westfield Club bowling team rolled two games with the Roselle Casino Friday night in the Standard League and won both games.

The U. C. Club defeated the Cranford A. C. at Cranford Friday night in the first game by the following score: U. C. C., 831; C. A. C., 754. The highest score was made by Fleming, of the U. C. C., 203. In the second game the score was as follows: Cranford A. C., 793; Union Co. Club, 673.

To an uninitiated beholder the scene at the Park Club Saturday evening must indeed have been a strange one, but to those that understood it, was Park Club enthusiasm. The cause of all the excitement was tha deciding game in the bowling match between the Bachelors and the Benedicts. The Benedicts won the first game and a week ago the Bachelors won their game. Great preparations were made for Saturday's game and everybody was excited over the result. By far the largest crowd that has attended any of the games assembled in the alleys of the Park Club Saturday night. It was an enthusiastic throng, the audience as well as the bowlers. The first frame was terrific as far as rooting was concerned, for everyone that took his place in the alleys came in for his share of the good natured chaffing. It took a strong mind and steady nerve to prevent becoming rattled. As the game continued and the lead that the Bachelors secured at the start, was gradually diminished, the excitement rose to fever heat. The single men then brought out their mascot, a little mask, which was the signal for more fun. Mayor Hegeman and Dr. Thiers were particularly active among the Benedicts in their efforts to capture the coveted mask. Twice was the mascot thrown among the crowd and each time a glorious scrap resulted, but the Bachelors secured it in both instances. During the fracas one of the spectators had the pleasant sensation of having the warm contents of a coffee cup upset down his neck.

The Bachelors held the lead up to the fifth frame, when their opponents led, but only for that frame. By rolling in fine form the married men passed their unmarried brothers in the eighth frame by 24 pins. The teams changed places in the next frame with a difference of one pin. And then came the last frame. The former noise was a whisper in comparison with what followed. It was neck and neck all down the line and the game was not decided until the last ball was rolled.

The final score was 1521 to 1512 in favor of the Benedicts. Lawyers embraced doctors and four of the more enthusiastic danced around in a circle to the enjoyment of the rest. Some of the vocal talent of the club rendered a number of selections during the game, the words for some of which were composed on the spot.

The individual scores were as follows:

BACHELORS.		BENEDICTS.

CYCLING COMMENT.

L. D. Cabanne, the Class B rider, who is well known in this city, was married on December 27th to Miss Talcott, of Erie, Pa. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride. The same day, Walter C. Sanger, the famous professional racer, was secretly married at Milwaukee to Miss Katherine Kotzenburg, of Chicago. Both of them have raced on the Crescent Oval.

Chief Consul Gentle has appointed the following as chairmen of the various committees of the New Jersey Division, L. A. W.: Rights and privileges, Herbert W. Knight, Newark; highway improvement, C. R. Zachareas, Asbury Park; transportation, Theodore F. Messerles, Jersey City; rules and regulations, D. C. B. Holmes, Rahway; racing, Fred Kerr, Newark; auditing, J. W. Dickerson, Newark.

AT THE TRAPS.

J. A. R. Elliott, of Kansas City, and T. W. Morfey, of Paterson, N. J., have made a match to shoot at 100 live pigeons at Willard's Park, Paterson, within a month. The handicap will be on the gun used, the contest being at thirty yards' rise and fifty yards' boundary, Hurlingham rules. The contest is for $100 a side, and the cost of the birds.

THEATRICAL.

If you want to enjoy a hearty laugh and witness a good wholesome entertainment go and see Charles T. Ellis and his merry company in the new Irish-German comedy-drama, "The Alsatian," at Music Hall tonight. Mr. Ellis, in the title role, is a host himself, portraying, as he does, an honest German lad, bubbling over with wit and good spirits, yet always ready to help those in distress. If you want comedy, go and see "The Alsatian." If you want pathos, go and see "The Alsatian." If you want to see the beautiful Irish scenes, go and see "The Alsatian;" and if you want to see pretty colleens and rollicking Irish lads, go and see "The Alsatian."

It sounds like a self evident proposition that "She Couldn't Marry Three," but in the play of that name which Miss Lillian Kennedy brings to the Stillman Music Hall, Wednesday, January 8th, it is shown what a lot of trouble may fall upon a girl because she can only marry one man at a time. This most charming little soubrette, Miss Kennedy, has created in this play a new type of maidenly sweetness. Bess Brandon, the heroine of the play, is a fisherman's daughter, who is obliged to choose her husband from two good men and one bad one, who are courting her at once. She chooses wisely, an honest man, but the rejected rascal pursues her and him with fiendish malignity. There is plenty of excitement in the play, especially in the final climax where the villian tries to tie the hero to the railroad track upon which an express train is approaching. A real passenger locomotive steams upon the stage in this scene and for realism the tableau has never been beaten. The scenery, showing some beautiful views of the seacoast, has been specially painted for this production. Of course Miss Kennedy's songs and dances add greatly to the brightness of the play. Prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents.

—All the scenery used during the engagement of Lillian Kennedy was especially built for the company and carried by them.

For the New Year

We promise you the best of service, the best of goods and prices to make our store as you would have it, as near perfect as possible. Sometimes a complaint is made but never a one but we are more than willing to right it and where 1895 has been the best year we have ever had and we thank you for it. We look forward into '96 with greater expectations and know we can only realize them by following the same liberal policy that we have worked out during the past years, of making every customer a satisfied one.

Its not a question of profit this month, we are anxious to reduce stock, and to do it we name prices on goods that you want and can have for little money. Read

The Sarcasm of Destiny.

A friend of ours, who has made a national reputation for his wit and humor and indulged in that vein because it procured bread and meat for his family, is, to our knowledge, a great classic scholar, a profoundly pious and serious gentleman, a producer of some of the noblest essays on great historic themes. These are the masterpieces that he would prefer to be remembered by, but, by some "sarcasm of destiny," as it is called, he has been compelled to seek another and more profitable outlet for his genius. Writing to a friend, some years ago, he said: "Alas, is it not deplorable that I have been forced to become a clown in my old age?" He exaggerated his position, for there is an immense amount of valuable material in his productions, which, however, have a minor chord of the comic. But while the world demands and pays for his "fun" he is really averse to such composition, and the fame he has won has an element of bitterness and disappointment to him.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Women's Love of Ugly Men.

The illustrious men in history who were distinguished as much for the fascination which they exercised over the fair sex as for their talents and ability were, as a rule, plain and insignificant in appearance. Julius Cæsar was a very ill favored man, and yet when a mere stripling, before his fame in Rome, girls of his own age sighed for him, and mature women longed for his love. Among the men of later times who were renowned in like manner were Sir Philip Sidney, plain almost to ugliness; Paul Scarron, the comic poet, a cripple; Voltaire, unmistakably ugly, and Rousseau, whose manners were awkward as his face was plain, while John Wilkes, who had the power to subjugate any woman who spoke to him for even five minutes, was admitted by his own showing to be the ugliest man in England in his time.

Smart Little Caleb.

"Pop," said little Caleb Penguin, "you know 'bout everything, don't you?"

"W-ell," said Mr. Penguin, "not everything, Caleb. What is it you want to know?"

"Does the wind ever have to have anything done to its teeth?" said Caleb.

But that was something that Mr. Penguin could not answer.—New York Sun.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

AN ORDINANCE
RELATING TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Before the erection, construction, removal or alteration of any building or structure, or any part thereof, or any platform, staging or flooring to be used for seating or standing purposes is commenced within the City limits, the owner or his agent or architect shall obtain a permit therefor from the Inspector of Buildings, and unless such permit shall expressly waive the same, shall submit to the Inspector of Buildings such drawings as may be necessary to show the construction of the building or structure, and a detailed statement, in duplicate, of the specifications, on appropriate blanks to be furnished by the Inspector, giving also the location, the proposed use of the building or structure, which shall be accompanied with a statement in writing, sworn to before any person authorized by law to administer an oath, giving the full name and residence of the owner or of each of the owners of said building or proposed building, staging or flooring.

If such operation is proposed to be made by any other person than the owner or owners in fee, the person or persons intending to make such erection or alteration shall accompany the application for permit with sworn affidavit, giving the full name of the owner or owners of the land, and also of every person interested in said building or proposed building, either as owner, lessee or in any representative capacity.

Such statement may be made by the agent or architect of the person or persons hereinbefore required to make the same, and any notice served upon such agent or architect shall be binding upon the principals.

Said sworn statement and copy of application and plans shall be kept on file in the office of the Inspector, and the said operation or any part thereof shall not be commenced or proceeded with until said statement and plans shall have been so filed and approved by the Inspector in writing.

A permit may be granted for the erection or construction of any part of a building, when accompanied by a statement and plans of said portion, before the entire plans and detailed statements of said building have been submitted.

Ordinary repairs may be made without notice to the Inspector, but such repairs shall not be construed to include the cutting away of any constructional support, whether wall, pier, column, girder or beams, or the removal, change or closing of any staircase or exit.

All applications for permits shall be passed upon by the Inspector within ten (10) days from dates of receiving the same respectively.

All permits to construct or alter any building shall be valid for one year from the date thereof and no longer.

Permits for removal shall specify the time within which the removal shall be made.

As herein used, the term "removal" means to change the location of building or structure.

To take down or remove shall be termed "demolition."

Section 2. Outside of the fire limits prescribed herein, buildings of frame or wood may be erected subject to conditions hereinafter prescribed for chimneys, flues, hearths, steam or heating pipes, electric wiring or any fire-causing factor of construction.

Frame buildings to be occupied or used as a stable, workshop or manufactory shall not be built or so used if more than thirty (30) feet in total height.

No frame or wood dwelling house hereafter erected shall exceed fifty (50) feet in height to highest point on main roof.

In no case shall a wooden building be erected within three (3) feet of any inside line of a lot, unless the space between the studs of any and every such side be filled in solidly with not less than two (2) inches of brick or other hard fireproof material.

When three (3) or more frame houses are built continuous the dividing wall between each house is to be of brick not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation wall to a point up to the under part of the roof.

No spire or tower of wood shall be built or rebuilt within the City limits to a greater height than sixty (60) feet.

Section 3. All excavations to be made and protected as per Section 13.

Section 4. All cellar or basement walls for frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick; if of brick, to a depth of eight (8) feet below grade on street; and to be not less than eighteen (18) inches thick and well bonded if of stone. If of greater depth than above, or if carried up eight (8) feet or more above grade to frame, the foundation wall to be not less than twelve (12) inches thick if of brick, and not less than twenty (20) inches thick and well bonded if of stone.

All foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar mixed with sharp sand.

Section 5. All frame or wooden buildings exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be built with sills, posts, inter-ties or ribbon strips, plates and rafters, all of suitable and sufficient size, to be properly braced and framed, and with suitable studs set at proper distances apart, with fire cut-off at each floor. The floor beams shall not be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth, except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth, well bridged.

Whenever frame construction is of wood, even if partially or wholly covered with veneer of brick or stone, it shall be deemed a frame building.

Section 6. The removal of any wooden building or structure from without to within the fire limits is absolutely prohibited, and if accomplished before discovery the Common Council may, at its discretion, order its return or demolition within twenty-four hours after notice, at the expense of owner or owners of said building.

Section 7. The fire limits of the City of Plainfield are hereby established so as to include all that district of said city contained within the following boundaries, and also within the space of one hundred and fifty (150) feet beyond and parallel to the centre lines of the streets or avenues constituting the said boundaries: Beginning at the point of intersection of the centre line of Washington Avenue with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line of Washington Avenue to the centre line of West Front Street; thence along the centre line of West Front Street to the centre line of New Street; thence along the centre line of New Street to the centre line of West Fifth Street; thence along the centre line of West Fifth Street and East Fifth Street to the centre line of Washington Street; thence along the centre line of Washington Street to the centre line of East Front Street; thence along the centre line of East Front Street to the centre line of Elm Place; thence along the centre line of Elm Place to its intersection with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the City line in Green Brook to the place of beginning.

Section 8. Every wooden or frame building, with a brick or other front within the fire limits, which may hereafter be damaged by fire, the elements or otherwise, to an amount not greater than three-fourths the total immediately previous value thereof, may be repaired or rebuilt pursuant to the provisions of this ordinance.

But, if such damage shall amount to more than three-fourths such value, then such building shall not be repaired or rebuilt, but shall be demolished.

Section 9. Should the decision of the Inspector or of Appraiser as hereinafter prescribed permit of the repair or restoration of any building, every damaged wall or part thereof shall be repaired or restored to its full original strength, but only within the limits of its original height and other dimensions and uses.

Section 10. The previous value of such building and the proportion of such damage, the extent of re-use of any wall or walls or parts without repair, and the amount of repairs or restoration may be determined by the Inspector, subject to appeal as hereinafter provided.

Upon the written demand of the owner or owners of such premises, to be sent to the Mayor, he shall appoint one appraiser and one appraiser shall be selected by said owner or owners.

They shall at once examine the said premises, and if they agree their decision is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Should these two appraisers not agree, they shall select a third appraiser or umpire to take part in such impartial and disinterested examination and verdict.

The joint decision of any two of them is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Each appraiser is to receive ten ($10) dollars for such service, to be paid by the owner or owners of said building before said report is filed, and no repairs or alterations, except to the extent necessary to make safe as directed by the Inspector, shall be made or begun until said report is filed and permit obtained.

Said report is also to include a separate detailed statement in writing as to causes of probable causes of damage, and of the general or special conditions making favorable thereto in each case, and may also include the suggestions of the appraisers as to effective future remedy and prevention.

These reports are to be kept carefully filed by the Inspector in a special docket, to be known as the Fire Inquest docket.

Section 11. Temporary one-story frame buildings within the fire limits may be erected for the use of builders within the limits of lots whereon or adjacent to where buildings are in course of erection, upon permit of Inspector, said structure to be used only for the purpose specified.

Temporary stagings, platforms or floorings for seating or standing purposes may be constructed of wood, upon filing of plans and permit from Inspector.

All temporary structures of wood are to be demolished by owners upon the completion of purpose specified.

Fences of wood shall not be over ten (10) feet in total height.

Signs of wood shall not be erected over two (2) feet high on any building.

Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams, may be erected upon any detached dwelling house, occupied by not more than three (3) families.

One wooden bay or oriel window may be built of wood upon any face or front of any building, if but one (1) story in height and not more than one-third of the width of said face or front.

If but two stories in height and of said proportionate width, it may be constructed of wood, but shall be covered with metal, slate or tile.

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face, it or they shall be wholly built of fireproof material.

The roofs of all permanent new wooden constructions are to be covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

Existing shingle roofs may only be repaired or renewed on old lines and heights.

If altered or reconstructed in any way, a metal, clay tile or slate roofing is to be substituted.

Sheds of wood not over fifteen (15) feet to highest point of roof, and constantly open on at least one side, with the closed sides and roof thereof covered with metal, clay tile or slate, may be built on permits from the Inspector, but no fence shall be used as any side of such shed.

Exterior privies, wood or coal houses not exceeding one hundred and fifty (150) square feet in superficial area and not over eight (8) feet in heigh, may be built upon permit from the Inspector, with roofs only, covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

Section 12. The walls of all buildings within the fire limits other than frame buildings and constructions herein authorized, shall be constructed of stone, brick, iron or other hard incombustible material, and the several component parts of such buildings shall be as hereinafter provided.

The height of all walls shall be measured from the curb level at the centre of the building, to the top of the highest point of roof beams on flat roofs, or to the average or middle height of gable for all high pitched ridge roofs having no deck.

When the walls of a structure are twenty-five feet or more distant from every street line, then the average level of the grades at walls may be taken instead of curb.

If the wall is practically entirely carried on iron girders supported by masonry piers or iron columns, the measurements as to height may be taken from the top of such girder, for such wall only.

The width of buildings for the purposes of this ordinance shall be construed by the direction in which the beams are placed, the lengthwise of the beams to mean the width wise of the building, and the bearing walls are those on which the beams are carried.

Section 13. All excavations shall be properly guarded and protected by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, so as to prevent the same from becoming dangerous to life or limb; and shall be sheet piled where necessary to prevent caving in of adjoining earth.

Whenever an excavation for building or other purposes shall be intended to be, or shall be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet below the street curb, the person or persons causing such excavation to be made shall at all times from the beginning to the completion thereof, at his or their expense, preserve any adjoining or contiguous wall or walls from injury and support the same by proper foundations, so that the said wall or walls shall be, and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, whether the said adjoining or contiguous wall or walls are down more or less than ten feet below the street curb.

If such excavation shall not be intended to be, or shall not be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet below the street curb, the owner or owners of such adjoining or contiguous wall or walls shall preserve the same from injury and so support the same by proper foundations to full depth of such excavation, that it or they shall be and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, and for that purpose shall be permitted to enter upon the premises where such excavation is being made, when necessary, and shall complete the same within reasonable time.

If in either case entry at reasonable times refused, the Inspector may determine such difference, or prescribe the best and most practicable way of making safe as herein required.

If an adjoining party wall is intended to be used by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, and the use of such wall is approved by the Inspector, then the said person or persons causing the excavation to be made shall at his or their expense amply protect and secure such party wall by proper foundations as before described.

If the person or persons whose duty it shall be to preserve or protect any wall or walls from injury shall neglect or fail so to do, after having had twenty-four hours' notice from the Inspector, then the Inspector may enter upon the premises and make same secure and safe at the expense of the person or persons last herein referred to.

Section 14.—Except on rock bottom all foundations shall have footing courses, and all footing or base courses under foundation walls shall be laid not less than three (3) feet below the permanent surface of the ground, on a good solid bottom; and in case the nature of the earth and the character of the building should require it, on a bottom of driven piles or laid timber, of proper kind and sufficient size and thickness, or such other approved foundation as the Inspector and the nature of the case may require, to keep and maintain the walls firm and secure.

All piers, columns or posts, resting on the earth, shall be set upon a solid bottom, in the same manner as required for the foundation walls.

Except in the case of adjacent excavations as hereinbefore provided, should any grade be lowered the foundational supports shall be also carried down to the depth above prescribed.

The footing or base course under all the foundation walls, and under all piers, columns or posts resting on the earth shall be of stone or concrete, and if under a foundation wall shall be at least six (6) inches wider than the bottom width of the wall; and if under piers, columns or posts, shall be at least six (6) inches wider on all sides than the outside bottom lines of said piers, columns or posts.

Except that in case of dwellings, where a good gravel bottom exists, the footing or base course may be only four (4) inches wider instead of six (6) inches wider, as hereinbefore provided.

The thickness of all footing courses shall be not less than one-third their width, but no concrete footing course shall be less than six (6) inches thick.

All base stones shall be well bedded and laid crosswise, edge to edge.

Section 15.—In buildings, where the space under the sidewalk is utilized, a sufficient stone or brick wall shall be built to retain the roadway of the street, and the side, end or party walls of such building shall extend under the sidewalk, of sufficient thickness, to such walls.

The roofs of all vaults shall be of incombustible material.

Openings in the roofs of vaults for the admission of coal or light shall be covered with lights of glass in iron frames, or with iron covers having a rough surface, and rabbeted flush with the sidewalk; these lights shall not be more than four inches square.

When areas are covered, iron, or iron and glass combined, stone or other incombustible materials shall be used, and sufficient strength in such covering shall be provided to insure safety to persons walking on the same, and to carry the loads which may be placed thereon.

Open areas shall be properly protected with suitable railings.

Section 16.—Foundation walls shall be construed to include all walls and piers below the curb level or tier of beams nearest to the curb level intended to serve as supports for all superimposed weights.

All foundation walls shall be built of stone or brick.

If built of stone they shall be at least eight (8) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

If built of brick, they shall be at least four (4) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

All stone walls shall have at least one header extending through the wall in every three (3) feet each way, of good flat stones.

All stone to be laid on its natural bed, to be built flush and true with struck joints, on inside, and all foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar.

Section 17.—When walls herein prescribed are of diminishing thickness upwards, the said decrease of thickness shall be construed to mean at the top line of tier of beams nearest to the height specified.

The ends of all wooden beams in all walls, especially in all party walls, are to be separated by at least four (4) inches of brick work.

And in eight (8) inch walls, to be strapped together on the tops of every fourth beam strongly spiked, for cross tie.

As many stories as desired may be placed within the given total heights.

If a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet is desired for the walls of any building, the entire building must be built of approved fireproof construction.

If any tower, or part of any building or structure is to be built of a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet above curb, it shall be built of fireproof materials as approved by the Inspector.

Section 18.—All outside walls of dwelling houses within the city limits shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick, if under and not more than twenty-four (24) feet above curb level.

If over twenty-four (24) feet and not over fifty (50) feet above curb level, the walls shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick.

If over fifty (50) feet and not over sixty (60) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

Section 19.—All party and interior brick walls twenty-five (25) feet or less in height shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick.

All party and interior walls over twenty-five (25) feet high, and not over forty (40) feet high, shall be not less than twelve (12) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than eight (8) inches thick from thence to top.

All party and interior walls over forty (40) feet high, and not over fifty (50) feet in height above curb level, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over fifty (50) feet high, and not over sixty (60) feet in height, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over sixty (60) feet high, and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, shall be not less than sixteen (16) inches in thickness to the height of fifteen (15) feet, and from thence upward twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches in thickness more than fifteen (15) feet in height.

Section 20.—Excepted from the requirements of previous sections are all dwelling houses built in continuous blocks of three (3) or more, when each is not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and thirty-five (35) feet in height, which may have interior and party walls only, of brick, not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundations. And also:

All the walls of dwellings not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and not more than twenty-five (25) feet or two (2) stories in height may be built not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation.

One-story structures not over twenty (20) feet wide, thirty-five (35) feet deep, and fifteen (15) feet in height, may be built with all the walls not less than eight (8) inches in thickness.

Section 21.—In dwellings where the distance between the bearing walls is not over thirty-three (33) feet, and no clear span is over twenty-six (26) feet, brick partition walls not less than eight (8) inches thick, nor more than thirty (30) feet high, may be built to support the floors.

Over any room with a clear span of more than twenty-six (26) feet, proper supports of iron or masonry, of approved sizes and strength, may be used to support walls or floors, inclusive of support from overhead trusses or girders, but in every such case the bearing walls shall be increased four (4) inches in thickness for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or part thereof that said span is over twenty-six (26) feet.

Where dimensions of buildings are given in the preceding sections, the width or depth may be changed, providing the area is not increased and additional inside walls are added if deemed necessary by the Inspector.

Section 22.—The outside or party walls of warehouses, stores and factories shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick, if under and not more than forty (40) feet in height.

If over forty (40) feet and not over sixty (60) feet in height, the walls are to be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, the walls are to be twenty (20) inches thick to the height of twenty-five feet, and from thence sixteen (16) inches thick to a height of fifty (50) feet above curb, and from thence twelve inches thick to top.

Front and rear non-bearing and intermediate bearing walls may be four (4) inches less in thickness than is above given, in buildings not more than twenty-five (25) feet clear span between walls, provided none are less than twelve (12) inches thick, and piers or columns supporting ends of girders are of sufficient strength.

Where bearing walls are less than twenty-five (25) feet apart, or are intersected by cross walls, or strengthened by piers of sufficient size, the Inspector may permit the reduction of thickness of interior walls in just proportion to such added strength, except on walls less than forty (40) feet in height.

Where the clear span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet in any part of a building the walls supporting said span shall be four (4) inches more in thickness than is in this section specified, for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or fraction thereof, that said span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet.

Where any bearing wall or part thereof shall, in its horizontal section or plan be weakened by excess of flues or openings, or at any other point not herein provided for, the Inspector shall require its amendment to a sufficient total bearing thickness.

Section 23. In all warehouses, stores and factories over twenty-five (25) feet in width between walls, in which there shall be brick partition walls, or girders supported on iron or wooden columns or piers of masonry, the said partition walls or girders shall be spaced not more than twenty-five (25) feet apart on longitudinal centres, and the columns, girders or piers shall be of sufficient strength and size to bear safely the weight and any strain to be imposed upon them.

Section 24. The walls of churches, theatres, foundries, machine shops and other buildings of a public character, shall in no case be less than is in this ordinance specified for warehouses; and said buildings shall have in addition thereto such piers or buttresses as in the judgment of the Inspector may be necessary to make a safe and substantial building for its purpose.

Section 25. In all walls the same amount of materials herein required for walls, may be in part used in piers or buttresses, provided the wall or bars between shall be of a thickness approved by the Inspector.

The inside four (4) inches of all walls may be built of hard burnt hollow clay or porous terra cotta blocks, if laid at the same time with brick work and properly bonded into the walls and of the same dimensions as the brick used.

In all walls that are built hollow, the separating space shall not be counted in the total thickness of wall, but the same quantity of material shall be used as if it were built solid as herein provided. No such hollow space shall exceed four (4) inches in width, nor shall such wall be built unless the parts of same are strongly bonded together by proper ties either of brick, stone or iron placed not over twenty-four (24) inches apart each way.

Recesses may be left in the foundation or walls of lower stories, but in no case shall these walls be of less thickness than the walls of third story, or less than eight (8) inches.

No recess for alcoves, water or other pipes shall reduce to less than eight (8) inches in thickness at that point.

If it is desired to increase the height of any existing party or independent wall, when said wall is less in thickness than is herein required, it shall be done by a lining of brick work to form a combined thickness with the old wall of not less than four (4) inches more than is required for a new wall at total height desired, and no lining shall be four (4) inches thick for more than one story or fifteen (15) feet.

Said lining is to be supported on proper foundations, and whenever four (4) inches thick is to be applied only to firm, cleaned wall and thoroughly anchored by wrought iron anchors driven into the old wall.

No existing wall shall be used for party wall or other purposes unless approved by the Inspector, and all supports of walls shall be only of brick, stone or iron.

The walls of each story shall be built up to the full thickness to top of beams.

All walls shall be carried up to all roof sheathings, and to top lines of all cornices, and all party walls shall be built twelve (12) inches above the roof and coped with stone, iron or terra cotta.

No coping wall shall be less than eight (8) inches thick.

In all buildings occupied by three (3) or more families over a lower portion used for any other purpose than a dwelling, the hall partitions of first story and basement shall be of brick or other fireproof material and underside of staircases covered with metal lathing and plaster.

All walls shall be properly bonded together, or anchored to each other by tie anchors built not less than sixteen (16) inches into side walls every six (6) feet in height, anchors to be not less than one and a half by three-eighths of an inch in size.

All walls shall be anchored to each tier of beams with iron anchors not more than eight (8) feet apart, and extending to within at least four (4) inches of the outside face of the wall; between all openings there shall be at least one anchor, and where beams with anchors rest on partition or girders, in two or more lengths across the building they shall be strongly bolted or strapped together to obtain cross tie.

All walls to be strongly braced during their construction from the beams of each story, and when required and necessary shall also be braced from the outside until the building is enclosed.

All piers shall be built of stone or brick laid in cement mortar; all isolated stone piers to carry girders supporting walls, or columns or posts over, shall be well bonded and well covered on all exposed sides.

Isolated brick piers shall not, in height, exceed twelve (12) times their least dimensions.

Every brick pier less than nine (9) superficial feet in area at its base, supporting any beam, girder, arch or column on which a wall rests, or lintel spanning an opening over ten (10) feet and supporting a wall, shall at not greater intervals than thirty (30) inches apart have built into it a bond stone not less than four (4) inches thick, or a cast iron plate of sufficient strength, and of the full size of pier.

Under all iron beams, girders, trusses, columns of posts there shall be a cap or template of sufficient size and thickness, of stone or iron.

Ashlar shall not be counted as a part of the thickness of walls as herein provided, unless built and bonded as prescribed for foundations, and the walls so faced laid with, and ashlar bedded in, cement mortar.

All stone used for the facing of any building or part thereof, shall not be less than four (4) inches in thickness, to be strongly bonded or anchored to the backing.

Section 26. The brick used in all buildings shall be good, hard, well burnt brick, every sixth course to be a header course; all to be laid wet except in freezing weather, with closely filled joints, to be built to true lines and carried up plumb.

Where walls are faced with brick in running bond every sixth course shall be bonded with whole brick diagonal bonders, or by splitting the face brick into halves and backing the same with a continuous row of headers.

The sand used in all buildings shall be clean, sharp grit sand.

All mortars to be thoroughly mixed by careful and persistent working.

Cement mortar shall be made of sand and cement in the proportion of not more than three (3) parts of sand to one (1) part of cement, and shall only be used immediately after being mixed.

Lime mortar shall be made of not more than four (4) parts of sand to one (1) part of lime, and shall not be used until throughly slaked.

Cement and lime mortar shall be made of three (3) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and one (1) part of lime.

Concrete for foundations shall be made of two (2) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and not more than five (5) parts of small, clean broken stone or good sharp gravel, all to be carefully mixed immediately before using.

Section 27. All openings for doors and windows in all buildings shall have a good and sufficient arch of stone or brick, well built and keyed and with sufficient abutments, or a lintel of iron of sufficient strength, or of stone not less than four (4) inches thick, with a bearing not less than four (4) inches at each end.

When the lintel is of less thickness than the wall to be supported, there shall also be a good timber lintel with bearings of not less than three (3) inches, and a double rowlock or bonded arch turned over same.

Section 28. In computing the weight of walls: Brick work shall be estimated at 115 lbs. per cubic foot; facing stones shall be estimated at 160 lbs. per cubic foot.

The safe bearing load for good brick work shall be estimated at 8 tons per su. ft. when laid in good lime mortar; 11½ tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement and lime mortar; 15 tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement mortar.

The strength of floors to be estimated for in buildings, in addition to the weight of materials, is to be not less than: For dwellings, 75 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for office purposes, 100 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for public assembly, 120 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for stores, warehouses, etc., 150 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for all roofs, 50 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface.

Section 29. Every iron column, post or other vertical support, and all trusses, beams and girders shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely its intended total load, and if of iron, the manufacturer or contractor shall cause to be plainly marked upon said girder or column, the weight it will safely sustain, and no greater weight shall be imposed thereon. All beams and girders to have ample bearings upon sufficient capstone or templates of stone or iron.

Iron supports to walls, whether beam, girder or column shall, if required, be thoroughly incased with brick or other approved fireproof material.

Section 30. No wooden floor beam shall be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth. Except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth.

All header and trimmer beams shall be double or one inch thicker than the beams, and where more than six (6) feet long shall be hung in stirrup irons.

All floor and roof beams to have bearings of not less than four (4) inches at ends, and where they rest upon brick or stone walls, shall be cut to a bevel of three (3) inches on their depth.

All wooden beams shall be framed away from all and every kind of flue in walls and chimneys, the trimmer beam to be at least eight (8) inches from the inside of any flue in a straight way, and four (4) inches away from the outside of a chimney breast, and the header not less than two (2) inches from brickwork.

All tiers to be strongly bridged with sufficient rows of continuous herringbone bridging well nailed for every ten foot span.

Each tier of beams to be anchored to all walls every six (6) feet with one and one-half by three-eighths inch wrought iron anchors well secured to side of beams.

All timbers and wooden beams to be free from weakening imperfections, and of full strength of dimension and kind.

Stud partitions are to be continuous wherever practicable, that is, to run down between the beams and rest on the plate of the partition below.

All wooden girders supporting beams shall be carried by brick piers, or iron, locust or other suitable hard wood posts of sufficient strength, on proper foundation.

Section 31. Every hoistway opening is to be provided on each story with a substantial railing; and strong battened trap door securely hinged, such railings and doors to be kept closed at all practical times, except when in actual use by occupants of builings, but especially to be carefully closed each and every day at the completion of business.

Any failure to provide such trap doors, and for every neglect to close the same as herein prescribed, the owner or occupant of said building shall be respectively liable for the violation of this ordinance.

The interior of all elevator or dumb-waiter shafts to be lined with metal or covered with metal lathing and plaster. The doors at each story to be covered with metal on the inside.

Section 32. In the fire limits, all roofs and cornices, the tops and sides of all dormers and gables, all balustrades, pediments and details generally, both constructional and ornamental, shall be of slate, metal or terra cotta.

All cornices and other metal features to be secured to brick work with iron anchors.

All buildings shall be provided with metallic gutters and water leaders, the latter in no case to discharge upon the sidewalk.

The roofs of all buildings within the fire limits shall have a scuttle or bulkhead, covered with approved fireproof material, with fixed ladders or stairs of iron leading thereto. No scuttle is to be less than two by three feet in size, and the frames of all bulkheads are to be filled with brick or fireproof block.

All skylights shall be made only of metal and glass.

Section 33.—No chimney shall be built upon any floor, or be supported in whole or part with wood, but shall be wholly supported on stone, brick or iron.

Corbelling out a chimney shall not exceed eight (8) inches, in not less than six (6) courses of brick, and if supported by piers, said piers shall not be less than twelve (12) inches on the face, and be properly bonded into the wall.

All fireplaces shall have hearths of brick, stone, slate, or tile, not less than eighteen inches in width, to be supported on arches of brick or stone, and under all portable ranges such hearths shall be at least sixteen (16) inches wider on front than depth of range.

All floors under kitchen cook stoves and other stoves shall be covered with metal the same to extend at least one (1) foot, on all sides, beyond base of said stoves.

All stud partitions back of portable kitchen ranges shall be framed sixteen (16) inches higher than smoke pipe opening and one (1) foot wider each side of range, and the opening filled in with brick or fireproof blocks. No stove shall come within two (2) feet of any wooden partition. No wood work shall cross the brick breast of any portable range.

All ash holes, ash houses or ash depositories of any kind shall be built wholly of brick, stone, iron or fireproof material.

All smoke flues with walls less than 8 inches thick shall be lined on the inside with cast iron or fireproof terra cotta pipe, to be built in with brick work, from the bottom of the flue or from the throat of the fireplace, and shall be carried up continuously to the extreme top of chimney, which is to be not less than three (3) feet above the roof, to be coped with stone, terra cotta or iron.

All smoke flues for manufacturing or steam power boilers shall be built with double walls, with an air space between, the inside four (4) inches to be of fire brick or fire clay slabs or blocks laid in fire mortar, to the height of twenty-five (25) feet from the bottom.

All such flues to extend at least ten (10) feet above the highest point of any roof within a radius of fifty (50) feet, and be covered on top with a heavy wire netting.

The fire backs of all fireplaces shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick of solid masonry.

The brickwork on outside faces of all fireplace flues shall not be less than eight (8) inches, unless lined with tile.

All blind and dead flues to be shut off at the underside of the beams of each story.

Section 34. No wooden casing, furring or lath shall be placed against or cover any smoke flue or metal pipe used to convey hot air or steam.

All such flues to be covered with metal lathing, and all flues to be left smooth and clear on the completion of building.

No stovepipe shall pass through any floor or roof of any building or through any woodwork or partitions, unless protected by a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation, and not less than three (3) inches of air space between.

All stovepipes shall in all cases be kept twelve (12) inches away from all beams or unprotected woodwork; if protected by metal work the least distance from woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

All smokepipes from laundry stoves or any kind of heating furnace or boiler must be kept at all points not less than eighteen (18) inches from all unprotected woodwork.

If protected by metal the least distance from the woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

Where such pipe passes through any woodwork or partition it shall be protected by an iron thimble with at least eight inches of brick work around it, or a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation and not less than six (6) inches of air space between.

Section 35. All brick set hot air furnaces shall have two covers, with an air space of at least four (4) inches between, the top to be of brick or metal supported by iron bars, to be made perfectly tight, and there shall not be less than four (4) inches of space between the ceiling or floor beams and top.

All brick set furnaces except hot water furnaces shall have two four (4) inch well bonded brick walls with a not less than three (3) inch air space between. In every case to be built at least four (4) inches from all woodwork.

All portable hot air furnaces shall be kept at least two (2) feet away from any unprotected woodwork or ceilings (plaster not inclusive) and when protected by metal lining the distance shall not be less than one (1) foot.

No furnace shall be placed upon a wooden floor, but if such floor is adjacent thereto, the furnace must in every case be set upon brick or stone base of full size of furnace and to extend not less than two (2) feet beyond the furnace in front of the ash-pan.

Section 36. All hot air flues or shafts in stone or brick work to be lined with metal or burnt clay pipe.

All hot air flues in stud partitions shall be made double, with not less than one-half inch air space between, the back and sides of said channel and all other contiguous beams or woodwork to be lined with metal.

The outer faces of all hot air flues to be covered with metal lathing.

Horizontal hot air pipes shall not be less than three (3) inches below plaster ceilings, and where carried through wood partitions or floors they shall be guarded by either a double collar of metal with two (2) inches of air space and with ventilating holes, or be surrounded by brickwork at least four (4) inches in thickness.

Section 37. Registers shall not be located within four (4) feet distant horizontally from the furnace. When registers for hot air furnaces are placed in any woodwork or combustible floors the sides shall be lined with tin. All register boxes to be made of tin plate with flange, the register to rest upon the same, the sides of boxes to be not less than two (2) inches from all woodwork.

All indirect radiator boxes and all wooden boxes and casings enclosing steam pipes shall be lined with iron or tin.

Section 38. No steam pipe shall be placed within two (2) inches of any timber or woodwork unless same is protected by a metal covering, when the distance shall not be less than one (1) inch.

All steam or hot water pipes passing through floors and ceilings and plastered partitions shall be fully protected by a metal tube one (1) inch larger in diameter than the pipe, and the space filled in with mineral wool, asbestos or other approved non-combustible material.

All cutting of beams for gas, water or other pipes shall be not more than three (3) feet from bearing of beams, and shall be not more than two (2) inches in depth in any case.

Section 39. Every electric wire for furnishing light, heat or power, led into any building from the outside thereof, shall have proper and sufficient appliances to cut off the current where it enters the building.

All inside wires shall be properly insulated and all work throughout be in accordance with the rules and requirements of the Underwriters' Association of this Department, a copy of which said rules and requirements shall be kept on file in the office of said Inspector.

Section 40. No gas burner, unless protected by a bell, shall be placed less than three (3) feet below any ceiling or woodwork, and all side lights and swinging brackets shall be so placed as not to endanger any woodwork, curtains or other combustible material.

Section 41. Every dwelling house occupied by three or more families above the first story, and every building already erected, occupied or used as a hotel, lodging or boarding house, school, theatre, or place of public assembly, and every factory, mill, manufactory or workshop, hospital, asylum, or institution, or office building shall be provided with suitable strong iron fire escapes as may be determined by the Inspector, to be constructed in such manner as he may direct and approve.

The owner or owners of any building upon which any fire escape may be erected is to keep the same in good repair, and no person shall at any time place any encumbrance whatsoever thereon, or remove or disturb any part thereof without committing a violation of this ordinance and incurring penalty and fine thereof.

Section 42. In all buildings of a public character, such as hotels, churches, theatres, restaurants, railroad depots, public halls, and other buildings used or intended to be used for purposes of public assembly, amusement or instruction, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, passageways and aisles, and all lighting and heating appliances and apparatus shall be arranged as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct, to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident, and to afford the requisite and proper accommodation for the public protection in such cases.

All aisles and passageways in said buildings shall be kept free from camp stools, chairs, sofas and other obstructions.

The Inspector of Buildings may, at any time, serve a written or printed notice upon the owner, lessee or manager of any of said buildings, directing any act or thing to be done or provided in or about the said buildings and the several appliances therein connected, such as halls, doors, windows, seats, aisles, fire walls and fire escapes, so as to afford such security to the public in the uses to which they may be severally applied as he may deem necessary.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize or require any other alterations to existing theatres than are specified in this section.

Upon report to the Mayor of said city by the Inspector of Buildings that any order or requirement of this ordinance in regard to theatres or places of public amusement has been violated or not complied with in any such building, the said Mayor may, in his discretion, revoke the license of such theatre or place of public amusement and cause the same to be closed.

Section 43. That the owner or owners of any building or structure or part thereof, upon which any violation of this ordinance in any part or section may be placed, or shall exist, and any architect or building trade mechanic or employer or other person who shall assist or direct in the commission of any such violation, or who shall fail to comply with any of the requirements and provisions of this ordinance in each and every particular, or any order or regulation made thereunder, or who shall in any degree depart from the conditions of the detailed specifications and plans submitted, or of any permit issued thereunder, shall severally be deemed to have violated this ordinance, and upon conviction shall, for each and every violation, respectively, be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty (20) dollars, provided that the penalties provided by this section shall not apply to the next succeeding section of this ordinance.

Section 44. That any and all of the aforementioned persons who, after service of due and proper notice, as hereinafter prescribed, shall fail to comply with said notice within ten (10) days after such service, or who shall continue to violate any requirement of this ordinance in the respect named in said notice, shall, on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding One hundred (100) dollars.

Said notice of violation shall contain a description of the building, premises or property upon which said violation shall have been put, or may exist, or which may be deemed dangerous or unsafe, or to which said notice shall refer; shall specify the dangerous or unsafe condition or other violation of the ordinance complained of, and require removal of any dangerous or unsafe conditions, and strict compliance with the ordinance; and may be served personally upon the person or persons liable for violation, or by leaving said notice at the residence or place of business of such person or persons, or by leaving said notice with a member of the family of such person or persons over sixteen years of age, informing such person with whom said notice is left of its contents.

If the person or persons or any of them to whom the said notice is addressed do not reside in said city or State, and cannot by diligent search be found therein, then the said notice may be served by posting a copy of the same in a conspicuous place upon the premises, and by also depositing a copy therefor in the postoffice of said city, enclosed in a sealed wrapper addressed to the said person or persons at his or their last known place of residence with the postage paid thereon; and said posting and mailing of a copy of said notice shall be equivalent to a personal service of said notice.

The Common Council may, in its discretion, good and sufficient cause being shown therefor, remit any fine or fines, penalty or penalties, which any person or persons may have incurred, or may hereafter incur under any of the provisions of this section; but no fine or penalty shall be remitted for any such violation until the act or omission constituting such violation shall have been satisfactorily corrected.

Approved by the Mayor Jan. 3d, 1896.

A. GILBERT, Mayor.

Realty Transfers.

The following transfers of property have been recorded in the County Clerk's office of Union county from Dec. 26th to Jan. 3d, inclusive, as reported in New Jersey Contractor:

Andrew Schlick, et ux., Plainfield, to Henry Haurand, lot, Third street, $300; Andrew Schlick, et ux., to Harry Werner, Plainfield, lot, Third street, $300; Wm. H. Moore, et ux., Plainfield, to Jeremiah Manning, lot, West Front street, $1; Juliette A. Raymond, Peterboro, Canada, to John E. Keeley, Plainfield, lots, Kensington avenue, $3,500; John D. Runyon, et ux., Plainfield, to Wm. H. Bohl, lot, Astor place, Plainfield, $350. Julia Hattiras, New York, to Albert Hattiras, two lots, Netherwood, $1.

Almost Went up in Smoke.

A large barn belonging to Mrs. Geiser on South avenue, above Berckman street, came very near being burned to the ground during the high wind on Saturnay afternoon, caused by a spark from a locomotive setting fire to the grass near it. Ernest A. Barrett, the plumber, fortunately, was driving past the premises at the time and put out the fire with shovelsfull of dirt, just as the barn was about to take fire.

Smashed the Carriage.

The horse attached to Dr. E. W. Hedges' carriage ran away yesterday afternoon and demolished the carriage. He was hitched on Central avenue, but became restless and managed to unfasten the tie strap. He was caught on Ninth street by J. J. Coard. No one was in the carriage.

Death of a Young Lady.

The death of Miss Bessie Schenck, aged twenty years, daughter of Mrs. L. F. Schenck, occurred this morning from her late home, 40 Manning avenue. She has been ill for some time, and her death was not entirely unexpected. Notice of funeral will be given later.

A Leap Year Event.

The Young People's Progressive Euchre Club, of North Plainfield and Dunellen, meet on Friday evening at the home of Miss Janie Churchill, of Dunellen. It will be a leap year card party.

Grand Jurors.

Elmore D. Moffett and D. S. Pope are two of the members of the Grand Jury from Plainfield at the session which sits at Elizabeth tomorrow.

Toney Lusardi, the bright little fellow who has charge of his father's fruit store on Front street, corner Somerset, proved his honesty this morning by returning five dollars to Front street merchant, who gave him that amount too much in changing a bill.

It will be a gratification to the many friends of Mrs. Wm. W. Myers, sister of J. E. Martine, to hear that she has returned to her home at "Cedar Brook farm," after an absence of some ten weeks at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York. Though still weak, she is doing as well as might be expected.

—The Sangerbund Society has set February 17th as the date for their masquerade ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Agans, of Neshanic, spent yesterday with relatives in this city.

Unconscious Betrayal.

Miss Sears—Well, Bobby, what do you want?

Bobby—Crack this nut for me. I'll do as much for you when I have false teeth.—New York World.

Shipping Ducks' Eggs.

Consul Scott, in a recent report upon the trade of the Chinese town of Swatow, remarks upon the fact that 11,000,000 fresh eggs figure among the exports. But he tells us that all are certainly not fresh, for it is the custom to ship ducks' eggs which have been incubated to within a few days of hatching. These eggs are brought on board the steamers packed in shallow baskets with layers of soft Chinese paper between and around them. The baskets are placed about the deck swung to the awning supports and occasionally are put in position near the boilers, but as a rule the heat of the climate is quite sufficient to complete the hatching of the eggs. It therefore comes about that at the end of the voyage young ducks are landed at Singapore or Bangkok in lieu of the eggs which originally formed part of the cargo. As a rule, the birds come to no harm, but, on the contrary, exhibit quite a thriving appearance.—Chambers' Journal.

The Whistling Language of Gomer.

M. J. Lajard, who has been investigating the much talked of whistling language of the island of Gomer, one of the Canaries, has come to the conclusion that it is really the Spanish language intensified by whistling. When speaking, the Gomerian puts his fingers in his mouth by twos or fours and blows with might and main. The result is a mixture of words and screeching whistles wholly unintelligible to the tyro. After but little acquaintance with this queer language, however, one can easily distinguish the words and understand the meaning of the whistlers.—St. Louis Republic.

A Salubrious Climate.

PRESIDENT SEE AGAIN.

He is Selected to Preside Over the New Common Council.

CIDER JOINTS MUST CLOSE SUNDAYS

The Daily Press' Efforts to Rid the City of the Inebriating Incubators Recognized by Councilman Dumont Who Introduces an Ordinance to Prohibit the Sale of Cider on Sunday—Two Committees Abolished and the Work Put in Other Committees—Makeup of the New Committees—A Veto From the Mayor—Other Business in Detail.

When City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the City Council for 1896 to order last evening every member was in his seat as follows: Councilmen Barrows, Dumont, Fisk, Frost, Ginna, Moore, See, Stebbins, Serrell, Tolles and Westphal.

The first order of business was the election of a president. Wm. G. E. See was the unanimous choice of the members and after Stenographer Geo. B. Wean cast the ballot for him he was escorted to the chair by Councilmen Dumont and Westphal.

President See responded by saying: "I appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me. This is the third term I have been elected to preside over this body and the relations have been very cordial and I hope they may continue. I thank you for the honor."

The election of W. V. Mundy as janitor followed, after which Mr. Fisk made a motion that The Daily Press and News be made the official papers for 1896. It was adopted.

Mr. Fisk offered the rules of 1895 as the rules for 1896, with the following corrections: That the Police and Public Lights committee be made Police committee and that the Printing and Stationery committee be struck out entirely, also that the reading of the title of an ordinance be sufficient instead of the reading of the whole ordinance after the first reading. Mr. Fisk then gave notice that at the next meeting he would offer a resolution that the rules for 1895 be adopted as the rules for 1896. President See then announced the following committees for 1896:

Alms—Ginna, Frost, Stebbins.

Auditing—Westphal, Barrows, Moore

Fire and Buildings—Stebbins, Westphal, Fisk.

Finance—Dumont, Serrell, Barrows.

Laws and Ordinances—Serrell, Stebbins, Tolles.

Lights and Trees—Tolles, Moore, Serrell.

License—Moore, Dumont, Westphal.

Police—Barrows, Fisk, Ginna.

Streets—Fisk, Tolles, Frost.

Water and Sewers—Frost, Ginna, Dumont.

M. Honan & Sons communicated with the Council in regard to the recent damage to the sewer pipes in the eastern part of the city by explosion. They did not consider it was their fault and stated that they were not willing to be responsible. The matter was laid on the table until later in the evening when the committee on sewers was elected. It was then referred to them.

Amos Moffet and George R. Rockafellow, constables, presented their bonds. They were referred to the Finance Committee and later Mr. Dumont made a motion that they be received and recorded. Vincent W. Nash and W. R Codington were sureties for the former; Henry Liefke and George W. Cole for the latter. Both were for $1,000.

A petition from John Vetterlein asking for the priviledge of making alterations and extensions and moving his machine shop from Exchange alley to East Front street, opposite Marsh, Ayers & Co., was referred to the Fire, Building and Street Committees.

At this point the Mayor's message was read. On Mr. Fisk's motion a copy will be furnished to each of the members of the Council, and each suggestion made will be referred to the proper committee for consideration.

The ordidance relating to the licensing of inns and taverns was returned without the Mayor's approval to the Council. It substance the Mayor's opinion on the subject was as follows:

The original ordinance provides that all applications for a saloon license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors shall be signed by the owner of the place proposed for license, (if the applicant be not the owner,) stating that the applicant is known to him to be of good repute for honesty and temperance. The purpose of the amendatory ordinance is to exempt from this requirement an applicant having a lease for a term of ten years or more, provided the owner had knowledge when he made the lease that the tenant intended to use the premises for the purpose of selling spirituous and fermented liquors. I can see no good reason for the exemption of an applicant having a lease for ten years, that does not apply with equal force to an applicant having a lease for three or five years, or for any term longer than one year. The object of the requirement in the original ordinance is a wise one. It fixes upon the owner of the licensed premises a certain degree of responsibility with reference to the orderly character of the place. He alone, of all the signers to the applicant's certificate, has a personal interest, which would prompt him to withhold his signature, if the place should become disorderly. If it is wise to make any discrimination, it would seem better to exempt the applicant with a short lease than one with a long lease, for the reason that the longer the lease the greater the risk of a change taking place in the character of the licensed premises.

In my judgment the only consistent way to accomplish the purpose of this amendatory ordinance, which is apparently made to meet a special case, is to provide that every applicant having a lease for a longer term than one year, having once secured the signature of the owner to his application, shall not be required to again obtain it during the term of his lease. This would be putting all applicants on an equal footing—whether it would be considered wise or not, is an open question. My judgment is that it would not

Mr. Fisk moved that the matter be be received and placed on the minutes. It was so ordered.

The Board of Engineers, through Chief T. O. Doane, recommended that B. F. Moore, of No. 2 company, be transferred to the exempt roll, and that N. H. Guttman be dropped from the department for non-attendance at fires. The recommendations were adopted.

J. F. Parker, of 103 Grove street, and others communicated with the Council asking that hacks, express wagons and other heavy public conveyances, that are usually found on North avenue, near the station, be kept twenty feet from the curb to allow private carriages some privileges. It was referred to the police committee.

On Mr. Fisk's motion, Councilmen Frost, Ginna and Dumont were elected a committee on sewers.

A petition from Assessor Hubbard was referred to the finance committee for consideration.

The following petitions for electric lights were referred to the lights and trees committee: Charles Timpson, Carleton avenue; Philip Cottrell, East Third street; D. F. Stewart, John street; C. G. Ross, La Grande avenue.

The persistent efforts of The Daily Press to rid Plainfield of an abominable nuisance reaped a rich reward last evening when Councilman Dumont offered an ordinance, which was passed on first and second readings, ordered engrossed and duly advertised, that cider in no shape, form or manner shall be sold on Sundays under a penalty of $20 for each and every offense.

This news will be enthusiastically received by thousands of Plainfielders.

A petition from L. L. Croom, of 519 East Sixth street, and others, asked Council to transfer Policeman J. A. Saunders from night duty to day duty. It was referred to the Police Board.

Mr. Fisk moved that the committee on Laws and Ordinances have the laws and ordinances printed all together, up to date. It was so ordered as was also another motion that the clerk be authorized to secure stationery, etc, for the several committees.

Another motion by Mr. Fisk provided that all reports of city officers including the treasurer's for 1893, '94 and '95, and rules of order be prepared and printed in pamphlet form, the City Clerk first securing bids on the work for 300 copies. It was so ordered.

Mr. Dumont stated that last November a city collector had been elected and that the present incumbent would not surrender, and in consequence he moved that when council adjourn it be to meet Monday evening, January 13th. It was so ordered and council adjourned.

Will Continue Injunction Proceedings.

The North Plainfield Board of Health met last night and transacted routine business principally. Dr. Carman, who attended the State Board meeting at Atlantic City, made a few remarks relative thereto.

E. P. Stevens, of Grandview avenue, resigned as a member of the Board on account of ill health. The Board stated that they were perfectly satisfied with the work now being done in the city on North avenue, and were willing to wait until spring if they could be sure all would connect. However, they are still going to find out whether they are entitled to an injunction. After paying a few bills the meeting adjourned.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

The other departments will be as follows: Supper room, cafe, women's industrial booth, men's industrial booth, Japanese booth, candy stall, orange tree, fancy stall, old woman in the shoe, country grocery store, lemonade table, flower and fruit stand, stationary store, at which copies of the Daily Press will be on sale containing full accounts of the fair, and other news of the chapel.

JUDGE DE MEZA'S DEBUT.

The Young Lawyer Takes His Seat on the Bench Today.

City Judge DeMeza was initiated in his duties at the city court this morning and one offender of the city ordinances is resting in Elizabeth. At 9 o'clock this morning the Judge stepped up to the bench and seated himself.

"Let me congratulate your honor," said Sergeant Kiely, who represented the city in the absence of Chief Grant, with a hearty grasp of the hand, and the audience echoed the sentiment.

The prisoner then stepped up to the bar. He was a colored individual with a face that showed a close acquaintance with somebody's fists. Sergeant Kiely made the arrest and charged him with quarreling, fighting and using disorderly language. Yesterday afternoon a colored man named Lee Wells came to the Sergeant and told him Charlie Lee had struck him while in Fairchild's alley and had tried to thrash him. Lee, he said, could be found at Babbitt's place. Thither Kiely went and found that Lee had received the worst of the scrap. He told Lee to behave himself and tried to patch up the quarrel. When he returned that way later in the afternoon he found Lee chasing Wells about the streets. Lee was promptly arrested and Wells ordered to appear against him this morning.

Lee did not have much to say in his own defense and owned up to the fact that he was a "little drunk."

"Ten dollars or thirty days," said the new Judge and, as the prisoner could not pay the fine, he decided to take the term in jail.

The Judge closed with a few remarks to the effect that fighting and the use of profane language on the streets must be stopped.

In Search of His Property.

C. Fritz, a farmer, living near Westfield, was in Plainfield, Saturday afternoon, looking for a bay mare that had strayed away several days ago. The only distinguishing mark that he could give was that the left hind leg was thicker than the other.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Reorganize For the New Year With the Same Officials.

ROUTINE BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

A Communication From Stephen A. Krom With Reference to Individual Drinking Cups For Each Pupil Causes Considerable Discussion—New Committees Appointed—Dr. Probasco Presents the Board With a Set of Books.

The first meeting of the Board of Education for 1896 was held last evening in the High School. Messrs. Probasco, Lovell, Lounsbury, Abbott and subsequently Mr. Jenkins, were present. The first business was the organization of the board for the new year. Dr. Probasco was nominated by Mr. Lovell as president of the board and was unanimously elected. Mr. Lovell nominated Mr. Lounsbury as permanent secretary and he was elected unanimously.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and those of the adjourned meeting were read and approved. A long list of approved bills was then read by the secretary and all were ordered paid. Another batch of several bills was then read and ordered paid if found correct. A bill from the city was then read for the board's share of the salary of the tax assessor and tax collector which amounted to $820.93. It was ordered paid. A notice from the City National Bank was read stating that the rent on the safe deposit vault had been paid up partially through November. The committee was given power to settle with the bank as the new safe will now be used instead. It was moved and carried that the note of the City National Bank, which comes due in a short time, be ordered paid.

The report of City Treasurer told that he had $661.81 to the credit of the Board, having received it from B. Holmes, county superintendent, for the support of public schools. City Collector Johnson's report was read, showing that in the last year $26,180.16 had been collected, which added to the interest of $58.13, made the amount deposited to the credit of the Board, $26,233.29.

A letter was next read from Dr. Probasco in which he presented the Board with a set of the Century Dictionary and Encyclopaedia and a stand for it. After the members had inspected and admired the gift, on motion of Mr. Lovell, a vote of thanks was given Dr. Probasco.

Mr. Lounsbury read the report of the building committee. The report stated that the Washington School had been equipped with electric lights at a cost of $80.90. The safe was purchased as was also the letter file. Repairs had been made to the various school building during the last month, principally to the heating apparatus. The gun closet had been constructed on the first floor of the High School building at an expense of $18. Sewer connections had been made, as far as possible, at all the schools. The committee recommended a definite sanitary plan for use in the various schools. Such a plan should include a thorough remodeling of the ventilation of the various closets, the same, at present, being quite imperfect.

The attention of the Board was called to the floor of the Washington building which is in a deplorable condition, while the heating apparatus needs attention. The recommendation was that the work be done during the summer vacation.

A letter from the Board of Health was next read saying that they referred a communication to the Board of Education without action. The communication referred to was from Sthphen J. Krom asking the Board of Health to adopt the same rules as have been adopted by the New York Board of Health. They provided that a covered pitcher should be placed in each class room and that each pupil should have an individual cup. The use of slates, slate pencils, and sponges among the pupils should be discontinued. Pencils and penholders should be kept in a box especially for that purpose. The property of children suffering with contagious diseases should be thoroughly disinfected or destroyed.

Mr. Loundsbury thought it very kind of the Board of Health to send the communication, but was of the opinion that any action in that direction came under the work of the Board of Health. Dr. Jenkins said that there was very little danger of transmitting disease in the present methods used.

Mr. Lovell remarked that in his opinion most of the rules had been already adopted and he favored all except the first part regarding individual cups. Mr. Abbott said that Mr. Lovell's remarks voiced his sentiments also. Dr. Probasco thought that the water standing in the same room with the scholars would become contaminated and favored the present method of running water. He said the school took all the precautions necessary. Mr. Lovell then moved that the secretary reply to the Board of Health, thanking them for sending Krom's communication. It was carried.

President Probasco announced the election of clerk as the next business to be transacted. On motion of Mr. Lounsbury, F. B. Clark was elected clerk at a salary of $400 a year.

Mr. Lounsbury next brought up the question of purchasing a letter press. He read a letter from a Mr. Coles, of Rahway, offering a new one for $4. The question was referred to the committee with power.

The following committees were then announced by President Probasco:

Fuel, Messrs. Jenkins, Lovell and Abbott; finance, Messrs. Lovell, Jenkins and Lounsbury; building, Messrs. Lounsbury, Probasco and Lovell; teachers and text books, Messrs. Probasco, Jenkins and Abbott; books, stationery and supplies, Messrs. Abbott Lounsbury and Probasco.

The board then went into executive session.

ALBRO LYONS DEAD.

Prominent Colored Man, Once of Plainfield, Passes Away.

Albro Lyons, for many years prominent as a leader of the negro race in this country, died on Thursday at his home at No 51 St. Felix street, Brooklyn. He was born eighty-three years ago. His mother was a Montauk Indian. He was one of the two surviving members of the first committee appointed to work for the education of colored children, and was active in assisting slaves to escape from the southern States to Canada. At the time of the draft riots he was compelled to leave New York. He lost all his property. He moved to Plainfield, where he became prominent in politics. At one time he was a candidate for Councilman in the Fourth ward and was defeated by only four votes. In 1888 he was a Commissioner to the New Orleans Exposition. He leaves one son, who is a tea merchant, and a daughter, who is a teacher in the public schools.

AFRAID OF RER HUSBAND.

A Family Affair Aired on Craig Place Last Evening.

An unfortunate family affair was witnessed on Craig place last evening. Mrs. David S. Vail, of Manning avenue, had been out visiting in the afternoon at a friend's house on Craig place. Her husband learning that she was away from home went after her. He had been drinking and was inclined to be loud in his talk and manner. Mrs. Vail called on a resident of the street to assist her which he did.

Marshal Doud was finally sent for and when he arrived found Mrs. Vail leaning against the fence, crying. She asked him to take her to Mrs. Smalley's house on Somerset street, opposite the Crescent Hotel. She remained there last night.

Mr. Vail was not willing to prefer charges against her husband.

Sewer Figures.

The following figures taken from Engineer A. J. Gavett's report show the amount of work done in laying sewer pipes, stock on hand and cost up to date: Total number feet of 24, 18, 15, 12, 10, and 8 inch sewer pipe 124,875.07; total number manholes, lampholes, flush tanks, Y and T branches, and extensions on the same, 13,836; total number feet of 3, 4, 6, and 8 inch inch underdrain, 12,788,01. Total cost of construction, materials, etc., up to date, including 1894-'95, $128,790.13.

Masquerade Ball Committee.

The following is the committee who will have charge of the masquerade ball of the Saengerbund Society on February 17th: Henry Haurand, chairman; Ignatz Kohner, secretary; Otto Keller, M. Meissner, Chas. Meyer, H. Vogel, G. Housman, Aug. Wolff, John Wirth.

—Lillian Kennedy and her brother, James Kennedy, as mirth provokers, are a host in themselves. 10, 20, 30 cents.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

Practical Observations and Suggestions About City Work.

LOGICALLY REVIEWS THE TAX RATE.

He Says That People Demand the Improvements of a Big City and Yet Express Surprise at the Rate Being Higher Than Some of the Larger Cities—Recommends the Codification of the City Ordinances—Plainfield is Now Second Class.

The following is the full text of Mayor Gilbert's message read to the Common Council last evening:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Since my last annual message to your Honorable Body Plainfield has been enrolled among the second-class cities of the State This in time will work an important change in the powers of the Common Council, and in the internal structure of our municial government. Under the law as it now stands, after the expiration of ninety days from the time of the filing of the State Census, Plainfield will be c assified as a second-class city, and will be subject to all future legislation affecting second-class cities. Past legislation will not apply until the Common Counc l, by resolution or by ordinance, shall so determine.

Would it not be well to refer this matter to your Committee on Laws and Ordinance, with instructions to investigate and report what laws already on the statute books affecting second-class cities it would be advantageous to the city to adopt?

CODIFICATION OF ORDINANCES.

A matter that merits early attention is the codification of the Ordinances of the city. The last Code was prepared in 1890, since which time many new ordinances have been adopted and many old ones amended. I would suggest a thorough revision this year, and that hereafter a supplement be printed every two or three years in order that the ordinances may be kept in shape for ready reference.

It is provided in a State law passed in 1895, "that the Common Council may codify the ordinances of the City, and the said ordinances when printed in book form and codified as true ordinances of the city by the City Counsel or Attorney and approved by the Mayor, shall be received by all courts as evidence."

TAXES.

No better reply can be made to the criticism that the increase in the tax rate during the past few years has been unnecessarily high than to furnish an abstract of the Treasurer's Statement for 1895, showing the amount expended by the several departments. It must be born in mind that there has been a marked suburban development during the part few years. New streets have been opened and old ones have been improved. New buildings have been erected and occupied in the newly improved section. The development of the fourth ward alone has been phenomenal. This new growth calls for an increase of public expenditure,—for street improvements, for lights, and for police and fire protection. Our people demand all the conveniences of the larger cities, and express surprise if the tax rate proves be higher than in larger cities. It is manifestly unfair to compare the rate in Plainfield with that of New York or Brooklyn. If Plainfield was a thickly settled city, it would accommodate a population of one hundred and fifty thousand people, and with such a population, while it would have no greater mileage of streets to improve, or to patrol, or to light, or to supply with fire hydrants, it would have fully ten times the present population and a proportionately larger property valuation to tax. Would it not be surprising under such a condition if the tax rate should not be proportionately lower.

The following summary from Treasurer's report will show expenditures of the several departments for 1895, to which I invite the most careful consideration and the freest criticism on the part of tax payers:

Expended on Street	$12,688 05
Steam Road Roller	2,890 00
Street Lights	10,253 23
Police Department	10,352 92
Salaries and Commissions	8,890 61
Fire Department	10,159 32

SEWERS.

The people are to be congratulated that our sewerage system will soon be in full, and I trust successful operation. So much care has been taken with every detail of the work that I feel confident we shall not be disappointed with the result.

The system embracing 23 miles of streets will cost from 150,000 to $160,000. The original estimate of cost was $100,000, but that estimate covered but 15 miles of sewers, the idea originally being to lay pipes only where they were deemed necessary at that time. In view, however, of the rapid growth of the city, and the fact that the entire city would have to be covered in a few years, it was thought wise to embrace in our present contract every street that could be connected with the system. The saving effected by this is considerable, as it is not likely that we should be able again in a long time to make contracts so favorable to the city as our present contracts.

BONDS.

The successful negotiation of the sewer bonds on a four per cent basis is also a matter for congratulation, and the wisdom of the action of the Common Council in taking advantage of an easy money market to sell them, has been fully and quickly vindicated.

In view of the present disturbed financial condition of the country, it is not at all likely that we should be able at any time during the next year or two, to negotiate our bonds at better than a five or six per cent basis.

In the recent discussion with regard to the price at which our bonds were sold, it was claimed by those who were disposed to criticise adversely the action of the council—that many four per cent municipal bonds issued by cities whose credit would not compare favorably with our own, had been sold at a high premium, and that the failure to obtain a premium for our own gilt edge bonds fully justified the adverse criticism. ADVANCING ON HAVANA

Near Approach of Rebels Causes Alarm.

People Fleeing to the Capital for Protection — The Town of San Gabriel Burned — More Sugar Estates Destroyed — Government Centering Troops at Havana.

Havana, Jan. 7.—The stations of the Villanueva railroad at Melena and Guara, a few miles to the westward of Guines, in this province, have been destroyed by the rebels. The insurgents then marched on the town of San Felipe, at the junction of the Batabano and Villanueva railroads. The mayor of the town was warned of their approach and gathered two hundred men with whom he intended to defend the town. Maximo Gomez, the insurgent leader, sent word to the mayor that if the insurgents were fired upon he would burn the town to the ground. The inhabitants begged the mayor to make no resistance as they did not want to lose their property, and the mayor acceded to their wishes and notified Gomez that no defense of the town would be made. The latter, at the head of 4,000 men, then entered San Felipe. No damage was done to property. In the zone of Quivicah, Duran and San Felipe the rebels have destroyed the sugar estates of Salvador, Julia, San Augustin, Mercedita, Santa Teresa, Mora and Mi Rosa.

Seeking Shelter in Havana.

A number of families fleeing from the rebels at Melena have arrived at Jesus del Monte, a suburb of Havana. The government column under the command of Gen. Suarez Valdez arrived last evening at Regala, a small town situated across the bay from Havana. A train on the Villanueva railroad, which arrived here at 9 o'clock last evening, brought a number of families from San Felipe, Bejucal, Duran, Melena and Guara, who are seeking safety under the guns of Havana. The train also brought a detachment of troops from the Barrito estate at Duran. Passengers from Melena state that the rebels entered that town and made an attack on the church establishment. The mayor tried to oppose them, but he was killed. A body of rebels also marched into Quivican, where they captured a quantity of arms and ammunition. The railway station was set on fire and destroyed.

Burned a Town.

At San Gabriel the rebels burned the town and the station of the Western Railway company. The inhabitants of the place took refuge in the bush. Only three houses in the place were left standing. A petard was exploded in front of La Corona cigar factory in this city. The explosion caused much excitement in the vicinity, but no harm was done. An iron bomb was also exploded near Alvarez. A house was damaged and a large hole made in the ground. The greatest alarm prevails among the residents in this city as it is known that the insurgents are advancing on the city from several quarters.

Killed with Machetes.

More than 400 men have gone to the field from this city, Guantanamo and Manzanillo during the last week. Rebel leader Jose Maceo with 1,700 men has been encamped in Escandel, nine miles from this city, since yesterday. It is said that he is there to protect a Cuban convoy of 200,000 rounds of ammunition, which arrived in an expedition lately near that place, and which is on its way to Camagueo. As soon as Gen. Pando arrived at Guantanamo he began his old method of arresting people in the middle of the night. Three or four of these men were taken out of the town and killed with machetes. On the 19th inst. Gen. Canellas entered Guantanamo, taking with him 245 men who were wounded in the battles of Ramon de la Yaguas, La Tontina and Palmerito. Among the wounded were a commander and a guide.

To Surround the Insurgents.

Havana, Jan. 7.—The troops that have been ordered to proceed east from the province of Santa Clara in order to join the forces in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio are arriving at Batabano, the southern terminus of the Havana and Batabano railroad, whence they can be quickly transferred to Havana or points in Pinar del Rio. The Cubans still avoid fighting a decisive battle with the government troops, generally retiring after exchanging a few shots with the soldiers. As these are the tactics always followed by them, according to government stories, it has been thought advisable to surround them and then to gradually close the lines upon them, driving them to a stand in the centre. Orders to this effect it is asserted by the Spaniards have been issued, and the troops are reported to be rapidly surrounding the insurgents. The trains on the railroad running west from Havana do not go any further than La Salud, as the insurgents are in complete possession of the territory a little further west.

Imprisoning Women.

Santiago de Cuba, Dec. 26, via Key West, Fla., Jan. 7.—The Spanish authorities here are not satisfied with imprisoning men, but are beginning to arrest women also. On the 24th inst. Mrs. Manuela Canoino de Beola and Mrs. Juana Quintero were brought here from Manzanillo, and were taken through the streets on foot to jail surrounded by soldiers, who would not allow them to take a coach, hoping to humiliate them the more. Mrs. Beola was the principal of a public school in Vicana, jurisdiction of Manzanillo. On the steamer which sailed from this port for Havana yesterday the government sent back to their prisons in Spain a brigade of soldiers, who, at the beginning of the war, were fulfilling sentences for different crimes and who were ordered to be released on condition that they go to Cuba to fight against the insurgents. They say that the government has sent them back to prison because a majority of them have joined the rebels.

CELEBRATION AT SALT LAKE.

Great Rejoicing Over the Admission of Utah to Statehood.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 7.—The people of the new state of Utah observed yesterday as a triumphal holiday in celebration of the entrance of the territory upon its career as the forty-fifth sovereign state of the union. This city, the capital, was literally clothed in bunting and decorations of great variety and beauty. The day opened with the booming of cannon and the ringing of bells. This was followed by an immense street parade of soldiers of the 16th United States infantry, state militia, police, state and civic officials, fraternal, local organizations of various kinds and citizens. The streets were thronged with visitors from all parts of the state and the grand procession terminated at the great Mormon tabernacle, where the exercises were held. Acting Gov. Richards, in the absence of Gov. West, shortly after noon called the assemblage to order and presided during the exercises and surrendered the office to the new governor, Heber M. Wells. Wilford Woodruff, president and head of the Mormon church led in prayer, after which the oath of office was administered to the new state officers by Chief Justice Zane.

WILL OF MRS. NEVINS.

Over $20,000 Disposed of and Charities Not Forgotten.

Boston, Jan. 7.—The will of the late Mrs. Eliza S. Nevins of Boston disposes of $200,000 and includes many public bequests. Among them are to the Boston Y. M. C. U., American Unitarian association, Roxbury Charity society and Mrs. Vincent's hospital of Boston $5,000 each; First Religious society of Roxbury, $2,000; First Parish (Unitarian) of Brighton, Unitarian church in Nantucket, Ladies' Relief association of Nantucket, Childrens' Aid society and Nantucket athenaeum, both of Nantucket, $2,000; South End Industrial school, Boston, $1,000. Mrs. Nevins also left a memorandum with her son, David Nevins, who is sole executor, requesting him to make a donation in her name, to the "Nevins Memorial" at Methuen.

America's Club Committee's Report

New York, Jan. 7.—The report of the America's club committee is complete and will probably be made public today. This report will cover all the facts connected with the international races of 1895, but, of course, will not deal with the Dunraven charges against the Defender syndicate.

John Stewardson Drowned.

Philadelphia, Jan. 7.—John Stewardson, aged 36 years, a member of the firm of Cope & Stewardson, architects, was drowned yesterday afternoon by falling through the ice on the Schuylkill river while skating. Mr. Stewardson was one of the most prominent architects in Philadelphia.

Dined by Senator Brice.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Senator Brice entertained at dinner last evening the secretary of state and Mrs. Olney, the British ambassador and Lady Pauncefote, the attorney general, the Spanish minister and Senora Dupy de Lome, the Belgian minister, Senators Hill and Hale and L. Z. Leiter.

For a Parcel Post Convention.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, called upon Postmaster General Wilson yesterday and submitted a proposition from the postmaster general of Great Britain for the negotiation of a parcel post convention between the two countries.

Grateful to Minister Terrell.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Secretary Olney has a copy of a letter from Rev. C. C. Tracy, president of the Marsovan college, Armenia, expressing in warm terms the gratitude of the American missionaries in Turkey for Minister Terrell's exertions in their behalf.

Drowned While Skating.

Baltimore, Jan. 7.—Louis P. Davenport, 31 years old, a student of Lehigh university, was drowned yesterday in Lake Poland. Davenport took his sister to the lake to skate. The ice gave way with him and before assistance could reach him he sank.

Branded as Frauds.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The postoffice department has denied the privileges of the mails to the Nordenberg Art company of New York city for alleged fraudulent practices. Also to the Princess Toilet company of South Bend Ind.

New York State Library.

Albany, Jan. 7.—During the last month of the year 1,318 volumes were added to the New York state library, making with the traveling libraries and duplicates a total of 315,861 volumes.

Steamship Ashore.

Dolphin at Puerto Barrios.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The dispatch boat Dolphin has arrived at Puerto Barrios, the port of Livingston, Guatamala.

GOLD AND SILVER OUTPUT.

Estimated Production in the United States of the Two Metals.

Washington, Jan. 7.—B. E. Preston, director of the mint, has received an approximate estimate of the gold and silver product of the United States in 1895, from the mint officers and other agents employed to collect these statistics. The value of the gold and the number of fine ounces of silver produced by the several states and territories is estimated to have been $52,614,000 in gold and $51,000,000 in silver. The director of the mint is of the opinion that the estimates of the gold product of Oregon and that of Montana and South Dakota are excessive, and that when the final figures are compiled the production of gold by the mines of the United States in 1895 will be found to have been from $46,000,000 to $47,000,000 and the silver product about 46,000,000 fine ounces.

THE CASE OF "BAT" SHEA.

A Sworn Statement To Be Secured from McGough.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Deputy Attorney General Hasbrouk and District Attorney Burlingame of Albany, together with Galen R. Hitt and Frank T. Norton, the counsel for "Bat" Shea, arrived here last night enroute for Clinton prison. They expect to get a sworn statement to-day from McGough, the self-confessed murderer of Robert Ross, for the killing of whom "Bat" Shea was to die to-day. The gentlemen profess to know absolutely nothing further than the confession made by McGough. To all inquiries concerning the case Warden Thayer has replied that all information must come from the executive chamber.

NEW TRIAL FOR DOWNING.

Judge Parker's Charge Criticized by U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington, Jan. 7.—In the United States supreme court yesterday, Sam Downing, alias Sam Bickery, who has been twice convicted before Judge Parker of the murder of Joseph Wilson, a white man, in the Cherokee nation, was granted a new trial. Justice White, announcing the opinion, severely criticized Judge Parker's charge. The sentence of death, passed by the same judge, upon George and John Pierce for the murder of William Vandever, in the Indian Territory, was affirmed.

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE.

The King of Ashanti Tired of War with the English.

Cape Coast Castle, British West Africa, Jan. 7.—Scouts sent forward into the Ashanti territory have returned to the British outposts and report that King Prempeh has sent a messenger to meet the expedition, now on its way to Coomasie, in order to propose terms of peace.

Their Salaries Withheld.

Albany, Jan. 7.—State Comptoller Roberts has held up the pay of C. G. Straat, messenger, and Miss H. B. Franklin, stenographer of the new state prison commission, whose appointments had not been certified to him by the state civil service commission. The prison committee paid no regard to the regulations of the civil service commission.

Their Convictions Stand.

Boston, Jan. 7.—The full bench of the supreme judicial court yesterday afternoon overruled the exceptions of Patick Sullivan, Patrick J. Folley and Cornelius Nagle, convicted of the murder of Dorey S. Foster at Bellerica, Sept. 11, 1894. The defendants were found guilty of murder in the second degree.

Judgment in Favor of New York.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The supreme court has rendered a decision in the claim of the state of New York against the government for interest in money raised and expended by the state for the equipment of troops during the war, awarding the full amount of $130.000 claimed by the state.

Tenacious Chronic Case Gives Way to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Thirty-one years ago, after dangerous illness, my neck began to swell. It did not give me any trouble, except the deformity, for many years. About ten years ago it commenced to pain me and if I took cold I would have Terrible Choking Spells.

Even my people thought my last hour had come. I read of a lady in Kalamazoo, Mich., who had been cured of goitre by Hood's Sarsaparilla and immediately began to take this medicine, using several bottles. My neck measured 21 inches last May against 16 inches now. It is a wonder and astonishment to my friends and neighbors, for I was growing worse all the time and no one thought I could live through the winter. All thought a cure impossible as I am 64 years of age." MRS. MARY HINKLEY, Frederika, Iowa. Take only Hood's.

Fatal

✲ Pneumonia.

That dreaded disease that temporarily compels a cessation of the work of all the greater organs of the body, thus stopping the digestion of food, the creation of new tissue, brings the patient to a point where the flickering flame of life is blown out like the light of a burnt-out candle. To make recovery probable, keep up the patient's strength — give him that great concentrated essence of the vital principles of lean beef, the strength of which is enhanced by our special cold process method of manufacture, it can be retained by the weakest stomach, and in every instance makes blood, flesh and strength. Dr. Charles Wilson, Atwell Ave., Providence, says; "My wife suffered a severe attack of pneumonia; after passing the acute stage fearing heart failure, I gave her freely Bovinine and port wine, equal parts. I have never seen such good results. I am a hearty believer in Bovinine for quick nutrition." Over 25000 other physicians endorse it equally strong.

THE NEW BOND CALL

How It Is Viewed by New York Bankers.

Generally Approved, But Some Doubt Entertained as to Whether It Can Be Floated by Public Letting—Members of the Syndicate Have Nothing To Say.

New York, Jan. 7.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the head of the bond syndicate, said this morning regarding the government bond issue: "I am not prepared to say what course the syndicate will pursue. There is thirty days in which to think over the matter. No one has yet withdrawn from the syndicate. I do not see why people who desire to bid for bonds should not be able to get gold. The syndicate has no corner in it." Generally speaking it may be said, as a result of a canvass of the banking fraternity in Wall street, that the president's action in calling for bids for a new loan was approved, but it was thought unfortunate that so long a period as thirty days must elapse before the question whether the loan will be floated by public letting can be determined. The call, it was said, leaves everybody in suspense for a whole month, during which time a great deal of harm may arise. Frederick D. Tappen, president of Gallatin National Bank and chairman of the clearing house loan committee, was an exception to the rule which apparently prevailed among bank presidents generally. He was willing to speak on the subject of the call for the loan and was willing to be quoted. He said: "I think the call for a loan is a good thing, and I think it will succeed. At any rate it will settle the question whether the people want the bonds or not. If they don't, the bonds will have to be placed through a syndicate."

Believe the Plan Will Fail.

Baltimore, Jan. 7.—In commenting on the proposed government loan, Messrs. Hambleton & Co. said: "We fear that the popular loan now proposed by Secretary Carlisle will be a failure. The government wants what the public does not possess—gold. It is true there are about $200,000,000 gold held by the national banks all over the country, nearly half of it at New York, but this gold is generally counted as the bank reserve fund, and any very large portion of it could not be released, even if the banks desired to buy the bonds. Certainly the banks will not give up their gold to their customers. In deference to the sentiment of the United States senate, the president is justified in trying a popular loan, but we have no idea that he proposes to wait thirty days before taking steps to strengthen the gold reserve fund and anticipate that he will, should it become necessary, not hesitate to sell bonds privately to a syndicate."

Paper for the Bonds Ordered.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Orders have been given to Chief Johnson of the bureau of engraving and printing to prepare the distinctive paper for the printing of the new issue of bonds. As all the plates are ready, all that will be necessary will be to print the face of the bonds when it is known how many of each denomination is wanted. The treasury has not figured officially on what the new bonds should sell for to bring them up to the market price of the bonds sold to the Belmont-Morgan syndicate, but it is stated unofficially that 119 to 119.15 is about the proper rate to put them on a 3 per cent. basis.

Sees Danger in Silver.

London, Jan. 7.—The Daily News to-day appeals to Americans to subscribe to the new United States loan, which, it adds, involves much greater difficulties than those which were successfully met last February. The country, it says, is appreciably near the danger of a silver basis. The subscriptions invited is obviously inadequate to meet the case. President Cleveland seems to be fully alive to the gravity of the situation, but congress apparently requires a further object lesson in the elements of sound finance.

Approve the President's Action.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—While there is some difference of opinion among Chicago brokers and bankers in regard to the action of the national administration in issuing a call for a popular loan of $100,000,000, the general impression is that the president did the proper thing and that Chicago capital will do its part in floating the bonds.

Not Organizing a New Syndicate.

New York, Jan. 7.—John A. Stewart, president of the United States Trust company, stated last evening that there was no truth in the report that he was organizing an independent syndicate to subscribe for the new bonds.

Detained as an Insane Man.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Hugo Egle, a well dressed man about 25 years old, who says he comes from Peru, Ind., and is a musician, is under arrest here as being insane. Egle believes that some one is following him to do him harm.

Picked Up at Sea.

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 7.—The smack Four Friends, just arrived here, reports having picked up a negro, John Denton, seventy-five miles from Cape San Blas on Dec. 27, he having been at sea in an open boat five days without food or water.

Canadian Fancy Skaters.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Ten members of the Queen's University Hockey club, Kingston, Canada, are in Washington, and last night gave an exhibition of fancy skating at the ice rink here.

WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL

Fierce Struggle Between Boers and Uitlanders.

No Confirmation of the Reported Rescue of Dr. Jameson, But the Story Probably True—Germany Assures Protection to President Kruger—Cecil Rhodes' Successor.

London, Jan. 7.—Although the British government is doing all it can to suppress news from the Transvaal government enough has leaked out to make it certain that the South African republic is in a state of civil war and that a great struggle is on between the Uitlanders and Boers for supremacy. In numbers the Uitlanders have the advantage but the the Boere are determined fighters and besides they are the best equipped for war. The sensational dispatch announcing that Dr. Jameson had been released by the Uitlanders has not been officially confirmed, but as the news came from the London consul of the Transvaal republic it is probably correct. The presumption is that a rising has occurred and that the Boers, who had the custody of Jameson and his men, have been overwhelmed. The same dispatch also states that the British government is rushing troops to Cape Town. Twelve hundred soldiers left Bombay yesterday and more are to follow.

Cecil Rhodes Out.

Dispatches received from Cape Town state that the resignation of Cecil Rhodes as prime minister of the Cape Colony has been accepted by Gov. Sir Hercules Robinson, and Sir Gordon Sprigg, treasurer of the Cape government, has been appointed in his place.

Germany's Aid Assured.

Berlin, Jan. 7.—The emperor gave an audience last evening to Dr. Leyd, secretary of state of the South African republic. His majesty assured the doctor that the Transvaal republic could reckon upon the protection of Germany.

To Land Troops at Cape Town.

London, Jan. 7.—The Central News says it has been decided to land at Cape Town the 1,200 troops who were recently ordered home from Bombay on the transport Victoria. The transport is due to arrive at Cape Town on Jan. 16. Some of the soldiers are invalids, while others are men whose time has expired.

Count de Laubespin Dead.

Paris, Jan. 7.—Count de Laubespin, senator for Nievre, died here yesterday at his residence on the Rue de l'Universite. He was born in Paris on September 6, 1810, and served in the army for some years, retiring in 1848 with the rank of captain. He was elected a member of the senate in 1888. He was a member of a large number of philanthropical institutions.

Not Aimed at the Order.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Postmaster General Wilson has informed M. J. Smith, secretary of the St. Louis branch of the National Association of Postoffice clerks, that his recent order against lobbying was not intended as a condemnation of such organizations and he had no desire that the St. Louis branch or any other should disband.

Supreme Court Appointments.

Albany, Jan. 7.—The following appointments have been made in the supreme court, New York city, after a non-competitive civil service examination: Assistant clerks, Obed H. Sanderson and Arthur D. Truax. Senographers, Henry G. Smith, John P. Martin and Henry Alexander.

Claimed $123,382; Awarded $5,446

Washington, Jan. 7.—The United States court of claims has rendered a judgment in favor of John H. Starin of New York for the transfer of passengers and baggage in New York under contract with the government in 1884 for $5,446. The amount claimed was $123,382.

Killed by a Falling Weight.

Shamokin, Pa., Jan. 7.—While four workmen were being lowered into the new shaft of the Luke Fidler mine yesterday, the weight which balances the elevator broke and it fell upon them. They were instantly killed, and their bodies terribly mangled.

Suffering in the Adirondacks.

Saratoga, N. Y., Jan. 7.—At Saratoga Springs, Gansevoort, Hadley and Schroon Lake the thermometer registers 28 degrees below zero, while in the Adirondack mountains it has reached 12 below. There is much suffering.

Chicago Board of Trade.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The annual board of trade election yesterday resulted in another triumph for President William T. Baker, he being elected for a fourth term by a majority of 215 votes in a total cast of 1,357.

Overcome by Naturnal Gas.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Abraham Scranton and wife of Sheridan, this county, were overcome by natural gas yesterday. Mrs. Scranton cannot recover and Mr. Scranton is in a critical condition.

Gold Reserve Down to $61,351,826.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The treasury gold reserve stood at the opening of business to-day, with all withdrawals out, at $61,351,826. The withdrawals yesterday amounted to $166,000.

For a New High School.

Southington, Conn., Jan. 7.—A town meeting last evening appropriated the sum of $30,000 for a new high school.

FREE COINAGE VICTORY

A Majority of at Least Ten in the Senate.

Finance Committee Decides To Substitute the Measure of the Western Men for the House Bond Bill—Silver Men Say Further Debate Would Be Useless.

Washington, Jan. 7.—It took the senate committee on finance yesterday afternoon less than fifteen minutes to order a favorable report on a free coinage bill as a substitute to the house bond bill which has been before that committee for several days. On motion of Mr. Voorhees, former chairman of the committee, all after the enacting clause was stricken out and the following subistituted: 1. That from and after the passage of this act the mints of the United States shall be open to the coinage of silver, and there shall be coined dollars of the weight of 412½ grains troy of standard silver, nine-tenth fine, as provided by the act of January 18, 1887, and upon the same terms and subject to the limitations and provision of law regulating the coinage and legal tender quality of gold; and whenever the said coins herein provided for shall be received into the treasury, certificates may be issued therefore in the manner now provided by law.

No Bank Notes Less Than $10.

2. That the secretary of the treasury shall coin into silver dollars, as soon as practicable, according to the provisions of section one of this act, from the silver bullion purchased under the authority of the act of July 14, 1890, entitled "An act directing purchase of silver bullion and the issue of treasury notes thereon and for other purposes," that portion of said silver bullion which represents the seigniorage or profit to the government, to wit, the difference between the cost of the silver purchased under said act and its coinage value, and said silver dollars as coined shall be used in the payment of the current expenses of the government, and for the purpose of making said seigniorage, immediately available for use as money, the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized and directed to issue silver certificates against it, as if it were already coined and in the treasury. 3. That no national bank note shall be hereafter issued of a denomination less than ten dollars, and all notes of such banks now outstanding of denominations less than that sum shall be, as rapidly as practicable, taken up, redeemed and cancelled, and notes of ten dollars and larger denominations shall be issued in their stead under the direction of the comptroller of the currency.

Free Coinage Victory.

4. The secretary of the treasury shall redeem the United States notes commonly called greenbacks and also the treasury notes issued under the provisions of the act of July 14, 1890, when presented for redemption, in standard silver dollars or in gold coin, using for redemption of said notes either gold or silver coins, or both, not at the option of the holder but exclusively at the option of the treasury department, and said notes, commonly called greenbacks, when so redeemed, shall be reissued as provided by the act of May 31, 1878. This measure was agreed upon at a conference of the silver members of the committee, all the silver men being democrats but one—Mr. Jones of Nevada. Immediately upon the reassembling of the full committee this bill was presented and a vote called for. There was no debate. The bill was read and by a yea and nay vote of 8 to 5 a favorable report was ordered to be made. The report will be made to the senate to-day. Whether there will be protracted debate remains to be seen. Some of the leading silver men say the subject has been gone over so often that it would be useless to debate it further. The result can be easily foretold. The majority in the senate in favor of free coinage is at least ten, and it may reach a dozen.

It is a nip and tuck race between Derousse and Skinner for the speakership of the Assembly.

Just at present, possession is the whole ten points of law with Mr. Johnson and the City Collectorship.

The New York Times says that Assemblyman-elect Codington will be one of the leaders in the lower house of the Legislature this winter.

Councilman See has always made a good presiding officer for the city fathers, and that is why he was re-elected to that position last night.

There should be no hesitancy about establishing the proposed pump station in Cedar brook valley for the purpose of disposing of the sewage of residents south of Ninth street. If no such action is taken the property holders in that section will be taxed for benefits which they do not receive, and at the same time be put on an unequal footing with the rest of the city in the matter of desirable residence places. This would be a manifest injustice.

It is not often that The Daily Press editorially credits itself with accomplishing this or that. But in in the matter of closing up the cider joints in this city, whose Sunday traffic has been carried on in the most open manner under a hypocritical observance of a Seventh-day law, The Press has been the only newspaper that has called the attention of the Plainfield people to the deplorable condition of affairs, and it was doubtless the constant allusions in The Press to this matter that forcibly brought to the minds of city officials the needs of legislation to remedy the evil.

Like the astute business man that he is, Mayor Gilbert's observation of the work of the past and suggestions as to the future, as expressed in his annual message to the Common Council, are wonderfully practical. He puts the matter of a tax rate in an entirely new light from what it has ever been considered in the past, and shows thnt with the modern improvements which the progressive people—and they constitute a large proportion of the city's population—are continually demanding the city to acquire, a low tax rate cannot be maintained. His application of the point that we have a territory to maintain which can easily accommodate a population of 150,000, and yet have to maintain it from the taxation of one-twelfth that number of people, is a piece of logical reasoning that shows the tax rate not to be proportionately as large as it first seems.

THE MAYOR'S NESSAGE.

mation of those who do not fully understand what it is that fixes the market value of the various issues of municipal bonds. I will state that the price at which they can be sold, depends entirely upon the size of the market in which it is possible to sell them. Bonds that are a legal investment for the Savings Institutions of New York and New England have a large market, and because of the active demand for this class of securities will readily sell at a premium when financial conditions are normal. Bonds that do not belong to this class, have a very limited market and are not readily sold on a four per cent basis. Unfortunately, Plainfield bonds are not a legal investment for the Savings Institutions of any State but our own, and as four per cent interest is not considered a very tempting investment in New Jersey, our bonds found but few bidders.

STREETS.

With the opening of Spring, you will doubtless proceed as rapidly as possible to put our streets in good condition. The importance of this to the growth and prosperity of our city cannot be overestimated. The report of the Street Commissioner shows that he has given thought and study to the subject, and that he appreciates the necessity of economy in his aim to secure the best results.

It seems to me that experience has demonstrated that outside of the business section of the city, the macadam pavement is better adapted to our needs than any other: it is cheap, and if properly made, furnishes a hard, smooth pavement, and can easily and cheaply be kept in repair. In the business section something more durable than macadam seems to be required: it would be a great improvement if Front street from Watchung avenue to Grant avenue, Park avenue from Front to Fourth street, Watchung avenue from Front street to North avenue and North avenue could be paved with Asphalt. This pavement seems to give greater satisfaction in large cities than any other and is less expensive than other durable pavements. It will cost at least fifty thousand dollars per mile, and of course could not be undertaken at the general expense. Should the abutting property owners on either side of the above named streets be willing to bear the cost of such an improvement, doubtless the Council could find authority to issue Certificates of Indebtedness to pay for the improvement, such certificates to be paid from the assessments when collected. Otherwise, I fear we shall have to continue the use of macadam for the present.

REMOVAL OF ASHES.

Your attention is called to the importance of stricter regulations regarding the removal of ashes. Under the present system, the wagons employed for this purpose are old and dilapidated and it frequently happens that the contents are spilled along the streets, or blown about by the wind in a most annoying manner. The parties who are licensed to attend to this business should be compelled to use wagons or carts suitable for the purpose, and also to provide a proper cover to prevent the spilling or blowing about of the contents.

This is of importance to the health of the city, and should receive early consideration.

POLICE.

1 Captain,	salary		$1,080 00
9 Night Patrolmen,	"	$720 each,	6,480 00
3 Day "	"	720 "	2,160 00

This force is inadequate to properly watch every exposed portion of the city, and in my judgment we should have, at least, three more men on night duty. The men composing the force are intelligent, temperate and attentive to duty, and in this respect will compare favorably with the police of any other city. If now and then disorder prevails or crime is committed it is only what occurs in cities where the most efficient police condition exists. I think it can be truly said that Plainfield is an orderly city. Crime does not flourish here to any great extent. Of course, in any community of fourteen thousand people there will be more or less disorder, and violation of law, but compared with other cities of the same size it must be admitted that we are to a remarkable degree exempt from crime and disorder. I will not claim that this is entirely due to the vigilance of the police, but I do think that it speaks well for the police that such a condition prevails.

It seems necessary that some action should be taken to provide a new police station, either through purchase or lease. Our present quarters are no longer adapted to our needs. While it is my judgment that the city should own such a building, I cannot recommend at this time any expenditure that will materially increase the tax rate. The sewer tax will make the rate pretty high for a few years, and until this is pretty well collected it should be our aim not to impose additional burdens upon taxpayers.

It has been suggested to me that a certain party has expressed a willingness to build a police station and lease it to the city at a reasonable rental. If such an arrangement can be made, I think it would be wise to consider it. I would also suggest that the police committee be instructed to investigate the Gamewell Police System with a view to its introduction at some future time if deemed desirable. Also to consider the wisdom of appointing a roundsman and providing him with a bicycle for night service.

SUNDAY SELLING.

The Sunday ordinance should be thoroughly revised. The number of places that close on Saturday for the purpose of doing business on Sunday is on the increase, and unless some action is taken to correct this growing evil, there is danger that Sunday will lose much of its quiet and orderly character. The principal business of these places is the sale of cider, and owing to the fact that the saloons are closed, Sunday is a more profitable day for this business than Saturday. If, under pretense of religiously observing the Seventh Day, one man can thus violate the law, why may not everybody? At my suggestion the Corporation Counsel has prepared an ordinance to prohibit the sale of cider on Sunday, the passage of which I think will tend to check this evil. I bespeak for it your thoughtful consideration.

The people have committed to you the government of the city for 1896. You have accepted the trust. As Mayor of the city, I shall cheerfully co-operate with you in your efforts to evolve an orderly system of government. In view of the fact that this is the last annual message that I shall submit to your Honorable Body, it may not be out of place for me to refer to a matter which appears to me to be of importance to taxpayers at the present time. There is evidently a growing sentiment in the community in favor of a more rapid development in the improvement than has taken place in the past. This sentiment favors the erection of a City Hall, the laying out of public parks, with such other improvements as are seemingly needed to put Plainfield in the front ranks of cities of her class, so far as public improvements are concerned.

Under certain conditions, I would sympathize with this sentiment. I would have Plainfield an ideal city, but we must not lose sight of the fact that with a population of only 14,000, and a taxable valuation of $7,500,000, there is a limit of expenditure beyond which we can not go without putting burdens upon our people too heavy for the majority to bear.

Our growth to this point has been substantial and enduring. We are gradually acquiring the essentials of municipal life. With the completion of our sewerage system, the extension of our railway system, the rahabilitation of our necessarily disordered streets, with better police accommodations, and proper provision for the poor, we shall have all that is essentially necessary at the present time to promote the health and convenience of our people. Other things will come in due time. Let us be wise and not permit our impatience to acquire them to involve us too heavily in debt, and thus swell our tax rate to the detriment of our future growth. A City Hall, and station house, and beautiful parks, and asphalt pavements, would greatly add to the attractiveness of our city, but they can not be had without a further issue of bonds, and this I would not recommend without the consent of the people, which I am quite sure could not be obtained at the present time.

Respectfully submitted,
A. Gilbert.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucus discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears, and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure of these troubles.

No excuse for sleepless nights when you can procure One Minute Cough Cure. This will relieve all annoyances, cure the most severe cough and give you rest and health. Can you afford to do without it. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

The bowlers of the Crescent Wheelmen go to Cranford tonight to bowl a game in the Central Journal League.

It was a stern chase all the way for the Plainfield Catholic Club bowlers last night when they rolled the T. A. B's on the latter's alleys in Newark. The Newark boys took the lead at the first, and in the fifth frame managed to gain a lead of 69 pins. Then the visitors began to do some bowling and reduced the lead to 22 pins in the eighth frame. It was too late, however, and the Newark boys just took the victory by 6 pins. Butcher, of the Plainfield team, did the best of the evening by rolling five strikes in the last five frames. The individual scores were as follows:

WITH ROD AND GUN.

A six weeks hunting tour through the Rocky Mountains is being prepared by Percy C. Ohl for the coming summer. The plan is to take a party of ten, all thorough sportsmen, with some knowledge of woodcraft, across the continent to the Soda Springs in Idaho, where the real tour will begin. Then on horseback, with a train of pack horses to carry the camp equipage, the party will ride due north into the Rockies as far as the Yellowstone Park and return further to the eastward, taking in the scenes of the various Indian conflicts and that of the memorable battle of the Little Big Horn, where General Custer met his death. The tourists will then see some of America's grandest scenery, and be able to hunt the big game of the west in its own haunts. The party was to start about the middle of July or the first of August, but owing to Idaho game laws, the hunters may be obliged to wait until later in the season if they care to hunt the big game.

Sergeant Kiely Saw the Fire.

The observing eyes of Police Sergeant Kiely were the means last night of no doubt saving the city of Newark from quite a serious fire. The Sergeant is a member of the Catholic Club bowling team and while in the Montgomery bowling alleys in that city last night he discovered a fire in the ceiling, where it had caught from an overheated stovepipe. He gave the alarm and two seltzer bottles were brought into play, with the result of soon extinguishing the blaze.

Suing for Damages.

Justice Newcorn issued a summons this morning in the case of Z. Pearson against William Bohl, in tort, which is returnable January 14th. The former planned for the construction of a building, made a deposit, but the building was not finished in time and he is now suing for damages. H. C. Runyon represents the plaintiff.

For the New Year

We promise you the best of service, the best of goods and prices to make our store as you would have it, as near perfect as possible. Sometimes a complaint is made but never a one but we are more than willing to right it and where 1895 has been the best year we have ever had and we thank you for it. We look forward into '96 with greater expectations and know we can only realize them by following the same liberal policy that we have worked out during the past years, of making every customer a satisfied one.

Its not a question of profit this month, we are anxious to reduce stock, and to do it we name prices on goods that you want and can have for little money. Read

CHINESE VENTRILOQUISM.

A Performance That Was Realistic Enough to Settle the Audience.

A man who witnessed the performance gives the following description of what a ventriloquist in China did:

The ventriloquist was seated behind a screen, where there were only a chair, a table, a fan and a ruler. With the ruler he rapped on the table to enforce silence, and when everybody had ceased speaking there was suddenly heard the barking of a dog. Then we heard the movements of a woman. She had been waked by the dog and was shaking her husband.

We were just expecting to hear the man and wife talking together, when a child began to cry. To pacify it the mother gave it food; we could hear it drinking and crying at the same time. The mother spoke to it soothingly, and then rose to change its clothes.

Meanwhile another child had been wakened and was beginning to make a noise. The father scolded it, while the baby continued crying. By and by the whole family went back to bed and fell asleep. The patter of a mouse was heard. It climbed up some vase and upset it. We heard the clatter of the vase as it fell.

The woman coughed in her sleep. Then cries of "Fire, fire!" were heard. The mouse had upset the lamp; the bed curtains were on fire. The husband and wife waked up, shouted and screamed, the children cried, thousands of people came running and shouting.

Children cried, dogs barked, the walls came crashing down, squibs and crackers exploded. The fire brigade came racing up. Water was pumped up in torrents and hissed in the flames.

The representation was so true to life that every one rose to his feet and was starting away, when a second blow of the ruler on the table commanded silence. We rushed behind the screen, but there was nothing there except the ventriloquist, his table, his chair and the ruler.—Philadelphia Times.

HUMAN SELFISHNESS.

A Philosophical Dissertation on Sins of Omission and Commission.

While out for a walk one afternoon, from, say, London to Watford, I meet a man who, I can plainly see, is in the last stage of starvation, and he also tells me he is. He asks me to help him, but I refuse, button up my pockets and walk on. A few days later I read in the paper that his body has been found by the wayside, that an inquest has been held on it, and that the jury has decided that he died of hunger. Had I relieved him when he asked me to do so he might not have died, or, at any rate, not so soon. So that I, to that extent, was responsible for his death. My selfishness helped to kill him. But would any sane person who heard of my conduct say that I had helped to kill him in the same sense as if I had done so by physical violence? Would any sane policeman take me into custody, and, if he would, would any sane magistrate listen to the charge?

Let me put the matter in another way: Is the sin, either in man's eyes or in God's eyes, of, say, not relieving the widow, as great as that of robbing the widow? Is "not taking the stranger in" as bad as "taking him in" in another and very different sense? Is "not visiting those in prison" as great a wickedness as that of being the cause, direct or indirect, of their imprisonment?

And yet, according to the view usually taken of our Lord's words on this subject in the twenty-fifth chapter of St. Matthew, it is for such sins—sins of omission and not of commission—that the persons there referred to will, on the last day, be cursed and consigned to "everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."—Westminster Review.

Lincoln's Early Sorrows.

His life had its tragedies as well as its touch of romance—tragedies so real and profound that they gave dignity to all the crudeness and poverty which surrounded him and quickened and intensified the melancholy temperament he had inherited from his mother. Away back in 1816, when Thomas Lincoln had started to find a farm in Indiana, bidding his wife be ready to go into the wilderness on his return, Nancy Lincoln had taken her boy and girl to a tiny grave, that of her youngest child, and the three had there said goodby to a little one whom the children had scarcely known, but for whom the mother's grief was so keen that the boy never forgot the scene. Two years later he saw his father make a green pine box and put his dead mother into it, and he saw her buried not far from their cabin, almost without prayer. Young as he was, it is said that it was his efforts which brought a parson from Kentucky, three months later, to preach the sermon and conduct the service which seemed to the child a necessary honor to the dead. As sad as the death of his mother had been was that of his only sister, Sarah. Married to Aaron Grigsby in 1826, she had died a year and a half later in childbirth, a death which to her brother must have seemed a horror and a mystery.—Ida M. Tarbell in McClure's Magazine.

Champagne.

Lemon Hart, an Englishman, says: "The world's consumption of champagne amounts to about 21,000,000 quart bottles per annum. England is the greatest buyer of the sparkling fluid and the United States comes next. Formerly Australians were good customers, but since the great financial depression in that corner of the globe they have bought very moderately. The French care very little for champagne, and in Paris Americans and Englishmen are about the only people who call for it. The French prefer their cheap still wines from habit and from motives of economy. They are too thrifty a people to indulge in extravagance in eating and drinking. Americans and Britons drink wine, I think, mostly to produce hilaration of spirits, while the French have so much natural gayety of disposition that they don't need it."—New York Tribune.

Surprising Longevity of a Turtle.

When Mauritius was ceded to the British, in the year 1810, one of the soldiers, who had a liking for natural history, discovered a turtle in the military barracks which competent authorities said was then 200 years old. The repulsive looking old reptile is still alive and healthy, and bids fair to live to the end of this or, probably, the next century. He has enormous strength and can, with apparent ease, carry two large men on his back.—St. Louis Republic.

Their Annoyances.

Neighbor—I called to say that you must keep your dog from barking. He won't let our baby sleep.

Householder—I'm glad you called. I wanted to say that if you don't keep your baby from crying, I shall have to enter a complaint. It annoys my dog awfully.—Boston Transcript.

Look For Your Natal Month and See Yourself as Others See You.

An English authority is responsible for the assertion that a man's destiny depends upon the month of his birth.

A man born in January will be a hard worker, a lover of good wine, a fine singer, a manager of great enterprises. A woman born in that month will be affable; will have domestic tastes, and will be capable of great endurance.

The man born in February will love money much, but women more. He will be stingy at home, but prodigal abroad. The woman will be an affectionate wife and a good mother.

The man born in March will be handsome, honest and prudent. Yet he will die poor. The woman will be tall and stout and witty.

The man born in April will not necessarily be a fool even if his birthday is the day next after March 31. The woman will be a chatterbox and will have advanced ideas. She will be a leading member of the shrieking sisterhood.

The man born in May will be amiable and will make his life partner happy. The woman will equal him in amiability and the other above named desirable quality.

The man born in June will be of small stature and very fond of women and children. The woman will be flighty and a high liver, but will repent and sober down at 40.

The man born in July will be of military tastes, a trifle pompous, but a good fellow withal. The woman will have a sulky temper; she will pout and be handsome.

The man born in August will be ambitious and courageous. The woman will be what Americans call capable. She will be equal to running a farm or editing a newspaper.

The man born in September will be strong and wise. He will make few mistakes and live and die rich. The woman will be loved by her friends; have many suitors and die an old maid.

The man born in October will write poetry when young. Then he will dabble in politics and wind up as a reformer. The woman will be pretty and late in life an apostle of total abstinence.

The man born in November will have a fine face, great address, and if not careful he will be a gay Lothario. The woman will be large, liberal minded and fond of novelty and novels.

The man born in December will have a passionate temper, yet will be the first to forgive. The woman will be a Lady Bountiful to the deserving poor, but a terror to tramps and the willfully unemployed.

Fashionable Photography.

The scene is a photograph gallery on Fifth avenue. The dramatis personæ are the young woman at the office desk and a lady caller. The office woman says: "I am sorry, but Miss Vanderbeck has chosen this hour for her sittings and made an appointment. Had you an appointment? No? Sorry, but it is the only safe thing to do. Then you cannot be disappointed. Let me put you down for tomorrow at—ah, this is Miss Vanderbeck now."

Enter Miss Vanderbeck in a walking dress with a maid. The maid carries a large box. The office woman says: "First door to the right, miss. You'll find the dressing room at your disposal." The swell young woman and her maid disappear, and the disappointed caller agrees to call next day at noon. Presently Miss Vanderbeck reappears in ball costume, decollete, gorgeous in heavy red velvet trimmed with reddened ostrich feathers. She is shown to the operator's room, and on the way she says, "I chose the Queen Louise pose, you know." The other woman says, "Yes, descending a flight of stairs—I know."

This is how age end photographs are taken. The ladies find every accoutrement of a dressing room and make their toilets in the gallery, and then they are not posed by anybody who happens to think he knows how. They study the attitudes in which the greatest painters have posed their most beautiful subjects, and they choose with all the world of art to select from.—New York Sun.

Atmospheric Pressure.

The science of atmospheric pressures has been the subject of various and valuable experiments by Professor Ashman at Charlottenburg, near Berlin. Recently there was sent up a small balloon provided with improved automatic registering apparatus designed to reproduce automatically the figures indicated by the barometer and thermometer at various heights. The balloon, it is related, first started off in a northeast direction, veered suddenly to the northeast and finally landed in good condition in the district of Zvornik, on the Servo-Bosnian frontier, after a voyage of 11 hours, and, since the distance between the two points is about 600 miles, the velocity of the balloon was, without counting curves, nearly 60 miles an hour. At the moment of starting the thermometer marked 17 degrees, and the barometer stood at 764 mm. The extreme figures noted by the apparatus during the voyage were, for the temperature, 52 degrees, and for the barometric pressure 85 mm, this latter reading denoting an altitude some 10 miles and 546 feet, such low pressures, it is stated, not having been suspected hitherto at the altitude abovenamed.

How to Digest Chocolate.

As a nation the French are in advance of us in their application of the chemistry of food. Their little school children may be seen daily enjoying a luncheon of a piece of bread or a little roll or croissant with a bar of plain chocolate, not creams, and nothing is more nourishing for them, while French, Italians and Spaniards alike dip bread into their morning cup of chocolate. The fact is that chocolate, like bread itself, requires for its assimilation the chemical action produced by mastication—i. e., the saliva of the mouth as well as the action of the stomach. Thus chocolate eaten can be digested by those to whom a cup quickly drunk is poison.—Housewife.

A Sublime Appetite.

They were seated at the restaurant table, he looking over the menu, when she said gushingly:

"Do you know, dear, I have always longed for the society of a congenial soul, one who loved the good, the true"—

"Pig's feet, baked beans, cold tripe, griddle cakes—which will you have?" interrupted "dear" at this point.

"I'll take them all," was the soulful answer.—Detroit Free Press.

Distressing.

Mrs. Wangle (to wife of missionary who was lost among the cannibals)—You mustn't grieve so at his loss, sister.

The Wife—Ah, if I only knew just how he died, I would feel better. But even now poor James may be soaking in brine, and he couldn't bear the thought of pickles.—New York Herald.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

ANNUAL SALE

OF

Muslin Underwear,

Waists,

Wrappers, Corsets.

Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look Before You Buy.

So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.

We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well-made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so-called sales.

A Special Sale of Muslin Underwear.

We invite inspection of this great muslin underwear stock, including lines of high-class goods, daintily made and prices fixed specially for this sale, leaving us a modest margin. Of course, in such a variety there is plenty to suit every taste and every purse. You'll notice too that just as much care has been taken in the making of the cheaper wear as in the higher priced.

The Cloak Price-Cutting

is attracting many buyers. There's still a good assortment possibly a size missing here and there. Every coat price cut so that we'll not have any to "carry over."

unfortunate

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw cod-liver oil would be a burden.

A substitute only imitates the original.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. SUNSET.

Sunset, and from the western hills a bridge
Of stone gray cloud o'erspans the dying day,
And grapples with a long, dark verdant ridge
That rises from an emerald vapor bay.

O'er this expanse three doves in graceful flight
Seek the cool shadows as they landward soar,
Lured by the outstretched arms of one in white
Who stands in waiting on that other shore.

We sit—the hush of death fills all the place—
With eyes fixed on the mansions of the Lord
That crown the hanging garden's sloping face;
Forgotten is the loosened silver cord

Of him who rouses, turns toward the scene—
The jasper castles on that distant crest—
Then slips across the bridge and treads the green
With his beloved in that isle of rest.

A SURPRISING YANKEE WOMAN.

Weighs Three Hundred Pounds, Works a Big Farm and Is a Terror to Tramps.

"In northern New England I recently met a fat woman," said a New Yorker, "who ought to inspire all victims of adipose tissue. I was driving with a native when she came along the road. She was positively enormous and would have looked unpleasantly big had it not been for her pleasant, frank face. She nodded to my companion, who returned the salutation with more deference than I had observed in his manner toward any one else. After we had passed her he said that she was the wealthiest woman in the mountains.

"'You wouldn't think so to see the way she works,' he added, 'for she does about as much as any two men around here. She has the biggest and finest farm within 20 miles, and she works it all herself. Of course she has some one to help her in haying time, but she does her own plowing and seeding and can toss more hay than any man I ever saw. Fat? Well, she is a pretty big woman. She weighs nearly 300, but she don't mind that, and it don't interfere with her getting around either. You just try walking with her and see if you can keep up with her. I can't. I bought some hay from her, and when I went to get it she told me she would pack it in the wagon if I would throw it up to her. Well, she kept me working until I thought my arms would break, and the way she stamped down that hay was a caution. It was all I could do to get it out again, it was packed so hard. You saw her walking now. Well, that's what she calls taking a constitutional after her work. She will cover ten miles easy.

"'Mind you, she has not got to work, and she is not stingy either. Her sister is traveling all the time. She goes to Europe, to the seashore and everywhere. She's away now. They are both of them well educated and very liberal to the poor. No one has to ask twice at that house, but tramps have to be mighty polite. Several of them who tried the other thing with this one found themselves out in the road so quick they didn't know what had struck them. She says she works for the love of it, and when she has to quit she will give up living.'

"From inquiries that I made afterward I learned that this woman was a lady in every sense of the word, well mannered, genial and a good conversationalist. Her marvelous strength and abundant animal spirits impelled her to do hard work for the pleasure of it."—New York Sun.

The "Father of Leprosy."

The gecko belongs to a family of thick tongued lizards, which are widely distributed over the tropical and subtropical countries of Europe and Asia, and in all countries where he is known he is thoroughly despised. Because of his repulsive appearance he is called "the father of leprosy." Down to times comparatively modern it was firmly believed that contact ther directly or indirectly with the little reptile was sure to communicate leprosy. The investigations of modern zoologists have proved that the little animal is undeserving of his name of "father of leprosy," and that he is indeed a most harmless and useful creature. Since the old belief in the ability of this reptile to communicate leprosy to any human flesh which might come in contact with his warty, sore looking skin was exploded, he has retained his objectionable name solely on account of the bad appearance he makes. His skin is one mass of scaly and tuberculous excrescences that cover his body from the tip of his tail to the end of his nose. Every quarter inch section of this repulsive looking body has a general resemblance to the thickened, callous protuberances that appear on the human body in cases of leprosy. On this account and no other the harmless little gecko was given the name of being the progenitor of the worst form of disease.—St. Louis Republic.

Distinctively American Embroidery Design.

Of the many styles that afford a generous amount and great variety of pretty designs for embroidery work the colonial is one of the most attractive, owing in a great measure to its dainty simplicity. The colonial style is one of distinctly American origin—a purely American creation—and for that reason is our own, and one which we take pride in employing when decorating and furnishing our homes. It was first used in the architecture of houses and churches erected during the latter years of the last century and the early years of this, and was at the height of its great popularity during Washington's administration, which was known as the colonial period. That the colonial is a very popular style at this time is shown by the general interest taken in it. It is much easier to find furniture, draperies and wall papers in a variety of designs in the colonial than in any other style.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Difficult Case.

Railroad Official—You say you want damages for the death of Mr. Puffem in that accident?

Lawyer—Yes, sir.

"In what car was he riding?"

"In the smoker."

"Hum! You can take the case into court if you think it will pay; but, just remember, you will have to prove that he did not die of the bad air before the accident occurred."—New York Weekly.

Misleading Sign.

Mosely Wraggs laboriously spelled out a sign on the foundry in whose shade he was lounging with Tuffold Knutt. "'You don't have to hire a man to repair your stoves. Buy your castings from us and put them in yourself.' Gosh!" he commented. "How's a feller goin to put a castin in himself? Swaller it?"—Chicago Tribune.

A MINIATURE FLOOD.

Fire Protection Sprinkler Bursts in the Commercial Palace.

The extreme cold weather resulted in serious damage at the Commercial Palace this afternoon at one o'clock. In each of the show windows at the top there are pipes with tubes, which are stopped with a certain kind of metal. In case of fire the heat melts the metal, causing the water to flow, which, under ordinary circumstances, would extinguish the fire. The tube in the centre window froze today, causing the metel to crack.

This allowed the water to flow, and rather too freely. The window was filled with valuable goods, and most of them were damaged before T. U. Smith, of Doane & Edsall's, could shut the water off. The damage it is thought will be about $200. The goods were insured. The window was completely flooded as was also the sidewalk.

An Entertainment Arranged.

The Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel held their regular business meeting last evening with President Blanchard Randolph in the chair and eleven members present. Arrangements are being made to give an entertainment to help furnish the extension to the chapel. Rev. Mr. O'Donnell, Fred Phillips and Adam Newman as a committee reported that something already had been done toward the entertainment. They were continued with power. Allan Taylor offered his home to the young men for a reception which they will give the young ladies of the chapel sometime in Fsbruary. The meeting then adjourned to the call of the chair.

Williams Won In the End.

"He who laughs last laughs best," is a well known quotation and applies to a case that came up in Justice Crosley's court yesterday afternoon. The case was that of Walter C. Williams vs. George Feller, on contract. Feller bought a load of oat straw from Williams some time ago but did not pay for it. He found no fault with it until the question of payment came up and then told Williams that it was no good and that he would not pay for it. Feller laughed at William's threat to sue, but yesterday Justice Crosley gave Williams a verdict for a full amount of his claim and the costs. Feller says he will appeal the case.

Frozen Pipes.

The extreme cold weather the last few days has raised havoc with steam and water pipes in houses that are unoccupied. In the house of Mrs. Squires on Arlington avenue the water pipes froze and caused no end of trouble, the family being away from home. The tank and pipes in the house of Mrs. Kenny on Arlington avenue also froze up and bursted while the family were away. The overflowing water was discovered by Charles Fisk's coachman, and with the aid of William Spicer the leaks were finally stopped but not until considerable damage was done.

Grand Chancellor Coming.

Grand Chancellor Donath, of Jersey City, and other grand officers will be present at Unity Lodge tomorrow night. Perseverance and Goodwill Lodges will be present and an invitation is extended to all brother knights to be present on the occasion. A pleasant and profitable meeting is anticipated.

Underwriters Elect.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Board of Underwriters last evening at the office of J. C. Pope & Co., the following officers were unanimously chosen: President, J. C. Pope; vice-president, W. A. Woodruff; secretary and treasurer, M. M. Dunham, re-elected.

A MOST MERITORIOUS GRANT

MADE BY THE

United States Government.

The fact that the Government owns all of the springs at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and four beautiful mountains, containing over 900 acres, which are forever reserved from sale, may not be generally known to the public, and the fact that the United States Government, under grant, have permitted the world-famed healing waters of Hot Springs, Arkansas, to be used in the preparation of "Pura Blood" must meet the hearty approval of sufferers who cannot spare time or expense to visit that famous sanitarium, where so many people from all over the world have been permanently cured of rheumatism, gout and all diseases of the blood.

Those who cannot go to Hot Springs Arkansas, can now have at home this same treatment, which has received the highest indorsement of leading physicians.

"Pura Blood" is specially prepared at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and is sold by all druggists at $1 per bottle. Billups & Co., of 26 Cortlandt st, New York, are sole agents, and they will send descriptive book free to any address.

A Public Installation.

A great event among the Red Men of this district will be the public raising of the chiefs of Po Ambo Tribe, No. 65, of Perth Amboy. Deputy Great Sachem C. M. Ulrich, of this city, and his staff, will perform the ceremony. A number of Plainfield braves will attend.

Is He the Assailant.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxson Dunham of South Plainfield, were summoned to Somerville yesterday to see if possible, they could identify a colored man, now held in custody, as the one who assaulted them a year ago last fall. Sheriff Wyckoff is of the opinion that he is the man wanted for the crime.

A Straw Ride Anyhow.

A number of young people of this city and the borough are planning a straw ride for this evening. If the long-expected snow does not arrive in time, a wagon will be used instead of a sleigh.

Revival Next Week.

The revival services under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor societies will commence next Monday night in the First M. E. church.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Baldwin, of New York, called on Plainfield friends yesterday.

Irving Smalley, of Somerset street, is confined to the house by illness.

Harry McGee has returned to Yale after spending his Christmas vacation at his home on Orchard place, Washington Park.

Miss Katie Mullen has resigned her position in Edsall's Commercial Palace, the resignation to take effect on Saturday night.

Miss Pauline Denton, of Prospect Hill, has returned home after a pleasant visit in Dunellen with her cousin, Miss Nellie Brown.

Miss K. D. Lawrence, of this city, was the author of a poem entitled "I Don't Want to Sail in Your Pond," in last Sunday's Times.

During the limited engagement of the Lillian Kennedy Company, popular prices. Gallery 10 cents; reserved seats, 20 and 30 cents.

A party of young people from Plainfield and vicinity enjoyed a social at the home of Mulford Cole, 1,230 East Front street, last evening.

The funeral services of Mrs. Rynear Chamberlain were held this morning at 11 o'clock from the house, 308 West Fourth street. Dr. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church, officiated. Interment was in Hillside. The attendance at the services was very large.

—James Kennedy, one of the finest comedians on the vaudeville stage, has been especially engaged for the support of the Lillian Kennedy engagement.

INSTANCES OF TELEPATHY.

Examples of Mind Action That Are Said to Be Authentic.

The following examples of telepathic action are known to the writer, W. J. Colville, as authentic instances of the action of mind with mind without expectation or preconcerted plan. During the World's fair Mrs. A. was frequently thinking of her nephew, Mr. Z., who was enjoying a few weeks' vacation in Chicago, while she remained in Boston. On the 15th of August, 1893, Mrs. A. attended evening service in a certain church, and during the sermon, feeling a sense of drowsiness come over her, suddenly felt transported to the fair grounds in Chicago. It was a little after 8 p. m. in Boston, and consequently about 7 o'clock in Chicago, when the electric illumination of the exposition gardens and buildings was just beginning. The lady, dozing in the church more than 1,000 miles away, saw the great buildings lighted up one by one as if by magic, the whole scene appearing as an enchanted fairyland. In the midst of the brilliant spectacle she distinctly saw her nephew walking with two young men, to one of whom he suddenly exclaimed, "Oh, Alfred, how I wish my aunt were here to enjoy this!"

Two days later Mrs. A. received an interesting letter from Mr. Z., in which he detailed his experiences at the fair and included this sentence in his description of the brilliant illumination on the evening of Aug. 15, that being his first visit on the grounds after 6 p. m.: "I said to one of my companions, 'Oh, Alfred, how I wish my aunt were here to enjoy this!' and as I spoke I felt you were close beside me and continued walking with me for at least ten minutes." Whatever may be the solution of so strange a phenomenon, it seems incredible that the threadbare explanation conveyed in the term "conscience" should be proffered to account for so remarkable an occurrence.

A few days afterward the same lady received from her nephew, then about to leave Chicago, the following mental message while she was quietly engaged in household duties, "Don't expect me till Thursday evening after 9 o'clock, as I have decided to leave on a later train than the one I expected to take when I last wrote to you." Two days later Mrs. A. received from Mr. Z. a postal card containing exactly those words. The message had reached her mentally in Boston while he was writing it in Chicago.—Metaphysical Magazine.

Nerves and Other People's Nerves.

It has become the habit in these later days to regard every form of recreation, amusement or other personal delectation in regard to its bearing upon the physical health of the participant rather than as regards the mental enjoyment it gives. The most recent recommendation of a hygienic character in this connection is that singing is excellent as a nerve tonic. It is pointed out that birds are always silent when they are sad and pine away if they cannot be coaxed to sing, and so people are urged to lift their voices and carol a ballad or song with frequency and vigor in order to secure that happiness which comes with health. It may be true that singing is a nerve tonic for those who indulge in it themselves, but where is the sedative to be found that will soothe the nerves of the neighbors who may be compelled to listen to such hygienic activity? The recognized justice of the rule which governs all communities and which provides that only that which gives the greatest good to the greatest number will be permissible will, we fear, prevent a general indulgence in health seeking by means of vocal athletics. In itself it might not be so bad, but think of the horror of the situation when singing leads enthusiasts in the exercise of the lungs to the use of cornets, French horns and other wind instruments!—Washington Star.

Humor.

Everybody is familiar with the sort of person whose humor is ill regulated; who laughs heartily at your joke, but at the wrong place; who gives you the answer to a conundrum to crack instead of the conundrum itself, and who is always putting the cart before the horse in her witticisms, after a fashion as exasperating as it is fatal. According to Tammas Haggart, humor is of "twa sorts." One sort is the making of a joke, the other the "seeing" of it. "A body can't be expeckit baith to mak a joke and to see it. That wad be doin twa folks' wark." This philosophy not only accounts for, but excuses, those many intellects whose humor is somehow not subject to average rules and regulations. "They're not going to have the Brooklyn bridge any more," observed a woman of this species not long since. Antique as was the joke that she was trying to spring upon her companion he failed to recognize it in so mutilated a shape. "Why not?" he therefore asked. And when the woman, with much gusto, replied, "Because it's long enough," she wondered why he didn't laugh.—New York Sun.

A Small Navy.

Persia does not occupy a very prominent position among the naval powers of the world. In fact, it will be news to most people that she possesses a navy at all. She has, however, a fleet, which consists of one solitary ship, called the Persepolis, which is now lying at anchor in the port of Bombay, proudly flying the flag of the shah. For many years the Persepolis was a tramp steamer famed for the extraordinary number of mishaps which she had encountered. But since the Persian government has acquired her and fitted her with guns and with a ram, which, being only insecurely fixed to her bow, has a knack of slipping its moorings and diving downward, she has become a very powerful and magnificent man-of-war—that is to say, in the eyes of patriotic Persians.—New York Tribune.

The Surgeon's Knife.

"We believe thoroughly," says The Medical Record, "in allowing the public to estimate the medical profession at its full worth, but it sometimes seems as though the exploitation of the wonders of surgery was a little overdone, the result being that as soon as a person has any ailment of any part of the body the people at once want to have it cut out."

She Understood.

He—Chicago has some of the most beautiful cafes to be found in the country.

She—Now I understand what you meant when you wrote that you were "drinking in the beauties of Chicago!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Meat once meant any kind of food. In one old English edition of the Lord's Prayer the well known petition is rendered, "Give us this day our daily meat."

There should be as little merit in loving a woman for her beauty as a man for his prosperity, both being equally subject to change.—Pope.

What Mrs. Henning Owes to His Improved Homoeopathic Remedies

CHRONIC CATARRH.

Of the Most Obstinate Nature Thoroughly and Permanently Cured. Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Kidney and All Blood and Nerve Diseases Cured by Munyon's Improved Homoeopathic Remedies—At all Druggists) 25 Cents a Bottle.

Mrs. H. D. A. Henning, 2000 Hollins street, Baltimore, Md., says: 'My daughter Louisa, suffered from catarrh of the nose and throat for five years or more. Every morning her nose was completely stopped up with mucus and she suffered from pain and pressure across her forehead, sneezing and raising mucus from the throat, difficulty in breathing and heaviness across the chest. I tried several physicians and different kinds of treatment, but she found no benefit. Finally I began treating her with Munyon's Catarrh Remedies and in a short time she was completely cured and has never had a symptom since."

Are you willing to spend 50 cents for a cure that positively cures catarrh by removing the cause of the disease? If so ask your druggist for a 25 cent bottle of Munyon's Catarrh Cure and a 25 cent bottle of Catarrh tablets. The Catarrh Cure will eradicate the disease from the system and the tablets will cleanse and heal the afflicted parts and restore them to a natural and healthful condition.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

A Lancashire Lad.

He has in his veins a strong dash of fine Norse blood, which has saved him from the dour taciturnity, the brutal coarseness, the banality, which marks the pure blooded Angle. He is a good listener, a fair talker and marvelously quick at grasping any point which touches his personal interests. In politics, except where in a few special cases he and his friends have been goaded into Liberalism by crushing rents or an overbearing agent, he carries his attachment to Tory doctrines to the verge of bigotry, though neither he nor any one else can give any logical reason why he should be a Tory at all.

His ideas of public duties and their performance are those of two generations ago, that the one aim of every member of any public body should be to keep down the rates. He is quite content with the distinction of possessing some of the worst roads in the county, will oppose tooth and nail a proposal to supply handkerchiefs to the workhouse children, and regards allotments, so soon as he has been brought to understand what the term means, as ridiculous. But, if he has his faults, he is not without some solid virtues of the old fashioned kind. In their tastes and habits he and his wife are simple, industrious, painstaking, to an extraordinary degree.

They dress as their grandparents dressed, the one in the knitted jacket and corduroys, the other in the quaint sunbonnet and clean, print bodice, with short, blue gown, of half a century ago. They are gifted with an astonishing power of battling against adverse circumstances, and there is a masculine strain in the wife which enables her to carry on the farm after her husband's death, often more successfully than he did himself.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Combating a Fool Notion.

"There never was a bigger fool notion in this world," said young Fullback, pulling on his padded trousers, "than this idea that football is a dangerous game. These reports about boys getting hurt," he continued, adjusting his shin guards and fastening them on securely, "are half the time exaggerations, and half the time they are made out of whole cloth. A fellow simply can't get injured in a game," he proceeded, stuffing a quantity of wadding about his hip bones and around his shoulders and chest, "unless he just wants to injure himself and does it on purpose. Now, I've been in a dozen games this year"—here he strapped his ear guards round his head—"and with the exception of a black eye now and then, and one or two fingers dislocated, or something like that, I haven't had the slightest injury."

Here the young man put on his nose guard and mouth protector, and shortly afterward went forth to engage in a harmless little game of football.—Chicago Tribune.

Throwing Mud.

Unless words without meaning are used, a person's vocabulary must be bounded by his knowledge. Many years ago I was teaching a class of poor children in the school connected with the Church of St. Paul's, Covent Garden. One day I exhibited a picture of a hayfield with men carting hay. I asked the children what the men were throwing up into the cart. They answered, without a moment's hesitation, "Mud!" It then occurred to me for the first time that these children had never seen a hayfield or the carting of hay, but the scavenger's cart, carting mud, they were quite familiar with, and hence they spoke within their knowledge.—Notes and Queries.

The Salamander.

In almost every country there is an idea that the salamander lives or can live in the fire. There is a strange peculiarity about this creature which has given rise to the superstition. When placed in a very warm situation, the salamander throws out, from orifices in his sides, small quantities of fluid to relieve the oppressive warmth. It is possible that this fluid might quench, or at least might allay, the violence of a small fire, but in itself the salamander is no more impervious to fire than any other animal.

Who She Was.

A good baby story is told of a neighbor meeting a little one in the street and saying: "Good morning, my little dear. I never can tell you and your sister apart. Which of the twins are you?"

And the little one made answer, "I'm the one what's out walkin."—London Tit-Bits.

These plays are full of the latest songs, medleys and dances of the day not withstanding that this company is very strong and expensive the prices will be popular—10, 20 and 30 cents.

Library Directors Meet.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library was held at the library Tuesday evening, Dec. 7th. There were present M. W. Tyler, J. Evarts Tracy, Wm. L. Stillman, and John B. Dumont. A number of bills were audited.

The minutes of the meeting of December 3d were read and approved.

The Librarians report for December, 1895, was on motion received and ordered on file.

"Omnia."

Do you know what the word "Omnia" stands for? It stands for the finest prepared entire wheat flour on the market. Have you tried the "Omnia" Bread baked by the Hygienic Food Company, of Orange, from this flour?

—Be sure and see the funny comedians with Lillian Kennedy Company. New songs, dances, every night. 10, 20, 30 cents.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

AFTER THE SCHOOLS NOW.

STEPHEN A. KROM ADVOCATES INDIVIDUAL CUPS FOR SCHOLARS.

Says the Plan Should Be Adopted Now and Not Wait For Any Disease to Start Among the Pupils—Church Battle Won.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I see by your report of the meeting of the Board of Education published in last night's issue of your paper, that my communication to the Board of Health in regard to the adoption of individual drinking cups has been misunderstood by both Boards.

In the first place I requested that the rules I suggested should be added to the Sanitary Code of the Board of Health, which code I think is the proper place for them, as the Board of Health is supposed to be composed of individuals who best understand the value of them, and hence are in the best position to pass judgement upon them.

In the rule referring to the individual drinking cup, I stated that covered pitchers should be used, as I am well aware that to use uncovered ones would be dangerous to health. The rule is as follows: "Places for drinking water on the ground floor of the school building shall be discontinued and a covered pitcher provided for each classroom, in which fresh water shall be placed before each session. A numbered cup to be kept in the classroom shall be issued to each pupil, and no interchange of cups shall be allowed."

I followed the lead of the New York City Board of Health in the text of the above rule as I knew that the conditions were about the same in our schools, namely that there is no water on tap in the school room, and to allow the pupils to use the water on the ground floor or in the yard would defeat the object of the rule, for they would borrow a cup of any one of their number who happened to bring his from the class room.

The battle for the adoption of the individual cup in our churches has been fought and won. We are waiting now for the churches to make the necessary business transactions to complete the change. It will take some time to make these transactions, for in such organizations each member waits for some one else to do the work.

The same guns that won that battle can be used in this matter. So we need not prolong the discussion. Everyone knows how effective they were.

To adopt the individual cup in the churches, and not in the schools, would only be another example of the painful inconsistency of human nature.

Had the Newark Board of Health had such a rule as the above, they would have avoided the outbreak and spread of diphtheria that recently started in one of the schools.

I think that we do too much running around with pails of sulphur after some one is dead, and that we do not take enough preventive measures. If an epidemic should break out in one of our schools, one of the first steps we would take to suppress it, would be to adopt individual drinking cups. Why not have them before such an outbreak occurs? They would go a long way towards preventing it.

Aside from the hygenic advantages, the individual cup is the only decent way to take a drink, and I think that we should train the young to realize that fact. Stephen A. Krom.

To Observe Defender's Day.

It was unanimously decided at the meeting of John Hand Camp, 28, S. of V., last evening, to join with Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps in a public installation to be held Tuesday evening, January 14th. The question of joining the Death Benefit Association was discussed and the Camp will probably join in a few weeks. The members decided to appropriately observe Union Defender's day, February 12th, by giving an entertainment to consist of a patriotic address, musical selections and recitations, to be followed by a full dress dance. Charles Stephens, Willard C. Sutton and L. Eaton have the entertainment in charge.

A prize of $10 was offered to the members to be awarded to the one who brings in six or more members during 1896.

SENATOR SMITH PLEDGES HIS HELP.

He Receives the Resolution Regarding the Armenian Outrages.

The committee in charge of the meeting in aid of the Armenians held at the Crescent Avenue church on the 2nd inst., are glad to be able to state that about $200 was raised on that occasion and that some contributions to the fund have since been received. There is, however, pressing need of a much larger sum to relieve the urgent claims of the homeless Armenians. Other cities have taken the matter in hand and it is hoped that Plainfield's well earned reputation for charity will be sustained in this instance. Contributions may be sent to Dr. Rodman, Mayor Gilbert or Isaac L. Miller. Mr. Miller has received a letter from Senator Smith of this State in which, after acknowledging the receipt of a copy of the resolutions passed at the meeting in question, he says: "I am in full accord with the views set forth by the resolutions which you enclosed relative to the Armenian troubles. I shall have the resolutions presented in the Senate and use every means in my power in the manner requested."

AN INCH OF SNOW.

Another Severe Snow Storm Expected Tonight or Tomorrow.

The old goose has not lost all her feathers after all, and the light feathery flakes of snow began to fall early yesterday afternoon. A severe storm had been predicted and everybody expected to see a heavy fall of snow, but they were surprised this morning to find only an inch of the white blanket that covered the ground. It was not the big storm that came, however, and that is expected tonight or tomorrow. It comes up the coast and promises to be a severe one, a small sized blizzard, in fact.

The little snow that did fall yesterday afternoon did not check the skating and all the afternoon Hyde's and the other ponds in the vicinity were crowded with young people. The boys on Hyde's pond spent most of the afternoon in an exciting game of hockey.

A BRILLIANT EVENT.

Largely Attended Reception Given by Mrs. Israel C. Pierson.

A very pleasant reception and tea was given by Mrs. I. C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. The rooms were tastefully decorated with holly and greens, while red and green were the favorite colors. A large number of people were present and enjoyed the social affair exceedingly. Mrs. Pierson was assisted in receiving by the Misses Corbit, Cochran, Hunter, Bowen and VanBoskerck.

During the serving of supper by Maresi, of New York, a trio consisting of P. Ludwig Conde, violin; Clarence Eick, piano and Mr. Sierer, flute, rendered a choice selection of classical music. It was a brilliant affair throughout.

Hymn Book Selected.

The music committee from the Christian Endeavor societies met at the Y. M. C. A. building last evening and decided to use hymn book No. 5 during the revival meetings which commence next week. Everyone attending the meetings are urged to bring their book. Those who have no books will be able to purchase them at the meeting.

Organized Aid Association.

A general public meeting of this association will be held Monday evening, the 13th inst., at 8 o'clock in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. This being the first of the three regular meetings, appointed by the revised constitution, to be held in each year, all members are earnestly desired to be present. w s m

Nourishing Bread.

The "Omnia" Bread prepared by the Hygienic Food Co., of Orange, has no equal for delicacy and nutrition. The bare hands do not touch the dough in making.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

De Witt's Little Early Risers for biliousness, indigestion, constipation. A small pill, a prompt cure. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

DRANK HARNESS DRESSING.

A Coachman Made a Serious Mistake in Taking Medicine.

A coachman in the employ of W. J. Buttfield, of 161 Grove street, made a very serious mistake a few nights ago, which might have cost him his life. He had been down town during the evening and when he returned home, which was rather late, he did not feel very well. Before retiring he thought he would take some medicine which he had in a bottle in the barn. Trusting to his knowledge of knowing just where it was, he did not use a light. As a result he drank a considerable quanity of harness dressing by mistake. He went to bed and early in the morning was taken violently ill. Dr. Rushmore was sent for and gave the proper treatment.

It is now thought that he is out of danger, though he is still unable to leave his bed.

An Artist.

The Gatcomb Musical Gazette in speaking of Farland's performance, says:

"We thought that with the performance of Messrs. Brooks and Denton, the climax of banjo playing had been reached, but we felt much curiosity over the next number on the programme which announced Chopin's Grande Valse Brilliant op 18, and Mendelssohn's Concerto op 64. It is almost superfluous to mention the roloist's name for there is no man in the world, as yet, whose technique can be compared to Mr. Farland's It was reserved for him to show us the truly marvelous in banjo playing."

Will appear at the Y. M. C. A. Hall next Tuesday evening.

Amateur Actors Entertained.

A very pleasant reception was given to the members of the North Plainfield Dramatic Club, last evening, by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bailey at their home on Jackson avenue. A business meeting of the club was held early in the evening and the question of another play was discussed. The rest of the time was spent very enjoyably in dancing, music and conversation. Refreshments were served at the close. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. T. Neeley, Mr. and Mrs. James Harper, Miss May Hughes, Miss Ellie Mullen, F. Huff and G. Kiely.

Cutting the Butcher's Credit.

A new system of weekly payments has just been adopted by the Plainfield and Union Beef Companies. The local butchers are now compelled to pay their bills each week for meat purchased the succeeding week before they can get any more. After long consideration of the subject the companies came to the conclusion that this was imperative, in order to keep their accounts up to date. The system will require more carefulness on the part of the local butchers, and will result in less credit being given.

Young Temperance Workers.

The Y. W. C. T. U. held their regular business meeting at the home of Miss Lewis on Central avenue yesterday afternoon. The attendance of members was very good. It was decided to hold a parlor meeting at an early date, at which time Miss Campbell, of New Brunswick, will make an address. There was a discussion as to the advisability of forming a sewing society, but nothing definite was decided. The next meeting will be held at Miss Lewis's home, Wednesday afternoon, January 22d.

'Twas Time to Stop.

There is one horse in Plainfield that believes in the eight hour labor law, and that is the horse attached to Hoagland's express wagon. He was standing in front of the freight house yesterday afternoon at about half past five, when noticing that it was dark and time to stop work the horse started down to Park avenue on his way home. Sergeant Kiely stopped the would be runaway at North avenue and the horse found that eight hours is not meant for horses.

The Hygienic Food Co.,

of Orange, deliver in Plainfield daily their delicious Brown Bread prepared from their "Omnia" Flour. Ask your grocer to deliver a loaf the next time you are down town.

Notice.

VanEmburgh & Son will close their place of business every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, until further notice. 6

—Popular prices will prevail during the short engagement of Lillian Kennedy Company. 10, 20, 30.

—The Ladies Aid Association of the Commercial Palace will meet Friday evening, Jan. 17th, at the home of Miss Doud, on Duer street.

INDENTIFICATION NOT SURE.

PROSECUTION OF JACOB S. JOHNSON FOR MURDER CLOSED.

Witnesses Say They Saw a Man and Woman But Don't Identify Them—The Defence Now Making Their Plea.

The evidence of the prosecution in the trial of Jacob S. Johnson, the evangelist, for the murder of Sarah Ann Rogers, near Somerville several months ago, was completed in the Somerset County Courts at Somerville yesterday, and the defense was outlined by Counselor James J. Meehan. None of the witnesses positively identified Johnson as the man seen with the woman. Landlord S. J. Treat, of the Commercial Hotel, said he recognized Johnson as the man who came to his house Saturday night with a woman and asked for drinks. Three or four young men testified to seeing the couple at Cawley's saloon. Joseph Gorman, a switchman, said he saw a colored man and woman cross the tracks the night of the murder. The woman of had on a gray dress. He also noticed that the man carried a bag. He could not positively identify Ann Rogers's clothing, nor was he sure the man was Johnson. Garret VanArsdale thought he saw the couple leave the Commercial Hotel.

James J. Meehan opened for the defense. He said they would prove that after the pair were at Cawley's Johnson was left by the woman, who was subsequently seen in stores about town with another man.

GIVEN A PAST MASTER'S JEWEL.

Masons Make a Presentation to Calvin H. Rugg Last Night.

Previous to the installation of the officers-elect of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., last evening, W. H. Sebring in a neat little speech presented Calvin H. Rugg with a handsome Past Master's jewel. Mr Rugg was so completely surprised that he could make no reply, except to thank the givers.

B. Frank Coriell and W. H. Sebring installed the officers as follows: D. C. Adams, W. M.; S. Beeching, S. W.; W. F. Bartlett, J. W.; Alex Titsworth, treasurer; Charles Yaeger, secretary; J. M. Lewis, chaplain; M. L. Connolly, S. D.; S. Van Horn, J. D.; L. S. Pocock, S. M. of C.; F. W. Hand, J. M. of C.; L. B. Woolston and J. W. Van Sickle, stewards; Henry Woodland, organist; Caspar Bolsterli, tyler.

A sumptuous banquet was enjoyed after the ceremonies.

Want a Fence Built.

A petition is in circulation among the residents of Evona asking the Central railroad to build a fence on each side of the Clinton avenue bridge. This is the structure that John Johnson walked off Saturday and died from the injuries he received. Three other persons have also been hurt by walking off the bridge.

Grand Officers to Be Present.

A district meeting of the Knights of Pythias will be held at the Unity Lodge rooms in the Babcock building this evening. Grand Chancellor Ralph Donath and staff will be present. One candidate will be worked in the second rank. A collation will be served.

Stay Home and Freeze.

You can, of course. But a charming trip over the Union Pacific will in a few hours land you in California, the loviest climate in winter for strong men or invalids there is this country. R. Ten Broeck, General Eastern Agent, 287 Broadway, N. Y.

City Nurse's Residence.

Miss Rendall, the city nurse engaged by the King's Daughters, will take up her residence in a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Dickinson, 141 East Fifth street.

Minstrel Rehearsal.

A rehearsal of the minstrel company of the Crescent Wheelmen will be held in the Babcock building this evening at 8 o'clock.

A Well Known

Lady of this city in writing of the numerous merits of our "Omnia" Bread, states that it makes the most delicious toast she has ever tasted.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

A MODEL DRUG STORE.

J. Howard Leggett's New Pharmacy in the Y. M. C. A. Building.

When Watchung avenue is cut through and united with the corresponding street in the Borough, the vicinity of Watchung avenue and Front street promises to be one of the most important trade centres in the city. One of the first of Plainfield's merchants to realize that fact is J. Howard Leggett, the druggist, who has rented the stores on the ground floor of the Y. M. C. A. building. Only the corner store will be occupied at present. The drug store will be one of the handsomest and best fitted up in the city. Admission to it is gained through the double doors at the corner and those on the Watchung avenue side. To the right and left of the corner entrance are two large windows. Then on the right comes the tiled soda water fountain with its pink Tennessee marble counter, and a counter devoted to confectionery and cigars.

The store is finished throughout in quartered oak with nickel trimmings.

Five sides of the show cases are made of double thickness French plate glass, while the front of the perfumery cabinet is beveled plate glass.

The room is lighted by electricity while gas, with Welchbach burners, is to be added. Warm water is used in heating the store.

The cellar is a commodious one with a special bottle closet, while a closet for poisons is located at the left of the stairway.

The store was fitted up by Fischer Bros., of the New York Store Fixture Company, and the handsome green shades were arranged by Frank G. Wyckoff.

Mr. Leggett moved into the store today.

APPRECIATED HIS SERVICES

The Plainfield Catholic Club Remembers Its Old President.

It is often said that an efficient officer is never appreciated until he is missing, but John J. Lynch who has occupied the presidential chair of the Plainfield Catholic Club since its organization, until a short time ago, is not one of that number. Last evening Mr. Lynch was reminded of that fact.

A special meeting of the Plainfield Catholic Club was called for last evening, but the object was not stated. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Ginna who asked Father Murphy to state the object of the call. Father Murphy made a neat little speech, filled with sentiment and humor, and ended by presenting Mr. Lynch with a handsome ebony cane with a carved gold head on which was the inscription: 'Presented to J. J. Lynch by the members of the Plainfield Catholic Club, January, 1896."

Officers Installed.

Vice Grand Commander Downey, of Jersey City, installed the officers-elect of Ivanhoe Council, No. 1074, A. L. of H., last evening as follows:—Commander, R. B. Rogers; Vice-Commander, J. A. Powlison; Past Commander, J. P. Allis; Secretary, G. E. Stillman; Collector, F. B. Fuller; Treasurer, L. A. Hummer; Chaplain, L. T. Rogers; Orator, G. L. VanEmburgh; Guide, Berthold J. Schriener; Warden, Martin Lance.

He Felt Good.

The brisk weather of Monday made the horse attached to Kersting & Klinsman's bakery wagon feel quite lovely. While on Fourth street that morning, he began to dance, and succeeded in smashing the dashboard before he was quieted.

Well Known Physicians

Would not recommend the "Omnia" Bread, prepared by the Hygienic Food Co., of Orange, were they not aware of its nutritious qualities.

—Over one hundred colored electrical lights will be used in the great garden scene.

—Dr. L. S. Pocock will install the officers of Westfield Lodge, No. 169, I. O. O. F., this evening.

CAMPOS' SIDE OF IT

No Danger of Rebels Invading Havana.

The Situation in Cuba from a Military Point of View, He Says, Remains Unchanged—Rebels Continually Pushed, But the Results Are Not Satisfactory.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Spanish minister received last night a telegram from Madrid stating that Marshal Campos, in a telegram received there yesterday, says: The main body of the enemy has marched to the province of Pinar Del Rio. I have advanced the columns of Generals Valdez, Garcia, Navarro, Exchague and Luque to follow them. I have the other columns on the railroad between Havana and Batabano. They will take rations and proceed to-day in a parallel line to occupy the line from Mariel to Artemisa. The columns of Prats, Galvis, Fort Aldados and the batallions of Valencia and Espana are chasing the small bands that are burning and committing other depredations. The situation in Cuba from a military point of view remains unchanged. The insurgents have proceeded west without daring to stop in any place and are avoiding all encounters. They have been continually pushed although the results are not satisfactory on account of their destruction of property. Nothing is in danger and it is absurd to suppose that they will pretend to attempt to enter Havana, when, until the present moment, they have not dared to enter any town of medium importance. In the department of the east the principle villas and even in Matanzas, nothing of importance has occurred in the past few days, notwithstanding that a large number of troops have been withdrawn from there. That shows that the insurgents have no means and are not supported by the population.

STICKS TO HIS CONFESSION.

McGough Tells Shea's Lawyers That He Killed Ross.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Counsel representing the governor and "Bat" Shea called at Dannemora prison yesterday to get a sworn statement from McGough, who says he killed Robert Ross, for whose murder Shea is under sentence of death. The governor's counsel examined McGough privately, but Shea's counsel were compelled to conduct their examination publicly, to which proceedings they entered a formal protest. McGough again persisted in his statement that he, and not Shea, committed the murder.

THE VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

Sir Edward Clarke Says England Must Submit.

London, Jan. 8.—Speaking to his constituents at Plymouth, Sir Edward Clarke, M. P., who was solicitor general from 1886 to 1892, said that if Great Britain refused arbitration on her claims within the Schomburgk line, submitting to arbitration only those claims outside of that line, there would be a war with the United States in which Great Britain would not be in the right.

School Building Burned.

Stoughton, Mass., Jan. 8.—The Clapp school building in which are located the high school and several intermediate grades, was burned to the ground yesterday afternoon. The teachers succeeded in getting the scholars all out in an orderly manner without accident.

Harrison Not a Candidate.

Cincinnati, Jan. 8.—Ex-Attorney General W. H. H. Miller in an interview last night said Gen. Harrison is not making a canvass for the republican presidental nomination. "If Gen. Harrison is a candidate," said Mr. Miller, "he has never told me so."

Window Glass Plants To Close.

Millville, N. J., Jan. 8.—It is now definitely known that the window glass plants throughout the country will close down next Saturday and remain idle for four weeks. The manufacturers have officially notified the workmen to that effect.

Newfoundland Gale Swept.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 8.—A fierce gale, the worst in many years, swept over this island Monday night. The telegraph wires being prostrated it is impossible to learn the full extent of the damage done, but it must have been great.

Ochs Again Dismissed.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Jacques Ochs, who was arrested Saturday night on charges of organizing bogus Masonic lodges in New York and other cities, and who was discharged by Justice Underwood and then re-arrested, has again been dismissed.

Sir Julian Goldsmid Dead.

London, Jan. 8.—Sir Julian Goldsmid, member of parliament, is dead at Brighton, where he had been seriously ill for several weeks. He was one of the wealthiest, most charitable and best known Hebrews in England.

To Command a Training Ship.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Commander E. T. Strong has been assigned to the command of the training ship Essex to succeed Commander Kingsley, who died suddenly on board that vessel Saturday.

Ten Years for "Dr." Bishop.

Boston, Jan. 8.—"Dr." Henry E. Bishop, alias Henry A. Bailey, has been sentenced to ten years in state prison for causing the death of Petrena Matson by a criminal operation.

UNWELCOME VISITOR.

A Drunken Man Attempts To Pay Gov. Morton a New Year's Call.

Albany, Jan. 8.—It has just become known that the governor narrowly missed an annoying visit from a crank at the executive chamber one evening last week. Col. Ashley W. Cole, the governor's private secretary says the facts are that on New Year's night a man in a drunk and maudling condition came to the door of the executive mansion. He rang the bell so persistently that although it was midnight the butler got up and went to the door. The fellow took the butler unawares and pushing the door open got inside the mansion. Then the caller said he only wanted to see the governor and to shake hands and wish him a happy New Year. He mumbled something about having been making New Year calls. With a little cajolery the fellow was placed on the outside again and the doors locked behind him. The Albany police were notified, but have been merely requested hereafter to keep a sharp lookout to prevent future annoyances of the kind if possible. The police on their rounds now take in the grounds of the executive mansion.

SAYS OUR ATTITUDE IS UNFAIR.

England's New Poet Laureate Refuses To Sign a Peace Petition.

London, Jan. 8.—In reply to a request that he sign the address of British literary men to American authors asking the latter to do all in their power to prevent a war between Great Britain and the United States, Alfred Austin, the new poet laureate, writes professing admiration and respect for the American government and people, but saying that their recent attitude was unfair and unfriendly. He therefore at the moment cannot approve of a body of Englishmen addressing a body of Americans in language which might be construed as savoring of timorous complaisance.

STORY OF AWFUL SUFFERING.

A Family Hemmed in By Snow in a Starving Condition.

Atchison, Kan., Jan. 8.—Information has been received that Frank McCain, formerly a wholesale merchant of Atchison, who has been prospecting in Washington state, was hemmed in by snow drifts with his wife and family of seven children in the mountains fifteen miles from Winthrop and were in a starving condition. The oldest son by a superhuman effort got to Winthrop and told an awful story of suffering. He said his father had gone insane and the family would perish if they were not rescued. Assistance has been sent to them.

RELIEF FOR ARMENIANS.

$3,000 Contributed in One Day by the New England People.

Boston, Jan. 8.—Messrs. Brown Bros. & Co. acknowledge the receipt of $7,065 for the relief of the starving Armenians in Turkey. This means that the charitable people of New England have contributed almost $3,000 in the last twenty-four hours toward assisting the committee in raising the $100,000 needed to start the Red Cross society in the relief work.

Davis Held in $1,500 Bail.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—John, alias "Bubbles" Davis, ex-policeman and an ex-pugilist, who was arrested on the charge of committing perjury in testifying before the senate investigating committee, was given a hearing yesterday before Magistrate Jermon and held in $1,500 bail for court. This is the first prosecution since the beginning of the senatorial investigation.

For a Cruise to the Mediterranean.

New York, Jan. 8.—William K. Vanderbilt's yacht Valiant, with the owner and a party of friends on board, left her dock yesterday for a pleasure cruise to the Mediterraean. In the evening she anchored off Stapleton on account of thick weather.

To Define a Boundary Line.

London, Jan. 8.—An agreement has been reached between the members of the Anglo-German commission appointed to define the boundaries between the Cameroons, German territory in West Africa, and Old Calabar, British territory.

Bowling Contests.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 8.—The first game in the state bowling league series was rolled last night at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, only two balls being used. Bridgeport defeated Hartford, the score being Bridgeport, 2,115; Hartford, 1,970.

Escaped in Their Night Clothes.

South Norwalk, Conn., Jan. 8.—Lindon Lodge, a summer mansion at Norton Heights, occupied by George Goodeve, was burned yesterday. The twelve occupants of the house escaped in the biting cold weather clad only in their night clothes and ran through the snow storm in their bare feet to neighboring houses.

WITHDRAWALS OF GOLD

The Reserve Reduced $2,400,000 in One Day.

Treasury Officials Watching with Keen Interest the Renewed Attack on the Metal—Withdrawals Made by Intended Bond Purchasers—No Legal Way To Stop Them.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The treasury officials are watching with keen interest the renewed attack on the gold reserve and do not hesitate to express the opinion that most of the gold now being withdrawn is taken out by intended purchasers of the new bonds. They condemn such proceedings in strong terms, but with the present law on the statute books there is no way to legally stop such withdrawals. With yesterday's witdrawals out the treasury gold reserve at the opening of business today stood at $58,685,710. The amount of gold reported withdrawn at New York yesterday by Assistant Treasurer Jordan was $2,900,000 and there was deposited $500,000, making the net loss for the day $2,400,000.

Heavy Shipments Expected.

Gold shipments are likely to be conducted in considerable proportions during the month, and it is currently reported that $5,000,000 will be shipped this week. About $1,500,000 already withdrawn from the sub-treasury and kept here on account of the belief that the issue would be made through the syndicate, will certainly go. Large amounts of gold engaged in London for import to this country in connection with the syndicate operations will not be shipped at this time. The orders have been cancelled. Still it was pointed out that even if the shipments of the next four weeks should aggregate $20,000,000, the treasury would be only a little worse off than when the February bond contract was made and the gold balance was down to $42,000,000.

T. E. DOOLITTLE RESIGNS.

He Was State Attorney of Connecticut for Nearly Twenty Years.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 8.—Tilton E. Doolittle, state attorney for New Haven county, tendered his resignation to Judge Ralph Wheeler of the superior court yesterday afternoon just as the day's business closed. The resignation took effect at once. In accepting it Judge Wheeler said that he did so with reluctance, and that Mr. Doolittle's withdrawal from office would occasion a great loss to the administration of justice. The judge then announced that he would appoint temporarily to the office William N. Williams of Derby. Mr. Doolittle held the office of state attorney for nearly twenty years, succeeding Orville H. Platt, when that gentleman resigned to go to the United States senate. Mr. Doolittle has no definite plans, but it is believed that he will travel for some time to come. It is said in certain legal circles that Mr. Doolittle's retirement may end the famous Lee-Whitten cases, which have been in the courts for two or three years in one form or another. It is argued that a new man in the office could not conduct the cases as Mr. Doolittle could.

TO ENTERTAIN AMERICANS.

British Congregationalists Preparing for Their Expected Visitors.

London, Jan. 8.—The English committee appointed in connection with the visit to this country in June next of American Congregationalists held a meeting yesterday and made arrangements for a reception to the Americans. The deans of Westminster and Canterbury have offered to extend courtesies to their visitors during their stay here. After making a tour of the centres of interest in England the Americans, accompanied by an English party, will visit Holland.

Benefit Performance for Armenians

Boston, Jan. 8.—There was a fairly large attendance at the benefit performance at the Boston theatre yesterday afternoon in aid of the Armenian sufferers. Volunteers from the various playhouses of the city contributed an enjoyable programme, and in addition there were addresses by Gov. Greenhalge and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

Mlle. May's Slander Suit.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 8.—Mlle. Jane May, the French comedienne who has brought suit for $35,000 against Rev. Dr. Joseph Pullman of this city, alleging slander in the pulpit, will appear before Judge Carroll this afternoon and her deposition will be taken, as she will not be able to be here when the case comes up for trial.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkhams wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms, — Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

Uitlanders Resolve To Lay Down Their Arms.

Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of Cape Colony, Arrives at Pretoria—Englishmen Now Defending Jameson's Actions—The British Press Still Excited.

London, Jan. 8.—Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, cables from Pretoria, capital of the Transvaal, under date of to-day, that he has received a message from the reform committee at Johannesburg stating that the Uitlanders have resolved to comply with the demand of the Transvaal government that they relinquish their arms. The people, the committee added, are placing themselves unreservedly in his hands, being confident that he will see that justice is done them. Sir Hercules then quotes a message sent by Sir Jacobus de Wet, the British political agent at Pretoria, to President Kruger, containing the reform committee's formal resolution declaring that the committee had instructed its followers to lay down their arms, relying on the Transvaal government to maintain order and protect life. The resolution requests that the armed burghers in the vicinity of Johannesburg be removed. Sir Jacobus de Wet added in his message that he was convinced that the foreigners would abandon their arms without further difficulty and urged that the republic co-operate with the committee for a day or two in restoring the normal condition of affairs in Johannesburg. Sir Hercules concludes his dispatch by saying he hopes now to be able to confer with President Kruger and the executive council relative to the prisoners and the redressing of the grievances of the foreign residents of Johannesburg.

Down on Germany.

Lord Salisbury again visited the foreign office this morning and immediately after his arrival received Mr. Chamberlain, and later Count von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador. Political circles in London maintain that if it be true that the emperor of Germany has promised to recognize the independence of the Transvaal republic by appointing a German minister instead of a consul at Pretoria it may mean war between Great Britain and Germany. The British press still urges the government to accept Germany's interference as an insult and a declaration of war.

Defending Jameson Now.

The English people quote Dr. Jameson's statement that he only crossed the frontier because of the urgent appeals made by the inhabitants of Johannesburg and because he fully believed that large numbers of his countrymen and countrywomen were in dire peril of their lives and that it was only to save them and protect them that he moved, in defense of his action. Jameson declared that he could have beaten the Boers if the people of Johannesburg had made any effort to help themselves, which he says he was led to expect they would do. Help did not reach him at Krugersdorp and he could not break through the Boer lines. His followers, he declares, fought until they were dropping to the ground exhausted and their ammunition had been spent. The Boers were in a strong position and Jameson's forces were unable to dislodge them. If the men of Johannesburg had only destroyed the railway to Krugersdorp, the doctor declares, which they could easily have done, it would have prevented the supplies of ordnance being taken to the intrenched Boers, which enabled them to hold out against the attacks. As it was, a special train loaded with ammunition ran out to the Boers from Johannesburg without hindrance.

Kruger's Grandson Arrested.

A dispatch received from Johannesburg, dated Jan. 2, says it has transpired that upon the arrival of the news of Dr. Jameson's advance, Mr. Eloff, President Kruger's grandson, rode unattended to meet the British South Africa company's force with a view to persuading them to return. He met them at Zwaartlaagte and vainly urged them to retire. He was placed under arrest the following day, when he was liberated and his horse returned to him. Dr. Jameson retained his arms, telling him to call for them at the government offices in Pretoria.

Troops for Cape Town.

The Telegraph says the government has decided to send to Cape Town as soon as possible strong reinforcements of calvary and infantry. It adds that a second regiment which is under orders to return home from India, will stop at Cape Town, while other regiments selected from the first army corps in England will shortly leave for that place. The Telegraph further says that a first class British cruiser has been ordered to Delagoa bay.

CAN'T SWERVE THE KAISER.

Grandmother's Protest Would Have No Weight with Him.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The report in London that Queen Victoria had written a letter to the emperor of Germany rebuking him for his attitude in regard to the Transvaal; especially in the matter of the congratulatory message which his majesty sent to President Kruger, is not discussed here at all, as it is well-known that the kaiser cannot be swayed in his determination by the suggestions of any of his relatives.

Prizes for Volunteers.

London, Jan. 8.—Princess Louise, daughter of the queen and wife of the Marquis of Lorne, yesterday presented prizes to the Middlesex volunteers.

WILL OF PATRICK MULLEN.

The Late Famous Gun Maker's Estate Valued at $95,000.

New York, Jan. 8.—The will of Patrick Mullen, the famous gun maker and experimenter, who died a short time ago at his home in Flatbush, has been filed for probate. The value of the estate disposed of by will is fixed at $95,000. Mr. Mullen, was, during the later years of his life, somewhat eccentric and nearly all of his time was spent in the perfecting of a gun, which he had patented and brought to a high state of perfection. He carried on his experiments in secret, zealously guarding the fruits of his work. Under the will William Vincent Farrell, a nephew of the deceased, is to have the income of $10,000 for life. Should he die without issue the income of $10,000 is to go to the Home for Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor of New York. The residuary estate is bequeathed to Timothy D. Sullivan, lord mayor of Dublin, to be used for teaching the Irish language.

ADJ.-GEN. M'ALPIN'S ORDERS.

N. G., S. N. Y., Officers Must Change Their Uniforms.

Albany, Jan. 8.—Adjt.-Gen. McAlpin has issued an order commanding that all of the officers of the National guard change their undress uniform so as to conform with the undress uniform of the United States army, involving an entire change of blouses. He also orders that long service medals in the state guard may be retained when a medal for longer service is merited and received.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE.

R. J. Cody Sentenced at Boston for Stealing $100.

Boston, Jan. 8.—Robert J. Cody has been sentenced in the superior court to state prison for life. He was convicted of highway robbery of $100 from Albert E. Chadbourne, a collector, in broad daylight on India street, being armed with a loaded revolver, with the intent to kill and maim. Cody is considered a dangerous criminal and the sentence, under the circumstances, was imperative.

Judge Vann's New Position.

Albany, Jan. 8.—Justice Irving G. Vann of Syracuse yesterday afternoon filed with the secretary of state his resignation as justice of the supreme court, fifth department. Justice Vann then took the oath of office before the secretary as a judge of the court of appeals to succeed Judge Peckham.

DEAD-LOCK PROMISED

Republican Senators To Caucus on Tariff Bill.

A Majority in Favor of Reporting the House Measure Without Amendments—Mr. Jones, However, Holds the Balance of Power and May Block the Measure.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The finance committee substitute for the house bond bill was reported in the senate by Mr. Jones, dem., Ark., and was placed on the calendar—Mr. Jones giving notice that he would ask the senate to take it up for consideration this afternoon and expressing the hope that it would be disposed of at the earlies possible day. It was stated by Mr. Morrill, rep., Vt., chairman of the finance committee, that the substitute had the approval of a majority of the committee, but not of the republican members of it. A plan for making the proposed loan a really popular one was suggested by Mr. Chandler, rep., N. H., in the shape of a bill containing most of the features of a postal saving system. Mr. Chandler explained it at some length and spoke of it in a somewhat jocose vein of humor as a complete and perfect panecea for the existing financial troubles. He had it referred to the postoffice committee, but said that he would offer it as an amendment to the bill of the finance committee. In connection with it there was a rather interesting discussion in relation to the cable correspondence with the Prince of Wales, the Rothschilds, and other public characters in England—the statute making such correspondence a criminal act being brought to the attention of the senator by Mr. Lodge, rep., Mass.

Vest Defends the Administration.

Later on in the day Mr. Vest, dem., Mo., took the floor and in a speech occupying over two hours and delivered with great earnestness and vehemence defended the democratic party and the Cleveland administration from the strictures contained in Mr. Sherman's recent speech, particularly in connection with tariff legislation. As to the finance question he declared himself an uncompromising adherent of the free coinage of silver and spoke of that question as an irrepressible conflict which could not be evaded and which had to be fought to a finish.

Republican Caucus.

Owing to the late session of the senate the republican caucus that took a recess until last evening was again postponed until to-day to meet after the adjournment of the senate. It is confidently believed that at that conference the republicans will, with a very comfortable majority, direct its members on the finance committee to report the tariff bill to the senate as it came from the house and without amendments of any kind. Shortly after the caucus convened yesterday Mr. Quay moved that the committee be so instructed and this motion led to the debate that followed. But one senator indicated any desire to reconstruct a tariff bill along republican lines. That senator was Mr. Baker of Kansas, a new man, and his associates in the senate looked upon his zeal as the result of his unfamiliarity with the conditions that surround the senate at this time. There were other speakers who desired amendments to be made and said they would insist upon them if the door was opened at all, but if the concensus of opinion was that this could not be done they would be satisfied and support the majority.

Jones Is Master of the Situation.

Should the caucus to-day, as now seems likely, instruct the committee to report the bill thus reported and vote down any and all amendments, a deadlock between Mr. Jones and the republican members of the committee appears to be imminent. Mr. Jones holds the balance of power in the committee. His vote is necessary to report the bill, and without him the republicans cannot report the measure in any shape. Mr. Jones said this morning that he would insist upon the addition of the 15 per cent. to the sugar schedule. If the caucus so decides the republican members will not grant it. Mr. Jones, it seems, must then either change his mind or the bill will remain in the files of the committee on finance. Republicans profess to believe that Mr. Jones will not thus put himself on record, but that, after urging his proposition, he will yield to the will of his former republican associates and permit the bill to be reported. It looks this morning as if Mr. Jones was master of the situation.

The cider joints must go.

England is getting in trouble all around.

There is an independence about Kaiser Wilhelm that is really admirable.

The next important business of the city solons will be the granting of licenses to liquor dealers.

The Jersey Republican politician will have trouble of his own next week explaining why he can not give the same office to ten men.

Mayor Gilbert's recommendation that a police station better than the present rookery be provided, is in the right line. The present station is a disgrace to the city.

Plainfield lovers of sports enjoy contests at almost every thing save skating. There is no more healthy, invigorating and exciting pastime than a spin across a glassy surface of congealed water. Where are the experts on the blades of steel?

Either New York actors are getting too realistic or else press agents are not regarding the truth the way they ought to. Only a day or two ago an actor was said to have been stabbed close to the heart, and now another thespian drinks real poison when he ought to have only drank burnt sugar and water to make the audience believe it was wine.

Senator Thompson was on hand yesterday and is greatly improved in health. He expressed entire satisfaction with the outlook for winning the President's chair. Senator Voorhees was again conspicuous by his absence, but Senator Stokes, who is watching his fight, was not at all disheartened with the situation. During the day he telephoned to Senator Voorhees to ascertain his ideas in reference to the conference suggested by the Thompson forces. Senator Voorhees favored the proposition, and as a result the Republicans of the Senate will come to Trenton next Friday evening and confer together at the Hotel Windsor. If Senator Thompson is successful in his fight, Charles H. Bateman, formerly of Trenton, and now of Somerville, will be his private secretary.—Trenton True American.

Editor Runyon's memory is beginning to fail him. In his editorial, yesterday, on the Mayor's message, he stated that he does not remember that any such reason as the Mayor gives why the sewer bonds could not be sold for less than four per cent, was made public at the time the discussion was going on last summer. He wonders why this is so. There is no need of Editor Runyon taxing his compound intellect about this. If he will consult the files of the Daily Press he will see that there is no occasion for his wonderment or worry. At the time Editor Runyon was making his lying attacks on the city administration over the negotiation for the issuance of sewer bonds, the Daily Press explicitly stated the extraordinary unfavorable footing on which Plainfield was placed in going into an open market to dispose of its bonds—practically the same facts which Editor Runyon now thinks Mayor Gilbert's words satisfactorily explains. By the sense of his own words, Editor Runyon now admits that he was entirely ignorant of what he essayed to know all about last summer, and that the insinuations which he cast upon the honorable characters of city officials was conceived in an entirely illiterate and mendacious attempt to get even with men against whom he had a personal grievance.

A Foreign Tour.

Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, expects to spend his vacation next summer in Europe.

Dr. C. R. Thiers holds the January record for the highest score at the Park Club. On Monday night he rolled a score of 228.

Cranford and Westfield were to have rolled two games last evening in The Standard Bowling League, but they were postponed until tonight.

The Bachelor - Benedict bowling match was too much for the Park Club bowlers, and the team that went to Roselle last evening was badly defeated in two games in The Standard Bowling League. Luck was against them, and a profusion of splits made their score unusually low. The first game was won by Roselle, 832 pins to 708. The second also went to Roselle by the score of 877 to 753. These two victories for the Roselle bowlers have tied them with the Park Club for second place in the league.

There was excitement on the Hope Chapel alleys during the first part of the evening, but at the close the faces of the home team were almost as long as their alleys. The Y. M. C. A. team came up to roll a friendly match. The two teams fought hand-to-hand up to the fifth frame of the first game, when the visitors settled down to hard work and began to increase their score. The first game they won by 55 pins. The second game was a landslide and the Hope Chapelites were buried beneath the ruins. The Y. M. C. A. team led by 38 pins on the first frame and kept increasing it to within four pins of 200 at the last frame. The final score of the Y. M. C. A. boys, 815 pins, was remarkably high, considering the situation. A glance at the following individual score shows who did the best bowling:

Y. M. C. A.

Clarence Rittenhouse acted as umpire, and George P. Smith as scorer.

There seems to be a hoodoo for all visiting teams at the alleys of the Cranford C. C. The victorious Crescent Wheelmen went down to Cranford last evening, and were defeated by twenty-four pins. It was not the bowling of the home team that won the game, however, but the hoodoo, for while the Cranford boys only rolled a total of 1400, the Plainfield party completely upset their lowest record by making only 1376. The pins were new and seemed glued to the floor, while splits were to be expected by every bowler. Kiely was high man for Plainfield with 155. Despite the low scores, the game was an exciting one. The Cranford boys took the lead in the first frame by five pins, and in the second, were the same number behind the Crescents. The latter ran along in front until the fifth frame, when the home team began to get into form and overcame all but three pins of the lead. The hoodoo began its work and the visitors fell out of the lead and ran in second place for the rest of the game. They made a strong effort to get back into the winning position in the last frame but without success.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Board of Trustees of the Plainfield Bicycle Club met at the home of T. S. Burr, Sandford avenue, last evening, and transacted routine business.

Yesterday afternoon J. Hervey Doane and Dr. D. C. Adams took a spin over the frozen roads. The running qualities of the wheels are very fine.

The annual meeting of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company was held Monday evening and the following officers were elected: President, F. L. C. Martin; secretary, G. M. Macintyre; treasurer, G. B. Macintyre.

The first of the '96 Cleveland tandems turned out of the manufactory was received by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, yesterday. In the morning the tandem was given its initiatory trip by F. L. C. Martin and G. Macintyre. After riding about six miles out into the country they found very rough roads. In trying to get out of one of the deep ruts, the rear tire was pulled directly off of the rim. A shoemaker, it is said, always goes barefooted, and so the two bicycle dealers were caught without a single tool. Part of the air was allowed to escape from the tire, and then it was put into position only to have the valve stem torn off. Not caring to walk home, they took off the tire and rode home on the wooden rim, a distance of about four miles. The rear wheel shewed no sign of the tremendous strain.

AT THE TRAPS.

A shooting match between Lambert and Akens is taking place at the grounds of the Climax Gun Club today. They are shooting at twenty-five birds for $25 a side.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

James Blake, who played full back on the Princeton 'varsity football eleven in '94, has been visiting in this city.

Officers Elected.

At a meeting of the Union County Branch of the State Aid Association, of New Jersey, held in the chapel of Trinity church, Elizabeth, on Monday evening, Jan. 6th, the following officers were elected for 1896: Henry B. Newhall, Plainfield, President; Rev. E. Kimpshall, D. D., Elizabeth, Vice President; Rev. Hobart Clark, Plainfield, Secretary.

Contract Awarded.

The contract for carpenter work on Messrs. French & Vail's hotel on Johnston's Drive has been awarded to Herman Hansen, a resident of the borough, and he will prosecute the work as rapidly as the weather will permit.

WINTER.

Out of the north with fume and froth
And breath of ague-breeding clime.
There comes a knight in armor white
And goodly beard of sparkling wine:
But, ah! this knight can never fright
The man who winter's vantage evens
By warming nest of home with best
Of coal from yards of Geo. O. Stevens.

—A meeting of the joint committees of the firemen's fair will be held on Thursday evening to make a final settlement of the finances of the fair.

—There will be an entire change of programme each evening, and special scenery used for every production. 10, 20, 30 cents.

ECHOES.

I heard beyond the hills a clear voice ringing
And rocky heights the tones were backward flinging,
Each airy summit towering there
Gave forth an answering sound;
And yet so changed it was by oft repeating,
It seemed some other self had caught the greeting
And tossed it back with mocking air
And hurried, leaping bound.

I heard a word of gossip, lightly falling,
A little word, but gone beyond recalling,
So swift from lip to lip it flew,
Caught in the social gale;
But when the echoing sound came backward stealing,
Each voice had added somewhat in revealing,
So that a listener scarcely knew
The author of the tale.

THE HEART OF AMERICA.

Southern People Are American In Ideas, Progressive and Patriotic.

Edward W. Bok pays a delightful and admiring tribute to the south and to the southern people in The Ladies' Home Journal. Inspired by the management of the Cotton exposition at Atlanta to keep the gates of the great exhibition closed on Sunday—in fact, to have never seriously considered nor discussed opening them—Mr. Bok contends that the southern idea in this matter of Sabbath observance, as it is in a great many other directions, is simply the pure, sound American idea. The most wholesome American ideas, those ideas upon which our government rests, are nowhere so prevalent as they are at present in the south.

They do not question divine laws in the south. They accept and perpetuate them. Intellectual progress there goes hand in hand with a strict adherence to the accepted beliefs of religion. The southern mother does not explain the Bible to her children in the light of so called "modern teachings." She places it in their hands as her mother gave it to her. And with the fundamental principles of religion the southern child is taught patriotism and a love of country. Hence religion and patriotism stand side by side in the education of a southern child. The southern people believe in progress, but progress along healthy, rational lines. Theories which mentally upset find no sympathy with them. They are content to move slowly, but sanely and surely.

And some day, when the vast majority of us who live in other portions of this country get through with our camping out civilization, when we drop our boastful manners, when we get old enough to understand that there is a stronghold of conservatism which stands between tyranny and anarchism, our eyes will turn toward the south. And we will see there a people who are American in ideas and in living, a people worshipful, progressive, earnest, courageous and patriotic—a people who have made of their land, against defeat and prejudice, "the heart of America."

The Gift Came Back.

The young man might have become the husband of the girl, only one night when they were at a little party she drank a cocktail that was playfully offered to her. He felt it his duty to reprimand her mildly. She resented his interference and the engagement was broken off.

He sought forgetfulness in travel, while she, with woman's enterprise, became engaged to another young man.

A wedding invitation was sent to the traveler as a peace offering, and as he had recovered from his first grief he sent congratulations and also wrote to one of his friends and directed him to purchase some suitable wedding gift and send it to the happy pair in his, the rejected one's, name.

Now, this friend, not being acquainted with the circumstances under which the first engagement had been terminated, and knowing that the bride and groom had liberal notions as to the sort of an entertainment to be provided for callers, bought a handsome sideboard, with all sorts of bottles and glasses and mixed drink appliances, and sent the glittering barroom array to the bride's house.

Imagine, if you can, the fury of the bride.

As she explained to one of her friends, "He might as well have told me to go ahead and drink myself to death."

Perhaps the traveler doesn't know that his wedding present has been sent back and is in storage, awaiting his arrival in Chicago.—Chicago Record.

An Important Item.

Dingle—I hear you are going to get married next month.

Wingle—Yes; I hope to.

Dingle—Well, I suppose you are pretty busy. Have you selected a place to live in yet?

Wingle—Not yet.

Dingle—Haven't got around to it, I suppose. What are you going to give your bride for a wedding present?

Wingle—I don't know.

Dingle—That so? Decided on the ushers' presents yet?

Wingle—Not yet.

Dingle—Well, well! Going to keep house or board?

Wingle—Can't tell.

Dingle—You are a strange fellow. On the eve of your wedding and nothing done. What are you waiting for anyway?

Wingle—I'm waiting, old man, to learn the size of her father's check.—New York World.

BEDS AS THEY SHOULD BE.

Some Points About Making a Well Arranged Place For Slumber.

How few persons there are who really know how to make a bed well. Perhaps in these days of cycling and public speaking women have not much time to look after this detail of home life, but it is, after all, the details which go to make up the total of home comfort, and what more important for one's comfort and health than one's very own "dodo," as the French children say?

Nothing is more delicious than to creep wearily into sheets that are fresh and fragrant from clean water and oxygen. How restful to place the weary head on pillows that are thoroughly shaken, and how comfortable it is to draw around one bedclothes that are satisfactory, not too thick in one place and entirely untucked in another.

Out of 100 housemaids 99 will throw the bedclothes down over the foot of the bed, then throw them up again in a few minutes. This should never be permitted. Every article should be taken off and laid separately over a chair, and a strong current of air should be allowed to circulate through the room before the clothes are replaced. The mattress should be turned daily, and from end to end, as this insures it being worn more evenly, and it will not sink in the middle, which spoils the looks of any bed, no matter how beautiful its cover.

The new fashion of steel chain springs is a great improvement over the heavy old style spring, which, when once taken up stairs, was bound to remain there a long time. The careful housewife will cover the springs of her beds with linen, so that it may be taken off and washed. This saves the mattress all chance of rust marks from the metal. Clean newspapers will answer the same purpose.

It is only the hardiest sleepers who can enjoy their slumbers when, by a scanty supply of sheet, the blanket scratches face and neck. Narrow bedclothing is even worse, especially where the barbarous custom of sleeping two in a bed holds good. One drags the clothes one way, the other exhausts strength in clinging to them for dear life, and neither is comfortable.

A simple remedy for this discomfort is to place one blanket lengthwise across the bed. In this way there is a double advantage—less weight on the shoulders and plenty of chance for a firm tucking up. Good housemaids are quite liable, in placing three blankets on a bed, to turn down a great piece, giving you six on your shoulders and not one sufficiently tucked in on the side.

A restless child might be prevented from many a cold if blankets were placed across the bed. It is the careful watch of detail in home life that makes it differ from a hotel, and nothing is more satisfactory than a well made bed.—New York Herald.

A BLOOD RED LAKE.

Peculiarity Manifested by a Sheet of Water In Switzerland Periodically.

Lake Morat, in Switzerland, has a queer habit of turning red about two or three times every ten years. It is a pretty lake, like most of the sheets of water in that picturesque country, and its peculiar freak is attributed to a disposition to celebrate the slaughter of the Burgundians under Charles the Bold on June 21, 1476. But the French say that it blushes for the conduct of the Swiss, who in that battle gave the Burgundians no quarter.

This phenomenon, of course, has its legend. The old fishermen of the lake, who catch enormous fish called silures, that weigh between 25 and 40 kilograms, say when they see the waters of the lake reddening that it is the blood of the Burgundians. As a matter of fact, some of the bodies of the Burgundians killed in the battle were thrown into the lake, while others were tossed into a grave filled with quicklime. This historical recollection angered the Burgundian soldiers of the victorious armies of the republic in 1798 so much that they destroyed the monument raised in honor of their compatriots who fell heroically in that battle, and Henri Martin very justly reproached them for that piece of vandalism.

It would hardly do to attribute the reddening of the waters of the lake to the blood of the soldiers of Charles the Bold. The coloring is due simply to the presence in large quantities of little aquatic plants called by naturalists oscillatoria rubescens. The curious thing about it is that Lake Morat is the only lake in which this curious growth is developed, and this peculiarity is beginning to interest scientific men. —New York Sun.

Human Pedigrees.

The effect of pedigree is a great puzzle, because careful attention to it seems to refine some families without in the least refining others. A dozen castes in India are equally old and careful of descent, yet only the Brahmins and Kshetreyas are clearly aristocrats, but if there is any truth in heredity the descendants of the reigning houses, once compelled to exert themselves, should be men and women of special force. Those houses have kept at the top of the world for nearly 1,000 years. The objection that they have intermarried too much, even if it is true, which is doubtful, except where some taint has entered the blood, would disappear in two generations of plebeian marriages, and the consciousness of ancestry does not of necessity weaken character. We doubt if the popes have, as a body, been abler men than the Hohenzollerns, and the popes have been the picked men of a priesthood counting thousands and have had as many opportunities of action and of displaying themselves as any line of kings.—London Spectator.

Abraham Lincoln's Substitute.

During the earlier days of the war it seems to have been the desire of all prominent men in Washington to have a representative in the ranks, and Lincoln was no exception to the rule. At that time there was a minister named Staples in Washington, one of whose sons, then aged 19, had a desire to go to the front. Lincoln heard of him, and, after a conference, selected him as his representative, and he proved worthy, for he won honor on the field. He survived the war, and finally died in Stroudsburg, Pa. The inscription on the stone over his grave reads as follows:

J. Summerfield Staples, a private of Company C, 176th Regiment, P. V.; also a member of the Second Regiment, D. C. Volunteers, as a substitute of Abraham Lincoln.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Best He Could Do.

Mr. Gotham—The doctor says I need rest and quiet and must move to the country. I want to find a small house in a perfectly quiet neighborhood, where there are no noisy children, no barking dogs, no crowing roosters, no disturbing sounds of any kind.

EYES.

Eyes that dartle, eyes that dare—
Oh, the glory of them!
Eyes that startle when I draw near
Seeing how I love them—
Startle and droop and tremble,
And all but shut out my bliss,
Then—eyes that cannot dissemble,
Draw me in with a kiss,
Sweet eyes!
Draw me in with a kiss.

Eyes that weave for me mystic spells,
Eyes that are deep and fearful,
Eyes that could drown me in their wells,
If they were not too careful—
That carry me down, down, down,
In love's divine baptism,
Only to lift me and crown
Me at last with love's bright prism,
Pure eyes!
At last with love's bright prism.

Eyes that soften and glint and glow
Like sun shot dewdrops golden;
Eyes that could pierce me thro' and thro'
Were they not love beholden—
Pierce me and turn me and chill me,
And send me adrift—alone—
Eyes that could leave me—and kill me,
If they were not mine own.
True eyes—
If they were not mine own.
—Orelia Key Bell in Detroit Free Press.

A GLIMPSE OF HAVANA.

Everything In the Houses Made to Serve Comfort and Coolness.

The houses in Havana are mainly broad and low, three story buildings being rare and one story structures quite common. You notice that everything is made to serve comfort and coolness. Instead of having panes of glass, the windows are open and guarded by light iron railings, and the heavy wooden doors are left ajar. You see into many houses as you pass along, and very cool and clean they look. There are marble floors, cane seated chairs and lounges, thin lace curtains and glimpses of courts in the center of each building, often with green plants of gaudy flowers growing in them between the parlor and the kitchen. You will find much the same plan at your hotel. You may walk in at the doors or the dining room windows just as you please, for the sides of the house seem capable of being all thrown open, while in the center of the building you see the blue sky overhead. Equally cool do all the inhabitants appear to be, and the wise man who consults his own comfort will do well to follow the general example. Even the soldiers wear straw hats.

The gentlemen are clad in underwear of silk & lisle thread, and suits of linen, drill or silk, and the ladies are equally cooly appareled. Havana is a dressy place, and you will be astonished at the neatness and style to which the tissuelike goods worn there are made to conform. But come and see the apartment you are to rest in every night. Ten to one the ceiling is higher than you ever saw one in a private house, and the huge windows open upon a balcony overlooking a verdant plaza. The floor is of marble or tiling, and the bed is an ornate iron or brass affair, with a tightly stretched sheet of canvas or fine wire netting in place of the mattresses you are used to. You could not sleep on a mattress with any proper degree of comfort in the tropics. There is a canopy, with curtains overhead, and everything about the room is pretty certain to be scrupulously clean. Conspicuous there and everywhere else that you go is a rocking chair. Rocking chairs are to be found in rows in the houses and in regiments in the clubs.—Cornhill Magazine

A Lion Hunter's Close Call.

Giving over my pony to one of the Somalis, I walked slowly toward the lion, bidding Jama remain in the saddle if he wished, but to keep as near as possible with the second gun. Very cautious and slow was my approach, for I did not want to bring on a charge before I had got in a shot, and it looked as if a too rapid advance would do so, for the lion, without stirring an inch, kept up a series of snarls and growls, giving me an excellent view of his teeth, accompanied all the while by short, sharp flicks of his tail on the ground. I walked up to within 50 yards of him, hoping to shoot him dead at that distance and so avoid a charge. I then sat down and fired at him between the eyes, jumping to my feet instinctively to be ready if he charged. It was not a bit too soon. At the shot the lion sprang up with a furious roar. I had a lightning glimpse of him rearing up on his hind legs, pawing the air. Then he came for me. It was a fierce rush across the ground; no springing that I could see.

How close we got before I fired I cannot say, but it was very close. I let him come on, aiming the muzzle of the rifle at his chest. Jama says he was about to spring as I pulled the trigger and ran back a pace or two to one side, but, as I did so, I saw through the smoke that the lion was stopped within a few paces of me. The second gun and Jama were not as near as they might have been. The lion struggled up on his hind quarters, uttering roars.

I rammed two fresh cartridges into my rifle in an instant and fired my right into him. The grand brute fell over, dying. The Somalis set up a wild yell, and I am not sure I did not join in.—Scribner's Magazine.

Two "Great Fires."

The fire which occurred in London in 1666, and which is known in history as "the great fire," was not nearly so destructive as that which swept Chicago in October, 1871. The great London fire destroyed 13,000 houses and other buildings, not counting outhouses, barns, etc., and a great many bridges, ships and boats. The total loss is estimated by the best historians at $53,000,000—not pounds.

The great Chicago fire destroyed 17,430 buildings of all kinds, burned over 2,124 acres of territory and made 98,000 people homeless. The money loss was not less than $200,000,000, almost four times as great as that incurred in the great London disaster of 200 years before. Only six persons lost their lives during the progress of the great fire in the British metropolis, whereas upward of 200 (Chambers says 250) perished during the three days the demon raged through the streets of Chicago.—St. Louis Republic.

His Method.

Here is a good illustration of the rule of life which is adopted by some of our successful men. Three gentlemen, all hungry after a long day's sport, and only two partridges on the table! The carver put his fork into one of these, removed it to his own plate and remarked: "Gentlemen, I want fair play and mean to have it. There is that partridge for you two, and here is this partridge for me too."—New York Herald.

Two women having claimed a dog, a London magistrate ordered the animal to be placed in the witness box. The dog at once recognized his mistress and made many demonstrations of joy at seeing her. The magistrate said the dog's evidence established the ownership.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

ANNUAL SALE
OF
Muslin Underwear, Waists, Wrappers, Corsets.

Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look Before You Buy.

So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.

We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well-made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so-called sales.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

THE BEATTY CLAN

By ALFRED R. CALHOUN.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

These mountaineers are not good swimmers, but Dan Beatty, the old man's son, who had spent some years over on the Holston, where his wife's folks live—they were McCoys—was an exception. While the captain and the others were throwing up a defense of logs and rocks in the direction of the enemy, Dan took a survey of the black, swollen river. That morning they had learned from a mountaineer that "Woolford's First Kentucky cavalry, a-fightin fo' the gov'ment, by G—," had been seen on the south bank of the Cumberland and "a-makin fo' Raccoon springs." If these men could be communicated with, escape might be possible. If not, death by hunger or bullets was inevitable.

Dan Beatty came back from the river and told his father that he was going to swim across. "I can't take no weapons, dad," he said, "but they wouldn't be much use nohow, but if so be I make the other side I can find the Union critter regiment and bring 'em to our help."

The old man called his friends about him and had Dan repeat his proposition. The general opinion was that "no mortal man could swim that thar river without havin his blood friz to the heart afore he got half over." But Dan thought differently. After all, there was a hope in the effort, while to remain where they were meant death, and what mattered it whether a man was drowned in an attempt to save his friends or shot in an effort to kill the enemy?

Dan Beatty kicked off the old boots, soaked with the blood from his wounded feet, and said something to his father and his brothers to be repeated to Jennie, "back at the crick," in the event of his not being seen again; then he looked up quickly at the black clouds, as if invoking aid from that direction, and plunged into the black river.

The old captain and all his men not watching for the enemy from the south gathered along the Cumberland and shouted encouragement to the brave fellow battling with the swollen and icy current. Now and then the men on the southern bank gave way to despair as the flood bore the daring swimmer down. If he sank, then three of Hugh Beatty's sons would be gone, sacrificed for the Union, soldiers of a cause to which they had as yet taken no oath of allegiance, but all the more patriotic for the duty done without any pledge.

The old man was the coolest of the crowd as he watched Dan. "I'd have taken the boy's place if I could," he said to me a day or two after, "for I could feel my heart a-gittin colder ez I watched Dan a-pushin his way through that black water, and could hear at the same time the hollerin of the d——d rebs away behind us, and our boys a-poppin away so's to show 'em 'twasn't healthy to come nigher to we uns even if we uns was a-burnin up with hunger and all our ammunition was nigh near done giv' out."

Dan Beatty made the other side, and weak and dripping and nearer to death than his friends imagined he sat on a drift log and waved his ragged hat to them, while they answered with a cheer, which the enemy to the south heard and wondered at.

My troop, under Captain Owen, had been ordered to scout from Raccoon Springs to the Cumberland, and on the night of Jan. 1 I was with the advanced vedettes in the direction of the river.

It was a bitterly cold night, but as there was no danger of an attack from Zollicoffer, who was near Somerset, 40 miles below, we lighted a fire by which to cook and keep warm. A half mile to the west of the fire was an advanced picket post, and about 12 o'clock that night I rode down with the relief. I was repeating the instructions to the men about to go on picket when we were all startled by hearing a shout down the road and in the direction of the river.

He sat on a drift log and waved his hat.

"The Union! The Union, d—n you!"

Our purpose was to help the refugees now swarming up from east Tennessee, and I inferred from the shout that the cry came from a friend, but as it might be a foe we made no response, but drew back from the road and waited. Within a few minutes an unarmed man reeled into view and called out:

"Who's you uns?"

"The First Kentucky," was the reply.

"A-fightin fo' the guv'ment?"

"Yes. Who are you?"

"Dan Beatty of Tennessee. Bin out a-huntin friends, for dad and the rest of the boys over thar on the Cumberland needs em d——d bad."

The man fell as he spoke. His ragged clothes were covered with ice, and there seemed to be a death rattle in his voice.

At that time in the war whisky was served as a regular ration, but even if it had been prohibited, as it subsequently was, the Kentucky troopers, good soldiers in every other respect, would have set the order at defiance. A half dozen canteens were pushed at Dan Beatty, and if whisky ever had merit it was then. The poor fellow drank, but before he would touch the food, for which he was actually dying, he told us of the condition of the men he had left on the south bank of the Cumberland, about six miles away. Dan Beatty was mounted and sent back to the fire, and at the same time a man was sent to Captain Owen with a note reporting the condition of our friends.

There was not a boat, nor a dugout, nor a raft on the Cumberland above Mill Springs that the First Kentucky did not know all about, and they knew all the milk cows and chicken roosts, for they were and continued to be, as every old western trooper will remember, "the dandiest foragers in the Army of the Cumberland."

By daylight the next morning two ferry scows, with 50 men in blue on board, made shore at the point where old Captain Beatty and his handful of starving men were holding their position against a regiment of the enemy. I was in the first boat, and I recall that, as we leaped ashore and ran like hounds in the direction of the firing, we passed a number of dead men and not a few who were sorely wounded. When we reached the breastwork, which we did with a wild yell and a terrific fire from our carbines, I saw the old captain standing erect in the center of his little band and loading as coolly as if he were preparing to shoot at a target. When I told him that his son was safe, and that it was through him we had come to the rescue, the old man's voice trembled, and he said huskily:

"I couldn't think the good Lord would a-took all my boys afore we got back to the old flag. Andy and Hugh was kilt back in Tennessee. Last night Mart was shot, and now thar's only Dan and Tom left. But the good Lord gave, and the good Lord took away. Blessed be his name, if he thinks that's all right! But I tell you, my friend, hit's d——d hard on the old man," and he coughed and drew his coat sleeve across his eyes, and I had to turn away to hide my own tears, for I was a boy at that time.

There were nine dead men within the rude inclosure. These we hurriedly buried, marking the graves as best we could, for the old man said:

"They ain't agwine to rest here forever. First chance we has to go back under the flag we'll tote the bodies to the ole homes in the shadder o' the mountains, whar their kin's buried, and whar we uns'll some day lie down aside 'em."

We carried over the survivors and sent the wounded on to London in our wagons. Captain Owen, who lived near the latter town, wanted Hugh Beatty to go on there and stay till we were ready to move into east Tennessee, but the old man replied:

"I can't do hit, cap. I'm a' ole man, with three sons and two grandsons dead, all a-fightin so git through to whar you uns is a-standin up fo' the flag. I mayn't be spry ez I was 50 years ago, but I kept up with the youngest in the march, and I reckon I can hold on in the same way. I left home to fight fo' the Union, and I couldn't sleep ef I hadn't a hand in the good work."

The old hero had his way. He was sent on to Camp Dick Robinson, and how well he and the remnant of his little band did their duty I shall endeavor to tell.

CHAPTER III.

Among the thousands of refugees who, in the early months of 1861, crowded into Kentucky from the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina there was not one who attracted more attention and cared less for it than Captain Hugh Beatty. The loss of his sons and the fortitude with which he bore his trials were well calculated to stir the sympathy of all who met him, but this soon gave place to an intense admiration for the old man's devotion to the cause of the Union and his readiness to give up all that remained to him for the success of its arms.

At the beginning of the war our recruiting officers were very particular as to the physical qualifications of the volunteers, and all men under 18 and over 45 were regarded as disqualified for military duty. It took us two years to learn that boys of 16 and men of 60 or more might make good soldiers.

Although "a risin of 73," and with grandsons strong enough to fight, there was not at Camp Dick Robinson in January, 1862, a better rifleman than old Hugh Beatty nor a man in the ranks who was capable of rendering better service to the cause that was so dear to his heart. Great, then, was his disappointment when he was told that he could not be enlisted.

At the old man's request I introduced him to General Thomas, and I recall as if I had heard it yesterday, the purport of the conversation between these remarkable men, each of whom represented the best types of the trained southern soldier and the untrained southern mountaineer. At this time General Thomas was about 40, tall, powerfully built, and with a face that showed the kindliest heart and the most masterful intellect. He understood the volunteer soldier as no other officer of prominence did at that time, and so he had no barrier of bayonets to fence him in from the men. He heard their stories without the intervention of red tape, and he made himself accessible to all without permitting familiarity from any. The soldiers of the Army of the Cumberland were looking around for an idol, as soldiers will, and they began by giving this calm, kindly man their confidence, a confidence which gradually deepened into the love of sons for a father, and so it came about that he whose home was childless found an army of boys who, with mingled love and reverence, called him "Pop."

Old Hugh Beatty had no idea of the social distinctions that divide men into classes. He would have been unconstrained in the presence of a king, or if he gave their differences a thought it would be to feel pity for the prince who could not be his own master, and who was so unfortunate as to have been born outside the Cumberland range. There was a dignity about the old mountaineer that commanded respect, nor was there any boorish familiarity in his treatment of others. He shook hands with General Thomas, and sitting down facing that officer he began in his intensely earnest way:

"Gineral Thomas, I'm in a d——d bad scrape, and I've come to see ef so be you can't help me out."

"I shall be glad to aid you, if in my power," said the general.

"Waal, hit is in yer power."

"Please tell me in what way," and the general smiled.

"I come from Batty's crick. 'Tain't called after me. My dad was the man, and he was kilt way back when the Cherokees was in the hills to the south. We uns down our way is purty much all Union, and when we seed that the rebs was 'bleged to conscript us, me and my boys and a lot of neighbors lit out and agreed to foller the no'th star till we uns found the flag and men ready to fight fo' hit."

"That was a noble resolution," said the general.

"We uns had a h—l of a time gittin har. Hit was nigh most four weeks of starvin and marchin and fightin. Three of my five boys and two of my grandsons was kilt, yet we uns didn't never give up, and I'll tell you fo' why, gineral. You see, I was in command. The boys knowed I'd been a sojer 'way back with Ole Hick'ry, and they knowed ef any man in the mountains could fetch 'em through—why, he was a man of just my age and heft."

"And from what I have learned," said the general, "you did your duty like a man."

"Yes, gineral, like a full growed man!"

"Certainly."

"And not like a d——d ole fool, or a babby ez hez to be fed on stuff that don't need no chawin."

"Of course," acquiesced the general.

"Look me over, Gineral Thomas. Look me up one side and down the other, good and hard."

The old man leaped from his chair. He was straight as an Indian, considerably over 6 feet in height, there was no fat on him, and every muscle, as he braced himself for inspection, stood out like wrought steel.

General Thomas obeyed the old man, and his fine eyes lit up with admiration as he said:

"You have been a powerful man in your time, Mr. Beatty."

"In my time?" repeated the old man.

"Yes, when you were younger," laughed the general.

"Gineral Thomas, by G—, I never was a braggin nor a bettin man, and you don't look like ez ef you was any sich yo'self, though I'll allow you'd be a d——d hard man to tackle without outside help, but if so be I can't take any two sojers a-wearin blue in this h'ar camp and down 'em as fast ez they can git up, and without a-shuckin my coat, or you can go out thar and whistle up two officers, and you needn't be 'ticklar to get small sizes, and if I can't put 'em both to wanst on my knee and lather 'em like h—"——

"But, my dear sir," interrupted the astonished general, "I am quite willing to take all this for granted. Now, tell me what I can do for you."

"You are not willin to take all this fo' granted," said the old man, his eyes flashing and his voice trembling with excitement. "I come up h'ar—a-refugeein, with sich of my kin and neighbors as is left. I led 'em to the ole flag, and thar was tears in my eyes whin I seed her a-flutterin ag'in the sky, like a angel's wing, but they wasn't the tears of a child or of a weak ole man. When I left the mountains and looked to God and the no'th star to guide me, I wasn't out s'archin for a nuss and a hospital cot. Gineral, I come h'ar to fight fo' the flag and to lay down my life, if she's needed, fo' the Union. Ain't that fa'r and squar', and man to man? Can't you understand hit?"

"I certainly can, my friend, and there is no man who appreciates more fully what the noble mountain men like yourself are doing."

"That's right, gineral!" cried old Hugh, and in his delight he reached out and seized the officer's hand. "Now you know what I'm heah fo'?"

"Yes; to fight for the Union."

"Yes, to fight fo' the Union every day in the week and twice on Sundays, ef need be. To fight fo' the Union from July to eternity, ef so be hit takes that time to git the flag back to whar she hez a right to float fo'evah and fo'evah. Amen!"

"But no one opposes your doing this," urged the general.

"But thar does some one oppose, though!"

"Who?"

"A d——d little cuss ez I could hide in my pocket. They calls him a muster-in officer. I'm d——d sorry I didn't pick him up and spank him good whin he told me I was too ole to fight, and so refused to give me the oath. But I took hit all the same, and I reckon he won't have more oaths in a yeah than I fired into him in five minutes. And then, ef hit hadn't a-been for Colonel Speed Fry—he's a white man, he is—they'd had a guard to drive me out of this camp! That's why I've come, gineral, and let me say thar ain't so many good men a-hankerin fo' a fight that you uns can afford to kick 'em out like a dog whin they does show up."

"Come with me, Hugh Beatty, and I will be your military godfather," said General Thomas, and he shook the old mountaineer's hand and led him to the quarters of the mustering officer, and that night I met the captain disguised in an army overcoat, and he was as proud of his muster in as a West Point cadet is when he gets his first commission.

PUGET SOUND SHACKS

PICTURESQUE DWELLINGS THAT FRINGE TACOMA BAY.

Homes Across Whose Threshold the Rent Collector Never Passes—Where It Is Easy For Each Man to Rear and Maintain His Own Castle.

The Arab has his tent, the Kaffir his kraal and the red man his wigwam, but no one of these primitive habitations is more distinctive and characteristic of the surrounding conditions of life than the "shack" of the laborer in the Puget sound region. This lucky unmarried laboring man of the northwest has no implacable boarding master to satisfy weekly. He pays no rent for furnished room. His married mate does not anticipate with fear and trembling the monthly visit of the landlord, who wants a large percentage of his earnings down on the nail. No. He lives in his own shack, and rent, that bugbear to the poor in eastern cities, is unknown to him.

The shack in itself, a temporary, incomplete, or makeshift residence, is simple and comprehensible. The conditions that gave it birth and make its existence possible require elucidation to be seen clearly by the turbid vision of those who live among less favorable circumstances. To make it intelligible one must contrast the conditions of the commonwealth in the northwest and those on the Atlantic seaboard. In the latter case the broad difference in classes and the penury stricken condition of the lower masses exhibit striking contrasts, painful in the highest degree to the altruistic observer.

Perhaps there is no section of country in the world more free from these distressing dissimilarities than the Puget sound basin, in the western half of the comparatively new state of Washington. This happy condition of affairs arises from various causes, the main ones being naturally that the country is as yet undeveloped, and that the lines between the rich and the poor, the competent and the incompetent, are still undefined, and that the region is singularly rich in resources, and of a most salubrious and healthful climate.

Secondly, Puget sound has a shore line of 1,760 miles and is densely wooded to the very edge of the water with the finest timber remaining on the North American continent. At intervals of a few miles all along this vast boundary are sawmills, gradually gnawing their way into the primeval forest, and the broad waters of the sound are constantly covered with immense booms, or rafts, of great sawlogs being towed from the logging camps to the mills, or ships bearing away to all parts of the globe the manufactured product.

Is it any wonder, the above state of things existing, and the price of sawed lumber being only $7 per thousand feet, and sometimes less, with slabs to be had for the taking, that the laborer who finds it desirable to build him one of those temporary residences called shacks finds the lumber involved in the proposition no great impediment to the fulfillment of his wishes. If he cannot find it adrift, or strewn along the shore by the tide, a day's work will supply the cash necessary for its purchase. Then, with a hammer and a pound or so of nails, the shack goes merrily up, and at nightfall the builder is no longer a homeless man.

Again, in all the northwestern cities, more land is "platted" than will be built upon for 50 or 100 years to come, Seattle, for instance, incorporates slightly less area than Chicago, and the bare places, which, it must be acknowledged, are usually the least desirable from a residential point of view, are utilized by the shack builder, for such a thing as ground rent is unknown except on business streets. Then, again, there is the water in the bays, full of building possibilities, with the best of foundations eligible, with no more trouble than the rolling together and fastening of a few of the great logs which lie unclaimed in prodigal variety along the beach. Enough unclaimed and rejected timber lies cast up on the shores of Puget sound to build shacks for the whole army of unemployed.

The bustling city of Tacoma on Commencement bay contains rather more than the usual proportion of shack dwellers, and they have become a common phase of the life of that city. Most of the shacks here are occupied by mill laborers—Tacoma being a large lumber shipping point—while unmarried workingmen generally do not disdain to live in them, and thus save board and lodging—frequently, more is the pity—to squander the amount in some other way.

Often the shacks are unsightly to the eye, and rude and primitive in the highest degree, but more frequently they are picturesque and form an attractive feature in the landscape. Occasionally one is seen that is an ideal residence. The writer has come across several in Old Town, North Tacoma, that are charming to look at and as convenient and comfortable to inhabit as much more pretentious abodes. One in particular has a latticed porch overgrown with honeysuckle, and a rose sprinkled dooryard that is a very jungle of sweetness.

On the tide flats at the head of Commencement bay there is a mammoth sawmill, and near it the walk skirts a canal, or rather lagoon—that is, a narrow arm of the bay penetrating deep into the land. Some one with a poetic soul has aptly baptized this place "Little Venice," and here shack habitations begin. Along this lagoon are some of the queerest looking, most bizarre and picturesque dwellings imaginable. They are one story shacks, built on massive log rafts and moored to the bank with huge rusty iron cables. Some are more pretentious, and instead of a raft they use great substantial square scows to build on, and occasionally the houses are painted with an eye to effect that would paralyze Turner or make him sunset green with envy.

One of them is tinted with a combination of dazzling orange and brilliant pink that gives as tropical a tone to the landscapes as if it were in Ceylon. On the other hand, the majority of the shacks are guiltless of pigment of any kind, and the soft, somber grays of the faded and weather beaten frames are delightful and restful to the eye.

Most of these shacks have only one room, but some are more commodious and contain several. In this case the proprietor is a family man, a fact that can be readily verified by a glimpse of the inevitable and betraying clothesline and the swarm of children.—James Cooper Wheeler in New York Sun.

UNEXPECTED WEDDING GIFTS.

Some of Them Were Timely, but One Was Just the Reverse.

Not unfrequently a marriage ceremony has an added air of romance attached to it by the bride's receiving from a known or unknown source a wedding present which was quite unexpected. One or two such authentic cases have occurred, when the lucky wedding parties were thrown into a state of great excitement as a result.

A curiously timed present was that which arrived at the wedding breakfast held in honor of Lord X——'s marriage with Lady M——. The years before Lord X—— was a director of a company which turned out to be a miserable failure, largely owing to the embezzlement of great sums of money by the manager, who escaped to Argentina. Lost sight of altogether, he was soon forgotten, and in a year or two Lord X—— and his fellow directors in part recovered from the blow. As the wedding party sat down to breakfast a manservant handed Lord X—— an envelope, full almost to bursting point. Opening it, the peer was amazed to find in it notes to the value of £10,000 sent to him by the errant manager, who, according to the private note accompanying the money, had made one or two lucky speculative hits in the Argentine. As Lord X——'s wealth was not very great the wedding present of £10,000 was an exceedingly welcome one.

Equally curious was the incident which happened in south London some time ago. According to the newspaper reports at the time, about 12 years ago, a young girl, daughter of well to do tradespeople, lost nearly £20, which she had saved out of a very liberal allowance. The money was taken from a drawer in her bedroom, and the thief was never detected. On the girl's wedding morn, last year, she received an anonymous letter, stating that the writer was the person who stole her money while she was yet in her teens and inclosing bank notes representing as nearly as possible the amount stolen, with compound interest added. Naturally the bride was delighted, and the anonymous writer was forgiven.

Not always are these unexpected wedding presents of this practical and useful character. At a recent wedding a bridegroom was very much disgusted by receiving at the wedding breakfast a bulky looking parcel which evidently appeared to be a late present. Unsuspecting evil, the newly married man handed the parcel to his wife to be opened. She opened it and found therein a number of letters in a girl's handwriting, apparently love letters, written to the bridegroom of the morning. Fortunately the affair was a joke on the part of the man's bachelor friends, but it needed all his asseverations of innocence to calm the natural indignation of the young wife.—Washington Star.

HARRISON ON PATRIOTISM.

Aid In Reinstating the Fourth of July. Honor and Reverence Our Flag.

General Harrison, in writing upon "This Country of Ours" for The Ladies' Home Journal, has this to say regarding Fourth of July and the stars and stripes: "The old time Fourth of July celebration, with its simple parades and musters, the reading of the Declaration and the oration, that more than supplied the lack of glitter and color in the parade—once the event of the year—went out of fashion. We allowed ourselves to be laughed out of it. It may be that the speaker was boastful, but a boaster is better than an apologist or a pessimist. The day, as a patriotic anniversary, was almost lost, and a family picnic day or a baseball day substituted.

"It is coming back, and we ought to aid in reinstating it. The old Declaration has a pulse in it and a ring to it that does the soul good. Has your boy ever read it? Have you—all of it? I would like our census takers to be required to get an answer to that question.

"The fathers ought not to be too busy to give some lessons in patriotism, but, if they are, let the mothers—who are more busy—see that a love of country is cultivated, and that the children are very early made acquainted with the wise, unselfish and heroic characters in our history. In the home, and before the school days come, the feelings should be kindled and sentiment awakened. Do not be ashamed to love the flag or to confess your love of it. Make much of it; tell its history; sing of it. It now floats over our schools, and it ought to hang from the windows of all our homes on all public days. Every man should uncover when the flag is borne by in the parade, and every one should rise when a national air is given at a concert or public meeting."

Chinese Tactics.

The Chinese soldiers accepted their fate from the outset, after their first decisive experience. Resistance to the enemy never really entered their minds, their sole preoccupation being to make room for the enemy as he advanced, while keeping up some form of fighting. This relation between the two armies became so well understood before the close of the war that the Japanese commanders were wont to send word to the Chinese that they would attack such a point at such a time, when the Chinese general would place his main body in a neutral position, leaving a small detachment to fire off some cartridges for the honor of the flag, and retire.

This incredible procedure is quite in keeping with Chinese military traditions. The campaign against the Taeping rebels was conducted much on the pro forma system till toward the end. An imperial officer on one occasion, speaking to a foreigner, summed up his own justification in the neat axiom that two people could not occupy the same place at the same time. "If they come, I must go."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Sea Salt.

It seems that the sea was made salt in the beginning as a part of the grand design of the Creator to provide for the system of evolution which has been going on since the creation. Many distinct species of living organisms exist in the sea as a result of its salinity, and their remains have largely contributed to the growth of continents. The three great factors in accounting for the system of currents in the ocean, by which it becomes the great heat distributor of the globe, are changes of temperature, the winds and salinity. The last mentioned becomes an important factor through the immediate and essential differences of specific gravity and consequent differences of level that it produces in different parts of the ocean through the action of evaporation and rainfall.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Story on Alfred Dolge.

A gossiper in the Fort Plain (N. Y.) Standard tells the following story on that enterprising citizen, Alfred Dolge of Dolgeville, N. Y.: "Most of my readers," he says, "are aware that Mr. Dolge is wealthy and that nearly all the mills and a great deal of real estate in the village named for him are owned by him. Of course, like every other place, Dolgeville has a person or two jealous of everything and everybody, and particularly of their townsmen who have prospered and grown rich. One of these green eyed fellows held especial animosity against Mr. Dolge and all of his undertakings, and when the new school building was erected in that village he was profuse with sneers and bitter comments. But when a stone bearing the following was placed very conspicuously in the structure the climax was capped, and the jealous fellow's rage was unbounded: 'Erected 18—, A. D.' 'Well, I'll be blankety blanked,' said the kicker as he observed the inscription for the first time, 'it's Dolge, Dolge, Dolge here, and now they've even put his name on the public's schoolhouse!' "

Won by a Trick.

A sporting gentleman, who had the reputation of being a very bad shot, invited some of his friends to dine with him.

Before dinner he showed them a target painted on a barn door, with a bullet right in the bullseye.

This he claimed to have shot at 1,000 yards' distance.

As nobody believed him he offered to bet the price of an oyster supper on it. On one of his guests accepting the wager he produced two witnesses whose veracity could not be doubted to prove his assertion.

Since they both stated that he had done what he claimed he won his bet.

During dinner the loser of the wager inquired how the host had managed to fire such an excellent shot.

The host answered:

"Well, I shot the bullet at the door at a distance of 1,000 yards, and then I painted the target round it."—Pearson's Weekly.

DOES THE WORK RIGHT.

The work connected with the office district deputy in a secret order requires considerable attention and is by no means an easy task. Every man is not suited for the office, as their are qualities to be desired which makes it possible that ritualistic work may be performed in a highly creditable manner. Such a man is Dr. H. Pocock, of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. of O. F., of this city. Mr. Pocock was recently appointed one of the district deputies in this State and was given eleven lodges to look after. He selected a team that is doing the work in a most satisfactory manner. Already three lodges have been visited. The remaining eight will be visited this month as follows:

Friday, January 10th, Hamsa Lodge, No. 145, Elizabeth; Monday, the 13th, Plainfield Lodge, No. 44; Tuesday, the 14th, Elizabethport Lodge; Wednesday, the 15th, Memorial Lodge, No. 165, Elizabeth; Friday, the 17th, Lawrence Lodge, No. 52, Perth Amboy; Monday the 20th, Franklin, No. 9, Elizabeth; Friday, the 21th, Essex County Lodge, No. 27, Rahway, and on Monday, the 27th, Queen City Lodge, No. 126, Plainfield.

NO BLIZZARD AFTES ALL.

There May Be Some Snow But Warmer Weather Is Coming.

The predicted blizzard did not arrive and still remains off the southern Atlantic coast. There may be a snow storm today, says the weather observers, but the big storm will not get here. It's going to be warmer the rest of the week and the mercury will go above freezing. It will be farewell again to real winter for a time and skaters will mourn accordingly. Just at present the skating is good where the snow has been swept off the ice, and yesterday afternoon and evening the ponds in the vicinity were crowded.

Cheap Rates to California.

The Union Pacific is offering greatly reduced round trip rates to all California points and Portland, Oregon, this year.

For full particulars inquire of your nearest ticket agent, or address R. TenBroeck, General Eastern Agent, 287 Broadway, New York.

Postponed a Week.

The Young People's Progressive Euchre Club, of North Plainfield and Dunellen, will not meet tomorrow night on account of this week being the week of prayer and most of the members will attend the meetings. It will be held on next week Friday evening.

Worthy of Patronage.

The Dorcas Circle, King's Daughters will hold an oyster waffle and Welch rarebit supper on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday next, January 14th, in the vacant store on Park avenue, adjoining Harper's stationery store. The amount realized will be used for the relief of the sick poor of Plainfield.

Severe Cold.

A stranger from Barley Sheaf, near White House, drove to Plainfield Monday with a load of hay. On his way home he fell asleep on the wagon. When he recovered his senses he found that his hands, feet and face were frozen. His name could not be learned.

Taken to the Asylum.

Miss Thersa Stein, of Grant avenue, was committed to Morris Plains Insane Asylum a few days on the recommendation of Dr. Jenkins. Miss Stein needs careful watching and attendance, and this it is thought will result in a cure.

Wanted to Take a Walk.

A horse attached to a two seated open wagon, started to walk away from in front of Findley's saloon on East Second street, Teesday morning and got as far as the fire department headquarters before it was caught.

Notice.

VanEmburgh & Son will close their place of business every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, until further notice. 6

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, manager.

AMATEUR ACTORS REHEARSE

THEY PREPARE FOR "CONFUSION," TO BE GIVEN AT MUSIC HALL.

It is a Light Comedy, Abounding in Humorous Situations, Brought About By the Mixing of the Pug and the Baby.

A Daily Press reporter was invited last evening to a private view of "Confusion," the comedy which is to be given at Music Hall next Thursday evening by the Dramatic Association of the Plainfield Catholic Club. The play is beind rehearsed almost every evening at the club-house on West Sixth street, and it was one of these that the Daily Press reporter was permitted to witness. Of course, portions of the play are crude, as yet, and all the parts have not been thoroughly learned, but the rehearsal revealed enough to show that for amateur actors the performance Thursday evening will be excellent.

The play itself abounds with humorous situations, and is full of witty lines. It well merits the title "Confusion." The scene is laid at Jersey Lodge, the home of "Mortimer Mumbleford" and his wife, "Rose," which characters are respectively taken by M. J. Cashin and Miss Etta Blatz. "Christopher Blizzard," Charles J. Ward, uncle to "Rose," is living with the young couple, who have only been married two months. "Miss Lucretia Trickleby," an aunt to "Mortimer," also resides with them. "Rupert Simberry" and "Violet," respectively M. J. Winn and Miss Julia Day, are two young people deep in the meshes of love, who are visiting at the same house.

"James, the Butler," is impersonated by T. J. Cumerford, "Muzzle," the detective, is C. Guinee, and "Dr. Bartholomew Jones," is represented by W. J. O'Brien, while Miss Kittie Cullan portrays "Maria" the maid. And last, but not least, came the two causes of all the "confusion," the pug and the baby.

The plot is simple, but things become rather mixed before the end of the last act. "James" and "Maria" are really a married couple but hire out to the Mumblefords as a single man and woman. They have a baby which is left under the care of friends in town. "Rose" has long wanted a pet pug dog but her husband has objected strenuously to it. Her uncle buys one for her but does not bring it to the house at once. He is in the meantime making love to "Miss Lucretia." He receives a telegram to come and take care of the pug as the family caring for it leave town very soon. At the same time, "James" and and "Maria" receive a telegram that their baby is ill. "Blizzard" goes after the dog and "Maria" after the baby and both are brought back to the house. The telegrams became mixed as well as the baby and dog until the entire house is in a turmoil.

The parts have been well assigned and are all played well. Mr. Cashin as "Mortimer" is particularly pleasing and has the agony of the deceived husband down to a fine point. His scene with "Dr. Jones" is perhaps the most laughable of all.

All the characters deserve much credit and, with more practice, the play promises to make a great hit.

Bicycles Stolen.

The Kerr & Martin Cycle Company's store, 569 Broad street, Newark, was entered this morning after 12 o'clock by what is thought to be professional burglars, and two '96 wheels were stolen, a Cleveland No. 22, 55331, and a Crescent No. 1, 142309. There were two locks on the door and both were picked. After they had taken the wheels they locked the door again. Footprints of pointed-toed shoes were noticed in the store this morning. A reward of $50 for the return of the wheels is offered and $25 additional for the arrest and conviction of the thieves.

Cheap Coal.

The Jersey City coal dealers are engaged in a war on the small dealers who peddle coal in 100-pound bags. The result is that the price of coal by the ton has been reduced from $5 to $4.50, as many consumers who had purchased coal by the ton were buying it by the bag.

Installed at Westfield.

District Deputy Grand Master Pocock and staff, went to Westfield last evening and installed the officers in Westfield Lodge, No. 169, I.O.O.F. A collation followed.

A Small Army.

Union County has now 4,035 Christian Endeavorers. Of these 1,187 are Juniors. The total number of societies is 85.

A BRUTE MAN.

Knocks a Horse Down on Park Avenue Without Cause.

There was quite a little excitement in front of Rafferty's saloon on Park avenue, Tuesday noon. A truck belonging to the Standard Oil Company, of Newark, drawn by a pair of handsome iron-grey horses, stopped in front of the saloon and the driver fastened the feed bags in position. He showed that he had been imbibing somewhat heavily, and tied one of the bags so that it choked the horse. The animal, in its agony, fell down and the driver began pounding it in the face. The passers-by protested against the cruelty of the driver, but he kept on until Frank Hart, of Hedden's stable, passed by. He saw the cause of the trouble at a glance and speedily relieved the horse, without saying a word to the master.

A Fine Magazine.

The Monthly Illustrator and Home and Country has already achieved a signal success as a leader in art and literature among American magazines. The Christmas number was among the finest issued from the American press, and the January number speaks for itself, and the February number will show that the publishers are keeping right to the front in all that goes to make a magazine interesting, delightful and ornamental. Your newsdealer will supply you. Price 20 cents a number or $2 a year.

Grand Lodge Officers Coming.

At the meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., this evening, Grand Lodge officers will be present to witness the installation of officers. Past Master Workman Spicer will be presented with a handsome jewel. Visitors will be present from Bernard Lodge, Basking Ridge, and the new degree work will be exemplified for their benefit. An elaborate programme will be rendered after which a collation will be served.

A Sign of Winter.

A flock of wild geese flew over Plainfield yesterday morning at about 11 o'clock going south.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

THIS SANTA WAS WAY LATE.

First Church of Christ Finally Enjoy a Christmas Entertainment.

There was a very large attendance of Sunday-school scholars at the First Church of Christ last night when the annual Christmas entertainment was enjoyed. Superintendent Staats presided and the following programme was rendered:

Singing, Christmas carols, school; prayers, J. J. Ackerman and B. W. Hand; singing, school; recitation, "Dolly, Isn't Christmas Jolly?" Miss Etta Staats; recitation, "Nellie's Christmas," Miss Mabel Wilson; vocal duett, Misses Mabel and Ella Benner; recitation, "Jack Frost," Garrett Ackerman; recitation, John Van Middlesworth; singing, school; recitatation, Miss Ada Van Horn and Miss Nannie Ackerman; singing, school; recitation, "Message to Santa Claus," Miss Belle Van Nest; singing, quartette, "Over the Snow," Misses Mabel and Ella Benner, B. W. Hand and Oscar Vaughn; reading, "The Mother Left in the Poor House," Mrs. Van Middlesworth. This was followed by the presentation of presents. Misses Etta Staats, Hattie Bush and Maggie Moore, received special mention. They have only been absent two Sundays during the year. The presents consisted chiefly of useful articles, while the little ones received games, toys, etc. They were served with candy and bananas, after which everyone present was served with refreshments.

The committee in charge consisted of Superintendent Staats, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. David Bush, Mrs. Staats, Mrs. Wilson and Clayton Ackerman.

A Popular Performance.

Miss Lillian Kennedy appeared before a good-sized audience at Music Hall last night in a reconstructed and improved edition of "She Couldn't Marry Three." The piece has been seen in this city several times, but the presentation last night was the best that has yet been given. It is a comedy-drama in which Miss Kennedy is given ample opportunity to entertain the audience with her versatile talent. She is a vivacious little soubrette who acts, sings and dances as though it was a pleasure for her rather than a matter of work—an element which immediately wins her into the good graces of the audience. She has a good supporting company and gives by far the best popular priced performance of any company appearing in this city. Tonight she will produce "The Little Rebel."

A Card.

To the Editor of The Daily Press: Allow me to state to the public through the columns of your valuable paper that I am still in the employ of the popular clothier and habberdasher Harry M. Jaquett, and that I have on hand a line of clothing, gents' furnishings and hats to show my friends and customers that I am not only proud of, but can thoroughly recommend.

AFTER ITINERANT PEDDLERS

BUT NHE VICTIMS KNOW IT AND GET OUT OF THE WAY.

Borough Officials Arrest and Fine Men Who Travel From House to House Without License From tht Authorities.

J. Jacobisohn, representing J. Beck & Co., soap manufacturers, of New York, has given Chief Marshal VanHorn and several residents in the borough considerable trouble the past few days. The agent went from house to house selling his goods without a license, and the Chief detected him in the act. He was taken before Clerk Arnold, where he paid $10.50, the amount of the license, and obtained a receipt. He then went to Mayor Hegeman and told a plausible story of how innocent he was, etc., with the result of obtaining an order for the return of his money. He got the money from the clerk and then went to selling again.

At the home of H. E. Gayle, of Vine street, he was overbearing in his manner. Mrs. Gayle opened the door after which the agent placed his foot in such a position as to prevent her from closing it. She was, however, obliged to buy something before he would leave.

Last night he left town when he learned that Chief VanHorn was close on his tracks. The Chief has also been looking for McManus Bros., who have been selling goods in the borough without a license, but as yet he has not been able to find them.

A RUNAWAY SON RESTORED.

He Applies For Shelter to Chief Grant, Who Notifies His Father.

A good-looking boy, respectably dressed, applied to Chief of Police Grant last evening for a night's lodging. The Chief questioned the lad regarding himself and learned that his name was Herbert DeLong. His home is at Allentown, where his father is in the employ of the government as a mail carrier. Some time ago the father punished Herbert, who is sixteen years of age, and the lad ran away. He went to New York, where he lived for a short time, and then started to work his way home. He was going in that direction when he came to Plainfield.

After Chief Grant had heard the whole story and taken the lad to jail, he telegraphed to the father at Allentown and at about 11 o'clock received a reply stating that Mr. DeLong would be down on the first train this morning. He told Herbert that his father would soon arrive, but the lad took the news without reply.

Grand Officers Visit Unity Lodge.

The grand officers of the Knights of Pythias paid their official visit to Unity Lodge, No. 102, last evening, at the lodge rooms in the Babcock building. The grand officers present were Grand Chancellor Ralph Donath, of Jersey City; Grand Prelate Rockafeller, of Somerville, and Grand Master of Exchequer, John Patrick, of Jersey City. Visitors were also present from Perseverance and Goodwill Lodges. There were speeches by the grand officers, who were very much pleased with the work done in this district since their last visit. Remarks were also made by some of the other visitors. A bountiful banquet brought the meeting to a close.

Letter-Carriers Entertained.

An exceedingly pleasant social time was passed at the home of Letter-Carrier William Demarest, 14 Stone street, last evening, when his fellow carriers and their wives were entertained. Interesting games were played, short and long stories were told, and an evening of genuine pleasure enjoyed. An excellent supper was served at the close. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Loughlin, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. A. Bauersachs, Mrs. May, Edward Hann, John Neighbor and P. J. Reville.

A Gathering of Sportsmen.

The meeting of sportsmen, called to organize an association in the interest of improved game laws, held in the office of Percy C. Ohl in the Babcock building last evening, drew together quite a number of enthusiasts. Several of the principal promoters of the association were unable to be present, so the meeting was adjourned until Tuesday night.

Gashed With Scissors.

Tillie Kirch, the four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kirch, of Somerset street, accidently run the point of a pair of sissors in the palm of her right hand a few days ago, causing the blood to flow freely, also considerable pain. The injured member was treated by Mrs. Kirch, and the little one is improving favorably.

IN JOHNSOM'S BEHALF.

Testimony That He Arrived Home Early the Night of the Murder.

Interest in the trial of Jacob S. Johnson, the colored ex-preacher, for the murder of Sarah Ann Rogers, otherwise known as Annie Beekman, colored, continues unabated. When the third day of the trial was begun before Judge Magie, in the Somerset County Court of Oyer and Terminer at Somerville, yesterday morning, there was hardly standing room in the court.

Before the court adjourned Tuesday night the prosecution had finished its case. Mr. Meehan, for the defendant, opened. He admitted that Johnson and the woman were together on the night of the murder, but stated that he left her at 10 o'clock that evening and went home. He told the jury that the defense would disprove that the woman had been seen in the custody of another colored man, for Johnson was in bed about 11 o'clock on the night the murder was committed.

Mrs. Johnson, the wife of the accused man, was sworn before court adjourned. She gave her testimony this morning. She testified to her husband being home about 11 o'clock at night. She said she was awakened by him coming into the house, and asked him what time it was. She said that she also heard a clock strike, and thought it was 11 o'clock. The prosecution tried to break down her direct testimony, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

The prosecution has presented some evidence against Johnson, but there are several important details that have not been proved against him. Mrs. Johnson was followed on the stand by her sister, Mrs. Mead. She testified that Johnson was home 10:45 the night of the murder. Johnson's daughter also testified that he was in bed before 11 o'clock.

The defendant was not put on the stand. The defence rested and both sides will sum up in the morning The State has several links in its chain of evidence, which it has not been able to fill, and through this it is expected Johnson will escape conviction.

Officers Installed.

State Deputy E. A. Yard, of Newark, installed the officers-elect of Lucetta Council, Daughters of Liberty, last evening in the Sons of Temperance hall, as follows: Councilor, Mrs. Hattie Robinson; associate councilor, Mrs. S. C. Mattox; vice councilor, G. S. Martin; associate vice-councilor, Mrs. S. J. Koyer; guide, Miss Daisy Sprague; recording secretary, Miss L. Johnson; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Voorhis; financial secretary, Mrs. R. Mattis; trustees, G. S. Martin, 18 months: Miss L. Johnson, 12 months; Mrs. A. A. Wyckoff, 6 months; junior ex-associate councilor, Mrs. A. Angleman; junior ex-councilor, Mrs. A. A. Wyckoff. The council's team will meet Saturday night at the home of W. W. Stratton, 257 East Third street, for rehearsal.

An Enjoyable Dance.

The Independent Fife and Drum Corps held a full dress reception and dance in the Olympia last night, which was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyable. A feature of the event was the music, which was furnished by Harry Hyer, of New York. Those in change were: Floor manager, W. C Force; Assistant, J. H. Adams; Reception committee, F. L. Manchester, J. T. Bolsterle, and L. B. Bodine. About 12 o'clock a supper was served, which was followed by dancing till early this morning.

Death Due to Exposure.

Henry Fisher, a well-known merchant of Elizabeth, died at his home in High street last night. On Monday he was stricken with paralysis in Spring street. He was driving at the time and fell back into the wagon, where he remained for nearly an hour before he was discovered, and meanwhile he was nearly frozen to death.

Nearly Half Connected.

So far Constructing Engineer Gavett has issued forty permits to property owners on North avenue to connect with the city sewer, and nearly half of them have been connected.

A Skating Party.

A number of the young people of this city and the borough will enjoy a skating party to New Market pond this evening.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

SEEKING RECOGNITION

Cuban Agents Confer with Secretary Olney.

The Interview Informal and General Palma Given No Standing in His Capacity as Envoy — Spain Mounting Heavy Guns at Havana. Word from Campos.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Gen. Tomas Estrada Palma and the other members of the Cuban revolutionary committee now in Washington have had an interview with Secretary Olney on the subject of recognition of Cuban belligerancy by the government of the United States. It was expressly stipulated by Secretary Olney that the interview would be informal and General Palma was not given any standing in his capacity of envoy to the United States from the Cuban provisional government. Secretary Olney of course did not commit himself with reference to the matter.

Mounting Heavy Guns.

Havana, Dec. 31, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 9.—Four heavy siége guns have just been disembarked at La Machina in this harbor. They will complete the several forts and sea batteries of this city. They are the heaviest and most destructive guns in the West Indies. A temporary railway will transport them to their several positions. Some days will be necessary in getting them into position. Their extreme length is 37 feet, circumference at breech 9 feet, diameter of bore 13 inches, muzzle 3 feet. They are of steel and rifled, having 68 grooves. The weight of each gun is 106,773 pounds, or over 50 tons. Their projectiles are of two kinds, both shells, one having a bursting charge of 13 pounds, the other 48 pounds. The weight of projectile is 1,013 pounds; height of shot 36 to 46 inches. Range 9 miles.

Spanish Victory Reported.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The following cablegram from Gen. Martinos Campos has just been received at the Spanish legation: "The column of Gen. Navarro yesterday had an engagement lasting three hours with the main bands of Maceo and Gomez in Ceiba del Agua, dispersing them. Twenty dead have been found and buried by our soldiers. The Spanish loss was slight, four officers wounded and twenty casualties among the men, either killed or badly wounded. The troops captured a number of horses and arms and ammunition. The column is reconnoitering the scene of the fight and many troops are following the insurgents. The army is in high spirits and Havana is completely quiet."

Difficult To Bring About a Fight.

Minister Dupuy De Lome also received a long cablegram from the government at Madrid giving a summary of the latest official reports received there from the commander-in-chief in Cuba. These reports show that it is exceedingly difficult to get a fight with the Cubans who are continually galloping about burning and pillaging plantations and villages. Gen. Echague, who is in the rear of the insurgents, has twice succeeded in overtaking a few of the bands and capturing some prisoners. Gen. Campos says the rebels never stop long enough to be overtaken in any considerable numbers. In the invasion of Pinar del Rio by the insurgents small bands of bandits proceed the main forces of the insurgents and cause more damage than Maceo and Gomez. Yesterday 1,000 men were sent by sea to Colonia, the port of Pinar del Rio, to reinforce the troops there. In the rest of the entire island of Cuba, nothing of a revolutionary character is occurring.

Great Battle Reported.

Havana, Jan. 9.—It is reported here this morning that a great battle has been fought near Artemisa, a town near Guanajay, the base of operations of the rebels. The report has it that the insurgents were surrounded by Spanish troops under Generals Suarez, Valdes, Madan and Navarro, and it is believed they met with a complete defeat. No details of the fight can be obtained. It is said that the rebel leader Nunez was killed in yesterday's battle with General Navarro's forces and that the rebels lost 200 men.

Blank Forms for Bond Purchasers.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The treasury has begun the distribution of blank forms on which to submit bids for the new bonds. These blank forms will be obtainable at any sub-treasury by those wishing to submit bids. All national banks and others making application by mail to the treasury here or to sub-treasuries will be supplied with these blank forms.

Yale's Living Graduates.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9.—A new official catalogue of all the living graduates of Yale, just published, gives the total number as 8,800, divided as follows: Academic, 5,292, scientific school, 1,624; law school, 922; divinity school, 537, and medical school, 425.

Cubans Hunting for Drill Masters.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 9.—Cuban agents from New York in the interest of the revolutionary cause in Cuba are in the city endeavoring to secure officers from the Ninth regiment to drill their soldiers in Cuba.

Cardinal Granniello Dead.

Rome, Jan. 9.—Cardinal Guiseppe Maria Granniello died in this city yesterday. He was born in 1834 and created a cardinal in 1893.

OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS.

Several Matters of a Perplexing Nature Before the Senate Committee.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Several matters of a perplexing nature are now before the senate committee on foreign relations. Chief among these matters are affairs relating to Cuba, Venezuela and Armenia. Members of the committee say the Armenian affair will cause this government much trouble. Papers before the committee indicate that half has not been told, and how to interfere effectually without violating our international policy of evading entangling alliances with foreign powers is a problem that the skill of the committee and the diplomacy of the state department alone can solve. Some senators are in favor of sending an urgent appeal to Russia to take charge of the case and look after the interests of Americans in Armenia. The recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cubans is also pressing upon the committee, and this will be the first thing taken up at the meeting Saturday. There is no division of sentiment among the members on this subject. Should the insurgents secure Havana or make a vital attack on the Spanish troops that would give them a stronger foothold on the island, the senate will, it is believed, at once pass the resolution recognizing the belligerency of the Cubans. The resolution offered in the house yesterday by Mr. Spalding, rep., Mich., providing for the annexing and erecting a state of Hawaii is now in the hands of the foreign affairs committee of the house and will probably receive early consideration.

NEW BROOKLYN POLICEMEN.

One Applicant's Answers to Civil Service Questions.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Police Commissioner Wells has just sworn in ninety new policemen. This is the largest number ever appointed at one time in the history of the department. There was one applicant who had the endorsement of several politicians and officeholders, but who was not included in the last list of appointments. Some of his answers to the civil service questions were as follows: Who is the governor of New York state? Grover Cleveland. Who is the mayor of New York city? Richard Croker. What is the most northeastern state in the union? Africa. What states border on the Mississippi river? The Hudson. What is the usual process of dealing with a prisoner from the time of his arrest until his conviction, if a conviction be secured? One month.

COAST DEFENSE VESSELS.

Secretary Herbert Makes Inquiry as to Their Availability.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Secretary Herbert has set on foot inquiries as to how quickly the coast defenses monitors Miantonomah, Terror and Monadnock could be prepared for service. Statements furnished by the bureaus concerned show that the Miantonomah, recently placed out of commission at League Island, Pa., could be recommissioned within two weeks, that the Monadnock can be finished by the first of February and that completion of the Terror is assured within sixty days. The Monadnock is at Mare Island, Cal., and the Terror at Brooklyn. The reason for the request made by the secretary cannot be ascertained.

BOUNTY CLAIMS NOT VALID.

New Haven Taxpayers Relieved of Paying a Large Sum.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9.—Testimony adduced in the superior court here relieves New Haven taxpayers from the fear that they might have to pay large amounts to ex-soldiers under a law passed by the last legislature, removing the bar of the statute of limitation in suits to recover unpaid bounties promised to the volunteers by the towns. In a local suit to recover, regarded as a test case, it was proved not only that the plaintiff had been paid but that the town had paid in bounty claims $127,000, which was $1,000 more than was needed to give each of the 630 volunteers the $200 offered.

UNEASINESS IN HAYTI.

President Hyppolite's Government Said To Be Breaking.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 9.—Advices received here from Port au Prince state that there is an increased feeling of uneasiness throughout the Haytian republic and that the government of President Hyppolite is breaking. Minister of Public Works Prophete has tendered his resignation. The elections will begin to-morrow when trouble is anticipated.

Indiana Miners.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 9.—The convention of bituminous miners of Indiana yesterday afternoon adopted a report in favor of the advance of the mine scale from sixty to sixty-six cents to take effect April 1, the date when the Pittsburg district price is to be advanced from sixty-four to seventy cents.

British Empire at London.

London, Jan. 9.—The British steamer British Empire, from Boston, December 14, for London, which arrived at Falmouth December 29 in a damaged condition, the result of striking a rock off the Scilly islands, and which proceeded on January 6, in tow, has arrived here.

Not Encouraging Recruiting.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Estrada Palma, envoy extraordinary of the Cuban provisional government to the United States, denies the report that his committeee is doing anything to encourage recruiting in this country.

Against Wildcat Insurance.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 9.—Bills have been introduced into the Virginia legislature to repeal the charters of eleven insurance companies. This is an effort to weed out wildcat companies.

FOR A HIGH LICENSE

Liquor Dealers Discuss Senator Raines' Bill.

Opinion in New York Among the Persons Interested Vastly at Variace Regarding the Effect of the Measure Should It Become a Law. All Pleased with Local Option.

New York, Jan. 9.—Liquor dealers and the people who are interested in the suppression or curtailment of the sale of intoxicating beverages are today discussing the liquor tax law bill prepared by Senator Raines. Opinion as to the effect of the measure, should it become a law, vastly differs. Even among the more prosperous saloonkeepers, where it would naturally be expected a high license would be the most acceptable on account of the law having the effect of driving out of business some of the smaller fry and therefore adding to their business, much dissatisfaction was expressed, while the more lowly of the dealers, in some instances, appeared to be anxious for any measure that would free them from the Roosevelt crusade.

Provides for Local Option.

Senator Raines' bill is to supersede the provisions of any general, special or local law in conflict therewith. The bill is entitled 'An act in relation to the traffic in liquors and for the taxation and regulation of the same, and to provide for local option. The bill abolishes all boards of excise after April 30, 1896, and no liquor license shall be granted by excise boards after the passage of the act to extend beyond that time. All valid licenses in force when the act takes effect shall hold until their expiration unless revoked according to the law under which they were granted. On April 15 all excise boards shall report to their respective county treasurers and in New York city to the city comptroller the number of licenses in force and to whom granted and additional information provided for and a like supplementary report shall be made on April 30. All the records of excise boards shall be deposited with the same officials by May 1.

Highest License, $800.

Taxes upon the liquor traffic is in part as follows: Sub-divison 1—Upon the business of traffic in liquors to be drunk upon the premises where sold, or which are so drunk, whether in a hotel, restaurant, saloon, store, shop, booth or other place, or in any outbuilding, yard or garden appertaining thereto or connected therewith is assessed a tax in a city of 1,500,000 or more inhabitants of $800; in a city of less than 1,500,000 but more than 500,000, the sum of $650; in a city of less than 500,000 but more than 50,000, $500; in a city or village of less than 50,000 but more than 5,000, $350; in an incorporated village of less than 5,000, $200; in any other place $100. The holder of a liquor tax certificate under this subdivision is entitled also to traffic in liquors as though he held a liquor tax certificate under sub-divison two of this section, which provides for the traffic of liquor in quantities of less than five wine gallons, no part of which shall be drunk on the premises where sold.

Old Provisions Retained.

The provisions of the present law prohibiting saloons within 200 feet of a church or a school house is incorporated in the bill. The provisions of the present law touching the sale of liquor on Sundays, election day and on week days are also incorporated. The question of local option is provided for by submitting to the vote of the people of a ward or two the question whether or not liquors shall be sold. The latter clause pleases the liquor dealers.

Scrofula From Birth

Other Medicines Utterly Failed

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"Some time since, our boy then four years old was in the hands of the family doctor for treatment for scrofula. He had been afflicted with this trouble from birth and we had been unable to give him

Only Temporary Relief.

We decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla and are glad to say 6 bottles of Hood's entirely cured him. Our oldest daughter has been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for rheumatism with good results. We have used from first to last some $10 worth of the medicine and have received the equivalent of several hundred dollars' worth of doctor's treatment and good health to boot. We cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. It is all that is claimed for it." C. E. MYERS, Windom, Kansas.

Untimely Decay.

The great engines of the body worn out, refusing to perform their natural function. The cause—disease, dissipation, overwork. The result is inability to nourish, build up, maintain. The end—a suspension of all faculties, a collapse, death, and from that which is very similar to starvation. In such cases follow Dr. B. Bush Field's, of Easton, Pa., advice, administer

Bovinine

He says of it; "While prison physician I used it on not only the weakened by disease, but those whose previous lives of exposure and neglect had completely broken down their constitutions. The results were always most satisfactory." Bovinine will create strength, enrich blood, make flesh and nourish generally in all cases of exhaustion and debility. Physicians the world over endorse it as a food stimulant.

FOR PERMANENT PEACE.

Comment on the Movement Started in England.

The Daily Chronicle, Whose Efforts Have Done So Much To Smooth Over the Venezuelan Trouble and Whose Articles Have Pointed Out England's Duty, Delighted.

London, Jan. 9.—With reference to the meeting held to consider what further steps shall be taken concerning the suggestion that differences between the United States and Great Britain be settled by a commission composed of an equal number of judges of her majesty's high court of justice and of the United States supreme court, the Daily Chronicle says to-day: "We are delighted that a practical movement has begun. It will instantly create a response in the United States, and thus the original warlike situation may prove a preliminary to a great and noble peace, honorable to the nations concerned, and a lesson to the world. Half of the mischief which has so desolated mankind has been due to inability to put ourselves in the point of view of our fancied enemy. To learn what he thinks is our first duty and our most vital interest. Let us realize the American feeling, as Americans should and will realize ours; let us provide a method for putting each view before wise and learned men. That the present friction can only be ended by impartial arbitration is already certain. Lord Salisbury could not possibly face parliament with the statement that he had refused to meet the United States on this ground. The first movement in this particular issue between the two countries should perhaps come from our government as soon as Secretary of State Olney's dispatch is handed to Lord Salisbury. Our conviction is that when Lord Salisbury shall have replied it will be for the English people to speak touching the necessity for what Kant called perpetual peace. This would involve the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration between the two countries to discuss, advise upon and adjudicate all disputes that may arise. That court, we are able to say, the American government desire."

A CANARD FROM OKLAHOMA.

No Truth in the Report That Mrs. Colt Has Gone West for a Divorce.

Bristol, R. I., Jan. 9.—The report from Oklahoma City, O. T., stating that Mrs. S. Colt was there with a large retinue of servants, and had engaged nearly all of the accommodations in the best hotel in the place and a number of leading lawyers, her purpose being to bring suit for divorce against her husband, who it will be remembered some time ago created a sensation by suing J. J. Van Allen, is a canard, pure and simple. Mrs. Colt is at her residence here.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. BENEDICT.

Daughter of Major Halford, Former Secretary to President Harrison.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 9.—Mrs. Jeannette Halford Benedict, daughter of Major Halford, U. S. A., formerly President Harrison's private secretary, has obtained a divorce from her husband, W. T. Benedict formerly of Boston. They were married three years ago in England. The grounds for divorce were cruelty and desertion. Benedict lost his fortune soon after the marriage and is now in South Africa.

TARIFF BILL IN DOUBT.

Republicans Agree to the House Measure—It May Be Blocked.

Washington, Jan. 9.—If the republican members of the senate committee on finance act in accordance with the vote of the republican caucus last evening, and if Mr. Jones persists in his intention to demand that raw sugar shall be given the 15 per cent. increase provided by the house in every other schedule, there will surely be a deadlock in the committee, as predicted in these dispatches yesterday, and the bill cannot be reported. The resolution introduced by Mr. Quay, declaring it to be the sense of the caucus that the republicans should report the tariff bill from the committee as it came from the house, passed the caucus last evening after an hour and a half of debate, without division, by a practically unanimous vote. The chief point in the discussion was the probable attitude of silver republicans. Many of these were outspoken in their desire to have the tariff bill pass and declared that it would be unwise to place a free coinage rider thereon, especially in view of the fact that such a bill was now before the senate and would be passed before action was had on the tariff bill.

Teller Will Fight for Free Silver.

Mr. Teller of Colorado, however, threw a brand among his associates when he made a vigorous speech and said that for one he proposed to assist in placing a free coinage amendment on every tariff bill until such measure became a law. He would not only vote to put it on this bill but he declared it to be his intention to endeavor to assist in having such an amendment placed on a tariff bill in the next congress if the republicans controlled both branches of the legislative and the executive. The statement embarrassed the republicans greatly. Conservative silver men will not join him in this vote and the votes of the "sound money" men on the other side of the chamber are counted upon to defeat such a proposition.

Just as the caucus was about to adjourn Mr. Pettigrew asked when the republicans proposed to consider the question of reorganization of the elective officers of the senate and suggested that this would be as good a time as any. Nevertheless, Mr. Mitchell immediately made a motion to adjourn and it was carried. This left the silver men and the new senators in the lurch. They are the ones who have been urging reorganization and they were somewhat angered to think that the adjournment had been carried on the motion of one of their own men. Immediately a request was circulated for a call for another caucus and it was generally signed, the names attached to it including eastern men as well as western and silver men. The caucus will probably be called to-day.

CHURCH PROPERTY.

A Decision in a Case Against Trustees in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9.—In the superior court here Judge Hall rendered a verdict for the trustees in the suit of Christ Church society of this city against the Connecticut Protestant Episcopal trustees of the donations and bequests for the reconveyance of property conveyed to the trustees as security for a small loan several years ago. Judge Hall holds that the trustees, as the last Episcopal diocesan convention gave consent, can reconvey the property, but that he has no power to compel them to do so. The trustees, who as a corporation hold a great amount of property in this state for church purposes, held that they had no legal power to make the reconveyance.

PRINCETON-HARVARD DEBATE.

The Jersey Boys Decide To Choose the Affirmative Side.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—At a meeting of the Interhill committee, representing the Whig and Cliosophic societies of Princeton university, held yesterday afternoon, it was decided to choose the affirmative side of the debate to be held with Harvard at Cambridge on March 13. The question to be debated is: "Resolved, That congress should take immediate steps to retire all legal tender notes."

GERMANY IS NOTIFIED

Great Britain Will Maintain Her Rights.

The Crisis in the Transvaal Said To Be Over—President Kruger's Generosity in Sparing Jameson's Life Praised—Coventry, Reported To Have Been Killed, Is Alive.

London, Jan. 9.—The Central News is authority for the statement that Lord Salisbury has notified the German government that Great Britain will maintain the rights in the Transvaal secured to her under the convention of 1884 at all costs. The generosity shown by President Kruger is admitted everywhere. At the clubs here it is a matter of speculation as to what terms will be made by Hercules Robinson, governor of the Cape Colony. The consensus of opinion is that President Kruger will expel the leading agitators or those participating in the conspiracy against the Transvaal government of whom he possesses proof and that the British government will punish the other participants. It is also believed that the British South Africa company will be obliged to pay a heavy indemnity and will lose its administrative rights in the adjoining territory. Everything is quiet about the government offices this morning.

Coventry Alive and Will Recover.

It is stated this morning that Hon. Charles Coventry, a captain in the Bachuanaland police and son of the Earl of Coventry, whose death was recently announced to have occurred from the effects of wounds received in the battle between the Boers and Dr. Jameson's forces in the Transvaal, is alive. The dispatch conveying this information also says that although he was wounded, Mr. Coventry's condition is not serious.

The Crisis Over.

The dispatch received last evening by Serretary for the Colonies Chamberlain from Gov. Robinson, announcing that the Uitlanders had unconditionally surrendered Johannesburg on the 7th inst. and gave up arms and that the crisis was over and all danger of further hostilities passed, caused much gratification in government circles to-day. The report that President Kruger intended to hand over Jameson and the other prisoners upon the frontier of Natal is credited by Mr. Chamberlain. A dispatch to the Central News from Cape Town states that it is reported that the high court of the Transvaal republic ordered that Dr. Jameson be shot, but President Kruger refused to sign the warrant for his execution. A dispatch from Pretoria states that the prisoners of Dr. Jameson's following are loud in their praise of the treatment they received at the hands of the Boers. Of the prisoners, the men were confined in the race course enclosures at Pretoria and the officers in the town jail. Dr. Jameson, Sir John Willoughby and the Messrs. White were deeply dejected on account of the result of their movement, Jameson refusing to take food for some time after his imprisonment.

Jameson Released.

A late dispatch from Cape Town says that Dr. Jameson and those of his followers who were taken prisoners have been released and handed over to Sir Hercules Robinson. The banishment from the country of Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson and the payment of a large indemnity by the British South Africa company has been demanded.

LOWNDES INAUGURATED.

Maryland's First Republican Governor Inducted into Office.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 9.—Lloyd Lowndes, who was inaugurated governor yesterday, is the first republican chief executive of Maryland. The inaugural ceremony was performed by chief justice John M. Robinson of the state court of appeals in the presence of both houses of the assembly. The new governor delivered his inaugural address from a stand in front of the senate chamber. There was an unusually large gathering.

Effort To Form a Trust Fails.

Pittsburg, Jan. 9.—Representatives of the cut and wire nail manufacturers of the United States, comprising about twenty-five firms, held a meeting here yesterday. An attempt to form a trust of cut and wire nail manufacturers failed because the cut nail makers were not willing.

Against Seating Dupont as Senator.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 9.—The brief of counsel in opposition to the seating of Henry A. Dupont by the United States senate has been filed with the committee on privileges and elections of the United States senate. The brief is an elaborate document of seventy-two printed pages.

To Stop Cutting Prices.

Providence, Jan. 9.—After the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Pharmaceutical association and the Mortar and Pestle club, the assembled druggists had a dinner last evening and agreed to put a stop to the cutting of prices of patent medicines.

Vessels Damaged in a Gale.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 9.—A number of vessels have been damaged around this coast by Monday's gale. Much destruction to fishing property is also reported.

The Marlborough's Start for Cairo.

London, Jan. 9.—A dispatch from Port Said says the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough arrived there and started last night for Cairo.

Secretary Herbert is appealing to Congress for authority to increase the Navy. He wants power to enlist 1,000 men and press private vessels into service in case of emergency.

The withdrawal of gold from the sub-treasury in New York, on Tuesday, footed up $2,950,000, of which $850,000 was withdrawn for "domestic purposes." This amount, it is surmised, was designed to be held for the purchase of bonds. Bankers, it is reported, look for large withdrawals of gold before the bids for the bonds are opened, and the opinion is expressed that the reserve will touch the lowest point since it was created in 1879 for the maintenance of specie payments. The sale of bonds, however, it is believed, will fully restore the gold reserve to its legal limit.—True American.

A Little Accident.

The door to the two seated open carriage belonging to Eugene A. Gross, of West Seventh street, was smashed by a collision with a buggy on West Front street this morning. The buggy was standing by the curb when the colored driver of Mr. Gross' equipage pulled up just behind and outside of it. The horse attached to the buggy backed and the wheel forced the door off close to the hinges.

An Old Citizen Dead.

One of the oldest citizens in the borough of a feline nature died at the home of Edward Jacot, of Somerset street last evening. He was active up to the last, although almost fourteen years of age.

Wife—Here's an account of a man who shot himself rather than suffer the pangs of indigestion. Husband—The fool! Why didn't he take DeWitt's Little Early Risers? I used to suffer as bad as he did before I commenced taking these little pills. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

High School Notes.

Refreshed by a long and successful vacation, the pupils assembled on Monday morning full of new resolutions for the new year.

The Cicero Class are now reviewing the first, second and third orations which were studied by the class last year. The geometry class is doing very good work in the second book, which comprises the study of the circle.

Dr. Probasco, who spends much time in the interests of the school, presented to the school a handsome book-stand, containing an edition of the Century Dictionary and Encyclopedia.

The Class of '98 held a class meeting for the purpose of adopting a new constitution and drawing up a new set of by-laws.

The regular meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi society will be held next Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The programme will be a debate, subject: "Resolved, That John Brown Should be Considered as a Hero Rather Than a Fanatic." The affirmative side of the question will be carried by Wilbur F. Cornwell, principal, and J. Hazlewood Craig, second. The negative side will be represented by Charles Noble, principal, and Henry Eggerding, second.

Miss Whitney, one of the teachers of the High School, is at home with a slight illness.

Unlucky "Quarter to Six."

"Seventy-five per cent of the people we discharge every year," remarked the head floor walker of a mammoth dry goods establishment which employs over 1,000 people, "lose their places on account of 'a quarter to 6.'"

"'A quarter to 6' is the hour at which preparations are made for closing the day's business. At that hour the male clerks begin to cover their stocks, and the female clerks commence to arrange themselves to go home. Usually a number of ladies come in at this hour, and the clerks, eager to go home, in answer to questions of customers, usually say, 'We are just out' of just what the customer happens to want.

"Day after day we discharge girls for this reason, and 15 times out of 20 you ask a girl why she lost her place, and she will invariably answer on account of 'a quarter to 6.'"—New York Herald.

Telltale Human Nature.

You can not hide any secret. If the artist succor his flagging spirits by opium or wine, his work will characterize itself as the effect of opium or wine. If you make a picture or a statue, it sets the beholder in that state of mind you had when you made it. If you spend for show, on building, or gardening, or on pictures, or on equipages, it will so appear. We are all physiognomists and penetrators of character, and things themselves are detective. —Emerson.

AN EVENING WITH THE MONTHS.

A Delightful Social Is Given at the Seventh-Day Baptist Church.

Most of the merchants in the country are busy now taking account of stock, and so the "Months" social held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church last evening was most opportune. The programme consisted of a tableau for each month, after which a short account of the important happenings during that month was read, in all forming a review of the year's work and what remained. January was represented by a snow scene. Love was the governing spirit in February's tableau of St. Valentine's Day. The March winds are proverbial as are the April showers and furnished material for those two scenes. A dainty May Queen was the next. June came with a profusion of roses. Fourth of July came next, and then followed August with yachts and yachting. A school child was made emblematic of September, while a chestnutting party represented October. Rain was November's characteristic, and last came December, and of course, Christmas. Each tableau was preceded by a quotation. Miss Mabel Maxson was in charge of the tableaux while the delightful supper, that was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, was given under the charge of Mrs. Nathan Randolph, Mrs. E. F. Randolph and Mrs. A. H. Lewis.

A number of the congregation were present and greatly enjoyed the supper, the tableaux and the informal social that followed.

THEATRICAL.

Charles Frohman has received a great many letters from admirers of John Drew, asking for a revival of "Christopher, Jr.," during Mr. Drew's engagement at Palmer's Theatre in New York. He has concluded to heed their requests, and "Christopher, Jr.," will be presented all next week at Palmer's. The following week Mr. Drew will produce a new play.

Proctor's Pleasure Palace, which is obtaining a reputation throughout the entire country for its costly and colossal entertainment, begins the new year with a rush. The bill is so overcrowded that fifteen-minute acts, costing $200 each, are forced in before 1 o'clock p. m. and at the supper hour. It is this liberality of outlay which keeps the house crowded from opening to close of a twelve-hour entertainment. The Four Mosers, eccentric acrobats, from the Alhambra, London, just arrived per Etruria, make their American debut in two distinct acts. Charles B. Ward sings a new song by the author of "Down Went McGinty." Elsie Adair in her dainty dancing novelties; Sherman and Morrissey with their "Jay Circus;" the Flying Dillons; Gertrude Mansfield; the Gypsy Trio and George Lockhart's wonderful elephants are reinforced by Hyde's comedians.

The devil can sleep in church, when the preaching is being done by a man whose religion is all in his head.—Rams Horn.

The Crescent Wheelmen Juniors have decided to show the first team how to bowl. The operation will take place on Monday evening and may be painful for someone.

A challenge has been sent from the second team of the Crescent Wheelmen to the bowling team of the Orange Y. M. C. A. for a game. No answer has been received as yet.

Two more games were rolled in the Standard League at Westfield last evening. The first game was a victory for Westfield over Cranford by a score of 857 to 710. The Cranford team rolled a better game in the second, while the home team went to pieces. The visitors won by 29 pins. The score was 780 to 752.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Plainfield High School promises to hold an important position in interscholastic sports this coming year, and that it should was the unanimous sentiment of those who attended the meeting of the High School Athletic Association yesterday afternoon. The treasurer's report was the first thing to come before the meeting and it showed the association to be in a better financial condition than ever before. George Proctor Smith then gave a report of the organizing meeting of the National Interscholastic Athletic Association, as told in The Daily Press. The question of completing the organization of the New Jersey Association was then brought forward, and George P. Smith and Wilbur F. Cornwell were appointed a committee to confer with Stevens' School and call a convention of New Jersey schools. This convention will be held in Plainfield, a constitution adopted and the officers elected. It is hoped that Plainfield will also secure the State meet. A meeting will be held Saturday by the committees from Steven's and the High School, when the call will be formally issued.

CYCLING COMMENT.

It is said that the price of high-class wheels will be considerably reduced before next spring, owing to a cut-rate war among the leading manufacturers.

A scheme is being planned whereby the membership of the League of American Wheelmen will be greatly increased. The purpose is to have the manufacturers present to each purchaser of a wheel a membership ticket in the League of American Wheelmen, and a receipt for one year's dues, the money in each case to be paid over to the League. This would secure a new member for the League for every wheel sold, which would bring the total membership above the 500,000 mark. The plan is favored by the manufacturs, but not wholly accepted by the executive committee of the League.

Are These the Bank Robbers?

There are some who believe that George Carson and Sid Yennie, the noted bank robbers, who were arrested in New York yesterday, are the men who robbed the First National Bank, of this city, several months ago. There is nothing definite about the suppositions, however.

—At Frazee's market on Park avenue, opposite North avenue, you will find a good assortment of fish tomorrow, and he says he will not be undersold by any in the business.

—Two men out of work applied to Chief VanHorn last night for lodging. They were allowed to sleep in the lockup and this morning they were very profuse in their thanks.

—The last meeting of the Women's Relief Corps, No. 10, Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., under the present officers will be held Friday evening of this week.

—Five young men will speak at the young men's rally at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday at 4:15 p. m. G. T. Dunham, trombone soloist, and the male choir, will furnish the music.

—One candidate will be elected, one proposition received and the chiefs degree will be conferred on one at the meeting of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., Friday evening.

—Niely Davidson, of Crawford, N. J., writes: "I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for liver complaint and rheumatism, and it did me good." Hood's Pills cure sick headache, indigestion.

—Miss Lena Lurenden, formerly of Plainfield, but now living in Buffalo, N. Y., where she is engaged in mission work, will lead the meeting at the East Third Street mission this evening.

—It may be true that all things come to her who waits. But what is the use of waiting? You need good warm underwear now, and Peck's is where you will not have to wait. He has just what you want.

—Mrs. W. W. Stratton, of 257 East Third street, has succeeded in getting a sufficient number of persons to organize a Daughters of Liberty council at Bound Brook. The organization will soon take place.

—Harry M. Jacquet, the gents' furnishing dealer, will occupy the store to be vacated by Gavett & Co., on East Front street, after the first of April next. The store where he is at present located is for rent.

—The music at the Christian Endeavor revival meetings to be held next week will be a decided feature, and everyone is urged to bring their hymn books, No. 5 and 6, if they have them. If not they can purchase books at the place of meeting.

—On January 1st the Union Pacific System inaugurated an equipment of the finest Pullman Composite (Buffet Smoking and Library) cars on Overland Limited trains, one and two to run through from Chicago to Salt Lake City and Salt Lake City to Chicago. These cars are the same as are run on the New York and Chicago Limited trains. The Union Pacific is the first road to adopt this service west of Missouri river on regular daily trains.

SURRENDER.

Because thy heart to mine
Spake with a call divine
I did not question it nor wait to know
That it was wise to give surrender so,
But down beneath thy feet I laid me low.
I did not wait to find
That thou wast loving, generous and kind,
That love for thee would bring delight or woe,
But from within me or above
The mandate came to love thee, and I love.

A FAMOUS WRECK.

The Royal Charter Lost With Four Hundred and Fifty-nine Persons on Board.

The Royal Charter sailed from Melbourne on Aug. 26, 1859, having on board 388 passengers, mostly from the goldfields, and a crew of 112 persons. She accomplished her voyage in two months. At Queenstown 13 passengers landed in a pilot boat, but the next day 11 riggers came from a steam tug; thus at the time of the calamity there were on board 498 passengers, and of these only 39 were saved. She carried a small cargo of wool and skins, but the most important item of her freight was gold and specie, to the value of at least £500,000.

On Oct. 26 there was blowing from the east-northeast a violent gale, which fell with full force on the ill fated ship. She arrived off Point Lynas about 6 in the evening, and for several hours Captain Taylor continued throwing up rockets in the hope of attracting the attention of a pilot, but none made his appearance. The gale increased in violence; the ship was making leeway, and drifting gradually toward the beach. The captain let go both anchors, but the gale had increased to a hurricane; the chains parted, and notwithstanding the engines were worked at their full power, the Royal Charter continued to drift toward the shore, where she struck at 3 a. m.

The masts and rigging were cut adrift, but this gave no relief. The ship continued to grind and dash upon the rocks, and at last was thrown broadside on, and then the terror began. A Maltese sailor, Joseph Rogers, conveyed a rope on shore through the heavy surf. Had time been given no doubt every person could have been safely conveyed on shore, but one tremendous wave came after another, playing with the Royal Charter like a toy and swinging her about on the rocks. She divided amidship, and well nigh all on board were swept into the furious sea. A few minutes later she also parted at the fore hatch, and then there was an end. Those who were not killed by the sea were killed by the breaking up of the ship.

In the course of a few moments the work was done, and 459 persons were numbered among the dead. It was said by those who visited the scene of the calamity that never was destruction more complete. The coast and the fields above the cliffs were strewn with fragments of the cargo and of the bedding and clothing. Worse still, the rocks were covered with corpses frightfully mutilated, and strewn with the gold which the poor creatures had gone so far to seek, and which was now torn from them in so pitiful a way.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Wonderful Miniature Steam Engines.

It was in 1874 that an ingenious mechanic, D. A. A. Buck of Worcester, Mass., made his marvelous miniature steam engine. This lilliputian wonder in the line of mechanics was so small that its boiler, pumps, governors and all other necessary attachments occupied a space only seven-sixteenths of an inch in diameter, or less than the area of an old fashioned silver 3 cent piece. This little engine was only five-eighths of an inch in height, yet it contained 148 distinct parts, nearly all of which were silver and gold. It was held together by 52 screws, the smallest of these being but one one-hundredth of an inch in length. This miniature engine, small as it was, had all the valves, gearing, etc., that are to be found on the ordinary horizontal engine. Three drops of water were sufficient to fill the boiler to overflowing. The entire engine weighed but 15 grains when rid of its base plate. The diameter of the cylinder was but one-sixteenth of an inch; length of stroke, three fifty-seconds of an inch. Several years ago, in 1868, a mechanic at Hull, England, constructed an engine that weighed 3½ ounces, and which was at that time thought to be a mechanical marvel. In 1876 Levi Taylor of Indianola, Ia., constructed an engine which weighed but 12 grains.—St. Louis Republic.

Use It in Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucus discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears, and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure of these troubles.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character, and if instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases, and always with like results. It never fails. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

A BIOGRAPHY MILL.

A QUEER INDUSTRY THAT IS IN A FLOURISHING CONDITION.

Demand For the Manufactured Article Based on Human Vanity—How the Trade Is Conducted—Some Specimen Letters Written by the Trade Agents.

Of the numerous trades the followers of which depend for their livelihood upon the folly, vanity and snobbishness of their fellow men one of the simplest and not least remunerative is that of the biography manufacturer. To succeed in this branch of business it is necessary to possess a certain knowledge of mankind, considerable tact and, above all, a great deal of assurance.

There are various ways of conducting this business. One of the commonest is by means of the circular letter. This, which is sent by the biography manufacturer to any likely victim, announces that Messrs. So-and-so will shortly publish a biographical cyclopedia, and that, as the work would be very incomplete if it omitted to mention the addressee, the publishers would be much obliged to him if he would furnish them with his biography at an early date. To this is usually added that no charge whatever is made for printing the biography, "but we are very anxious," the letter goes on to say, "to secure your portrait, the cost of which will be ——." The price varies considerably, according to its size, the status of the biography factory, etc. The letter generally concludes by saying that "your orders and those of as many of your friends as possible for the complete work are solicited."

Sometimes the biography is written by a friend; but, if he is a good friend, the result is generally much the same as if it had been written by the subject himself. The following extract from the life of A—— B——, poet, as submitted to a biography factory, will serve to illustrate this:

"His many sided nature is illustrated by the following incident: One morning he went to New York to give his foreman and workmen some instructions in carrying out a contract for building a creosote factory in Hoboken. In the afternoon the Poets' club gave him a reception, and his latest epic was the topic of discussion. Later he went to Sheepshead Bay to see his famous steeplechaser Bucephalus engage in a race there. In the evening he lectured on 'Folklore' before a select literary audience, and afterward, before the —— Athletic club, he whipped the champion amateur pugilist of the world."

Sometimes the autobiographer endeavors to convey the impression that the life was written by another. Here is a verbatim copy of such a biography: "—— —— was born in Portland, Me., Jan. 2, 1854. His father's name is John P. Ericson; by trade he was a blacksmith. I left there when I was 21 years old. I went to school until I was 16 years Old, and taught school and did clerical work until I was 21 years old, and then I came west to Kansas to work at my father's trade. * * * For the past five years of my life I have taken Patents and Developed them. I took out a patent five years ago it was a machine that done away with typesetting. * * * I got married in 1870 to Mary E. Jones we have two children."

To this the agent considerately added, "I suppose you can write the above from these data."

Most autobiographers attach the utmost importance to every detail that relates either to themselves, their family connections or their friends. One of these, for instance, describes at length the illness of his daughter and concludes with, "On Jan. 7 this beautiful girl left her father's handsome residence on Palisade avenue for heaven"—"her father's handsome residence on Palisade avenue" being carefully inserted in the original statement, showing it to have been an afterthought that the reader might be impressed with the desirability of both ends of the route described.

Modesty is not one of the autobiographer's characteristics. After many pages relative to his achievements, both in general and in particular, but mostly in particular, a Florida physician asked his biographers to "tell the world what I have done!" A dentist thus chronicled his work, "Since removing to Dakota, Dr. Molar's career has been a series of brilliant successes." Twenty pages devoted to the achievements, ancestry, personal appearance, etc., of a wholesale grocer wound up with the credible statement, "Mr. Soapandstarch is a modest man." That the agent is the prime cause of biography factory success is proved by the following letters. In each instance the agent's letter was accompanied by a bulky autobiography from the "subject:"

Messrs. —— —— & Co.:

GENTS—I send you the biogs. of Mr. and Mrs. —— under a separate cover. I have been working on Mr. Walker for a $1,000 order ever since I have been in this city, but have not yet secured it. He is very wealthy and full of conceit, judging from the biogs. he had copied from different publications and from what I have observed, but his leg has been pulled until it got soar (sic), and now it is hard to get his name down again. He said he wanted to see how we will write his and his wife's biogs. before he will do anything. I think it will pay you to write these two biogs. at once and give them all the flattery possible. You cannot give them too much. Write them extensively, and after I have the orders you can cut them down to suit yourselves. Both Mr. and Mrs. —— said that all the biogs. that have been written about them don't do them justice at all. They imagine that they are the greatest people in the state. Write above the biogs. that it is written by the editor in chief, because I told them that I would have the biogs. written by our editor in chief, and that he is a great historian and only writes the biogs. of great value. You'd better write a letter to me, saying that the editorial staff have decided that Mr. and Mrs. Walker are entitled to a full page portrait, and that if he is willing to pay for it you will publish it, etc.

I called on General ——, and he said that he don't want the books in his library, and that he will not pay more than $25 for making that $75 portrait. He says that he is connected with a publishing house, and that he knows exactly what it costs to make such a portrait. Yours truly, ——.

GENTS—Write the inclosed biog. in grand style and send it to me right off. It means $700 if I succeed in securing his order. Write a letter to me, stating that the editorial staff has decided that Dr. —— is entitled to a full page portrait. Yours truly, ——.

SMOKING HORSES.

The Singular Manner In Which Indians Obtain Their Mounts.

A curious method of obtaining horses is practiced by some of the Indian tribes. It is called on the plains "smoking horses." If a tribe decides to send out a war party, the first thing to be thought of is whether there are enough horses at hand to mount the warriors. If, as is often the case, the horses of the tribe have been stolen by other Indians, they decide to "smoke" enough horses for present needs and to steal a supply from their enemies at the first opportunity.

When this decision is reached, a runner is dispatched to the nearest friendly tribe with the message that on a certain day they will be visited by a number of young men, forming a war party from his tribe, who require horses. On the appointed day the warriors appear, stripped to the waist. They march silently to the village of their friends, seat themselves in a circle, light their pipes and begin to smoke, at the same time making their wishes known in a sort of droning chant.

Presently there is seen, far out on the plain, a band of horsemen, riding gayly caparisoned steeds fully equipped for war. These horsemen dash up to the village and wheel about the band of beggars sitting on the ground, in circles which constantly grow smaller, until, at last, they are as close as they can get to the smokers without riding over them. Then each rider selects the man to whom he intends to present his pony, and as he rides around, singing and yelling, he lashes the bare back of the man he has selected with the heavy rawhide whip until the blood is seen to trickle down. If one of the smokers should flinch under the blows, he would not get his horse, but would be sent home on foot and in disgrace.

At last, when the horsemen think their friends have been made to pay enough in suffering for their ponies, each dismounts, places the bridle in the hand of the smoker he has selected, and at the same time hands him the whip, saying:

"Here, beggar, is a pony for you to ride, for which I have left my mark."

After all the ponies have been presented the "beggars" are invited to a grand feast, during which they are treated with every consideration by their hosts, who also load them with food sufficient for their homeward journey. The braves depart with full stomachs and smarting backs, but happy in the possession of their ponies and in anticipation of the time when their friends shall be in distress and shall come to smoke horses with them.—Philadelphia Times.

LIQUID AIR.

It May Take the Place of Oxygen In Submarine Navigation.

Liquid air may play an important part in submarine navigation. It was believed a few years ago that oxygen would solve the problem of furnishing a reasonably wholesome atmosphere to submarine boats, and a submarine craft equipped with oxygen retorts instead of compressed air retorts remained many hours under water, while its occupants played cards, ate a hearty meal and did other things that had hitherto been done only above the surface of the water. The advant[illegible] of oxygen over compressed air lies in [illegible]e fact that less of the former than of the latter is needed in submarine navigation, and therefore a less weight of metallic retorts has to be carried. In the seemingly successful experiment the oxygen was permitted to escape in small quantities into the atmosphere of the vessel when the conduct of a small flame indicated the presence of too much carbonic acid and consequent dearth of oxygen. Little has been heard of oxygen equipped submarine craft since the experiment, and now liquid air has arrived, perhaps to furnish exactly the thing needed, rather than a makeshift substitute for a normal atmosphere.

Since a London company has been formed for the purveying of liquid air, it looks as if the proper apparatus for handling it had been provided, and suggests the early employment of the liquid in submarine navigation. There seems the possibility of a submarine craft that shall get rid of its impure air by some means yet to be invented, and substitute for it the needed amount of pure air slowly converted from the liquid to the gaseous form. An ingenious but totally unscientific person has suggested the possibility of a submarine craft safely navigating the still ocean depths, undisturbed by motion of wind or wave, with retorts of pure liquid air carefully kept in a freezing mixture, but constantly permitted to leak the necessary quantity per minute to supply the place of the vitiated air laden with poisonous exhalations from the lungs of the crew and passengers. The hostile battleship would never be safe from sudden submarine attack and the pestiferous smuggler would bob up serenely at midnight in remote harbors, land his contraband goods, and be off.—New York Sun.

A Literary Man's Sandwich.

A novelist was asked recently by a friend which one of his creations he was most fond of, and his reply illustrates a new development in his character.

"Well," he replied, "I think that upon the whole my 'Rothschild sandwich' is the best thing I ever did."

"Your what?" queried the friend.

"My 'Rothschild sandwich.' Yes, I have invented a sandwich," he replied, "and it's a good one even if I do say it. You take a muffin or tea cake. Cut it into two slices. Butter each slice with pure, unsalted butter. Then place upon the butter of each slice a thin layer of Roquefort cheese. Upon one of the slices lay half a dozen olives dripping with their oil, and place the other slice on top of them. Then eat the result, and if you don't say the pleasure of eating it is worth the headache you are likely to have next morning, you are not a true epicure."

"But why do you call this the 'Rothschild sandwich,' instead of the '—— sandwich?'" was asked.

"Because it is far richer than I ever hope to be," replied the author.—Pearson's Weekly.

Relative Brightness of the Stars.

The dream of Joseph is the oldest document known in which the brightness of the stars is referred to. In it are mentioned the sun, moon and 12 stars, which exceed all the other heavenly bodies in splendor. M. Fizeau, a French astronomer, has recently pointed out that, if we count the stars of the first magnitude seen in Egypt today, we shall find just 12, for a thirteenth is of somewhat doubtful brilliancy. These 12 stars are also mentioned in an evangel of St. John; hence M. Fizeau concludes that the relative brightness of the stars has not appreciably altered since the times of the pharaohs.—London Globe.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

THE BEATTY CLAN

By ALFRED R. CALHOUN.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

Through Andrew Johnson, who soon after this became military governor of Tennessee, Hugh Beatty was commissioned a captain, but his knowledge of the mountains was so great that, instead of being assigned to a regular command, he was detailed to act as guide and scout with the brigade which, under Colonel Garfield, began a spring campaign in 1862 against the Confederates, who, under Humphrey Marshall, occupied the mountains along the head waters of the Big Sandy and extending down to Cumberland Gap.

When the Union forces under our General Morgan seized and fortified the gap in the early summer, Captain Beatty applied for and received a month's leave of absence. At this point he was only about 35 miles from his old home, and although that territory was supposed to be inside the enemy's lines the desire to see his wife and "to l'arn how things had gone with the wimmin folk and the chillen ovah on Batty's crick" was too strong to be resisted.

The old scout knew that if he communicated his purpose to any of his friends in General Morgan's army he would be restrained. He still had with him the ragged butternut clothes in which he came through with his kinsmen to our lines, and arraying himself in these, and with an army rifle, he started from the gap and eluded our pickets and those of the enemy, then in some force over in Powell's valley.

It required no ordinary daring for this enterprise. The enemy's scouts and bands of guerrillas, organized to plunder and murder the few remaining Union men, were then ruthlessly raiding the Cumberland plateau. The conduct of Captain Beatty and his friends in fighting their way out of the state had already made them well known and hateful to their opponents in that region. Had the old soldier gone in in uniform and backed by comrades it is doubtful if any of the enemy in the mountains then under the lead of his infamous namesake, Tinker Dave Beatty, would have taken him prisoner, or, if they did so, it would only be to hang him after they had submitted him to insult. But going within the lines in citizen's dress meant that he was a spy and would be treated as such if he fell into the hands of even those regular Confederate organizations who acknowledged what is called "civilized warfare."

In this Captain Beatty may have been rash, but he was not blind to the danger of his position. "I felt right smart safer," he said when telling of the adventure, "than ef I'd had a crowd along. I could always keer fo' one man better'n two, more particklar whin that one man's myself.

'Even befo' the wah," he explained, "the mountains was never crowded with people, but I could always tell whar a light and a welcome could be found on the darkest night." But now even the sparse settlements were abandoned and many of the little log houses, clinging like odd eyries to the mountain side, were deserted.

The rutted trails told of more frequent travel, but except in odd places no corn had been planted, and the potato fields of past days were breast high with weeds.

An awful dread for the fate of his loved ones—he gave no thought to himself—filled the old man's heart as he neared Beatty's creek. He traveled at night, hiding himself by day among the higher rocky peaks, from which his coming frightened the wolf. He saw in the distance men dressed in butternut, but he did not dare to make himself known, fearing that they might be friendly to the south.

About 3 o'clock the third morning after leaving the army at Cumberland Gap the old man reached the site of the stillhouse on the creek, about a half mile below the settlement. The building was gone. He struck a light and looked about him. Charred timbers were all he saw. He grasped his rifle, set hard his teeth and started up the creek. The barking of a dog in the distance gave him a little comfort, for it told there were people left in the old home.

The half moon came over the mountains, revealing the line of log cabins above the bed of the creek, but the store and the mill were gone. They, too, had been given to the torch.

With his heart leaping till it swayed him, the old man turned to his own house. He heard the whining of a dog. Then, with a bark of joy, the animal leaped up and began to lick his hands, and this assured him that his worst fears were groundless.

He hurried on, and he heard the voice of a woman coming from the darkness, where heretofore a light had ever guided his night approach.

"Hugh! My ole man, I—I knowed yer step!"

Weaker than himself, but as brave, she came out in her thin calico dress, and her thin arms were about his neck, and the gray strands of her hair fell on his face with her kisses and her tears.

"They're been raisin h—l h'ar sence you uns left," was what she said when she could get her feelings under control.

He did not need to be told who "they" were. He had seen war. He knew what to expect as to the destruction or appropriation of property by the enemy, but he could not have anticipated the worst.

The old woman led him into the house, but she refused to make a light, fearing that it would attract the attention of "Tinker Dave's men," who were then swarming in the mountains.

She gave him some cornbread to eat, explaining that the enemy had plundered the store and left them only a little meal. And as he munched the hard bread by the fireless hearth the old wife, with no emotion in her voice, for she had her feelings under control again, told him the worst.

Diphtheria, though that was not the name she gave it, appeared on the creek early in the spring, and nearly all the children and many of the mothers had died for the want of proper treatment. Some of the daughters-in-law had gone back to their folks, but of the 12 houses that 10 months before had been full to overflowing with women and children nine were empty.

In the midst of this plague the enemy appeared to complete the work of destruction and to carry off and spread the disease. The remaining women had buried the dead as best they could up on the hillside, and they tried to plant a little corn, but it was hard work with all the mules and the oxen taken away.

And when she had told him all this and tried to still his groaning by laying her hand on his shoulder and whispering him not to "take on so powahful bad" she went out to summon Andy's widow and the others that were left.

It needs no lurid coloring to intensify this picture. It is better represented by the more than silhouette blackness in which that old man and his wife and the little group of women and children found themselves. The captain told of the death of his boys, and, except for a suppressed sob or the exclamation of the word "God!" forced through the closed, set teeth, there was nothing in the manner of the group buried there in the darkness to tell of the fresh thrusts to hearts already wounded unto death.

And then they told him of their trials, not by way of exciting sympathy or contrasting suffering, but because their hearts were full and till death must remain full of the one subject.

There was no chiding, no complaint, no wishing that one course rather than another had been taken, nor were they sustained at this time by the sublime faith which glorifies martyrdom and renders torture a delight to the religious devotee. Each had acted as he or she thought for the best. The result had not been as they could have wished, and so, like fatalists, they accepted the present without complaint, but it was not in the nature of the race to yield without resisting. They would keep right on, doing the best they could and fearlessly awaiting the end, be that what it might.

Not the least sad feature of the old patriot's visit to his mountain home was the fact that, instead of being able to assist those who so sorely needed it, his presence added to their already serious burdens and helped to decrease the little stock of meal they had on hand.

He could not stay in his own house, but had to hide up the mountain, where the old woman and the others visited him at night. He brought with him a lot of Confederate money, which was very abundant in our army at that time, and this the captain gave his wife, hoping she might find it of some use, as greenbacks had no value in that part of Tennessee at that time.

As it would be cruel to remain where he could not help and where the danger to himself added to the anxiety of his wife and the others, the old captain determined to make his way back to Cumberland Gap before one-half of his 30 days' leave of absence had expired. Heavy of heart though Captain Beatty was, he did not permit his own troubles to blind him to the duty he owed that cause that grew dearer to him in proportion to his sufferings for it.

At this time, August, 1862, Kirby Smith, with a corps, was moving up through east Tennessee for the purpose of co-operating with Bragg, then preparing for his great foraging raid into the blue grass region of Kentucky. One purpose of Smith's campaign was to surprise the Federal garrison at Cumberland Gap. Captain Beatty was less cautious on his return, and so he ran against a courier hastening in the direction of Knoxville. A fight followed, and the Confederate's horse and dispatch bag were the spoils of the Union soldier.

The old captain reached the gap camp in safety, but what effect his information had on that campaign I cannot pretend to say, but certain it is that Kirby Smith neither surprised nor captured the Union troops under Morgan, though he did succeed in running into Kentucky and running out again.

I next met Captain Beatty when, in October of the same year, we were pushing Bragg's raiders back, and they had come to a halt along Chaplain creek, near the village of Perryville. The old scout was temporarily assigned to duty on General Jackson's staff, and he and I slept on one blanket the night before the battle. The old man had stood the fatigue of that torrid and dusty campaign as well as men one-third his age—better indeed than the strongest men in the new levies who had joined us at Louisville, and who were to take their first hard lesson in war on the morrow.

"I tell you," said the captain, "hit always ages me to see we uns a-marchin fo' the north. I come most nigh losin heart durin the past two months when the rebs seemed to have everything purty much nigh thar own way right har in Kaintuck, but now that were a-drivin 'em south, instead of them a-drivin we uns no'th hit's kinder more comfortin."

He had already told me of his visit to Tennessee and how he had met his surviving kinsmen with General Carter and told them the news.

"Once our folks gits into aist Tennessee," he continued, "I'll 'bout give up sojerin and go back and keer for the wimmin and chillen on the crick. His won't be long after that till the bottom'll drop onten the hull d——d thing, and then they'll be sorry they ever started hit. And I say, my son, ef so be you could come over and visit me when things is kinder quiet again we uns'll be mighty glad to see you."

There were men at Perryville who had been at Donelson and Shiloh, and who subsequently were engaged in the bloodiest battles in the west, but ask them the hardest fight they were ever in, the fight most trying to the active participants, and they will say without hesitation, "Perryville." The roads were ankle deep in dust, the streams were arid ruts, and the springs and wells had gone dry, so the men and animals suffered intensely for water. Hundreds of soldiers, blue and gray, were killed at Perryville in their efforts to reach the water, and they fell on their faces and drank it, after the tepid little stream had been choked up with the dead.

The enemy fell back the next morning, and we had orders to follow them in the direction of Harrodsburg. I was about to mount my horse near a field hospital that had been erected just back of where General Jim Jackson was killed the day before, when an orderly told me that Dr. White wished to see me.

I hurried back to the clump of trees, where White and his assistants were at work, looking like sanguinary monsters.

"Captain Beatty heard you were near and wanted to see you," said Dr. White, and he pointed to a figure on a stretcher near by.

I drew down a cloth that had been thrown over the face to keep off the flies.

The old man appeared to be asleep, but there was a red splotch and a jagged tear on his breast.

"Captain Beatty, old friend, I am here!" I called.

He made no response. I took his hand, and it struck me that hot morning as being the coldest hand I had ever felt.

I pushed back his hair and touched my lips to his forehead. The bugles sounded the "advance," and I felt as I rode away something of that dead soldier's ceaseless yearning to hurry the old flag back to Tennessee.

THE END.

HAIRY HEADS.

Musicians, as a Rule, Says the Statistician, Have Abundant Growths.

A statistician has observed, says the London Telegraph, that "musicians as a rule have excellent heads of hair," and never has one of these useful investigators enunciated a dictum which will command such universal assent. We believe that were it put to the largest possible public meeting in the form of a resolution it would be carried without a dissentient voice. A "forest of hands," in the reporters' phrase, would be held up in its favor. How deeply, indeed, this truth has impressed itself on the mind of the average Londoner may be seen by any one who studies the countenances of those who are themselves inspecting portraits of certain eminent musicians in the shop windows.

In some few cases perhaps their interest is founded on purely artistic sympathy, but what holds the greatest number of them spellbound is undoubtedly the spectacle of that magnificently stormy aureole—wilder than his most furious fantasia, richer and more copious than his most profuse "variations"—that encircles the famous artist's head. The admiration of the spectator, like all great admirations, is usually speechless. Were it to find voice at all, it would probably express itself with something of the brevity of that famous ejaculation which did far better justice than whole pages of guidebook eloquence to its stupendous subject, and even as the American visitor to the Horseshoe falls found no other vent for his feeling than a shout of "Well done, water!" so the wonder stricken gazer at this capillary Niagara might perhaps relieve his emotion with the broken cry of "Bravo, hair!"

But, whether he be silent or articulate, the ordinary spectator of this marvel receives from it an indelible impression. When at last he reluctantly tears himself from the shop window and pursues his way, he does so with a widened intellectual horizon and an uplifted soul. He has a new and nobler conception of the possibilities of human development, and feels himself appreciably nearer to realizing how many "sorts" it "takes to make the world." In some cases, indeed, a sight like this may be the means of awakening a man's esthetic sensibilities and opening his perceptions to the appeal of art, just as other miracles have prepared the human mind for the acceptance of truths with which they have no visible connection.

Bob Taylor.

Bob Taylor was formerly governor of Tennessee. He is a queer fellow and wonderfully versatile. He can rise to the highest oratory or sink to the lowest level of a plantation song in dialect with equal facility. I like one thing he said about Tennessee, his native state. "Our mountains," said Bob, "are so high that one can stand on their tops and tickle the feet of the angels."—New York Herald.

The Dust.

Tommy—Because I want you to bite it.

Rich Aunt—Why do you want me to bite it?

Tommy—Because I heard papa say that when you bite the dust we shall get £20,000.—London Tit-Bits.

Rousseau declared that "an idle man in the community is a thief." This is rather hard upon the gentlemen of elegant leisure and may explain why only plated ware is used at the fashionable dinners of the season in always suspicious Vanity Fair.

TIPS AND CLASSES.

THE QUESTION OF FEES TREATED AS A SERIOUS MATTER.

Monetary Remembrances Said to Be Creating Unpleasant Distinctions—Destruction of One of America's Proudest Claims.

There are persons still living who can remember when "tips," or unearned rewards, were unknown in our country and were considered utterly un-American. Our working people, no less than all the rest of our citizens, were not only too self respecting and independent to accept them, but they were offended by the offer of them. Their wages were honestly earned; their little courtesies and kindnesses, that were beyond "the bond," they were accustomed to give as freely as any gentleman or lady in the land, and therefore class distinctions were little known among us. When every one quietly exercised the noblest and dearest of rights, that of free giving, each enjoyed the respect of each. It could not be otherwise. Respect cannot be commanded or extorted, but flows naturally to those who hold themselves above price and freely give themselves.

The mark that once distinguished all Americans was this universal habit of unpaid serving, and when all gave freely and all took freely there could be little class distinction. "Not one of them would take a fee!" was the amazed comment of the European visitor. "You must not offer fees here. You will only offend people," replied the American. "Our people are all above fees!" How proudly we said it! How we long to be again able to say it! In those days part of the traveler's pleasure came from the chambermaid's ready helpfulness, the waiter's alert good will, the passing stranger's prompt kindness, and by no means only the rich stranger's kindness, oftener, perhaps, that of the poorly dressed and careworn, the busy worker's moment of free service. No smiles were for sale; no courtesies were tainted with even the suspicion of mercenary motives. How tips have altered and degraded our relations to our neighbors, especially those between the served and the professional servers! We used to lead in independence and free helpfulness, but we have dropped behind.

The guards in the palace of justice at Paris are not allowed to accept fees, though there is no charge for seeing the rooms. Not knowing this, a fee was offered to an obliging attendant who had guided some visitors. The guard drew back, saying proudly, "Never, madam, never!" And in Switzerland the same traveler asked her way at a humble cottage door. The fair woman who answered the inquiry insisted upon going some distance up the mountain that the path might not be missed. A fee was offered, but the kindly face grew scarlet as the volunteer guide drew back, saying, "I, madame, I!" The American thought, with a pang, so our own people once took such an offer, but now! Shall we rest content to be thus outstripped?

And can the tip fail to take the natural sweetness from well earned wages? We all feel great satisfaction in a hard won gain until we see others getting as much, or more, without the toil. Then the satisfaction dwindles inevitably. The beggar and the tip taker alike often receives more than the honest worker, and without effort. Their easy profit must cause a smarting sense of injustice and strike at the roots of content.

And what good does the tip secure to balance its harvest of ill? What can it secure but either the unjust monopoly of good things to which the giver is not entitled, or the just share of those good things for which he pays full price? The hotel guest who secures more than his share of service or of table delicacies robs other guests of what they have paid for. Who has not heard the admonition to the hotel waiter, "Now, get the best of everything for me and don't keep me waiting, and I'll not forget you!" In plain English this means, "I will reward you if you secure for me alone what is meant for several people and serve me before those who came before me." Then the obsequious bows and bought smiles! The accomplished barter of the best part of a man, degrading alike to buyer and bought! It is argued that hotel servants are not well paid and are expected to supplement their wages by getting tips, and that they make them alert. This spreads the dishonor. But there are proprietors of hotels who are not willing that their employees should be considered beggars, or dependent on tips, and so do not deserve this imputation.

But unearned fees are by no means confined to hotels. The evil has spread widely. Surely the employees of the churches should be on as high a plane as those of the palace of justice at Paris. They are far from being so. The churches allow their (presumably) well paid sextons to accept fees for what is (again presumably) their regular working—the keeping in order and opening of church and parish buildings for the needs of the community. Sextons are often feed for opening such rooms even for the good works of the members of that very church, though the proper authorities have lent the rooms freely. The receipts of many a struggling society, striving to help a sore need, are often taxed for a sexton's fee and not for night work, but in regular business hours.

In all the present struggle among workers for their "rights," will not our American ones at least take back their birthright of holding themselves above price? Let them sell their time, their labor, their skill, but not their smiles or their kindnesses by the way. Let them insist upon keeping something to give. Why should not they, as well as the rest, have the privilege of giving? Well earned wages are honorable and are taken gladly by all classes from the great artist to the little bootblack. But the acceptance of a tip marks a class distinction, the taker placing himself in the lowest.—Philadelphia Press.

A TELEGRAM.

She Was Like Other Women, and Got Scared to Unconsciousness.

The effect which the telegraph messenger has upon the members of my sex when he delivers a telegram makes us a fruitful theme for study, writes Haryot Holt Cahoon in the New York Recorder. Nothing suggests real feminine advancement more fully than a cool demeanor on the part of a woman when she receives a telegram. The feminine nature is prone to be apprehensive of danger and sorrow, and the messenger boys have come to regard us with cool masculine amusement and superiority. I learn from one of these fateful emissaries that a woman always tears a message open in feverish haste before she signs the book, a thing a superior masculine recipient of one never does.

My neighbor received a telegram this morning and fainted away in the hall near the door of her apartment. The telegraph messenger summoned neighborly sympathizers, and then became a curious and silent and contemptuous eyewitness of what he plainly regarded as the queer and inexplicable ways of women. A few people ran in from the street, and some bore camphor and smelling salts, and others brought water and sympathy and various other restoratives, and one, more officious than the others, called in a doctor. My gentle neighbor revived eventually, and the telegram that had fluttered to her feet was opened by the doctor. The patient beheld him tear it open, and then, as he unfolded it, she swooned again. This story is dragging itself out immeasurably, but these things will happen in due succession. The message was from her husband, and it said, "Gone to Philadelphia; back late tonight."

Then everybody laughed at her and threw water on her, and the doctor murmured, "Too provincial, madam—too provincial altogether." A New York woman hates to be called "provincial," and so my neighbor has fluttered in and out several times this afternoon and sputtered in a pretty feminine fashion. That thoughtful spouse will catch it when he gets home from Philadelphia. We women shall never advance generally until we are able to meet the exigencies of such trifles as telegrams.

ALASKA'S ICE BEAR.

An Accurate Description of It by Professor Dall of the Coal Commission.

When the government sent out a commission to investigate the coalfields of Alaska, Professor W. N. Dall was made one of the party. While the scientific men were visiting the Mount St. Elias glaciers, Professor Dall saw an animal he had never seen before. It was a bear, but such a bear as nobody in the party had ever seen or heard of. They thought they had discovered an entirely distinct species. Professor Dall made an elaborate report of all the circumstances, together with all the information he could get from the natives about the bear. This is his description:

"The general color of the animal resembles that of the silver fox. The fur is not very long, but remarkably soft and with a rich under fur of a bluish black shade, numbers of the longer hairs being white or having the distal part half white and the bastal part slaty. The dorsal line from the tip of the nose to the rump, the back of the very short ears and the outer faces of the limbs are jet black. Numerous long white hairs issue from the ears; black and silver is the prevalent pelage of the sides, neck and rump; the under surface of the belly and the sinuses behind the limbs are grayish white, or even nearly pure white, I am told, in some cases. The sides of the muzzle and the lower anterior part of the cheeks are of a bright tan color—a characteristic I have not seen in any other American bear, and this characteristic is said to be invariable. There is no tint of brown elsewhere in the pelage. There is no tail visible on the pelts. The claws are small, very much curved, sharp, black above and lighter below; the animal evidently can climb trees, which the brown bear cannot do."

To this the Alaska Mining Record says: "Professor Dall seems to have discovered our ice bear."

Going to Sleep.

"If you have never done so, watch yourself go to sleep," said a Delsarte teacher, "and you will be amazed to see how tense your position is. Your knees are drawn and bended, your back is curved, the arms are held more or less tightly to the body and the fingers are folded. The eyelids are held shut, not allowed to droop over the eyes, the neck is strained and the head seems to touch the pillow only at the temples. The points of contact with the bed are really at the temples, shoulders, hips, knees and ankles. Now look at a child sleeping. Every muscle is relaxed, every joint is inert and prone on the couch; his little frame finds rest at every point. The features are undone, so to speak, the nose widens, the mouth droops, the eyelids close easily, and with every line of expression obliterated he finds utter and complete repose. The abandon makes him fall out of bed sometimes, such an inert body has he become. You may imitate him even to that degree, if necessary. Begin at your toes to relax, loosen all your joints and muscles, unbend your fingers, shake your wrists loose, take the curve and strain out of your neck, go all in pieces, in fact, and see how the day's fatigue seems to slip off from you, and the gentle mantle of rest and oblivion to infold you like a garment."—Atlanta Constitution.

Sir Henry Irving Many Years Ago.

Many years ago, when Sir Henry Irving was playing in Dublin, he was suddenly called upon to undertake a heavy part, the actor who was cast for it having been taken ill. In those days the gallery boy was a much greater conversationist than he is now. If a couple of gallery friends were separated, they thought nothing of holding a conversation across the house while the play was in progress. When Sir Henry made his first appearance on this occasion, one youth shouted to another, "Is that him, eh?" "No," came the reply, "them is the young man's clothes. They'll shove him out later on!"—Westminster Gazette.

ENGLISH SPEAKING MEN.

The United States a Great Factor In Their Augmentation.

The foreign born population in the United States is very numerous, and in some of the cities forms a numerical majority, but the legal rights and the remedies are almost entirely American in principle and form of expression. The constitution of the United States contains the principle of Magna Charta and of every subsequent declaration of political and religious liberty in the mother country. Out of this condition it would seem natural that what are commonly styled "Anglo-Saxon ideas and feelings would be more apt to predominate in the United States than those having any other racial origin."

This subject alone needs, however, a much more comprehensive statement and careful deduction than I am able at this time to present, and I can only express the hope that the principle of civil and religious liberty which tends to keep each individual free and protect him against tyranny may long hold good among all English speaking people, no matter where they may find their homes, and that no international jealousy or mutual disparagement may be allowed to weaken a friendly and co-operative support.

If this is a fair estimate of the weight of English influence on the American continent, it may be regarded as certain that, whatever happens, the English speaking man is going to dominate the United States, and the more non-English people come into the country the more will the dominating English speakers feel themselves bound to make common cause with those who speak the English language outside the political and geographical boundaries of the great republic across the Atlantic. The spread of English, perhaps I should say British, ideas is further evinced by the increasing demand for works of literature produced by living writers of the parent English stock. I merely instance this as a further irrefragable proof that the fusion of races working on the American continent is pouring forth English thinking and English speaking men who bear foreign names.—Sir Astley Cooper in Nineteenth Century.

PICKEREL TRAVEL IN PAIRS.

Major Crawford's Discovery of This Fact a Disturbing Question.

"It's queer, isn't it, how pickerel always travel in pairs?" said Major Crawford of Campbell Hall.

"Why, do they, major?" inquired the Hon. Charles T. Dunning, interested at once.

"Do they?" replied the major. "Why, certainly they do! I discovered the fact, I think, and in a very curious way. I never go pickerel fishing in the Wallkill without taking my rifle along with me in the boat, for ducks are liable to come flying over about this time of year, mallards principally, and there isn't anything much better to follow pickerel at dinner than mallard duck. My rifle always fitted with a hair trigger, so there will be no delay in its going when I pull, I invariably place between my knees as I sit and troll, so as to have it handy.

"One day I was out on the river this way, trolling for pickerel and ready for ducks. I got a big strike on the troll, hooked it and hauled in. Just as I had the pickerel almost to the boat I spied a lot of mallards coming up the river. I kept cool, landed the pickerel all right, and dropped the troll out so as not to lose time. Just then the ducks came in nice range. I fired. Ducks began to tumble. Chug came another strike on my line. I hooked it, and landed a second pickerel before the last duck had fallen. I couldn't have done that, don't you see, if it wasn't a fact that pickerel travel in pairs, and that's the way I discovered the interesting fact," concluded the major.

"I see," said Mr. Dunning. "How many ducks did you kill, major?"

"Six," was the reply.

There was an impressive silence for awhile. Wood Pitts of the St. Elms broke it by asking:

"Did they all fall in the boat, major?"

Mr. Dunning reproved Wood Pitts for asking such a disturbing question, but the major didn't deign to notice it.—Goshen (N. Y.) Cor. New York Sun.

UNCLE DAN WINS HIS CASE.

HE WAS THE DEFENDANT IN A $5,000 SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

A Peddler Claimed That Mr. Roberts' Rig Was the Cause of His Suffering From Injuries and Going to the Hospital.

Uncle Dan Roberts won his Supreme Court case at Elizabeth yesterday and came home in great glee, exulting in his victory. Mr. Roberts had been sued by a man named Sacher, a "customer peddler," who claimed that he was entitled to $5,000 damages for a broken leg, several months suffering in the hospital and other injuries caused by the careless driving of Mr. Roberts' hired man.

There was no doubt of the fact that Mr. Sacher had received such injuries, and that he received them in consequence of a collision with Mr. Roberts' horse and buggy, and that Mr. Sacher did languish in the hospital, but Mr. Roberts claimed that neither he nor his hired man, nor Bradford Smalley, who had hired the horse and buggy, were responsible for the injuries because they were caused not by careless driving, but by the carelessness of Mr. Sacher.

Sacher's story was that on February 26th last he was about to cross Watchung avenue, opposite East Fourth street, and that he first looked up and down the avenue, saw no carriages in sight, then stepped one foot on the crosswalk, when, without warning, he was struck by one of the shafts of the buggy in question. Immediately after the accident the buggy returned and at that time Cahill, who was driver for Mr. Roberts, was driving. Another peddler from New York testified that he saw the whole thing; that the horse was being driven at the top of his speed, and that the man who was driving had a moustache and was the taller of the two. This description corresponded with Roberts' driver. The witness said he could pick out the driver, and left the witness stand to do so. He pointed out Lawyer Swackhamer, at which there was great laughter in the court room. Mr. Marsh, in cross-examining this witness, obtained admissions that the witness had never been in Plainfield before or since until the day before the trial, and could not name any person he had spoken to except one Levine, a cousin of Sacher's, or any store he had entered, or anything that happened that day. It was evident that counsel did not believe that this witness was in Plainfield when the accident happened. The other witnesses for plaintiff tried to show that Mr. Roberts' driver had admitted that he was driving and was to blame.

Mr. Roberts took the stand and told how the horse and buggy had been hired to Mr. Smalley and that Mr. Smalley was driving when he left the stable. Mr. Smalley coroborated Mr. Roberts and added that he was driving when the accident happened. He testified that Sacher started to cut across the street catacorner without looking where he was going, and stepped right against the horse between the whiffletree and the front wheel. John Cahill gave similiar testimony and created a sensation when he told how Sacher had come to him and asked him to swear that he, Cahill, was driving fast so he could win his case, and promised to make it all right with him if he would do so. Mr. Bloch, the shoemaker, testified that Sacher asked him for fifty dollars to use in paying the driver to testify against Roberts.

Louis Hooth, of the Newark bar, was counsel for Mr. Sacher, and W. R. Codington and Craig A. Marsh was counsel for Mr. Roberts. The jury had hardly left their seats before they agreed on a verdict in favor of Mr. Roberts.

The Spanish Club Ball.

The large Spanish club, of New York, the Circulo Colon Servantes, will hold a grand ball tomorrow evening at a hall on the corner of Lexington avenue and Fifty-Ninth street. Madame Menzelli Bartlett is a member of the club and is one of the committee of arrangements for the ball. She will, of course, be present.

Notice.

VanEmburgh & Son will close their place of business every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, until further notice. 6

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

SALOON-KEEPERS JUBILANT.

Judge Van Syckel Rules Sunday Violation Must Be Habitual.

Judge Van Syckel in the Union County Court yesterday recalled the Grand Jury and instructed it as to what constitutes a disorderly house so far as saloon-keepers selling on Sunday are concerned. The Judge said the selling must be habitual. One or two sales on Sunday would not warrant indicting the offender. The sales must continue for a longer period.

The Elizabeth saloon men are jubilant over this ruling of the Judge, and the Christian Citizenship Union, which was beaten yesterday in its effort to have men punished in the police court whom they swore they had caught selling on Sunday, cannot now go before the Grand Jury with the same testimony and obtain indictments.

FAIR WEATHER NOW.

The Blizzard Went Out to Sea and the Storm is Over.

The blizzard that threatened this section of the country from the south was sick of the job and went out to sea. Another storm from the west has passed over and the weather bureau promises fair weather for the next few days. The snow came yesterday afternoon, but stopped after about two inches of the feathery flakes had fallen. It came down easily and gently, without a breath of wind, as if too lazy to do anything else. There was not enough for sleighing, but just enough to spoil the skating unless swept off. The snow packed on the sidewalks and made walking rather uncertain except to the sure footed and sometimes even they came to grief.

Officers Installed.

The Daughters of Rebekah last night installed the following officers for the ensuing term: Noble grand, Mrs. L. G. Clark; V. G., Mrs. Hicks; corresponding secretary, Miss Dunlap; financial secretary, Mrs. Rugg; treasurer, Mrs. J. Sheppard; warden, Mrs. W. J. Ford; conductor, Mrs. Horton; inner guard, Mrs. Whitley; outer guard, Mrs. Sargeant; R. S. to N. G., Mrs. Kriney; L. S. to N. G., Mrs. Van Fleet; R. S. to Vice G., Mrs. Apgar; L. S. to V. G., Miss Lanning; chaplain, Miss I. Lanning. The installing officers were Grand District Deputy Mrs. Ketterling and staff. One candidate was also initiated at the meeting. After the meeting the members adjourned to the banquet room where refreshments were served by the following committee: Mrs. Ford, chairman; Mrs. Sheppard, Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Kriney and Mrs. Higgins.

Boy Soldiers.

The Elizabeth scholars are forming themselves into military companies, and the boys are being arranged in companies of sixty, and permitted to elect their own captains, lieutenants and sergeants. Each boy will wear a uniform and cap, and after being instructed in marching will be provided with guns for drilling purposes. More than five hundred of the scholars enrolled themselves as soldiers, and about five hundred more will be mustered in at an early date. No boy under four feet in height is eligible for membership.

Why the Money Was Returned.

Mayor B. A. Hegeman, of the borough, says in regard to the soap peddler, an account of whose doings were published yesterday, that a marshal told him that the man was selling a soap that he manufactured, and in consequence there is no law or ordinance in the borough that would compel him to take out a license. The agent told him he didn't want to sell soap, but was anxious to get out of town. For these reasons the Mayor had the money returned to the man.

"Our Italy."

So Charles Dudley Warner happily terms California, and for a winter resort that glorious State is without a peer. The dry pure air, soft and balmy, is a joy for the strong man, a wonderful strengthener for the weak and suffering. IN THE HANDS OF THE JURY.

JOHNSON'S MURDER TRIAL FINISHED AT SOMERVILLE YESTERDAY.

The Judge Charged the Jury This Morning and They Are Now Out—Murder in First Degree Not Likely.

The case of Jacob Johnson, the colored man charged with the murder of Annie Rogers, will go to the jury today. The evidence was all in when the court adjourned Wednesday afternoon, and yesterday morning was consumed in summing up. Counsel for Johnson said the State's case had many missing links. The evidence was entirely circumstantial against Johnson, and it all depended on the identity of the man seen with the murdered girl after midnight.

The man who was with her when she crossed the railroad while going to the spot at which she was murdered committed the crime. There could be no doubt of this. The State had not proved this was Johnson, but the defense had proved there was another man with her after the time Johnson claimed to have parted with her in Somerville.

The State maintained Johnson was with the girl later than he said, but it had been proved by the defense the accused had been at his home at least an hour and a half before the girl crossed the railroad with a man.

Prosecutor Dugan said the evidence brought out by the State was sufficient to convict Johnson. He contended the evidence that Johnson was not with the girl late at night was not conclusive and of no weight. Judge Magie charged the jury this morning.

They took the case at 11 o'clock this morning and at 3 o'clock were still out.

THREW DOWN THE JUDGE.

Bridegroom and Bride Roughly Resent a Magistrate's Official Curiosity.

Judge Collins was closing his office in Westfield, Wednesday evening, when a man and woman came up in a buggy and said they wished to be married. They gave their names as Arthus Hague and Caroline Bray, of New Brunswick. After the preliminary questions had been answered the Judge said:

"Now, as I do not know you, I shall have to ask you to make an affidavit that there is no reason why you should not marry."

The groom, taking this as an insult, struck the Judge on the ear. The Judge struck back, and then the prospective bride took a hand, shoving the Judge sprawling over a chair.

When Judge Collins recovered him self he picked up a stool and brought it down upon the head of Hague hard enough to daze him.

The Judge was getting along fairly well after this in an attempt to handcuff his man, when the woman kicked him in the short ribs, taking his breath away and placing him in hors de combat.

She ran out, jumped into the buggy, and called to the man to follow her. Hague did so, and as Judge Collins reached the door, the horse started off bearing the couple rapidly away.

The Judge was nursing a sprained wrist and a bruised side yesterday. He is still looking for the pair but has heard nothing of them.

Poisoned the Canine.

Some malicious person is responsible for the death of C. H. Rugg's valuable dog by giving him a dose of poison. Several such cases have been reported lately in that neighborhood and it will not be well for the guilty one if he is found out.

French Added to the Course.

One of the improvements that have recently been made to the High School course is the introduction of French as a regular study. It will be taken up during the next term that begins February 1st and ends with the close of school in June.

Sin of Spiritual Indolence.

At the Seventh-day Baptist church tomorrow morning Dr. Lewis will discuss "The Sin of Spiritual Indolence." Christian Endeavorers and others who are interested in the meetings which are to be held next week, are cordially invited.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

GOT SEVENTY CENTS A WEEK

ALL THE JURY CONSIDERED MRS. WHITEHEAD'S SERVICE WORTH

Ex-Councilman Weber Sued for $1,560 But Will Only Pay $200 and Costs—The Right Sort of Advice From Mr. Marsh.

Considerable interest has been aroused by the suit of Mary E. Whitehead against Herman A. Weber, for wages as housekeeper during the last five years, the story of which was told in The Daily Press sometime ago.

Wednesday morning the case came up for a second trial at Elizabeth in the same court before Judge Van Sickle and a second jury. The opening speech was made by Mr. Swackhamer, and then two witnesses were sworn and examined before the noon recess. In the afternoon, the number of witnesses was increased to ten, after which the evidence of both sides was closed. At about 3:30 Mr. Marsh began his summing up for the defense, which occupied about forty minutes. Mr. Swackhamer then took the floor and made the final plea for the plaintiff. The hour for closing court interrupted the remarks, which were continued yesterday morning. The jury went out at about 11 o'clock and returned at about 4:30. They brough a verdict of $200 and costs for the plaintiff.

The bill sued for was 260 weeks services as housekeeper and nurse at $6 per week, total $1,560. The majority of the jury yesterday was in favor of the defendant, but finally compromised by allowing seventy-seven cents a week or $200 for the whole five years work.

Before the trial, Mr. Weber offered $150 in settlement, which was refused.

Mr. Marsh was asked whether he would apply for a new trial. "No," he said, "the verdict is about right. Mr. Weber the day before the trial, after his $150 offer was refused, wanted me to let him offer property worth $750 to settle the case, and I would not let him do it. I told him he might expect a small verdict against him, but I would guarantee it would not be over $500."

Mr. Marsh said that Mr Swackhammer tried the case admirably. Judge Van Syckel had said to him that he was very much pleased with Mr. Swackhammer's address to the jury.

James McCormick's Benefit.

Last night the benefit dance tendered by the friends of James McCormick in T. A. B. Hall was a largely attended affair. Nearly $100 was realized for the sick man McCormick, which will be duly appreciated by him. A feature of the evening was an exhibition waltz by Peter Laming, of Elizabeth, and Miss Mary Muldowney, of this city. Officer Mark Doud had charge of the coat room. O'Reilly's orchestra furnished the music. Frank Day was floor manager with James Whalen as assistant.

A Progressive Plainfielder.

John J. Lynch, who has been in charge of the monitor lathe at the Pond Machine Tool Works, left this morning for Boston where he will take charge of the remodeling of a steam pump manufactury. The factory is to be entirely changed and new and improved machinery introduced. Mr. Lynch will be given a prominent position when the factory is in working order.

Results of the Firemen's' Fair.

The meeting of the joint committees on the Firemen's Fair was held last evening, but owing to the illness of Auguste Saltzman, the treasurer, his report could not be given. Although the exact figures have not been secured, it is estimated that each company will receive about $150. The committee adjourned to meet on next Thursday evening.

A Beneficial Plan.

Plainfield householders will be glad to learn that at last there will be one drug store in town that will be open day and night. The enterprising druggist who has taken this move is J. Howard Leggett, of the Y. M. C. A. building. Those who have ever tried to procure medicines at night will greatly appreciate this change.

A Treat For Plainfield.

The music loving people of Plainfield will be given a treat Tuesday evening when Farland, the world renouned banjoist, gives his concert at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The concert is to be given under the auspices of Richard Menzel, who is the Plainfield representative of F. S. Taylor, dealer in musical instruments.

VERMONTERS WED AT EVONA.

Happy Nuptial Event at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wean.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wean, on Clinton avenue, was the scene of a charming wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Virginia Thomas Scarborough, sister of Mrs. Wean, and Clarence Pollard Niles, both of Bennington, Vt., were united in marriage by Rev. B. G. Van Cleve, of Milford, Mercer county. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock in the presence of only the near relatives and friends.

Miss Scarborough was a very pretty bride and wore a gown of white silk, trimmed with lace and ribbon. She carried white roses. The groom was handsome in a neat suit of the conventional black.

Ruth Wean acted as flower girl. The decorations were green and white and consisted of palms, cut roses and broad bands of satin ribbon. An elegant supper was served after congratulations.

Many very handsome presents were received.

Those present were: Burrows Niles, father of the groom, Bennington, Vt.; Joseph De Frates, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Scarborough, of Lambertville; Mr. and Mrs. McPeck and Edward McPeck, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wean, Miss Isabelle Scarborough, Miss Gertrude Scarborough and Ruth Wean.

Mr. Niles is a very promising lawyer of Bennington and his wife was formerly a school teacher at that place. They left during the evening on a bridal tour. They will reside in Bennington.

G. O. P. LEADERS.

Republican Executive Committee Elect Officers For the New Year.

The City Republican Executive Committee met last night in their rooms. Roger Murray called the meeting to order after which the following officers were elected:

President, W. R. Codington; vice-president, Roger Murray; secretary, J. B. Coward; treasurer, J. Fred MacDonald.

Sub-committees will be appointed later.

A resolution was offered that the Executive Committee make an effort to secure a large number of Republicans to attend the inauguration of Gov. Griggs at Trenton. The following committee was appointed for that purpose:

J. Fred MacDonald, First ward; A. H. Patton, Second ward; Roger Murray, Third ward; W. A. Westphal, Fourth ward.

It is desired that anyone who can go to Trenton hand their names to the above committee as soon as possible so as to facilitate matters.

CLAIMED COOK ASSAULTED HIM.

Asurius Claims That Albert Hit Him Over the Head With a Picket.

A man named Alex. Asurius, in the employ of G. Underhill, at Washingtonville, made complaint this morning against A. G. Cook, an employe of M. Kennedy, of Willow avenue, charging him with assault.

Justice Crosley gave the case a hearing this morning, when Mr. Asurius stated that when he returned home last Saturday night from town the defendant met him near his home and struck him three times over the head with a picket, inflicting several scalp wounds.

Mr. Underhill, the man's employer, appeared as a witness, telling about the man's condition when he reached home. Cook swore that he was on Willow avenue that night, and his employer testified to the same effect. Asurius was positive that Cook was the man that assaulted him and the Justice held him under $100 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, Mr. Kennedy furnished the bail.

Officers of Jerusalem Chapter.

Past High Priest C. H. Rugg, assisted by Grand Marshal Henry Woodland, installed the officers-elect of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., last evening as follows: High Priest, Charles M. Ulrich; king, W. J. Ford; scribe, D. C. Adams; secretary, B. Frank Coriell; treasurer, Henry Liefke; captain of host, C. C. Howard; principal sojourner, W. H. Freeman.

Commissioners to Report.

A meeting of the borough council will be held this evening, when the Commissioners who have charge of the extension of Watchung avenue will make a report.

Whisters Meet.

The Thursday Night Whist Club met last evening at the home of Mrs. Hall, of Grove street. A very pleasant evening was spent.

ATTORNEY-GEN. IN CHARGE.

HE WILL ENDEAVOR TO MAKE COLLECTOR JOHNSON VACATE.

Corporation Counsel Marsh Preferred to Remain Independent in the Case so as to Act For the Best Interests of the City

Collector Elias H. Bird applied to Corporation Counsel Marsh and offered him a retainer to conduct the litigation against Collector Johnson. Mr. Marsh declined to accept the retainer, preferring, as he said, to remain independent, so as to act as the best interests of the city might require. He advised Mr. Bird to engage his own counsel. Mr. Bird asked him to suggest who would be the best counsel under the circumstances, and Mr. Marsh named the Attorney-General. Mr. Bird, accordingly, submitted the matter to the Attorney-General, whose opinion was found to coincide with Mr. Marsh's in all respects. Mr. Bird thereupon engaged him to bring a writ of quo warranto which the Attorney-General is now preparing, and which will be served upon Mr. Johnson within a few days.

PRESENTED WITH A JEWEL.

A. O. U. W. Show Their Esteem for Past Master Workman Spicer.

At the regular meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., held last evening in Exempt Firemen's Hall, there were present beside the members, representatives from Bernards Lodge, No. 67, Basking Ridge; Columbia Lodge, No. 58, Plainfield; Memorial Lodge, No. 18, Newark; Elizabeth Lodge, No. 20, Elizabeth; Provident Lodge, No. 4, Camden; also Grand Master Workman J. E. Moon, Phillipsburg; Grand Receiver, Golden Text, Camden; Past Master Workman Collier, Newark; Grand Foreman W. F. Marsh, Elizabeth; and Deputy Grand Master Workman Richard Cadmus, Newark. After the regular order of business was transacted the Grand Master Workman granted a dispensation to the lodge to confer the junior and workman's degrees on three candidates from Bernard's Lodge. The lodge worked the degrees under the new ritual for the first time.

After the initiation Deputy Grand Master Cadmus installed the officers-elect as follows:—P. M. W., L. J. Spicer; M. W., G. W. Gray; Foreman, C. T., Rogers; Overseer, A. J. Stiglitz; Recorder, N. C. Mague; Financier, Wm. Newcorn; Guide, J. R. Dunham; Inside Watchman, C. Rogers, Jr.; Outside Watchman, G. W. Clark; Trustees, 3 years, W. A. Westphal; Representative to Grand Lodge, C. H. Randolph; Alternate, L. J. Spicer; Medical Examiners, O. L. Jenkins, and W. Nelson.

A vote of thanks was extended to J. R. Dunham, Grand Foreman W. F. Marsh and Past Master Workman Collier for their assistance in working the degrees. In a few well chosen words, Past Master Workman Collier presented Past Master Workman L. J. Spicer, with a very handsome Past Master's jewel. An invitation was received from Columbia Lodge, No. 58, to attend the memorial service in Y. M. C. A. hall January 17th. It was accepted with thanks. A collation then followed concluding with speeches.

All Artists.

Rosa J. Stults, the soprano, who will sing here at the Farland concert, is one of the most promising young singers of the day. The famous Carl Alves, of New York, with whom she is studying, predicts a great future for her. William J. Klobus, the solo cellist, has for nearly six years traveled with Adelina Patti; he must be an artist. Mr. Conde's selections are entirely new, the Seventh Concerto by De Beriot and Le Streghe, "Witches Dance" by Paganini. If there should be anybody who does not care to hear Farland, the best banjo player in the world, the rest of the programme will please those.

A Happy Scene in Jail.

There was a happy reconciliation at the city lockup yesterday when Herbert De Long, the Allentown runaway, met his father. The lad declared that he would never try it again and was glad to accompany his father back to Allentown.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. SYNDICATE WILL BID

Expects To Secure the Entire Bond Issue.

An Offer So Advantageous to the Government That Mr. Morgan Is Confident No Other Proposition Can Stand in the Way—Price To Be Offered Not Stated.

New York, Jan. 10.—From a subscribing member of the J. Pierpont Morgan bond syndicate it has been learned that the syndicate expects to secure the entire $100,000,000 4 per cent. bonds which are to be sold by the treasury on February 5. Mr. Morgan the informant says, is not at all annoyed at the so-called "popular call." He knew all about it and made his arrangements accordingly. The syndicate will bid for the entire issue and expects to be awarded the entire $100,000,000. It will take all or none. The reason for Mr. Morgan's confidence of entire success is that he will make an offer so advantageous that no other proposition can stand in his way. This offer is to purchase the entire $100,000,000, paying principal and premium in gold, and in addition furnish an amount in gold equal to one-third of the issue, or $33,333,333.33 in exchange for greenbacks. The government gold reserve will thus not only be brought up to the recognized limit, but will have a large surplus for its protection.

Accumulating Gold.

The price which the syndicate will offer is not exactly known by any one beside Mr. Morgan. It will be considerably more than the 104½ paid last February. This low premium was paid because of the provision in the contract compelling the syndicate to protect the treasury reserve. No such contract will be made this time. Therefore a higher price will be paid. The figure is believed to be 108. The syndicate is now accumulating gold from every available source. Members of the syndicate will be at liberty to make individual bids beside the syndicate bid. This is said to be the state of affairs to-day. The postion will probably hold until February 5 without any change of important details. The president and secretary of the treasury have no agreement, private or public, with the syndicate. They know, however, what are Mr. Morgan's intentions and knew it when the public call was issued.

Carlisle Is Confident.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Secretary Carlisle expressed the opinion to-day that the new bond issue will be a success. He did not intimate whence the gold would come from, but he spoke with a full knowledge of the number of inquiries made for blank forms for bids and the informal offers already made.

NO DEAL WITH BANKERS.

The President Explains His Position Regarding the Bond Issue.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senator Caffery of Louisiana has made public a letter of the president to him, dated Jan. 5, which, had opportunity presented since Monday, he would have incorporated in remarks which he intended to make in the senate on the bond bill. The letter reads in part as follows:

My Dear Senator—I have read to-day in the Congressional Record the debate in the senate on Friday concerning the financial situation and bond issues. No banker or financier nor any other human being has been invited to visit Washington for the purpose of arranging in any way or any manner for the disposition of bonds to meet the present or future needs of the gold reserve. No arrangement of any kind has been made for the disposition of such bonds to any syndicate or through the agency of any syndicate. No assurance of such a disposal of bonds has been directly or indirectly given to any person. In point of fact, a decided leaning towards a popular loan and advertising for bids has been plainly exhibited on the part of the administration at all times when the subject was under discussion. Those charged with the responsibility of maintaining our gold reserve, so far as legislation renders it possible, have anxiously conferred with each other and as occasion permitted with those having knowledge of financial affairs and present monetary conditions, as to the best and most favorable means of selling bonds for gold. The secretary of the treasury from the first moment that the necessity of another sale of bonds seemed to be approaching desired to offer them if issued to the people by public advertisement if they could be thus successfully disposed of. After full consideration he came to the conclusion, to which I fully agree, that the amount of gold in the reserve, being now $20,000,000 more than it was in February last when a sale of bonds was made to a syndicate, and other conditions differing from those then existing, justify us in offering the bonds now about to be issued for sale by popular subscription. This is the entire matter. Not having had an opportunity to confer with you in person since the present session of congress begun and noticing your participation in the debate of last Friday, I have thought it not amiss to put you in possession of the facts and information herein contained. Yours very truly, GROVER CLEVELAND.

Pittsburg Letter Carrier Arrested.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Col. Wheeler, chief postoffice inspector, yesterday received word of the arrest at Pittsburg of Winfield T. Wise, letter carrier in the main office, charged with stealing mail matter.

COULD NOT RESIST INVASION

A Prominent Canadian Talks of Canada's Chance in Case of War.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The first of a series of popular lectures to be held here under the auspices of a number of prominent New York business men, residents of this place, was given last evening at the town hall before a large assemblage. A. Morton Bailey, a prominent banker and business man of Canada, was the speaker and his subject was "Canada; Our Northern Neighbors and Their Customs." Upon the subject of Canadian defense in case of war between England and America, Mr. Bailey said: "At the present time the faint prospect of war between England and the United States has raised the question of Canadian chance to resist invasion. It has none. Except at Halifax and Vancouver there are no fortifications or means of defense. The forces of the United States could take Montreal and Quebec easily, and all the country west of those places would mean only a holiday parade for the forces the United States could send." The speaker also touched upon the annexation movement, which he said was confined to a small circle—the great mass of the people being intensely loyal. "The general feeling of the people of Canada toward America," said Mr. Bailey, "is not any too cordial. They envy the prosperity and growth of the states; and the gains in population made at Canada's expense is a sore subject. Many of the best young men of Canada have come over to this side, and 50,000 alone are now in Chicago. The ultimate destiny of Canada is annexation, but the United States does not want it. The advances should come from Canada and no doubt will in time."

WE WILL GUARD OUR RIGHTS

A Ringing Resolution Introduced in the Senate by Mr. Baker.

Washington, Jan. 10.—In the senate Mr. Baker, rep., Kan., introduced the following joint resolution and addressed the senate in support of it: "Resolved, That the United States of America will regard it as an unfriendly act for any foreign power, without our consent, by war, treaty, purchase or otherwise, to extend its territorial limits in the Western Hemisphere, or either of the American continents, or to, or over, any of the islands adjacent thereto, which this country deems necessary or proper for its self preservation. And the United States of America reserves the right to be sole judge of this necessity.' In closing his speech, the first made by him in the senate, Mr. Baker declared that the United States would maintain the position announced in his resolution by war, if necessary, in order that peace might come. "We shall not," he said, "invite or provoke war. The justice of our cause will challenge and command the admiration of the civilized world; but if it does come, we will triumph in a cause which history will bless; and when the shock of fierce contending armies shall be heard no more, then we shall behold greater America, united, prosperous and free, still the wonder and marvel of the world, matchless, unconquerable." The joint resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

VIOLENT STORM IN ITALY.

Feared That Many Lives Have Been Lost Along the Coast.

Rome, Jan. 10.—A violent storm in northern Italy has done much damage on shore and to shipping along the coast. It is feared that many lives have been lost. A torpedo boat employed in the customs service on lake Maggiore foundered and twelve persons aboard of her were drowned.

Cramps Deny a Rumor.

THE TRANSVAAL RAID

England Openly Accused of Having Planned It.

Intended To Step In and Establish an Occupation Similar to That in Egypt—Now Attempting To Forestall Condemnation After the Most Miserable Fiasco.

London, Jan. 10.—Dispatches from Cape Colony continue to dribble in, but the freshest of them received last night and this morning were two days old, showing that the telegraph and cable companies are either clearing up the accumulation of old business or that the government still refuses to allow the transmission of news dispatches. Much interest is manifested here in the receipt of intelligence that will show the attitude of the Hon. Cecil Rhodes, lately prime minister of Cape Colony, who is strongly suspected of having had much to do with the dispatch of Dr. Jameson's force to the Transvaal. But until the normal condition of the telegraphic service is resumed nothing on this point can be stated definitely and nothing but speculation can be indulged in. On the continent it is openly charged that not only was Mr. Rhodes fully cognizant of the movements of Dr. Jameson, but that the British government was also aware of what was going on. Had the raid been successful Great Britain, according to the popular belief in Europe, would have stepped in and occupied the country ostensibly to protect her subjects, but really to establish an occupation similar to that in Egypt, which is tantamount to the annexation of the country.

Hot for War with Germany.

As the raid resulted in a most miserable fiasco the British government is accused of attempting to forestall condemnation by emphatically denying any prior knowledge of the matter and of taking measures to prevent the departure of the expedition after it knew it had departed and had resulted in a failure. Of course these statements are denied here, and the government newspapers insist that Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, has acted throughout with clean hands. But that the troubles have affected British foreign relations, more particularly those with Germany, there is no denial, and the feeling against Germany has greatly increased in bitterness. The naval preparations now being made meet with the fullest popular approval and the more fiery among those who are in favor of war declare that the time has come for Great Britain to assert herself in her might and teach Germany that she will brook no interference with her suzerainty in the Transvaal. Those of calmer blood hold that court interference, which is against any hostility towards Germany, will be sufficiently powerful to prevent an outbreak. But court interference does not and cannot control the popular demand, which is decidedly in favor of warfare.

War Preparations Continue.

The naval preparations are proceeding apace. In addition to the flying squadron, which has been ordered to be put in readiness, instructions have been issued for the immediate commissioning of twenty torpedo boat destroyers. In well informed circles it is believed that the war preparations simply mean that the government is on the alert against any emergency that may arise, and, should conditions demand it, it will be ready to strike a swift blow against any enemy, but that the chance of hostilities are very slight.

All Arms Ordered Surrendered.

London, Jan. 10.—The British South African company has ordered its officials in South Africa to deliver all the guns and ammunition in their possession to the officers of the imperial government.

ALL SUPPORT THE KAISER.

His People and Russia and France Approve His Position.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—That Emperor William's attitude in the Transvaal matter meets with popular approval was fully attested yesterday afternoon by the loud applause which a mention of the trouble brought forth in the reichstag. A semi-official communication also states that if the maritime preparations which are being made in England denote her intention to resort to pressure the Transvaal question will become an international one and merge others, especially the Egyptian question. It is generally believed that the Transvaal question will only acquire serious importance if fresh developments occur which force the emperor to act in conformity with his message to President Kruger. In that event the complete isolation of England, which is so menacing to her position in Egypt, would be fully exhibited, and it is also rumored that Germany would then have the support of Russia and France.

HEROIC WOMEN.

Their Struggle Against a Common and Merciless Enemy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Woman's heroism is not evinced by fearlessness or enterprise in time of danger, but her courage and fortitude are unquestionable in time of suffering.

Think of the woman who smiles and tries to make those around her cheerful, while she is racked with the excruciating tortures of womb trouble.

Think of one who, day by day, begs her physician to help her, while the torture of tortures could not add to her misery.

Does she yield? No! She endures her agonies, and meets her friends with cheerfulness.

This is woman's heroism, and few men realize how prevalent they are. Physicians rarely render relief in such cases.

After twenty years of success, with ever-increasing popularity, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is, to-day, woman's only sure and safe refuge from inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, ovarian trouble, leucorrhœa, painful and suppressed menstruations, kidney trouble, nervous prostration, and all manner of distressing and life-sapping female diseases.

"O my sisters, believe what is told you of this wonderful medicine! Before I took it I had falling of the womb and leucorrhœa. My womb came down so badly I could not walk across the floor; the pain was excruciating; now all is so changed, and I am so happy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved me from a life of misery. Don't, don't suffer, I say, when a cure is so easily obtained." — MRS. WILLIAM HOWE, 163 Antoin Street, Detroit, Mich.

OVER 1,000 LIVES LOST

Persia Again Visited by Earthquake Shocks.

The Village of Khalkhal Completely Destroyed and Other Towns Badly Damaged — Eight Hundred Persons Killed in Goi Alone--Large Numbers of Cattle Perished.

Teheran, Jan. 10.—Two severe earthquakes, causing the loss of 1,100 lives have occurred in the Khalkhal district. The first shock which was experienced on the 3d inst. was very severe. It completely destroyed the village of Zanzabad and partly destroyed other villages. Three hundred persons perished in the several villages. On the following Sunday there was another severe shock which destroyed the small town of Goi and did great damage in many of the villages in the districts affected. Eight hundred persons were killed in Goi alone. Large numbers of cattle and sheep perished. On November 17, 1893, a most destructive earthquake occurred at Kuchan, Persia. The city was practically destroyed and the loss of life was enormous, it being reported that 12,000 persons perished.

FOR COAST DEFENSE.

Senate Committee Informed That There Is Need for Action.

Washington, Jan. 10.—At a meeting of the senate committee on coast defenses, of which Senator Squire is chairman, it was shown by statements made before the committee by officers of the bureau of engineers that there is immediate need by that department of two and a half million dollars to be expended for torpedoes and torpedo mines for land defenses. The discussion of the torpedo system by the committee demonstrated that torpedoes are of little value unless they are defended by guns, as they can easily be removed by an enemy unless protected by artillery. In case of a sudden emergency it would take at least a year, if an appropriation was made, to procure the material, manufacture the torpedoes and put them in place at the principal ports of the United States. The chief of engineers advocates the expenditure of $12,000,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897. This sum, it is said, would not provide for guns and gun carriages, but would cover the cost for emplacements for guns and of torpedoes.

PEACE IN VENEZUELA.

Ex-Minister Pereza Denies the Rumors of Revolution.

New York, Jan. 10.—N. Bolet Pereza, ex-minister for Venezuela to the United States, was seen by a representative of the United Press last evening relative to the alleged revolutionary movement and other sensational rumors from Venezuela. "My information," said the ex-minister, "shows that the country is in complete peace. I have had no advices by cable, but if such a state of affairs existed as is reported, we certainly would have heard of it. Venezuelan newspapers of December 30, to hand, contain no mention of even a possible revolutionary disturbance. Every one of my countrymen are heartily satisfied with the action of the United States and our own government, and are now awaiting patiently, though of course anxiously, the result of the deliberations of the boundary commission."

TO CHANGE BY-LAWS.

Important Meeting of Pennsylvania Railroad Directors.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company will be held on Tuesday to take such action as is necessary for changing the by-laws. A change is desired in the organization of the lines of the company west of Pittsburg. It is understood that the change is to be an important one and that there is likely to be another vice-president added to the staff.

ABYSSINIANS REPULSED.

Italians Defeat a Command Led by King Menelik.

Rome, Jan. 10.—A dispatch from Massowah, capital of Erythrea, says that the Abyssinians made an attack on Makalle on Tuesday last. They were repulsed by the Italian troops and afterwards retreated. King Menelik was present with the Abyssinians. The Italians lost three killed and six wounded.

RAM KATAHDIN ACCEPTED.

SPANISH VICTORIES REPORTED

Insurgents Said To Have Suffered Several Small Defeats.

Havana, Jan. 10.—The report circulated yesterday that a battle had occurred near Artemisa is untrue. Gen Prats had an engagement with 2,000 rebels near the central sugar factory Lucia. The fight lasted four hours and resulted in the defeat of the insurgents who were led by Maceo, Miro, Zayas and Nunez. It is reported that Miro was wounded. The rebel loss was eight killed. Thirty-two horses were captured by the troops. It is supposed that the rebels were attempting to cover the landing of a filibustering expedition, as a bark acting in a suspicious manner was seen hovering off the coast in that vicinity. A column under the command of Col. Molina has captured at the point of the bayonet a rebel encampment at Alfonse Doce. The insurgents retired to Manjuari. Their wounded were taken to Cienega. Their loss is not known. The Spanish loss was two officers and several soldiers wounded. The troops captured 120 horses and a quantity of ammunition and medicine. Sixteen horses belonging to the troops were killed. A band of rebels attacked the three forts on the Esperanza central factory, but were repulsed by soldiers commanded by Lieut. Navas. The civil guards who were repairing the railway line at Navejas repelled a rebel attack, wounding leader Sanchez, and killing two of the insurgents.

Campos' Proclamation.

Following is the full text of the proclamation issued by Marshal Campos, declaring a state of siege in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio, as it appears in the Official Gazette of today:

General government of the Island of Cuba, Don Arsenio Martinez Campos y Anton, governor and captain-general of the island of Cuba and commander of the forces.

"Parties with arms having appeared in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio, the conditions obtain which are covered by articles 12 and 13 of the law of public order, of the 23d of April, 1870. Using the powers vested in me, I hereby decree and order as follows: 1. The provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio are hereby declared to be in a state of siege. 2. The civil authorities of the above named provinces will continue in the discharge of their several duties, being those not referring to public order. Notwithstanding this, they shall report to the department of war all matters of a criminal nature, and such other matters as I may direct. Havana, Jan. 2. Arsenio Martinez de Campos."

CONFIDENCE IN CAMPOS.

Spanish Cabinet Express Predetermination Not To Let Him Go.

Madrid, Jan. 10.—At a cabinet council, held last evening, it was decided not to accept the resignation of Captain General Campos. It was resolved to increase the military and naval forces in Cuba.

[It appears from the tenor of the above dispatch that Captain General Campos has tendered his resignation. There have been many rumors that he intended to do so and also that he would be replaced. At a political demonstration recently held in Havana Gen. Campos announced that he would not resign in face of the enemy. It is therefore surmised that Gen. Campos has not actually resigned, but that the council has predetermined not to accept his resignation should he decide upon retiring from the command in Cuba.]

LAW AND ORDER LEAGUE.

Work Accomplished Since Its Organization in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 10.—The directors of the Connecticut Law and Order league have sent out a formal statement showing that since the league was organized it has secured the conviction of 416 violators of the law and caused the payment of more than $40,000 in fines and costs. The statement defends at length the action of the league in the Scott case, holding that its detectives used no special inducements or persuasions to make Scott sell them liquors, and that the league acted in the matter owing to formal complaints from the people of Cheshire.

GOLD LACE AND JEWELS

Brilliant Reception at the White House.

The President and Mrs. Cleveland and Ladies of the Cabinet Receive the Diplomatic Corps—Decorations Worn by the Foreigners Made a Dazzling Spectacle.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The first of the official presidential evening receptions for the present season was held at the white house last night from 9 to 11 o'clock. It was given in honor of the diplomatic corps and is always the most brilliant of the annual series. The president and Mrs. Cleveland and the ladies of the cabinet composed the receiving party and stood in the oval-shaped blue room, which was tastefully decorated with foliage plants and cut flowers. Col. John M. Wilson, U. S. A., commander of public buildings and grounds, made the presentations. Most of the members of the diplomatic corps present and the ladies who accompanied them, went behind the receiving line after they had paid their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and the cabinet ladies.

A Dazzling Spectacle.

The great variety in the uniforms of the representatives of foreign governments and the display of gold lace and jewels and decorations made a dazzling spectacle. A number of the officers of the army and the navy were also present in uniform. All the cabinet officers were in evidence, as were a goodly representation from the senate and house. The state departments on the first floor of the mansion and the conservatories were used for the purposes of the reception. The floral decorations were similar to those of New Year's day, the east room especially presenting a very attractive appearance with its mass of growing palms and interspersed with red poinsetta blooms and other flowers.

GOV. HASTINGS CONVALESCENT.

Fully Recovered from His Cold Since Visiting the South.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 10.—Private Secretary Beitler has received the following telegram from Attorney General McCormick dated at Hot Springs, Ark. "Our stay here is very pleasant. All well. Gov. Hastings has fully recovered from the cold he had before leaving Harrisburg. He rode sixteen miles horseback yesterday and averages fifteen miles daily. We visit Little Rock Saturday, then Indian Territory and Texas." This dispatch is in response to an inquiry from Mr. Beitler as to the governor's condition, all sorts of sensational stories having been circulated in regard to the governor's health, it even being reported he was dead.

STEAMER EALING DOOMED.

Only Hope for Her Crew Is That They Have Been Picked Up.

Halifax, Jan. 10.—The steamship Bridgewater has returned from the wreck of the steamer Ealing. A diver boarded her and took off the wheel and a couple of compasses. The captain of the Bridgewater thinks the crew were driven out to sea, and the only hope is that they may have been picked up by passing vessels. The Ealing is still hanging on the ledge, but is liable to drop off with the first heavy sea and sink, as the water is thirty fathoms deep behind her.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

England Actively Storing Coal at St. Lucia, Near Venezuela.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Information has reached the navy department that the British government is displaying great activity in storing coal at its well fortified naval coaling and supply station of St. Lucia, near the Venezuelan coast. The disturbed relations between Great Britain and Germany are given as the reason for the activity.

D. L. SNODGRASS INDICTED.

Tennessee's Chief Justice Charged with Felonious Assault.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 10.—The grand jury has returned an indictment against David L. Snodgrass, chief justice of Tennessee, for felonious assault. The return is the outcome of the judge's assault in the office of Congressman Brown on attorney John R. Beasley, who is still confined to his room with a fractured arm.

Another Strike Theatened.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—It now seems probable that another strike of the motormen and conductors of the Union Traction company will take place tomorrow morning. The differences between the men and the company are apparently irreconcilable and the men are very bitter towards the company.

John Brown Homestead.

New York, Jan. 10.—One of Kate Field's fondest hopes was realized yesterday when this state acquired title to the old John Brown homestead in Essex county, with the explicit proviso that it shall remain a public park in memory of the martyr to liberty.

Cholera in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 10.—The official cholera statistics for the week ending Dec. 28 show that there were sixteen new cases and seven deaths from the disease.

January 13—Revival meetings under the auspices of the young people commence.
January 13—Royal Arcanum install officers.

The proposed new license law of New York State taxes hotels and saloons in New York city $800 a year, and then has a graduated scale of fees ranging from $650 to $100 for the rest of the State. It would seem that such a law would be an unfair and discriminating one against New York dealers. The business of selling liquor in the metropolis, taken on the average, is not any more profitable than in the interior of the State.

The example of the Mercantile National Bank of New York in turning over to the Sub-Treasury one-third of its stock of gold in exchange for notes may be fairly commended to the managers of fiscal institutions who are desirous of averting the serious consequences of a run upon the Treasury reserve. Concerted action of this sort by the banks of the New York Clearing-house Association would result in the transfer to the public Treasury of about $33,000,000 in gold, with no impairment of the reserves of the banks. If thus strongly reinforced, the Treasury officials might withstand without apprehension the assaults of bullion brokers and dealers in foreign exchange during the critical weeks preceding the proposed bond issue.—Newark News.

The manager of one of the best and most prosperous papers in New York being asked why he did not imitate the example of some of his competitors in slang-whanging and belittling their neighbors, answered, "We don't have to." This admirable answer might be commended to a good many other people both in and out of the newspaper business. Either they are prosperous and contented or they are not. If the former, they "don't have to" disparage their neighbors. If the latter, though they may sometimes feel like doing it, such a policy won't, after all, make them any happier or better off. There are persons who really seem to be possessed with the notion that the earth would be desolated if they were not around and constantly in evidence about their own superlative merits. And this notwithstanding the fact that countless generations managed somehow while waiting for them to be born, to worry along without them, and that even those now living have to do for a few hours every day while the people who do it all are asleep or momentarily attending to some other business than sounding their own praises. An abnormal development of this sort of egotism is amusing to those who "don't have to," even if they were built that way, which latter is fortunately not the case with a majority of people.—Patterson Press.

Something New for Commuters.

The train due to leave the North avenue station at 7:53 a. m., pulled out exactly on time this morning, a thing which it has not done for some time. Most of the commuters allow for the train being late, and so there was a scurrying this morning. Old men, young men and middle aged men ran from all directions. The slippery condition of the sidewalks made rapid locomotion difficult, and several commuters found themselves sprawled out on the sidewalk. After the train had started there was more than the usual number to jump on board the moving cars. There were several narrow escapes from being thrown under the wheels.

King's Daughters Entertain.

An illustrated entertainment was given in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the Charity Circle of King's Daughters. It was well attended.

Bishop Vincent to Preach.

Bishop John Vincent will preach at the Monroe Avenue chapel on Sunday, January 19th.

Wife—Here's an account of a man who shot himself rather than suffer the pangs of indigestion. Husband—The fool! Why didn't he take DeWitt's Little Early Risers? I used to suffer as bad as he did before I commenced taking these little pills. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

THEATRICAL.

"Hands Across the Sea" is a beautiful drama, and is interpreted by the most evenly balanced and best dramatic organization yet seen at Davis's. A lively appreciation of the points of the play was manifested by the overflowing house that witnessed it last night. Maurice Freeman as "Jack Dudley," James Otley as "Dick Melford," George Mack as "Tom Bassett," Carl Fey as "Jean DeLussac," Tillah Wefling as "Lillian Melford," C. Blanche Rice as "Lucy Nettleford," and Elanore Bradhay as "Mme. Vallaire," all gave the most artistic rendering of their parts. Such shows are a credit to the management. This one closes Wednesday evening. A return date should be be played.—Scranton Truth. At Music Hall Friday, January 17th.

Thomas Dunlap Dead.

Thomas Dunlap, the oldest and one of the best known local politicians of New York City, died at 3:30 o'clock this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Tonnele, at Westfield, of pneumonia. He had been ill only a short time, and the news of his death will be a surprise to his friends.

Dunlap was the oldest member of the Tammany Hall General Committee, having served continuously since 1842, and was the second oldest member of the Tammany Society. He was born in county Tyrone, Ireland, in 1815, and came to this country in 1824.

Blew Out a Cylinder Head.

A bowling match is being arranged for next week between the Y. M. C. A's of Plainfield and Westfield.

The Crescent Wheelmen meet the bowlers of the New Jersey Athletic Club in this city on Tuesday evening.

A game will be rolled this evening in the Standard League between the Westfield and Roselle teams on the latter's alleys.

The new pins for the Y. M. C. A. alleys are expected to arrive Monday. The work of repairing the alleys will be begun next week.

The two local teams in The Standard League, the Park Club and the Union County Country Club, will meet this evening on the Park Club alleys.

A bowling match will be rolled on the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys Monday night between the first and second teams. The match will be the first of a series to be continued during the winter.

Twelve out of the twenty-four games included in the schedule of the Central Journal Bowling League have been rolled and the Crescent Wheelmen now stand at the head with four victories and two defeats. One of the defeats was administered by the New Jersey Athletic Club on the latter's alleys and the other was received last Tuesday at Cranford. The New Jersey boys and the Cranford team are tied for second place with three victories and three defeats, while the once powerful Elizabeth Athletic Club brings up the rear of the procession with two victories and four defeats. The Crescents begin the second half of the schedule on Tuesday evening on their own alleys. Their opponents will be the New Jersey Athletic Club bowlers. If the Crescents continue to win all the games rolled on their own alleys and one away from home they are pretty certain of winning and absolutely sure of tieing for the first place. The Jersey boys have so far been their strongest opponents and the result of the game next Tuesday will mean considerable in the final standing in the league.

AT THE TRAPS.

The annual meeting and shoot of the Climax Gun Club will be held on the club grounds on Thursday, Jan. 16th, at which time the different prizes won during last year will be awarded.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

CYCLING COMMENT.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company is planning extensive changes in its salesrooms on Park avenue.

One of the most enthusiastic wheelmen in Plainfield is Webster Littell, of West Seventh street. He is to be seen on his wheel, no matter what kind of roads or weather, rain or shine, mud or snow. He is quite a speedy rider, and only a short time ago made the run from Montclair to Plainfield in a little more than an hour. When spring comes he expects to purchase a light wheel and try his hand at track racing.

Extensive changes are soon to be made in the Plainfield store of the Eldridge Bicycle Company. The store now occupied by J. Frank French, the flour and feed dealer, will soon be taken possession of by the Cycle Company and an arch cut between the two stores. The present store will be used only as a salesroom, while the other will be divided among the repair, rental and storage departments. A number of minor changes will also be made.

Assemblyman Armstrong, of the New York Legislature, has prepared a bill which he will introduce shortly, and which provides that bicycles shall be considered ordinary baggage and carried free by the railroads under certain conditions, and subject to the same liabilities as ordinary baggage. When accompanied by a release of responsibility the wheels shall be carried free, but when not, a charge may be made, not to exceed two mills a mile, but not less than ten cents in any case.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Pargiter calls attention to his novelties in ladies' lace collars.

—The Board of Freeholders of Somerset county will meet on Tuesday.

—An adjourned meeting of the borough council will be held this evening.

—Hood's Pills for the liver and bowels, act easily, yet promptly and efficiently.

—A devotional service was held in the W. C. T. U. rooms yesterday afternoon.

—See Hambidge's double page painting, "Beauty and Innocence," in Truth tomorrow.

—The Boys Brigade of the First Baptist church will meet in the church tomorrow evening.

—A large dog was run over by a passing carriage on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon and had one leg broken.

—Justice Nash has issued summons in the suit of Hackett, et als., against Mortimer, on contract, returnable on January 15th.

—The executive board of the Union Colored Republican Club will meet this evening at True Reformers hall on West Front street.

—The Union County Farmers' Institute will be held at Westfield January 25th and 16th. Several agricultural specialists will give addresses.

—A public meeting of the Organized Aid Association will be held in the parlors of Crescent Avenue church on Monday evening, the 13th inst., at eight o'clock.

—While the borough is pushing the good work of laying sidewalks, the residents think one should be placed on Park place, between Duer and Grove streets.

—The pew committee of Trinity Reformed church will be at the church tonight a half hour previous to prayer meeting for the purpose of renting pews or sittings.

—Wonderful are the cures accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla and yet it is only because Hood's Sarsaparilla the one true blood purifier, makes pure, rich, healthy blood.

—Several members of the W. C. T. U. met at the Mt. Olive Baptist church yesterday afternoon, with some of the women from the latter church. A devotional service was held.

—Many complaints are made about the condition of the sidewalk on Grove street between the bridge and the Schepflin building. In wet weather it is a very bad place and a walk should be laid.

—The Haymakers Association of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., will meet this evening, at which time the District Deputy State President will install the officers-elect. A collation will follow.

—Councilman R. I. Tolles left his wheel in front of the Plainfield Beef house on East Third street, Wednesday night. It was found by Policeman Saunders and placed in the lockup, where Mr. Tolles got it yesterday.

CLOVER.

Little masters, hat in hand,
Let me in our presence stand,
Till your silence solve for me
This your threefold mystery.

Tell me—for I long to know—
How, in darkness there below,
Was your fairy fabric spun,
Spread and fashioned, three in one.

Did your gossips gold and blue,
Sky and sunshine, choose for you,
Ere your triple forms were seen,
Suited liveries of green?

Can ye—if ye dwelt indeed
Captives of a prison seed—
Like the genie, once again
Get you back into the grain?

Little masters, may I stand
In your presence, hat in hand,
Waiting till you solve for me
This your threefold mystery?

THE KITCHEN HER THEATER.

Mary Anderson's Story of Where She Did Her First Acting.

In the south most of the servants were negroes. Among ours was a little mulatto girl ("nut brown maid," she called herself) whose chief attraction to me was her enthusiasm for the theater. One night in desperation I went to her while she was washing dishes in the kitchen and there unfolded all my hopes. It was to her I first acted, and it was she who gave me my first applause. The clapping of those soapy, steaming hands seemed to me a veritable triumph. Believing that a tragic manner alone would sufficiently impress the situation on the "nut brown maid," I began with a hollow voice and much furrowing of the brow, "Juli, wilt thou follow and assist me when I quit my childhood's home to walk in the path of Siddons, Kemble and Booth?" "Oh, Miss Manie, you kin count on dis pusson, fo' de Lor you kin! Why, my stars, what a boss actor you is! But you mus' 'low me to call your maw." And in a trice she was gone.

A few moments later she re-entered the kitchen with my mother, who was greatly surprised by my performance in the fourth act of "The Lady of Lyons," which could not have been acted in a more appropriate part of the house. She, in turn, called the critic of the family, Dr. Griffin, who, likewise, was astonished, and made my heart beat with joy by saying: "You'll make a good actress some day. Your scene has thrilled me, and I would rather have rough work and a good thrill than any amount of artistic work without it." Spurred on by such encouragement, I worked harder than ever, often staying up half the night to get some effect while trying to look into the heart and mind of the character under study. After that evening in the kitchen, I read scenes or acted them nightly to our small household, usually from "Hamlet," "Richard" or Schiller's "Maid of Orleans."—Mary Anderson in North American Review.

The Biggest of Clubs.

A member of the house of commons is allowed to attach to his name the magic letters "M. P.," which are a source of pride and gratification to himself and secure for him the respect and deference of others. These initials undoubtedly contribute, too, to his social status. Doors of social circles, hitherto locked and barred, are open wide to him, and invitations to social functions in the houses of the great and wealthy members of his party reach him during the session. Then he is a member of "the best club in London." It is, indeed, frequently denied that the house of commons still maintains that pre-eminence as a social haunt of men, which, it is universally acknowledged, once rightly belonged to it. But, as a matter of fact, the house is more of a club now than it has ever been in its centuried existence.

It is provided with handsome dining rooms, smoking rooms, reading rooms and a suit of bathrooms and dressing rooms. In its smoking room may be met, in the pleasant relaxation of a chat and gossip, not only some of the most distinguished men in the kingdom, but a far greater variety of types of men than can be encountered in the smoking room of any club in London. Mr. Labouchere, indeed, has said that a couple of hours could be passed far more enjoyably in the smoking room of the house of commons than in the smoking room of the Carlton or Reform club. It was the member for Northampton also who declared that the house of commons was not only one of the pleasantest, but one of the healthiest pl[illegible] in the world, and that he far preferred a month on its green benches to a month on the promenade of Brighton.—Chambers' Journal.

FROM SMILES TO ANGER.

The Story of a Car Conductor and Five Female Passengers.

They were five in number—ladies, evidently—and they boarded an electric car at the Tremont House. Possibly they intended to have a little fun before going home, and as they occupied nearly one-half of one side of the car a merry twinkle gleamed in the eyes of each.

Then the conductor entered. This was the signal for a simultaneous movement of five hands for five handbags. Five tightening strings were loosened, five hands disappeared into uncertain depths and then five pocketbooks came to sight. Five bags were closed and five silver pocketbook clasps snapped. Five nickels did not appear. The first lady tendered five pennies, and as she did so she smiled. No. 2 lady caught the infection, and passed up five pennies.

Then the smile of No. 1 was a grin.

No. 3 did the same, and five ladies laughed. No. 4 was somewhat unlucky, and while she was poking numerous hairpins, ribbon samples and other bric-a-brac—which every lady carries in her pocketbook—in search of her change, No. 5 flashed up her five pennies.

More laughter, somewhat increased.

Finally No. 4 had to give it up. Three pennies was all that she could find, and she meekly tendered a quarter. She received her change immediately. Every conductor in Boston is pleased to receive pennies, because they are handy in making change on transfers. This conductor did not forget it, but he thought his opportunity had come, and without hesitation he dumped the 20 pennies into her dainty gloved hand outstretched to receive them.

The laughter had ceased by this time. No. 4 got real mad and threatened to report the conductor. He kindly gave her his number, but she refused to take it.

The quintet alighted at Park square.

Then the other passengers laughed.—Boston Herald.

HINTS FOR THE SICKROOM.

Suggestions That Amateur Nurses Could Follow to the Invalid's Comfort.

The light in a sickroom should be tempered to suit the weakened condition of the patient's eyes. Dark green roller shades, which can be raised and lowered easily, are the best window curtains. A tall screen should be placed at the foot of the bed so as to shut out the light and also the breeze.

If it is possible to have the floor of the sickroom uncarpeted, much trouble in disinfecting may be spared. The floor should, however, be provided with a few thick rugs or mats, in order that the feet of the nurse may not be made very cold. If the disease is of an infectious nature the mats may be made of old pieces of carpet double. The subsequent destruction of these will not cause the thrifty housewife so much grief as that of more expensive rugs.

No nurse who has the slightest regard for the patient's comfort or well beingswill permit an unsightly array of medicine bottles, glasses and spoons to be on constant exhibition before him. It is an excellent plan to have a small medicine closet fastened to the wall and to have its contents exhibited only when necessary.

One of the most important arts taught the trained nurse is that of bedmaking. Unless the under sheet is drawn tight and smooth the patient suffers. Bedding should be changed daily. If the invalid is able to be moved, bedmaking is easy, but when he is confined to the bed it is more difficult. Then the sheet should be drawn from under him and the fresh one, folded, is firmly tucked in one side. The patient should then be moved to that side of the bed and the sheet drawn over.

The nurse's gown should be of gingham or of white linen, and it should be changed daily. It should not come in contact with the floor. It should not rustle and creak. Her shoes should be noiseless and comfortable.—Philadelphia Times.

Plants Thrive on a Meat Diet.

It has been proved time and again that the so called "cannibal plants," of which the Venus flytrap is the type, are much more healthy when allowed their regular insect food than they are when reared under netting or in any other manner which excludes them from their regular meat diet. The above is an oddity of itself, especially when we consider the fact that there is a certain school of botanists which teaches cannibal plants make no use whatever of the insect prey captured by them, but it is nothing compared with the bold assertion made by Francis Darwin. That noted scientific gentleman bravely meets the "vegetarian botanists" with the assertion that all kinds and classes of plants, whether known as "meat eaters" or not, bear more and heavier fruits and seeds when fed on meat than those that are not allowed a flesh diet. He grew two lots, comprising various varieties of the different common plants. One lot was regularly fed (through their roots, of course), with pure juices compressed from meat, the other with water and the various fertilizers. The final figures on this odd experiment proved that the plants which were fed pure meat juice bore 168 fruits of the different kinds, while the unfed plants of the same number and original condition bore but 74; also that the pampered plants bore 240 seeds to every 100 borne by the plants that were not given a chance to gratify cannibalistic tastes. This is certainly a discovery worthy of much careful study and extensive experiment.—St. Louis Republic.

The Hair.

While most people admit there is nothing better for the scalp than a thorough brushing of the hair morning and night, many will not persist in this and are continually asking what will make the hair come in when it is fast coming out. Many of the best hairdressers and barbers are recommending rubbing pure grease in very thoroughly every night or every other night. In several instances this has proved very effectual, and a new growth of short and strong fuzz all over the head has been the result.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WILD HORSE JERRY.

An Interesting Western Character Who Defied a Storm on the Plains.

"The most interesting character I ever knew I met in Greeley, Weld county, Colo.," said W. C. Boermer of Denver. "He has caught more wild horses in his day than any other man living. His real name is Jeremiah Smith, but everybody around Greeley knows him as Wild Horse Jerry. He has a little ranch down on the banks of the Platte about ten miles east of the town, and it was there that I met him. I was riding from Loveland to Sterling. I stopped at Jerry's house for the night, and that evening, before we turned into bed, he told me something about his experiences. He is quite an old man now, but he is still very active and can ride 100 miles in a day easily enough.

"It was over 30 years ago that he started out as a wild horse catcher. Since that time he has caught over 1,000 horses, and he has broken every one of them to the saddle. He has ridden for three days and nights steadily after some particularly wary band of horses, stopping only to change horses. It takes a man with an iron constitution to do that, and he is one of the most powerful men in the county. He is under medium height, but the muscles stand out all over his body.

"Once, he told me, he was far out on the plains in midwinter, with a young German. They were miles away from any ranch, when they were caught in a snowstorm. The only thing to do when a storm like that strikes you way out on the plains and the thermometer is way down below zero is to roll yourself in your blankets, and lie down and wait until the storm is over and the weather gets warmer. That is what they did. The snow piled up over them and kept them warm, but they knew it would be as much as their lives were worth to get up and try to continue their journey. The snow came down so thick and fast that they couldn't see their horses, they couldn't see each other. Jerry held his hand out before his face, but the snow hid it from his sight. He had to hold it close to his eyes before he could see it. Hour after hour passed by, and the storm still kept on. Finally, after they had lain there six hours, the German said he was going to run the risk of getting up and looking about. He thought he might be able to find a ranch house somewhere near.

"In spite of Jerry's remonstrances the man started off. Jerry lay there all through the day and night, and in the morning the storm passed away. But the German had not returned. Jerry started out to look for him, and only a few rods from where he had been lying he found his dead body. The wind had been blowing such a gale that even if he had called for help Jerry would not have heard him."—Buffalo Express.

HOW HE EARNED CANDY.

A Strange but True Story of a Big Newfoundland Dog.

One summer afternoon a group of children were playing at the end of a pier that projects into Lake Ontario, near Kingston. The careless child of the party made a backward step from the pier into the water. None of his companions could save him, and their cries had brought no one from the shore, when, just as he was sinking for the third time, a superb Newfoundland dog rushed down the pier into the water and pulled the boy out.

Those of the children that did not accompany the boy home took the dog to a confectioner's on the shore and fed him with as great a variety of cakes and other sweets as he would eat. So far the story is, of course, only typical of scores of well known cases. The individuality of this case is left for the sequel.

The next afternoon the same group of children were playing at the same place, when the canine hero of the day before came trotting down to them with the most friendly wags and nods. There being no occasion this time for supplying him with delicacies, the children only stroked and petted him. The dog, however, had not come out of pure sociability. A child in the water and cakes and candy stood to him in the close and obvious relation of cause and effect, and if this relation was not clear to the children, he resolved to impress it upon them. Watching his chance, he crept up behind the child nearest the edge of the pier, gave a sudden push, which sent him into the water, then sprung in after him and gravely brought him to shore.—Philadelphia Times.

Treatment of Eczema.

Eczema can, even when inherited, be controlled by attention to the general principles of health—cleanliness, exercise, proper diet, clothing and ventilation. Eczema patients, old and young, should never use stimulants in any form. They should take daily baths and be most particular as to the regularity of all important bodily functions. Occasional doses of mild saline aperients, such as cream tartar, phosphate of soda or the old fashioned remedy of lac sulphur and cream tartar, mixed in equal quantities, with enough molasses to form a creamy paste and taken three times a day for ten days running, then omitted until again required, will be found of wonderful benefit. Let the patient drink freely of lemonade and avoid salt meats, pork in any form, and live upon a diet of fruits, red meats and antiscorbutic vegetables.

Many people are particularly susceptible to shellfish, and a case of eczema sometimes follows the eating of lobster repeatedly. Strawberries will also produce this effect frequently. Vigorous exercise will often, by inducing excessive perspiration, act as a curative for eczema, particularly when combined with the use of a harmless external application. Sulphur baths are efficacious for most skin diseases. If possible, it is well to take them in an established bathhouse, but they may be prepared at home as follows: To each 10 gallons of water add an ounce of sulphuret of potassium, or to each 15 gallons of water add an ounce of sulphuret of calcium. Where there is itching and the eruption seems virulent the sulphur bath is excellent as a preliminary treatment.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A LESSON IN POLITENESS.

It Was Taught by a Young Woman to a Dandy In a Car.

This car on a Sixth avenue "L" train, bound up town, was crowded. The vast majority of the passengers were women who carried bundles. Plainly they had been shopping and were returning home. Most of them wore the weary but satisfied expression of one who had bought something she didn't need for $11.98, reduced from $12. Several men were hanging by the car straps.

The only man seated in the car was a gorgeous young person, whose patent leather shoes were as shiny as his tall hat. His hands were covered with rings, which he held up for admiration by stroking his downy upper lip. By the exquisite sat a messenger boy, deeply interested in some tale of piracy or Indian fighting.

More women got on the car at Twenty-third street. One was gray haired. Her arms were full of bundles, and she had evidently been roughly handled in some rush at a bargain counter. This old lady stood directly in front of the young man with the loud clothes and the diamonds, swaying with the motion of the car. All the other women near fixed a stony glare on the young man which said as plain as words, "Why don't you get up, you brute, and give that poor, tired woman a seat?"

The brute put his hand in his trousers pocket and pulled out a 5 cent piece.

"Here," he said, nudging the messenger boy, "take this. I'll pay your fare. Give this lady your seat."

"Sir," exclaimed the gray haired woman, her dull eyes lighting up with anger. "Sir, you are impertinent!"

Instantly a young woman jumped up and said, "Madam, take this seat, I beg of you," and, gently insisting, forced the old lady to be seated. Then, and not until then, the brute got on his feet. Taking off his hat, he said, "Pray take this seat, miss."

The young woman said not a word, but, throwing back her head, gave him a look that would pierce a sensitive man like a dagger. The train arrived at Twenty-eighth street, and the young man got off.

"I don't believe he had intended to get off at that station," exclaimed a woman to her companion.

"Oh, I do!" answered the other. "Nothing could shame him. That man would not give a seat to his grandmother!"—

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

THE CLINK OF GOLD

CHAPTER I.

It was a winter night. I was sitting over the fire at my chambers in the Middle Temple, and my friend, Frank Bowser, was pacing about the room.

"Arthur," said he, stopping suddenly and tossing a bag of gold toward the ceiling, "I shall soon claim the hand of Alice Darell now."

Again he pitched the bag of gold into the air, and the pieces of money, clinking together, sent forth a low, ringing sound.

"Bowser," said I, drawing my arm-chair closer to the fire, "this is a dangerous scheme. It will end in disaster. Take my advice and don't pursue it further."

In the old college days Bowser had gained a reputation for recklessness, and he had not changed in character since. As I expected, his answer was a laugh.

His inflexibility irritated me.

"Can you not realize," I exclaimed, "what a risk you are running? You go out nearly every night on this strange search. You take no precaution that I know of. The day must come, though I dread to think of it, when you will be robbed and probably murdered."

Again he pitched the bag of gold into the air.

"Murdered!" said Bowser, laughing and still tossing his gold. "How nervous you are tonight! Nonsense! My plan will succeed. I am hunting about the docks at Limehouse now, and if you only knew what a discovery— Hello, who's that?"

It was a muffled, mysterious sounding knock at the outer door.

"It's Scroggie," said I, jumping up. "Old Scroggie!"

"Ah! Scroggie, is it?" said Bowser. "Ah!"

A change crossed his face, I thought, but possibly I was mistaken, for there was no light in the room except a shaded lamp and the uncertain flicker of the fire, which threw shadows upon our faces as well as upon the dark paneled walls.

I went out to admit my visitor. As I walked along the passage I could hear the ring of Bowser's gold. I felt a chill pass over me, and I shuddered.

"Alone?" said Scroggie in a low voice as I opened the door.

"Come in!" I said. "Come in! It's only Bowser."

He hesitated, with his hands deep in his pockets. Then he hugged himself, as if suffering from cold, and said:

"No; I'll look in later"——

"Not you," said I, taking him playfully by the coat collar (we were familiar in our manners toward each other). "Not you! I'm going to give Bowser a lecture, and I want an audience. So come and take the chair."

As I still held him by the collar and refused to release him, Scroggie, after a slight resistance, yielded to persuasion. So I shut out the cold air on the staircase and led the way into my cozy room.

"Good evening," said Bowser, throwing up his bag and catching it. "Good evening, Scroggie. I'm practicing at a little game. You'll excuse me. Our friend Field," he added, turning to me—"our friend Field will tell you all about it. It's music to me, sweet music."

"I hate the sound of gold!" said Scroggie, seating himself beside the fire with another hug and turning his back on Bowser. "It reminds me of the diggings. And at Frisco I used to hear that clinking all day long. I hate it!"

He spoke in a low voice, with his eyes fixed resentfully on the bright coals.

My old schoolfellow Scroggie was one of the strangest characters I ever met. Nobody knew where he lived or how. Nobody saw him in the streets until after dark, and then he was usually walking at a quick pace, with a slouching swing about the shoulders which distinguished him even in dark streets or in a crowded thoroughfare.

He wore a low felt hat and at all times and in all seasons a thick, rough overcoat buttoned tightly about his neck, giving him more the appearance of a sailor than of a landsman. He had, in fact, since our school days passed most of his time upon the sea—at least, so I gathered from his conversation—for many a night we had sat together over the fire in these chambers while he recounted to me the shipwrecks and other perils and dangers he had experienced.

He had a quick, bright eye; a red beard, which he had a habit of sometimes stroking with his small, nervous hand when he talked. His hair, thick and curly, always looked to me as if defying a brush and comb, and his coat had invariably that dusty appearance so suggestive of the wearer having tramped over country roads. Why I had resumed my acquaintance with this man—having met him accidentally in the streets some two or three years ago—and why I at once became as intimate with him as I had been in our school days is a mystery in human nature which I will not attempt to solve.

He was amusing, which may account for a good deal, and I had known him at school to belong to a good family, though I remember his education had been much neglected. It was of little consequence to me that he was peculiar in his dress and manner, for we never met, except on rare occasions, in any other place than my chambers.

"Now, Bowser," said I when I had mixed a glass of whisky for Scroggie and had resumed my seat by the fire, "now, Bowser, put that bag of gold into your pocket and listen to me. I am going to explain your scheme to Scroggie and show him how very unsatisfactory I consider your conduct. Now, Bowser, for goodness' sake, sit down!"

Bowser bestowed upon me a half amused, half impatient glance, and giving his bag a parting toss dropped it into his pocket and sat down away from the fire, in the shade, beyond the reading lamp, and with his arms folded on the table. He was a large, powerful man, and I remember thinking how gigantic his shoulders looked in that semi-darkness as he leaned forward to listen.

"The facts of the case," said I, "the facts of the case are somewhat as follows: My learned friend has fallen in love, if I am not mistaken"——

Bowser nodded.

"Has fallen in love with a young lady named Darell"— I thought Scroggie had spoken. He had started and muttered something beyond doubt when I mentioned the name of Darell.

"Nothing," said Scroggie, returning with a quick glance the inquiring look which I gave him.

"And, moreover," I then resumed, "if I am not mistaken, my learned friend and Miss Darell are engaged."

Again Bowser nodded.

"But," I said—"but there is a clause in the engagement. Miss Darell has lost her father, who met his death under circumstances of a very painful nature. In a word, Miss Darell's father was murdered."

At this moment I happened to be looking straight at Scroggie, and a dark shadow seemed to gather over his face. The expression startled me and vanished.

"Stay!" said Bowser as I was about to continue. "Let me tell the story as I heard it from Alice Darell."

I said, "By all means," and leaning back in my chair I waited for Bowser to proceed.

"Miss Darell's father," said Frank Bowser, "was chief cashier at a bank in a large market town in the north of England. He lived on the premises, and his daughter Alice lived with him. His position was an arduous one. He was frequently engaged over the cash or in examining the ledgers until late into the night, especially on evenings preceding market days.

"It was part of his duty to weigh or count over and check off in the bullion book the various bags of gold, large and small, before they were handed over or distributed among the cashiers. And so, night after night, the clink of gold might be heard in the iron room beyond the back parlor, for night after night Mr. Darell sat there weighing the gold in the scales, or counting it, or shoveling it into the bags—clink, clink, clink!"

Here Bowser paused, and taking his own bag of gold out of his pocket placed it on the table before him.

Scroggie was sitting in an attentive attitude, but his eyes were never raised from the fire, and a worn look, which I had not observed at first, had settled upon his face. Bowser moved nearer toward us, coming within the circle of light under the lamp, and emptying out of his bag a quantity of bright sovereigns he continued in an impressive voice:

"One night," he told us—"one night, between 11 and 12 o'clock, the cashier is seated in the iron room under a shaded lamp—as I am seated now—weighing the gold as usual and filling the bags one after another, entering them in the bullion book, tying them up and casting them aside.

"He is deeply engrossed in his occupation. Is he thinking—this honest, industrious cashier—is he thinking, as he looks upon this glitter and listens to the clinking and ringing of this gold, what a hateful thing money is, or—who shall say?—who shall say but what, with a desire for his daughter's happiness passing through his mind—who shall say but what, for her sake, he is wishing that the sovereigns were his own?

"He is working, working now, solely for her, and if he is dreaming of riches what more natural on earth?

"But whatever his thoughts may be he is so absorbed that he hears no catlike footstep moving stealthily toward the spot where he weighs the gold—clink, clink, clink!—he sees no shadow cross the light in the outer room, within a short distance of where he stands. He hears nothing, observes nothing, until an arm is uplifted swiftly behind him, and a stifled cry escapes him—no time for more.

"He falls, beaten and crushed by a heavy blow. What's happened? A murder! Committed in the dead of night!"

When Bowser had uttered these words, there was a silence between us for some minutes. Scroggie was the first even to move in his chair. I had refilled his glass during the last pause in the narrative, and he now stretched out his hand hastily and lifted the tumbler to his lips and drank it off as if it were water. His hand shook violently as he placed the empty glass on the mantelshelf. I had often seen his hand tremble. Indeed it was seldom quite steady, but he had never exhibited excessive nervousness before.

"Well," said he without looking round.

"There is not much more to tell," said Bowser. "It was evidently a collusion between the bank porter and a sailor—or at least a man that looked very like one—seen loitering about in the neighborhood of a public house on the night previous to the one on which this tragedy occurred. The porter was arrested, tried and sentenced to penal servitude for life."

"And the sailor?" said Scroggie.

"Escaped. He made off with bags containing a large sum of gold, and he has never been heard of since."

With these words Bowser rose from his seat and began to pace up and down the room, playing with his bag of gold in an excited manner.

"Yes," said he presently, "the murderer escaped, but I have sworn to solve this mystery as to who is the murderer of her father before I marry Alice Darell. That is the clause in our engagement. If the villain is alive, I will ferret him out, hunt him down and bring him to justice, for I love Alice Darell more than my life, and for her I would run any risk. Mr. Darell was my friend. I honored him as much as if he had been my own father."

He stopped, glanced around the room with a savage energy expressed in his face, and then, flinging up the bag of sovereigns defiantly, he cried: "But the clink of gold will some day awaken the evil conscience! The man who committed this crime will betray himself at last. His guilt will be branded on his face, like an ugly scar, when he hears the sound—clink, clink, clink! There is no escape. The conscience is stronger than the man."

Again Bowser tossed up the bag of gold and paced the room, more excited than ever.

"My dear Bowser," I exclaimed, "for heaven's sake, be rational! To visit, as you do, the lowest haunts in London, to mix among savages—for some of these men in the east end are nothing better—is to expose yourself to real dangers. These sailors know the sound of gold only too well. Some night you will, I again warn you, be robbed and murdered. And that," I added—"that will scarcely be agreeable news for me to carry to Alice Darell. Once more let me seriously advise you to abandon this scheme. And Scroggie," I added—"Scroggie will, I know, support me in my appeal."

"Abandon it?" said Bowser as he walked toward the door. "Why, I've already taken two or three sharp detectives into my confidence. Good night. I'm going to meet one now."

As he went down the passage I heard the clink, clink of his bag of gold, and it seemed expressive of his contempt for my opinion, and when he had slammed the outer door of the chambers and his footsteps on the staircase had died away the sound was still ringing in my ears.

CHAPTER II.

No sooner had Frank Bowser gone than Scroggie's whole manner changed. His face grew cheerful, and his voice sounded natural and pleasing.

"Does Bowser entertain you in this musical style every night?" said Scroggie, with a laugh.

"Yes," said I, stirring the fire into a blaze. "It's a habit which seems to have become a necessary part of his existence. As you or I may derive pleasure, for example, from a quaint thought, so Bowser derives pleasure from the sound of gold. In fact, he fancies that he does not deserve to gain Alice Darell's whole heart until he has succeeded in clearing up the mystery as to who murdered her father. It is a strange mistake. I know Miss Darell well, and although I have never mentioned this subject to her I am convinced that she would be the first to dissuade him. Indeed I have no doubt she has done so already if she knows anything about his scheme."

"Frank Bowser is mad," said Scroggie.

"Tomorrow evening," said I, "Miss Pilkington—an aunt with whom Miss Darell is living—expects me to afternoon tea. I shall go early, and before Bowser arrives try to learn what they know about the matter. I shudder when I think what may happen."

"Then don't think," said Scroggie. "Let us change the subject."

"You're right," said I, rising from my seat and standing with my back to the fire and looking round the room. "You're right. Let's change the subject."

Scroggie had also risen and had glanced at the sideboard and then at the bookcase.

"I suppose," said he, turning over the leaves of a volume—"I suppose you haven't dined. Have you?"

So well did I know Scroggie's character that I was at once convinced by the manner in which he put this question that he had not dined. When or where, in fact, he ate anything was another problem, as deep as the one as to when or where he slept. I had often thought when trying to puzzle out the life since our school days of this strange individual that he never slept anywhere or ate anything except within my chambers. He was always supernaturally hungry, though, to do him justice, he adopted all the gentlemanly devices which he could invent in order to conceal his voracity.

Of course I declared that I had had nothing to eat worth mentioning since the morning, though, in truth, I had dined sumptuously at the Old Cock tavern with Frank Bowser at 5 o'clock. But it was nearly 11, and I did not doubt that I should be able to do justice to the savory pie and the pickles and other luxuries placed by Mrs. Billings, my laundress, that afternoon in my cupboard.

The gusto with which Scroggie spread the cloth and arranged the table while I went on a foraging expedition into gloomy recesses in search of provisions would have given an edge to any man's appetite. We had forgotten in five minutes all about Frank Bowser and the sound of gold. The fire was burning brightly, and the reading lamp, which usually cast its light on my lawbooks about this hour, was throwing a glow upon our festive board. Scroggie's activity was bewildering. No sooner had he uncorked a bottle of beer than off he went to refill the kettle, so that we might be prepared to mix hot whisky by and by. At last we settled down at the table, and Scroggie began to roll a cigarette as though the idea of eating anything had never entered his head. The temptation, however, which the pie held out was too great to be resisted.

THE PARIS SUNDAY.

A DAY OF REST OR RECREATION FOR NEARLY ALL THE PEOPLE.

The Well to Do Stay at Home, but the Masses Are Gay and Festive—Especial Arrangements For Their Entertainment and Pleasure.

If the day be fine—a bright sun in winter and cool breezes in summer—Paris presents the most beautiful exterior of any capital in the world. There are smooth paved roadways, full of cheap cabs, and neatly laid sidewalks, free from those treacherous unevennesses, the bane of the pedestrian in American cities, and, to cap all, these Paris streets are perhaps even a little cleaner than the Manhattan thoroughfares since Colonel Waring took up his good work. Then there are well trimmed lawns in the many public gardens, numerous flower beds blooming in every season, graceful fountains ever playing, innumerable statues and groups of sculpture by past masters in the plastic art, comfortable benches scattered along miles of avenues and scores of more comfortable chairs under the trees of the broader streets and squares, countless restaurants and cafes, with their immaculate tables invitingly installed on the broad sidewalks, and, lastly, the famous boulevards—the boulevards, from the Madeleine to the Montmartre—the like of which, for an indescribable something, are to be found neither in London nor in any American city, overflowing, especially on Sunday, with good natured crowds of men, women and children in gala dress.

But a description of the attractions of Paris on Sunday would be quite incomplete without some mention of the charms and entertainments in its immediate vicinity. Here belong the horse races, offered in great variety nearly all the year around, at Longchamp and other suburban tracks; the Seine boats, bearing their happy human freight to the Vincennes wood in one direction and to the superb alleys of St. Cloud in the other; the neighboring town of Sceaux, with its garden dedicated to Robinson Crusoe and Friday and its dining tables perched in the easily accessible branches of towering chestnut trees; St. Denis, with its tombs, and Versailles, with its picture galleries, and still farther away, but one of the favorite Meccas of the more well to do Parisian Sunday sightseers, Fontainebleau, with its historic apartments and its grand forest.

Such are some of the more inviting aspects of external and exterior Paris on a propitious Sunday. Now a word about a few of the internal, the within doors allurements of this same captivating city.

The magnificent Louvre, with its immense collections of paintings, sculpture, antiquities, ethnological and naval museums, is thrown wide open on Sunday, year in and year out, to the delighted crowds who throng its galleries from morning till night. The same thing is true of the fine military museums at the Hotel des Invalides, of the Trocadero ethnological and architectural collections, of the Guimet exhibition of oriental religions, of the modern painting and sculpture at the Luxembourg, of the Canavalet museum so rich in souvenirs of the history of Paris, and true also of a half dozen or more other museums, collections and exhibitions of greater or less importance. It is on Monday that these public resorts are closed for the weekly cleaning and sweeping, not on Sunday, when all the population is free and can visit them.

The two state theaters—the Francais and the Odeon—and the Opera House are not only open throughout the year, winter and summer, but never dream of closing their doors on the Sabbath. In fact, on that day the Francais and the Odeon, and, as a rule, all the Paris playhouses offer two performances, afternoon and evening, when the programmes are made as popular as possible and the prices of admission reduced. In a word, the managers seem to vie with one another in an effort to entertain the public, a striking instance of the democratic spirit which pervades the Paris Sunday.

Furthermore, the best musical concerts occur on this same day, and it is on Sunday, too, that the military bands perform in the parks. When the great annual picture exhibitions are in progress, the price of admission is reduced, as in the case of the theaters on Sunday, and at the old salon no charge whatsoever is made in the morning, when one may see lines of people, four or five deep and a block long, filing in through the gates in order to feast their eyes on the best work of the leading artists of the world.

Now, how do the people of Paris use these privileges of a French Sunday? In answering this question we may separate the population into two grand divisions. The leisure class, that have amused themselves during the week, generally remain at home on Sunday, for if they go out they complain of finding the streets too crowded, the cabs taken and the theaters full. Speaking generally, it is the masses who take possession of Paris on Sunday, and they evidently get so much enjoyment out of it and must be so much benefited by the aesthetic surroundings that even a Puritan would have to admit that some good thing can come out of Nazareth.

The big stores and most of the small ones do no business on this first day of the week, so that the army of clerks is free. Many of the great public administrations, such as the post and telegraph offices, close early Sunday afternoon and add a large contingent to those bent on rest and innocent amusements. The mechanics and vast majority of the day laborers, the shop girls and home servants, the university students, probably from 15,000 to 20,000 in number; the cadets from the various government schools, in jaunty uniforms, and the multitude of school children, all, in their way, give vivacity and variety to the joyous scene.

M. Leon Say and several other philanthropists have founded an organization whose aim is to secure the cessation of all labor on Sunday, and they are meeting with considerable success. The number of the "Sunday unemployed" is consequently ever on the increase in Paris, so that a Parisian Sunday is continually growing in popularity and universality.—Paris Cor. New York Independent.

THE TINDER BOX.

A Description of the Old Time Contrivance For Making Fire.

Does any one of my readers know where a tinder box can be seen, or has one of them any idea what it is like? Fortunately I came upon a description of it in the recently published account of the lifetime of John Hollingshead. "The tinder box was the toy of my childhood." It was certainly not a "toy" in my time. It was very much the reverse—an absolute necessity. I will allow, however, Mr. Hollingshead still to speak: "Without it there would have been no light or fire; with it there were, after a time, light and fire and a certain amount of safety. No child could burn down a house or burn itself to a cinder with a tinder box." It was, in fact, a task beyond the reach of most children to strike a light. First of all, the rags had to be got and burned into tinder. "This tinder was put into a large round tin box, big enough for a pie dish. Then a piece of jagged flint had to be got, and a thing called 'a steel,' which might have been the remains of an old horseshoe, had to be purchased; the flint, struck edgeway on the steel, sent sparks into the tinder, which smoldered and prepared itself for the matches.

"The matches were a formidable bundle of thin strips of wood, diamond pointed at the ends and dipped in brimstone. They suggested Guido Fawkes and the cellars of the old houses of parliament, and the 'Guys' in the streets, carried in chairs by boys, who represented a proper Protestant horror of all Roman Catholics." It is now half a century since I have seen such a thing. It is possible that in the country it still exists. With the penurious character of the French peasant and the heavy tax in France on matches it is more than probable that it might there be found. In London it is now an antiquity. References to the flint in this respect are frequent in Shakespeare, the best known being that in "Julius Cæsar," wherein Brutus tells Cassius that he

> Carries anger as the flint bears fire,
> Which, much enforced, shows a hasty spark
> And straight is cold again.

Other things, such as horn lanthorns, are at least uncommon. Snuffers were at one time in constant use and may be so now for aught I know in certain quarters. One thing at least I know—a friend of mine has taken to collecting them as curios.—Gentleman's Magazine.

GODFREY'S TANKARD.

A Seventeenth Century Relic of the Fire and Plague In London.

A curious historical relic was sold by auction recently in London. It is the large tankard of solid silver presented by King Charles II to Sir Edmund Berry Godfrey for his valuable services during the plague and the fire of London, for which he received the honor of knighthood in 1666. The tankard, which is of plain silver, has a hinged cover and weighs nearly 36 ounces. Its front is engraved with the royal arms and the crest of the recipient, together with inscriptions in Latin and engravings of scenes connected with the fire, which are still in excellent preservation. The engraving of the pesthouse men carrying corpses to the dismal plague pit and that of the crowded blocks of houses surmounted by flames are very quaint and curious. Sir Edmund, who was born in 1621 at Sellinge, in Kent, was a timber merchant, possessing wharfs at Dowgate city and at Charing Cross. He prospered, became justice of the peace for Westminster and member of parliament for Winchilsea. In history, as no reader of Macaulay and Green will need to be told, his name is most famous in connection with his mysterious murder, which was popularly attributed to the zeal with which he had devoted himself to unraveling the alleged popish plot. His body was found in a ditch near Primrose hill, face downward and penetrated by his own sword, under circumstances which precluded the idea of suicide or robbery.

The excitement caused by this still mysterious event is indicated by the fact that when the funeral procession left the city, with great pomp and pageant, for the burial ground of St. Martin's-in-the-Felds, it was preceded by 70 clergy and followed by upward of 1,000 persons of distinction.—Boston Herald.

A German Journalist's Queer Idea.

The following paragraphs are summarized from a recent issue of the Frankfurter Zeitung:

"The late Professor Froude held that the succession to the English crown lies with the eldest child of the sovereign, not the eldest son; consequently that the heir to our gracious queen is not the Prince of Wales, but the Empress Frederick. The Empress Frederick is reported to have said that, should she succeed to the throne of England, she would make Prince Henry her heir. The emperor, who was also made acquainted with Professor Froude's discovery, intimated that if what was put forward was true in its entirety the English succession should go from eldest child to eldest child, which in this case would be himself, and that he certainly would not waive his rights. Germans are now interpreting to each other a speech of their emperor's that lately puzzled them—a speech in which he said the German army and the German fleet would pass beyond the ocean. He was thinking, say his commentators, of the time when England will be an appanage of Germany."

The article says that in England the partisans of Professor Froude's opinion are Lord Lonsdale, Lord Methuen and Mr. Stead, and that there was for some time every disposition to keep the notion secret, but that now that Mr. Stead knows it The Review of Reviews will proclaim this novel view of the succession.

We did not know before that The Frankfurter was a comic journal.—Westminster Gazette.

His Mother's Boy.

"If I was a man," said the little boy in the crowded car, "I'd be glad to get up and give my seat to a nice, handsome lady like that one standing in the aisle there."

"Why, sure enough, little one!" replied the man who was reading the newspaper, rising up as he spoke. "I"—

"Here's a seat, mamma!" called out the boy.—Chicago Tribune.

A singular custom prevails in Madagascar. The prime minister is always expected to marry the queen of the country. The present prime minister has been married to three of the sovereigns and has outlived them all.

THE PLANETS.

Curious Ideas Concerning the Beings Who May Possibly Live on Them.

It is common to hear people speak of the possibility of the planets being inhabited, and the discussion of the question often brings out some curious ideas concerning the supposed planetary beings. The majority of people never imagine that it is possible that the great worlds which we know only as shining points of light can be peopled by others than creatures resembling the highest type of animal life on this globe.

Such persons, although they may be able to tell you the exact weight of the earth in tons, pounds and ounces, the minimum and maximum temperature of the surface of the sun at different seasons and the exact day upon which the moon becomes an arid waste, never stop to think what would be the effect on stature of persons living in such gigantic worlds as some of the stars are known to be.

The dark planet which accompanies the giant star Algol is known to be more than 1,000,000 times larger than this earth, but its density is so light that it is only about 50,000 times heavier than our globe. You are now thinking that the inhabitants of this monster planet must be at least 5,000,000 feet in height (if they are constructed on such a plan as the world upon which they reside), but such is probably not the case. The density of the planet would have a great deal to do when it came to a question of size and weight.

Figuring with density and size both as a basis, Vogel came to the conclusion that the average man on Algol's companion world would be 24¾ feet in height and weigh between 700 and 800 pounds. Arnold and Metterich both figured from the same data, adding that of the intensity of gravity, and gave a string of "corrected calculations" in proof of the assertion that a man on that planet could never grow to exceed 15 inches in height, but would spread out over a quarter of an acre of ground!—St. Louis Republic.

Graces Versus Fates.

In the "Life of General Sir Edward Bruce Hamley" we are told that the name of the general is embalmed in the verse of the late laureate in the lines preparatory to "The Charge of the Light Brigade." In reference to this may be quoted Hamley's account of his visit to Lord Tennyson: "I once went from London to spend a day memorable to me with Tennyson at Aldworth. We spent some time in his study discussing the incidents of the charge of the Light brigade, his verses on which he was revising. In the afternoon I accompanied him in a walk about his grounds and woods, and it was not until evening was closing in and all were assembled indoors that I rose to take leave. My host then invited me to stay the night, offering to make good all deficiencies of my toilet. Much pleased at the invitation, I was also vexed, for I had an engagement in London. On my saying so, he re-enforced his invitation by saying, 'There are three ladies who wish it,' meaning my hostess and two friends on a visit. I replied sorrowfully that there were three others who opposed it. 'Who are they?' 'The Fates.' He rejoined at once, 'The Fates may be on one side, but the Graces are on the other.'"

A Problem Not to Be Solved.

This is the strange problem presented at the Hotel de Ville in Paris for solution to the poor girls who took part in the last scholastic examination for what is called the brevet superieur: "A square tank, 80 centimeters deep, is supplied with water from two taps, of which one yields 27 liters a minute more than the other. If the two taps were turned on at once, they would fill the tank in two hours. The tank could also be filled by letting the larger tap run alone for 1½ hours, and then the second tap alone for 1½ hours. What is the capacity of the tank? How wide is it? How long would it take for each tap alone to fill it?" After the candidates had puzzled their heads over it and failed to find a solution of the problem the examiner had to admit that there was no possible solution. The candidates have been graciously informed that their failure will not be allowed to weigh against them.

CHRISTIAN MEN'S UNION MISSION OPENS NEXT MONDAY.

Col. Hadley and Several Other Active Workers Will be Present and Make Addresses—Plans of Work to be Outlined

When Col. Hadley closed the large meeting in Reform Hall December 22d, it was adjourned to meet next Monday night at 224 West Front street, in the large room formerly occupied as a hardware store.

Since that time, arrangements have been made for the heating, lighting and seating of the store, which will be formally opened as a mission at 7:30 p. m., next Monday evening, by Col. Hadley, assisted by Walter N. Hinman, who has for four years been Superintendent of the famous Canal Street Rescue Mission of Buffalo, who will remain with us for a month at least, and get the work well upon its feet, that the people of Plainfield may see what rescue work is, as done by The Christian Men's Union, of which that is to be a branch.

Mr. Hinman will also be assisted for a month, by Mr. Jabez Thompson, one of the prominent workers of "The Lighthouse," (a Christian saloon) 140 West Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia.

The meeting Monday night will be one of unusal interest, as these three workers will make short references to their own miraculous conversions, each having been saved from drink through Christianity. The plan of the work will be outlined, and a good time generally is expected.

Treasurer Benton, of the Plainfield branch, has called in the pledges made by those who wish to help the work, and it is hoped that all people who have become interested and who wish to interest themselves in saving the victims of the saloon and the non-church-going class generally, will be on hand Monday night and such nights thereafter as they can find it convenient to come, for there will be a meeting nightly at 7:30 every day in the week except Wednesday, which is the prayer meeting night of the churches of Plainfield, and according to the rules of the Christian Men's Union, they have no meeting on that night, but will try to induce those whom they have recruited, to attend the church prayer meetings, in the hope that they may have the co-operation of the pastors and church members to bring them into the church of their choice, and make good members of them.

All parties who have flags or bunting and other decorations which can be used to cover the walls and shelving of the store, which is to be occupied as a mission for the next three months, are cordially invited to send them to the mission room from 9 until 3 o'clock on Monday, that they may be appropriately arranged before the meeting begins.

Happy Surprise.

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McDevitt, 676 West Fourth street, last evening, when about forty of their friends arrived at 9 o'clock. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening. Refreshments were served at 12 o'clock. Dancing was continued until the small hours of this morning. The music was by Prof. Frazee. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Dan McDevitt, Mrs. Mullhare, Mrs. Fitzgerald, Mr. McCue, Misses M. and B. McCue, Misses Rose and Lizzie Divier, Misses Mary and Maggie McEwain, Maggie Donnelly, Lizzie Cafferty, Mary Mullhare, Rose McDevitt, Hannah Lynch, Messrs. Ed and Tom McCue, W. Dougherty, M. Millington, Dan Fitzpatrick, Joseph Mahon, Dennis Reagan, Willie Hicking, Albert Montzoy, Robert Parker, Burt Johnson, Frank Oldman, Frank McDevitt.

Max Wiertz's Removal.

Max Wiertz begs to inform his patrons that he has removed his catering business from 544 West Front street, to 201 West Sixth street, corner Arlington avenue, where he will also continue a first class private restaurant.

Notice.

VanEmburgh & Son will close their place of business every evening, except Saturday, at 7 o'clock, until further notice. 6

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

CAUCUSING IN TRENTON.

Thompson to Be President of the Senate and Voorhees the Leader.

The Republican Senators held a caucus last night at Trenton to decide on the officers to be chosen next Tuesday. All the eighteen Republican Senators were present, and Senator Williams, was chosen chairman, which carries with it the leadership in the Senate.

This he later resigned, when Lewis A. Thompson, of Somerset county, had been chosen as the Republican candidate for President, by a vote of 11 to 7. Senator Voorhees was then chosen chairman, and he will be the Republican leader.

The first vote for the Presidency resulted in a tie, nine votes each being cast for Thompson, of Somerset, and Voorhees, of Union. On the second ballot two of the Voorhees men went over to Thompson and it was decided to honor Voorhees with the leadership.

Harry B. Rollinson, of Rahway, backed by Senator Voorhees, was chosen as candidate for Secretary of the Senate, and Edward M. Fielder, of Monmouth, was re-elected as the candidate for reading clerk.

There was a long discussion over the advisability of respecting the law passed last year reducing the number of employes, and it was finally decided to regard the law, although there was a disposition to ignore it in order to provide places for the many candidates who were presented.

At 11 o'clock it had been decided to make Louis L. Peale, of Newark, engrossing clerk, but later complications arose which made necessary a new deal, and the previous action was reconsidered.

A GLEE CLUB ORGANIZED.

They Met Last Tuesday For Practice and Meet Again Next Week.

There has been considerable talk among the young men of this city and the borough about the formation of a glee club. Last Tuesday evening the first steps were taken toward the formation of such an organization, and the following young men met at the home of Robert Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, for that purpose: Raymond A. McGee, Herbert Moore, Robert Bruce Douglass, Abram Cornish, Fred J. Pope, Charles H. Angleman, Harry Yaeger and Wyatt Barnes. The first evening was spent in practicing several selections that were picked out. Another meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the home of Wyatt Barnes, of Norwood avenue, when a name will probably be selected and a director and secretary elected. The club promises to furnish many a pleasant evening for its members.

Kappa Delta Phi.

The regular meeting of Kappa Delta Phi was held yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Charles Noble, president. After the executive session, at which the most important business was transacted, the society adjourned to the chapel where the programme was carried out. The programme was a debate, the subject being "Resolved, That John Brown Should Be Considered as a Hero and Not as a Fanatic." The affirmative side of the argument was supported by Wilbur F. Cornwell, principal, and J. Hazlewood Craig, second. The negative was held by Charles Noble, principal, and Henry Eggerding, second. After the debate was over the judges, consisting of Ernest Swayze, Charles M. Dolliver and Wm. C. Buell, gave the decision in favor of the negative. At the next meeting, Jan. 17th, the subject will be a novel one, at which each member of the society will read a funny story. The programme for the meeting on Jan. 24th will be a talk on various countries of the world. J. Hazlewood Craig was elected president for the coming month, and Henry Eggerding appointed programme committee.

Installation of Court Plainfield.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., at their meeting last night, installed their officers-elect. Past High Chief Ranger Bingham, of Elizabeth, assisted by Grand Marshal Dr. Lowrie of Plainfield, performed the ceremonies. After the installation remarks were made by all the newly-elected officers. A ringing address was made by Past High Chief Bingham on the good of the order, followed by Dr. Lowrie. The officers installed were: C. R., John Bird; V. R., Chas. Jaeger; R. S., Mr. Patterson; F. S., John F. Casey; T., J. J. Praed; C., John Allen; S. W., James McClinton; J. W., Albert Jaeger; T. B., G. Weber, Jr.; J. B., T. Fitzgerald.

SEEM LIKE THINGS OF LIFE.

BIG WEB PERFECTING PRESSES BUILT BY WALTER SCOTT.

An Industry Which Every Plainfielder Should Be Proud Of—Machines That Will Print 100,000 Papers Per Hour.

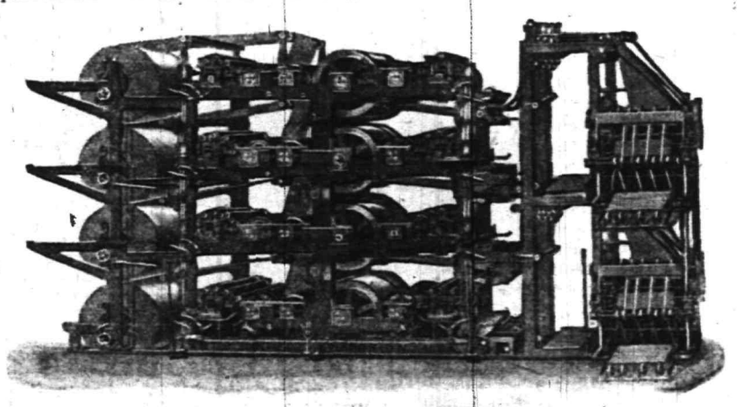
The last issue of The Fourth Estate, a New York trade paper, contained the following about Walter Scott & Company:

It is seldom that a manufacturer is so pleased with a story in regard to a rival firm as was Walter Scott over an article that appeared in the London (Eng.) Press News under the heading: "A Great Printing Press." This read as follows:

Provincial journalism is going ahead. The proprietors of the Sheffield Daily Telegraph have ordered from Messrs. Hoe & Company, of London and New York, one of their new rotaries, to be built on the lines of one that was shown at the Chicago Exhibition. There is at present nothing like it in England, and the purchasers have named it the "three decker," as it will consist of three printing presses placed one above the other, and so arranged that they will print separately or altogether.

From this wonderful giant, readers will receive their paper cut on the top, properly folded and gummed, and the Saturday's issue of the above journal will consist of 10 or 12 handy pages, in place of the large sheet of 8 pages. This new machine will print 4-page papers at 48,000 per hour, 6-page papers at 48,000 per hour, 8-page papers at 36,000 per hour, 10-page papers at 24,000 per hour, 12-page papers at 24,000 per hour, also any other size up to 24 pages, either 6, 7 or eight columns to a page.

"This is a case where credit due has gone astray," said Walter Scott to a representative of The Fourth Estate, and he smiled as he said it.



THE NEW SCOTT OCTUPLE PRESS.

"The press referred to as having been at the Chicago exhibition was exhibited by Walter Scott & Company, of Plainfield, New Jersey. The order given to R. Hoe & Company was for a press similiar to two now running in the Montreal Star office, which were built by Walter Scott & Company. These are three tiered presses with tandem folders."

Continuing, Mr. Scott said: "There has been some discussion as to who was the first to introduce the two and three decker presses now known as the straight line machines, the printing cylinders being placed in paralled planes one above the other, the rolls of paper at one end of the presses and the folders at the other. I claim the credit for such machines.

"I have produced several kinds of them, single and double width. One of the above-mentioned Montreal Star presses was built and operated in 1889, and was placed in the Star office in 1891. The first of the "three tiered" presses in the Chicago Inter-Ocean office was installed early in 1892. Others followed in rapid succession until twenty-five such machines have been built.

"If you are going to say anything about this matter," remarked Mr. Scott, "to make it clear, you can do so best by illustrations of the three kinds, viz., triple, sextuple and octuple presses. He then gave the reporter the accompanying cut, saying:

"The triple, with double-tandem folders, will run 2, 4 and 6 pages, at a speed of 50,000 per hour, 8 pages at 37,000 per hour, 10 and 12 pages at 25,000 per hour, 20 and 24 pages at 12,500 per hour, delivering the papers cut, pasted and folded in book form and counted in fifties.

"The sextuple will work 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 or 12 page papers at 50,000 per hour, 16, 18, 20 and 24 pages at 25,000 per hour.

"We have placed in the Chicago Tribune office two sextuple presses, with auxiliary folders. The extra folder is to fold the web from the upper press, when the lower two presses and folders are working 8 pages or less, and also when working 16 pages. By this means the machines will produce per hour 75,000 of 2, 4, 6 or 8 pages, 50,000 of 10 and 12 pages, 37,000 of 16 pages and 25,000 of 20 and 24 pages.

"The octuple machines, with four folders, will produce per hour:

"100,000 of 2, 4, 6 and 8 pages.
"50,000 of 16 pages.
"37,000 of 18 and 20 pages.
"25,000 of 22, 24 and 32 pages.

"There are many excellent inventions embodied in these machines, which at once commend themselves to the practical pressman."

THE GROCERS ARE COMING.

SEMI-ANNUAL CONVENTION OF BUSINESS MEN TO BE HELD HERE.

The Convention Will Be Held on January 15th, and Big Preparations For the Delegates Are Being Made—Committees.

Plainfield is growing to be quite a popular city in which to hold conventions and next week the seventeenth semi-annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of New Jersey will be added to the already long list of those held in this city. This association is composed mainly of the grocers of the State who were instrumental in its organization. The date on which the convention is to begin is Wednesday, January 15th, and it is hoped that all necessary business can be transacted in the one day. The retail merchants from all over the State will be represented, three delegates at large from each local association and one delegate for each fifty members. Other dealers, besides those in local associations, have been invited and will be entitled to all the privileges except voting at the business meeting of the association.

The first instalment of delegates is expected to arrive on Tuesday night and arrangements have been made for them at the Hotel Grenada and the City Hotel. The delegates will register at rooms No. 212 213 and 214, second floor, Babcock building.

The executive committee will meet on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Babcock building and next morning at 8 o'clock the Secretary's committee will meet in the same place.

The convention proper will open at 10 o'clock in room B, in the Babcock building. Mayor Alex Gilbert will deliver the opening address. The business meeting will then follow and officers for the ensuing year elected. Lunch will be served to the delegates at noon in the same building. Another business session will follow. In the evening, a grand banquet will be held in the rooms of the Plainfield Camera Club on the top floor of the Babcock building. P. Ludwig Conde and three other musicians will furnish music during the evening. After the repast, toasts will follow and among the subjects will be "Legislation," "Insurance" and "Trade Interests."

Of course, the gathering together of such a large number of men necessitates considerable preparation, and the committee of arrangements in charge has been thorough in all its work. The chairman of this committee is J. Augustus Smith and his assistants are F. W. Dunn, James Clawson, R. W. Barnes and Charles M. Ulrich. The committee which will look after the reception of the delegates consists of George W. Rockfellow, chairman; J. M. Dunn, B. D. Newell, H. A. Weber, F. Westphal, Edward White, Garrett Q. Packer, John A. Thickstun, E. H. Holmes, L. B. Woolston, J. W. Van Sickle, Frank W. Jones and George W. Eddy. A committee, composed of Harry W. Marshall, James Clawson and George O. Stevens, will look after the entertainment of the guests.

A large number of delegates are expected.

Supporters for Consolidation.

It is reported that petitions are being circulaied among the residents of the borough in an attempt to ascertain how many are in favor of annexation, and while there are many opposed to it, it is said that the supporters are meeting with very good success.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

SMALL SIZED FLOOD.

North Avenue Business Places Suffer a Small Inundation.

This morning about 12:30, while Policeman Cooney was patrolling his North avenue beat, he noticed a quantity of steam coming from Hillier and Co's laundry store. On examination he found that water was rushing into the store through the ceiling which he was able to see by the aid of the electric light left burning. He immediately got one of the hackmen at the station to go to the home of Miss Mary Brown, of East Fourth street, the manager. When she arrived and opened the store they found the floor flooded with water. In the meantime the water had been shut off in the street.

An examination was made of the third floor and it was discovered that some person had turned the water on, and at the same time stopped the outlet in the sink with old rags.

The water had flooded a room on the second floor in A. V. D. Honeyman's offices, in which was stored a large number of books, and passed through there into the store occupied by Hillier & Co., on the first floor, and also into a room in the rear of J. T. Vail's real estate office. The total amount of damage will be small on account of its quick discovery. The door leading from the street to the upstairs apartments was not locked, making it possible for a person to get to the upper floor very easy.

Persons having goods at Hillier & Co's can get them by calling at the telephone office next door, as the store is closed today.

Time and Money Well Spent.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance at the public meeting of the Organized Aid Association next Monday night in the Crescent Avenue church parlors. There can be no doubt that this organization is conducted on business methods. It does an immense amount of good and spends only $600 per year. It asks only two dollars per year from each member. Every beggar who comes to you should be sent to the office of the association, corner of Park and North avenues, for his certificate. President Tyler will be glad to answer questions by persons not members, who are invited to be present on Monday night.

He For Trenton.

Already thirty-five members of the U. S. Grant Republican Club, of North Plainfield, have decided to go to Trenton to witness the inauguration of Gov.-elect Griggs. There is considerable enthusiasm manifested and a meeting will probably be called for Monday evening when final arrangements will be made. It is possible that a handsome banner will be purchased for the occasion. The members will wear badges, canes and gloves to distinguish them from the other clubs at the Capitol. It is barely possible that music will be taken as an escort.

Lectures on Cookery.

Six demonstration lectures on "Cookery," will be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall by Miss C. C. Bedford, on January 23, 24, 25, 27, 28, and 29, beginning at half-past two. The subjects for the different lectures will be.—January 23, "Breakfast Dishes"; January 24, "Bread"; January 25, "An Easy Company Dinner"; January 27, "Left Overs"; January 28, "Entrees and Salads"; January 29, "Desserts."

United Workmen Visit.

Several of the officers of Columbia Lodge, O. A. U. W., went to Hoboken Thursday night to be present at the annual visit of the grand officers at Advance Lodge, of that city. The party from Plainfield consisted of Henry Leifke, W. A. Woodruff, E. M. Laing and P. A. Van Fleet. The officers of Advance Lodge were installed and a sumptuous collation served after the meeting.

An Invitation

Is extended to gentlemen and ladies interested in vocal sight reading, to attend the first lesson of Miss Marsh's evening class, Tuesday evening, January 14th, at 8 o'clock, at her residence, 915 Madison avenue.

Ladies are also invited to the second lesson of the ladies class, Monday morning, January 13th, at 10:15 2

Crushed His Foot.

A brakeman on the Lehigh Valley Railroad had his right foot crushed at South Plainfield yesterday afternoon while coupling cars. A physician from Perth Amboy was summoned and the man was made as comfortable as possible. He was sent to his home at Phillipsburg later in the day.

Barnum is Coming.

Barnum & Bailey's circus will exhibit in Plainfield Wednesday, May 6.

THE BIDS WERE NOT ALL IN.

BOROUGH COUNCIL POSTPONE ACTION ON THE BELL TOWER.

A New Ordinance Relating to Public Exhibitions and Skating Rinks to Be Adopted—Other Business of the Council.

The real object for which the Borough Council met last evening was not accomplished, namely, a decision in the matter of erecting a bell tower and the purchase of a fire bell. Owing to the fact that Councilman Peck had failed to receive all the bids on the same he was not able to report. A plan of the tower was presented by W. T. Kirk, giving the members an idea of the structure. Beside the Mayor there were present Councilmen Valiant, Smith and Schutt and Clerk Arnold.

Collector Spencer reported the receipt for $142.50 received from the court for Hipp's license and the same was received and filed.

Councilman Smith reported for Councilman Peck, stating that all bids were not yet in for the erection of tower and purchase of bell, hence no report could be made. He also reported that no work had been done on the streets during the past week.

Wm. N. Pangborn made application for an auctioneer's license to April 15th, 1896, and on account of the short time Mr. Vahant offered a resolution that the same be granted for the sum of $12.50. The resolution prevailed.

The clerk then read an ordinance, which is an amendment to the bicycle ordinance. It provides that no bicycle or wheel shall be ridden on the sidewalks of the borough by any person over eight years of age, except a baby carriage or one used by invalids. The ordinance was placed on first and second readings and laid over for final passage. The ordinance relating to shows, circuses, skating rinks, etc., was repealed and a substitute offered in its place which provides that a license must be secured from the Mayor, the same to be issued at his discretion and not to exceed $200 in cost. The clerk is to receive 50 cents as a fee for the issuance. Violations of it provide for a penalty of $20, ten days, or both and costs. In substance the ordinance is as follows:

"No person, corporation or association shall have, make, give or exhibit in the borough of North Plainfield any entertainment, theatrical performance, circus, show, exhibition or device of any kind whatsoever for money or gain, nor shall combine the selling or vending of any article or thing with any such performance, circus, show exhibition or device, nor shall open or keep any skating rink in said borough without first obtaining a license therefor."

The ordinance passed on first and second readings and was laid over for final passage.

The Mayor then appointed Dr. J. H. Carman a member of the Board of Health for four years, the same to date from January 15th, 1896, when his present term will expire.

There being no further business to come before the council an adjournment was made. A special meeting will be held at an early date, when the bids for erecting a fire tower and the purchase of a bell will be considered.

IT'S GROWING WARMER.

And the Present Delightful Weather Will Not Last For Long.

Fair weather for several days and then rain is the verdict of the weather bureau. The cold snap is over and this morning at seven o'clock, instead of being at zero the mercury stood at 22 above. But this delightful weather will not last and the mercury is looked to climb clear above the freezing point and the warm sultry days will return. Our snow has been a fake as far as sleighing was concerned and yet, in the naughty town of Hoboken, four inches of frozen vapor covered the ground after the last storm. But the trucks and wagons soon transformed it into dirty slush and mud.

The skating is excellent, however, and has comforted the would-be sleighriders. All the ponds in the vicinity were crowded yesterday. Some public spirited individuals have swept the snow off New Market pond and it is now in excellent condition. Yesterday afternoon and evening several parties went there from Plainfield while the school boys turned out en masse this morning.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

ENGLAND HARD PUSHED

Abrogation of Anglo-Boer Convention Demanded.

Conditions Under Which Dr. Jameson and Other Prisoners Will Be Released—Great Britain Without a Friend in Her Troubles—Latest Arrests Cause Surprise.

London, Jan. 11.—The troubles in the Transvaal are again causing the government the most serious consideration, and the latest news from the little south Africa republic has renewed excitement in this city. The announcement that the Uitlanders had practically refused to surrender their arms and that a number of members of the national reform committee had been arrested at Johannesburg on charges of high treason caused much astonishment in view of the previous pacific reports. Among the prisoners arrested are several of the leading residents of Johannesburg, including Col. Rhodes, brother of Cecil Rhodes, ex-prime minister of Cape Colony, who is said to be ill at Cape Town. It is believed here that Cecil Rhodes will bring all his influence, which is very powerful, to bear to secure the release of his brother. There is no single man who has done so much to develop south Africa as Mr. Rhodes, and though in carrying out his plans he has made many enemies, it can truthfully be said that he is the most powerful man in that part of the world to-day. Behind him is a majority of the Afrikanders, and though he may have nomially retired from active participation in politics the impression prevails that in any final settlement of the Transvaal question he will have to be taken into consideration.

No Anxiety for Their Ultimate Fate.

At present nothing is heard of his plans, even if he has formulated any, but those who know the man and the power he wields will not believe that the present trouble will cause him to diverge from the ambitious path he has for years been hewing for himself. He may be for the moment compelled to abide the issue of the present troubles, but that he will later again take a hand in shaping the destinies of south Africa there can scarcely be a doubt. He has always been a man of action, not words, and his future policy will, once decided upon, probably not be known until it is put into effect. The arrest of the members of the national reform committee does not cause any great anxiety, however, regarding their fate, as it is generally believed that in no event will any severe punishment be inflicted upon them.

Terms for Jameson's Release.

The report that Dr. Jameson had been released turns out to have been premature. President Kruger, in reply to the message of Queen Victoria, says that he intends to turn Jameson and the other English prisoners who took part in the raid over to the British government for punishment, but a dispatch from Johannesburg states that the surrender of the prisoners will be made conditional on the abrogation of the Anglo-Boer convention of 1884, which gives Great Britain suzerainty over the Transvaal. If such a condition as this is imposed by the Boers it is quite certain that Great Britain will never agree to it. The government is determined to uphold this convention in all its terms, and, although the Transvaal government may urge that Dr. Jameson's raid made the convention null and void, it is pretty safe to say that Great Britain will never accept that view of the matter unless she is compelled to do so. To abrogate the convention now would be to acknowledge that the reported attitude of Emperor William anent the Transvaal is correct, and the temper of the English people to-day is not such as to allow the government to concede this, even were it disposed to do so. As a matter of fact, the government will make not the slightest concession in the matter to Germany, but is prepared or preparing to maintain what it believes to be its rights, by force of arms, if necessary.

England Without a Friend.

Never before has the isolation of Great Britain been so completely driven home in the minds of the British people. Hitherto they have been accustomed to believing that should England become embroiled in a war with a foreign power she would find sympathy if not actual aid from some of the European nations. Now it is known that in all Europe she has not a single friend, and many believe that her enemies are only waiting an opportunity to attack her and deprive her of some of her vast possessions. A dispatch from Berlin last night shows, if it is true, that there is some sort of understanding between the powers as to the action to be taken by them relative to England. This dispatch states that unless Great Britain accedes to the demands of the Transvaal, which includes the abrogation of the treaty of 1884, Germany will urge President Kruger to appeal to the European powers to support him in his demands. This, if it means anything, means that Germany is in a position to know that the powers would support the Transvaal, and the only way in which support could be given, unless England receded from her position, would be to declare war upon Great Britain. That this will be done few persons believe.

Pushing War Preparations.

The situation is a complicated one, and the more it is studied the wider the vista of its possibilities becomes. But with the hands of all the powers against her, Great Britain is awaiting to see from what direction the first blow will be delivered. Should an attack be made upon her she will be found not unprepared. In every direction measures are being taken to ward off possible dangers, and the nation is rapidly putting itself in a position where, if events warrant such a course, it will itself be able to deal the first blow. The greatest activity is being displayed at the dockyards, where the torpedo boat destroyers which are to be attached to the channel fleet and flying squadron are being prepared to go into commission. Colonial Secretary Chamberlain has gone to the Isle of Wight, where he will visit the queen and lay before her majesty the full details of the situation and explain to her the naval and military preparations that are under way.

MASONIC BENEFT ASSOCIATION.

Standing of the Organization in Connecticut as Shown by Reports.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11.—The twenty-second annual meeting of the Masonic Mutual Benefit association, an organization doing business all over the state, was held here last night. From reports submitted it is shown that the total membership is 2,590. During the year just ended there were thirty-four deaths, or 631 since organization. The receipts during the year were $103,260, of which $98,541 was from assessments. Of this sum $95,200 was paid out in death claims. The certificates outstanding have total face value of $4,784,000. The total benefits paid since organization was $1,274,000. The treasurer's report shows cash on hand in several banks throughout the state $17,668.60 and the value of the invested fund of the association is $64,104.

GOULD INHERITANCE TAX.

Nearly $600,000 Must Be Paid by the Late Millionaire's Heirs.

New York, Jan. 11.—Surrogate Fitzgerald has signed an order fixing the amount of inheritance tax to be paid by the heirs of the late Jay Gould as follows: Abraham Gould, $477.71; Anna G. Hough, $404.83; Sarah B. Northrup, $397.40, and Elizabeth Palen, $432.48. These are the brother and sisters of the deceased. George J. Gould, $90,771.94; Jay Gould, $5,000; Helen M. HARRISON DUE IN NEW YORK.

To Attend to Legal Business, and Not To Wed at Present, It Is Said.

New York, Jan. 11.—Ex-President Harrison will arrive in this city to-day. It is said that he is coming here to consult with the other attorneys in the California irrigation cases and that he will then go to Washington for the argument in the United States supreme court. It is hinted that he will return to this city after he finishes his business in Washington and that his marriage to Mrs. Dimmock will then take place.

DIME'S ARM BROKEN.

Connolly Declared the Winner of the Fight in the Third Round.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 11.—Eddie Connolly of New Brunswick and Jimmy Dime of Amsterdam, N. Y., met in the eighteen-foot arena of the Cleveland Athletic club last night in the presence of 3,000 persons, who paid $2.50 each to see these lightweights battle ten rounds for a purse of $1,200 and a side stake. At the end of the third round Dime broke his arm, and Connolly was declared the winner.

MURDER AND LYNCHING

Double Tragedy Near Ransomville, N. Y.

Robert Clapsaddle Killed by His Profligate Son-in-Law, George H. Smith, Who, After Wounding One of His Pursuers, Is Shot Down by a Posse at the Sheriff's Command.

Buffalo, Jan. 11.—Yesterday afternoon in the town of Ransomville, ten miles from Lockport, Robert Clapsaddle, an aged farmer, was brutally murdered by his profligate son-in-law, George H. Smith, and three hours later a posse of seventy-five of the most prominent farmers of the section meted out swift justice to the assassin, riddling his body with a score of bullets Farmer Clapsaddle, who was 68 years old, lived about a mile south of the village with his wife, their youngest daughter and a grandson 12 years old, the son of Smith who fifteen years ago married Clapsaddle's oldest daughter. About three years ago Smith's dissolute habits and brutality caused his wife to obtain a separation from him. Smith nursed the idea that Clapsaddle had induced his daughter to make this move, and just after the separation proceedings were begun he beat the old farmer in a brutal manner.

Murdered Without Warning.

He was sent to prison three times for this and other offenses, but the terms of his confinement were short. About eighteen months ago Mrs. Smith married John De Clute, a farmer living about four miles from the Clapsaddle house. Smith swore revenge upon old man Clapsaddle for alienating his wife's affections, but about this time he was convicted of perjury in swearing falsely against farmer John Moore, whom he charged with smuggling Chinamen, and was sent to prison for a year. As he was taken from court he swore to kill Clapsaddle when he regained his liberty. His term expired Nov. 1, and since that time he has lived a vagrant's life. Yesterday he went to the house of his aged father-in-law, whom he found reading a paper, and without a word of warning fired a bullet into his head, killing him instantly. The murderer then fled across the fields and the alarm being soon given a posse, headed by a deputy sheriff and a constable, gathered and started in pursuit, being followed by additions as the chase proceeded until it numbered over three score.

Wounded One of His Pursuers.

Smith's course lay in the direction of De Clute's house, the home of his divorced wife, and the posse fearing that he meditated further murders, hurried in the same direction. They had gone about two and a half miles when Smith was sighted in the distance about a quarter of a mile from De Clute's house. When the hunted murderer saw the posse closing in upon him he changed his direction and sped towards the house of a farmer named Brown which he reached just as the posse came up. Turning in the doorway of the house Smith fired a shot at his pursuers shouting: "The first man who follows me in here will be killed." The posse surrounded the house and Farmer Brown came out and told them Smith was secreted in a clothes press which had a window looking upon the yard. A rush was made for this window, but Smith, thrusting his arm out of the opening, fired another shot which broke the arm of Elmer Clapsaddle, a relative of the murdered man, and the crowd drew back.

Shot Down by the Posse.

Deputy Sheriff Wolf called upon the murderer to surrender, but receiving no response, and fearing that Smith was preparing for another attack, he ordered the posse to fire. Two score of rifles and shotguns rang out their reports and poured their contents into the wall of the house. The sound of a falling body and a groan followed the volley and the posse entering the house found Smith on the floor bleeding from a dozen wounds and unconscious. He was brought to Ransomville where he died late last night. Farmer Clapsaddle was one of the most respected men in the section of Niagara county in which he lived and had the sympathy of all his neighbors in the troubles which arose out of his relations with Smith who was one of the roughest characters that ever infested the country.

No New Move in Shea's Case.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Justice Fursman of this city, when asked if any application had been made before him in the matter of a new trial for "Hat" Shea, said: "No; I would not allow them to do so. I have no special term, anyway."

TERRORS OF THE SEA

Awful Sufferings of Crew of the Lost Ealing.

Nine Survivors, Frostbitten and Some in a Dying Condition, Drift Ashore in a Small Boat—Nine Others Perished of Exposure and Were Consigned to the Sea.

Canso, N. S., Jan. 11.—A boat from the wrecked steamer Ealing reached here yesterday just as night and a furious snow storm were closing in on the coast. The boat contained nine survivors of the wreck in a deplorable condition, and the story they tell of their sufferings since Monday evening, when their ship was wrecked, is thrilling. The sad particulars can only be gathered from them with difficulty as all are severely frostbitten, some unable to talk and others in delirium. From Second Officer Thomas, although his sufferings are intense, was gathered the following story:

Took to the Boats.

The ship struck about 6 p. m. Monday in a dense vapor which hid everything from view. They were unable to see land or lights and were going at quarter speed. An hour afterwards it was necessary to take to the boats, as the ship was settling fast and the sea was very heavy. They were unable to get the starboard boats clear, as the ship had listed to starboard. Two port boats were cleared, and Captain Meek with the first engineer, second officer, boatswain and fourteen others got in the larger boat, while the first officer, second and third engineers and three others got into the smaller boat. For several hours they hung by the line to the wreck, the smaller boat astern of the larger one, spray and vapor covering the boats and men with a sheeting of ice. Towards daylight they were obliged to let go in the hope of reaching shore.

Nine Succumbed to Exposure.

They soon lost sight of the small boat and concluded she could not have lived in the sea that was running and her crew of six had probably perished. The large boat in charge of Capt. Meek was unable to pull to shore and lost its spar and rudder in the effort to make sail. They were obliged to drift before the gale and two of the men succumbed to exposure during Tuesday night. The captain and Fireman Wilson died Thursday morning and later in the day the first engineer and three others expired. Yesterday at noon as they caught sight of land the ninth of the crew, an apprentice named Gilroy, died. All the dead were consigned to the sea to keep the heavily iced boat from sinking.

Died in Sight of Land.

At daylight they sighted a schooner about two miles to windward, but all efforts to attract her attention were futile. They were without compass, food or water. Just as land was sighted the apprentice boy Gilroy died. They hoped to bring him to land but found the gale increasing, and with a prayer, they consigned him to a watery grave at the entrance af the harbor. Collector Cookes and Port Medical Officer Brien took charge of the survivors immediately and there was no lack of sympathetic assistance. It is scarcely possible that all can recover, so far gone are some of them.

LACK OF APPROPRIATION.

Little Work Done in Strengthening Our Coast Defenses.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Gen. Craighill, a chief of engineers, has laid before the senate committee on coast defences detailed estimates of the money that can profitably be expended by the bureau of engineers during the present and next fiscal year at the ports of New York, San Francisco, Boston, the lake ports, Hampton Roads, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Portland, Me., Narragansett bay, Key West, Charleston, Mobile, New London, Savannah, Galveston, Portland, Ore., Pensacola, Wilmington, N. C., San Diege, Portsmouth, Cumberland sound, Kennebec river, New Bedford, Penobscot river, New Haven and Puget sound. He also submitted a detailed estimate of additional amounts that can be profitably expended until June 30, 1897, in case of a war emergency. He also gave a statement of the condition of the work at the present time at each of the ports named, from which it appeared that at but very few of them had any work beer done owing to lack of appropriations.

Movements of Our Warships.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Movements of naval vessels have been reported to the navy department by telegraph as follows: The Minneapolis, arrived at Sayrna; the Indiana at Newport, and the Amphitrite at Key West.

TRADE REMAINS QUIET

Mild Weather Somewhat Interfering with Business.

Stock-Taking Not Yet Completed by Some Wholesale Houses—Collections Not Altogether Satisfactory. Demand for Funds Active—A Few Lines Show Improvement.

New York, Jan. 11.—Bradstreet's to-day will say: General trade has not improved appreciably. Some wholesale houses are sending out travelers, while others have not completed taking account of stock. Mild weather at western points has interfered with business in some instances, and the week continues to present characteristics of a between-seasons period. The impression is general that uncertainty as to financial action by congress and disturbing political conditions have an unfavorable influence on the prospect for new enterprises. Mercantile collections east, west and northwest are somewhat complained of, but at the south the comparative ease with which they are made forms a conspicuous exception. Demand for funds at various western centers is the most active for a year. Stocks of wholesalers at many of the larger interior distributing points are low. First advices of salesmen on the road are of moderate demand for goods, improvement showing itself first in dry goods, shoes and clothing.

Prices of Staples Higher.

The course of prices of staples continues the improvement of last week, with an upward movement in live stock, pork and other meats, lard, flour, wheat, corn, oats, Bessemer pig and bar iron. In addition to these, firm prices are named for coal, tobacco, print cloths, steel billets, sugar, lumber, leather and hides, decreases being noted for coffee, cotton and petroleum, in addition to the cut of $1 for southern pig and 25c. for eastern iron. Comparative prices for 109 staples, quarterly, for five years, show that prices for the following are higher than they were one, two and three years ago: Mackerel, molasses, sugar, raisins, Buenos Ayres hides, hemlock leather, eastern sheetings, southern pig iron, quicksilver, southern coke, Pennsylvania coke, crude and refined petroleum, naphtha, rosin, nails, alum, carbolic acid, nitric acid, sulphuric acid, quinine and rubber. In addition, rice, cranberries, currents and quinine are higher than they were two years ago, and as compared with one year ago, in addition to the foregoing, the following are higher in price: Flour, sheep, mutton, lemons, wool, hemp, flax, prints, gihgham, iron ore, Bessemer pig iron, steel billets, rails and beams, silver, tin, soft coal, hay and cottonseed. Out of 107 staples only 41 are lower to-day than on Jan. 1, 1895, 55 are lower than two years ago, while 78 are lower than on Jan. 1, 1893, prior to the panic of that year.

Bank Clearings.

Speculation is narrow and professional, but the stock market is strong on the belief that the $100,000,000 bond issue will be successful, and that no severe depletion of the treasury gold reserve is likely during the thirty days of delay for popular subscriptions. The money market is decidedly less nervous, but 6 per cent. rates are considered likely to continue the rule for some time to come. Bank clearings aggregate $1,235,000,000 this week, an increase of about 25 per cent. over the week before, and 19 per cent. compared with the week one year ago, and even more than that as compared with the corresponding week in 1894, but 10 per cent. less when compared with the like total in 1893, and 12 per cent. smaller than the corresponding total in 1892. There are 446 business failures in the United States this week, an exceptionally heavy total. Last week the aggregate was 403; in the week one year ago it was 405, and in the corresponding week of 1894, just after the panic, it was 484, while in the like week of 1893, five months prior to the financial disturbance that year, the total was only 301.

Industrial Situation Improved.

The general industrial situation is moderately improved. In no department are there more unfavorable conditions than a week ago, while the idleness of some steel mills and the certainty production of pig iron will be curtailed have produced a better feeling. Woolen industries remain unchanged, with wool stronger on the proposed increase of duty. Cotton goods are firm, with limited demand, owing to the position of raw cotton, the latter having advanced nearly one-half from the lowest price, and the former only about one-seventh. Shipments of shoes have increased, six New England centers forwarding 100,000 cases within a week, against 70,000 the week before and 82,000 in the like week last year.

Fighting for the Convention.

St. Louis, Jan. 11.—The fund to secure the national democratic convention now stands at $40,000. A committee of representative citizens leaves here for Washington Sunday night to present the claims of St. Louis.

Steamer Paris in Port.

New York, Jan. 11.—The steamer Paris, from Southampton, arrived at her dock this morning. She crossed the bar at Sandy Hook at 7:34 last night, about four hours behind the record.

Western Passenger Commissions.

New York, Jan. 11.—The board of managers of the Joint Traffic association have adopted rules prohibiting the payment of passenger commissions

THE GRANT MADE BY THE
United States Government

Proving to Be a Boon to Suffering Humanity.

Tens of thousands of invalids have visited Hot Springs, Arkansas, almost despairing of recovery, but have been surprised at the wonderful cures effected, and have returned to their homes sound in mind and body. These celebrated waters, in curing physical ills, necessarily heal mental maladies, which arise from morbid conditions of the body or overwrought nervous forces. Too much cannot be said to induce those suffering with diseases that can be cured to try the efficacy of "Pura Blood." Under grant from the United States Government, the famous waters of Hot Springs, Arkansas, are used in its preparation. Try it, for it will cure you. "Pura Blood" is sold by all druggists at one dollar per bottle. Billups & Co, of 26 Cortlandt street, New York, are sole agents, and will send descriptive book free to any address.

AN ORDINANCE TO CREATE THE OFFICE OF INSPECTOR OF BUILDINGS AND TO DEFINE HIS POWERS, DUTIES AND COMPENSATION.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That there shall be appointed by the Common Council within thirty days after the approval or final adoption of this ordinance, and annually thereafter, on the first Monday of February in each year, an officer to be known as Inspector of Buildings, who shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic. The term of office of every person so appointed shall expire on the first Monday of February following the month of his appointment. His duties shall be such as devolve upon him as Inspector of Buildings by the laws of this State, and this and other ordinances of the City of Plainfield, and his compensation shall be the sum of five hundred dollars per annum. For brevity, said officer is hereinafter designated as Inspector.

Section 2. That the said Inspector is hereby charged with the performance of all services necessary to ensure the strict enforcement of the ordinances of the City now existing or that may be hereafter adopted, relating to the erection, construction or alteration of buildings therein. He shall keep a record of all applications for permits and preserve and properly index such drawings as may be filed of all plans on which permits shall be granted.

Section 3. That after any permit shall have been granted as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the said Inspector diligently to inspect said building while in course of erection, and to see that it is constructed in conformity with the ordinances of the City relating thereto. The said Inspector shall also keep a full and complete record of all buildings in course of erection or alteration, their style and proposed uses, and make a report of the same in writing once a month to the Common Council.

Section 4. That for the purpose of ascertaining all violations of ordinances designed for the more effectual prevention of fires, it shall be lawful for him, the said Inspector, whenever he shall have good and sufficient reason to believe that any of such ordinances are being violated, to enter into or upon any lands or building for the examination of hoistways, trapdoors, fire-places, hearths, chimneys, stoves and pipes thereto, receptacles for ashes, ovens, boilers, heaters and chemical apparatus, which may be dangerous as tending to cause or promote fires; and it shall be his duty to direct the owner or occupant of any defective building, by notice signed by said Inspector, to alter the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as he may deem necessary. He shall also examine, at reasonable hours in the daytime, and it shall be lawful for him for that purpose to enter into and upon all buildings and places where any gunpowder, saltpetre, hemp, flax, tow, hay, rushes, firewood, boards, shingles, shavings, or other combustible materials may be lodged; and whenever he shall discover any violation of any of such ordinances, or anything that is detrimental to public safety, he shall notify in writing the owner or occupants of the building wherein such unlawful or unsafe conditions exist to immediately cause the same to be corrected, and it shall be the duty of the person so notified to comply with such notice. And in case of the neglect or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building, or the possessor of such combustible materials to correct said unlawful or unsafe conditions and to alter, remove or secure the same within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the person offending shall on conviction thereof pay a penalty of five dollars for each and every day after the expiration of the time in such notice stated he shall neglect or refuse to comply, not exceeding one hundred dollars in any one suit.

Section 5. That in case the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department of said City shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic, he may be appointed to said office of Inspector of Buildings, and hold both offices at the same time, and in that case, he shall devote all his time to the performance of the duties of said offices.

Adopted by the Common Council Dec. 30th, 1895.

Approved by the Mayor Jan. 3d, 1896.
A. GILBERT, Mayor.
Attest—J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

Foster Voorhees is left behind again. He ought to be use to disappointment by this time.

James J. Esterbrook, a veteran of the Mexican War, whose regiment took part in the capture of the City of Mexico, has been appointed by Gov. Werts one of the commissioners to represent New Jersey at the international fair to be held in the City of Mexico next April.

The Ministerial Union of Trenton has commenced a crusade against candy stores, soda fountains and like business enterprises, and will endeavor to make them close on Sunday. A newspaper report says that "it is understood on good authority that there will be no attempt made to close the barber shops or cigar stores." Any such movement directed against only the weaker of the violators would be the height of inconsistency.

The Christian Endeavor, a Chicago paper, has been printing letters from twelve Governors of States as to what they would suggest the 2,000,000 Christian Endeavorers to do along the line of Christian citizenship. Governor Griggs advises them to ally themselves with one of the two big political parties and not waste their strength. It is a poor suggestion. The organization is doing a great work in its present field of effort. An affiliation with political elements would prove a negative to its present line of work.

The custom of employing convicts in road making is increasing in South Carolina. The Constitutional Convention removed the obstructions in the way of the chain-gang system, and now all the officials with authority to sentence to imprisonment have the right to send convicted prisoners to the chain gang. This has resulted in an increased number of convictions, and in a lessening of the number of prisoners in the penitentiary. Nineteen counties have chain gangs at work on the roads, and other counties contemplate like action. The system works well in many of the counties, where several miles of good road have been built. Other counties complain of the expense involved. But it proves not to be unduly expensive where intelligently applied, and where the labor of the convicts is supplemented by the use of modern road machinery.

BRAVES, THEN HAYMAKERS.

Officers Installed in the Haymaker's Association by the Deputy State President.

The braves of Miantonomoh Tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men assembled around their campfire last evening. The application of a would-be Indian was received and routine business was transacted. After a number of suggestions had been made for the improvement of the tribe, the council adjourned to attend the meeting of the Miantonomoh Lodge of the State Association of Haymakers. The following officers for the ensuing year were then installed by Deputy State President William Newcorn and staff:

Past chief haymaker, D. C. Allen; chief haymaker, Charles L. Holstein; assistant chief haymaker, F. L. McCarty; overseer, Joseph Newman; collector of straws, J. A. Karet; keeper of bundles, Joseph Newman; boss driver, C. Fulmer; hornblower, M. Leahy; guard of barn door, G. Houseman; guard of hay loft, G. Lederer.

After the installation was over the haymakers adjourned to the Crescent Hotel where a sumptuous collation was served.

Soon to Be a Minister.

Rev. Mr. Scudder, of Newark, who is well known in this city, will be graduated from Drew Theological Seminary next month. He now has a charge in Newark, and last Sunday exchanged pulpits with Rev. Mr. Wimans, of Watessesing, Essex county.

Rev. G. L. Luckenbill, formerly of this city, but later of Boonton, has given up preaching and is now visiting his uncle at Excellsior, Missouri. From there he will go to Eureka Springs, Kansas, for his health.

In the Beginning

Of a new year, when the winter season of close confinement is only half gone, many find that their health begins to break down, that the least exposure threatens sickness. It is then as well as at all other times, and with people even in good health, that the following facts should be remembered, namely: that Hood's Sarsaparilla leads everything in the way of medicines; that it accomplishes the greatest cures in the world; has the largest sale in the world, and requires the largest building in the world devoted exclusively to the preparation of the proprietary medicine. Does not this conclusively prove, if you are sick, that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for you to take?

—The initiating team of Lucetta Council, No. 28, D. of L., will meet at the residence of W. W. Stratton, of East Third street, this evening, for practice. No pains will be spared by Lucetta Council to make their team one of the best in the State. The team will make its first appearance at the institution of the new council in Bound Brook week after next.

No excuse for sleepless nights when you can procure One Minute Cough Cure. This will relieve all annoyances, cure the most severe cough and give you rest and health. Can you afford to do without it. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

APPEAL TO CHRISTIAN PEOPLE.

Workers Wanted for the Revival Meetings Next Week.

To the Christian people of Plainfield.—Once again we call your attention to the evangelistic services to begin on Monday evening next

1.—We call your attention to the fact that this is not a movement of the young people alone. They have this time placed themselves in the hands of the committee, and done very valuable preliminary work. They are ready to continue to labor with others, but have no thought but that this is a combined effort of all Christians.

2.—Because no evangelist has been engaged to conduct the meetings, we trust that no one will take the less interest in them. Firmly believing that God will honor the faith and work of His people, we make an earnest appeal to all who earnestly desire a revival although we present you no human name for a sign, we confidently ask for volunteers in that Name which is above every name. Instead of looking to an evangelist for leading, we claim the promised guidance of the Holy Spirit. Let this, and the notices read in the several pulpits tomorrow, be understood as a personal and urgent invitation to every Christian to work.

3.—That the minds of the people may be as little diverted as possible, we suggest that Christians make no social engagements, which they can possibly avoid. Attend the services yourself and do what you can to secure the presence of others. Cancel every other engagement, and consider this the only binding one.

4.—Believing in the efficacy of prayer, we urge upon you that the coming Sabbath be observed as a day of prayer for the meetings to come. Let the congregations pray in the public worships, the Sunday-schools pray in their sessions, let families pray at their alter, and in the privacy of his closet let each Christian pray. Believing that that this movement is of God, and that it will receive the seal of His approval, we are

Yours sincerely,
C. R. Barnes, Com

THEATRICAL.

"Hands Across the Sea" bids fair to rival "Uncle Tom'sCabin" in dramatic longevity, and its popularity is well deserved. Its drawing power was attested by the large audience at Music Hall last night. The play itself is so well known that it is needless to repeat its story. Of the company it may be said that it is quite as satisfactory as any producing the piece at higher prices, and is under the same management. Maurice Freeman, a strong local favorite, has the leading role of Jack Dudley. His reception was one which any actor might be proud of. George Mack was good as Tom Bassett, and the same is true of Perry Brigham as Robert Stillwood. Carl Fay is fine indeed as Jean de Lussac. James Otley, who was with the original company, repeats previous successes as Dick Melford. Jos. Damery is pleasing as Count Paul. Tillah Wefling is excellent as Lillian Melford, and C. Blanche Rice in the soubrette role. All the minor parts are satisfactorily assumed. The scenery, particularly that of the ship in the fourth act, is well fitted to the play. There will be a matinee today and tomorrow.—Wilkesbarre Record. Music Hall next Friday night.

Remarkable Success.

Edsall says the marvelous success of his Commercial Palace during the past two years, and the increasing popularity of the same is a great encouraging for still greater efforts in the future. He says it has stopped thousands of dollars from going to New York, and in all probability will stop double the amount in the year 1896. Mr. Edsall feels so good, over the results of last year's business that he is going to celebrate the same by inaugurating a great big boomer 1896 sale, which is announced in his "ad" today. Great money saving transaction to the customer in all departments.

—The building being erected at the corner of Clinton avenue and Front street by Norman Barnes is about completed. He will open a grocery at that place, using the upper part for residential purposes.

Strength and Vigor

Given by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Abscess, Varicose, Veins, and Other Troubles.

"I wish to testify in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Different physicians and my friends had given me up. I was treated for spinal disease, consumption and varicose, and an abscess on my left hip. I was simply awful and I could not walk for many months. I had to be carried and handled like a child. 'I became reduced in weight from 132 to 70 pounds. At last a friend persuaded me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and I have and now weigh 125 pounds. The abscess on my hip is almost well and I have gained strength and vigor. I

Dunellen.

Miss Nailor, who has been visiting relatives in Brooklyn, has returned home.

Next Monday evening the newly-elected officers of Court Dunellen will be installed.

Mr. Dayton, of New Market, has returned home from a visit with friends at Brooklyn.

Miss Kratzel, of North avenue, has returned home from her visit with friends at Cranford.

Miss Anna Brown, who has been visitihg friends in town, has returned home to Chester, Pa.

Mrs. H. Giles, of Bound Brook, who has been visiting Mrs. Howard Giles, of Dunellen avenue, has returned home.

Rudolf Runyon will open an undertaking establishment in the Thorn building, Somerset street, Plainfield, next week.

A meeting will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms on January 15th to talk over forming a stock company to erect a public hall.

The Methodist congregation will unite with the Presbyterian congregation Sunday to partake with them in their communion services.

John Herbert, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Herbert, of Church street, has returned home to Jersey City.

A dance was held Thursday night at the Park Hotel by several young men of this place. The hall was very prettily decorated with greens and potted plants. The grand march was led by Miss Lena Maier and Fred Hock, of Somerville. Music for dancing was furnished by Prof. Nailor, of Plainfield. Among those present were the Misses Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Conley, Joseph Maier, Mr. Rowname, Mrs. C. Dodwell and son Harry, Miss Cecelia Staats, Tom McKinley, Chas. Smith, of New York; W. S. Corsin, George Eldridge, Elmer Eldridge, Miss Anna Doyle, of Cranford; Mr. Hock, of Somerville; the Misses Hunt, of this place; C. W. Johnson, H. Swackhamer, Ed Hardingham, Mr. Cady, Joe Hague, of Evona; Miss Fisher, Miss Boice, Miss Agnes Sheean, Miss McCue, Postmaster Fred Willis, of Bound Brook; George Sheean, of Bound Brook. The guests departed about 3 o'clock.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. THE MARVELOUS SUCCESS OF

The Commercial Palace,

during the year just closed inspires the proprietor to still greater efforts during the coming year. The figuring up of the business year of 1895 shows a gain on sales of a good many thousand dollars over last year.

This is taken as conclusive evidence of the growing popularity of the house and that the great masses of the trading public like to patronize just such a large, up-to-date metropolitan house in Plainfield instead of going to New York.

In fact we feel so good over the magnificent showing that we are going to celebrate the same by inaugurating our first

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Columbia Bicycle catalogue has made its nineteenth annual appearance, and is just what might be expected from the Pope Manufacturing Company. Aside from its interest in the detailed information given in regard to Columbia and Hartford bicycles, the production can certainly be prized as a high example of the designers' art and the printers' skill, and it will no doubt be eagerly sought by those who indulge in the latest fad of collecting bicycle catalogues.

At a Political Conference.

Assemblyman W. R. Codington was in attendance at a conference of the supporters of Assemblyman Skinner at the Astor House in New York yesterday.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., met last evening and transacted routine business. A large attendance is requested for next week's meeting when the third rank will be worked in the long form.

—The auction sale of horses, wagons, stock, fixtures, etc., belonging to the estate of R. W. Rice, will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, corner Duer and Emily streets, and continue every evening until all is sold.

A Midnight Disturbance.

The residents in the vicinity of West Seventh street, between Park and Madison avenues, were aroused at about midnight last night by the sound of pistol shots. Screams were also heard. No one cared to make any extensive investigations, however, and it is not known what caused the commotion. It is supposed that it was a party of intoxicated men.

—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Camden has scored a big victory in the conviction of one saloon keeper for illegal liquor selling and the pleading non vult contendre of twenty-three others in the county court. It is hinted that the Court proposed meting out severe punishment, and now the liquor men are afraid of State Prison sentences.

Use It in Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucus discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears, and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure of these troubles.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character, and if instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases, and always with like results. It never fails. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

THE ART OF GIVING.

Dr. Parkhurst Asserts That It Must Be Learned Just as Spelling Is.

"The Passion of Money Getting" is the topic of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's paper in The Ladies' Home Journal. In discussing one phase of his theme he says:

A man cannot be trusted to do right in this (the art of giving) or in any other particular till he can do right easily—that is to say, until it has become his habit to do right. Giving cannot be left to impulse any more than spelling can be left to impulse. We have seen what might be called impulsive spellers, and they make just the same wretched work with orthography that impulse giving makes with charity. Nor is the purpose subserved by putting into the child's hands as a gratuity the money that he is expected to bestow as a beneficence. Merely letting money go through his hands will not make him charitable any more than letting water slip through a lead pipe will make the lead fertile. The act that is going to strengthen the little boy giver or the little girl giver in the direction of a matured generous disposition must be an act in which the actor feels that he is parting with something that is his own, not something which he is merely handling in the capacity of agent. It is a very common thing, if there is a beggar at the door to whom a pittance is to be given, or a gathering in the church or the Sunday school where the contribution box is to be passed, for the child to obtain from its father or mother the requisite penny, and then for the child and parent both to imagine that the child was somehow involved in and disciplined by the penny's conferment. The child in the Sunday school does not learn to give in that way any more than the child in the spelling class learns to spell by the bare mimicry of the letters that the teacher herself puts into the child's mouth.

We learn to spell by making the spelling our act. We learn to give by making the giving act our act. It is hoped that this truism will touch a vibrating chord in the intelligences and hearts of parents. The world is full of moneyed men; but, really great as is the amount bestowed in benefaction, it sustains a very feeble ratio to the amount that men and women bestow on themselves, and it is not because these people are intentionally sordid and have no blood in their hearts, but because years ago, when they were children, their parents imagined that while schooling would be necessary in order to qualify their offspring to read and write, no schooling in particular would be necessary in order to educate them into the far more difficult capability of parting with their own possessions in the interests of and for the bettering of others, safeguarding the lesser, trusting to chance for the greater.

Tom Thumb's Wedding.

Do you remember Tom Thumb's wedding?

It took place in Grace church, not with a sexton masquerading in robes, but with a bona fide clergyman attended by his staff, says Joe Howard in the New York Recorder. The church was packed. There was quite as much genuine interest in that incident as there can be in any wedding ceremony, and thousands sought admission only to be repulsed. Men and women pushed and crowded and jostled. Some stood upon the backs of the pews, and when the tiny couples, General Thomas Thumb, Miss Lavinia Warren, Commodore Nutt and Miss Minnie Warren, made their appearance, obs and ahs echoed throughout the sacred edifice. The ladies were gowned most sumptuously, rare laces covered the sheeny satin, costly jewels ornamented their ears, their necks, their garments and their hands. There were titles galore, and all the money that was needed to hire the most fashionable church, to fee a high priced clergyman and to secure the artistic efforts of the most accomplished musicians of the time. Prior to the event the newspapers printed columns concerning the contracting parties Unlike many others, these were really notables. They had been received, not only by the crowned heads of Europe, by the sovereign American people. Wherever they went crowds attended them. Their miniature coach, drawn by miniature horses, guided by a miniature driver and served by miniature footmen, was the theme of admiring comment. The marriage of Tom Thumb and Lavinia Warren was a great event in Gotham.

What Is Dirt?

Old Dr. Cooper used to say to his students: "What is dirt? Don't be afraid of a little dirt, young gentlemen. What is dirt? Why, nothing at all offensive when chemically viewed. Rub a little alkali upon that dirty grease spot on your coat, and it undergoes a chemical change and becomes soap; now rub it with a little water, and it disappears; it is neither grease, soap, water nor dirt.

"That is not a very odorous pile of dirt you observe there. Well, scatter a little gypsum over it, and it is no longer dirty. Everything you call dirt is worthy of your notice as students of chemistry. Analyze it—analyze it! It will all separate into very clear elements. Dirt makes corn, corn makes bread and meat, and that makes a very sweet young lady that I saw one of you kissing last night. So, after all, you were kissing dirt, particularly if she whitened her skin with chalk or fuller's earth.

"There is no telling, young gentlemen, what is dirt, though I may say that rubbing such stuff upon the beautiful skin of a young lady is a dirty practice. Pearl powder is made of bismuth—nothing but dirt."

Animals of Paradise.

In the east it is commonly said that ten animals were admitted to paradise: (1) The dog Kratim of the seven sleepers of Ephesus; (2) Balaam's ass, which reproved the disobedient prophet; (3) Solomon's ant, which reproved the sluggard; (4) Jonah's whale; (5) the ram of Israel, caught by the horns and offered in sacrifice instead of Isaac; (7) the camel of Saleb; (8) the cuckoo of Belkis; (9) the ox of Moses; (10) the animal called Al Borak, which conveyed Mohammed to heaven. The following are sometimes added or substituted: The ass on which our Saviour rode into Jerusalem; the ass on which the queen of Sheba rode when she visited Solomon.

Chance.

Chance never yet writ a legible book; never built a fair house; never drew a neat picture; never did any of these things nor ever will; nor can it, without absurdity, be supposed to do them, which are yet works very gross or rude, and very easy and feasible, as it were, in comparison to the production of a flower or a tree.—Barrow.

Women Make Music In Japan.

The chief exponents of music in Japan are women. Most men would consider that they were making themselves ridiculous by singing or playing in society.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

Munyon!

Receives a Voluntary Tribute of Gratitude From Mr. Garman.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM,

Of Eighteen Years Duration Cured by Munyon's Improved Homoeopathic Remedies.

Mr. Michael Garman, 723½ Broad street, Johnstown, Pa, says: "Eighteen years ago my rheumatism began in my knees and hips and finally spread all over my body in such a severe form that I had to use a cane to walk with. The pains in the shoulders also became so bad that it was agony to lie down. My wrists, shoulders and knees were continually swollen and I had to lay off work months at a time. I employed doctors without number and as to patent medicines I've taken barrels of them. Liniments I used until the flesh was raw, all to no avail. Pains would shoot through me almost tearing the joints apart. Three days after beginning the use of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure I noticed decided benefit and in less than four weeks I was completely cured. Have not had an ache or pain since."

A Specific for Each Disease.

THE CLINK OF GOLD

"I can't help thinking, Field," said he when he had partially appeased a very keen appetite—"I can't help thinking that you're an uncommonly lucky fellow."

"Possibly," said I, "but few men, you know, consider themselves lucky."

Scroggie glanced round the room, and I could see by the nervous manner in which he was rolling a fresh cigarette that he had something on his mind which he wished to communicate. "Uncommonly lucky," he went on thoughtfully—"a cozy set of chambers, a warm fire, an easy chair, a reference library, all complete. Not much inducement, under the circumstances, to leave England, now, have you?"

I had returned to my armchair and had lit my pipe. I answered, with my eyes on the fire, where pictures rose up among the red and rugged coals:

"A tour through France, Switzerland and Italy is a pleasure which I'm looking forward to. At present I can't afford it."

"No?" said Scroggie quickly and in a tone of concern, though whether for me or for himself I could not decide. His voice and his manner puzzled me. I fancied at first that he contemplated borrowing money, but I quickly dismissed the thought, for he had never hinted to me that he was needy, and although he had no scruples about sharing my supper or passing a night upon my sofa I believed that he would have starved rather than borrow a sou. We never spoke to each other of our private affairs, but since Scroggie had referred to my cozy chambers I was constrained to say something by way of apology for being in possession of such a luxury.

"As you know—as you know, I'm only a briefless barrister. I inherited these books and this furniture from my grandfather. He lived in these rooms, and I came into possession when he died. My literary work pays for bread and cheese. When a 'foreign correspondent' is wanted, away I shall go, with a light valise on my shoulder and a walking stick in my hand."

Scroggie looked still more thoughtful. Presently he said, "And when you arrive, after a long day's journey, at your hotel you will sleep soundly, with no troubles in the past."

"Not many."

"With no anxieties about the future, except such as give zest to life and awaken ambition."

I laughed and said that I liked the picture.

"And when," continued Scroggie—"and when you have grown tired of traveling, and you turn your face toward home, how pleasant to know that a snug set of chambers"——

"And that laundress of mine will be waiting to receive me," I said, with a smile, "but," I added, "talking of Mrs. Billings, I now propose that we mix the whisky."

Scroggie was, I feared, becoming sentimental, so I made this suggestion in order to revive his spirits.

But the whisky did not altogether have the desired effect. He sat silent for some time, looking steruly at the fire, and the same worn expression came over his face which I observed when Frank Bowser was recounting the murder of Mr. Darell.

"Field," said he as last without changing his attitude—"Field, old fellow, for more than two years I have been living in London, and almost on my arrival I began to receive hospitality from you. You gave me a hearty welcome when we met, and ever since I have been 'dropping' in here, and, I am afraid, wasting valuable time."

I assured him—how could I do otherwise?—that he had never wasted an hour.

"Well," said he doubtfully, "I hope not. However, it will end tonight. I'm going to travel."

I expressed astonishment, though nothing could have surprised me less.

"Yes, I am going to travel," he repeated, "and although it was my intention to have started without mentioning the matter even to you, somehow, after all your kindness, I thought perhaps if I did it might have created a wrong impression. I wished to thank—I wished to—to— Yes, I'm going to travel."

"America?" I suggested.

"That depends," he replied quickly—"that depends on circumstances. I'm waiting for a—for instructions. Anyhow," he added, "I'm going to travel."

Now that he had relieved his mind of the confession he began to grow drowsy and frequently nodded at the fire, as though he were bidding it adieu, but as soon as he fell into a doze he would get a start and gaze about him with a frightened look in his eyes. Then, as soon as he caught a glimpse of me quietly smoking my pipe, he would smile, mutter "All right" and go off into another doze.

"You're tired," said I at a moment when I thought he appeared to be looking in my direction.

"I'm going," was his reply, shutting his eyes and again nodding at the fire, "to travel."

"Not tonight."

He started up suddenly, with a cry upon his lips.

"What?"

"I asked you if you were tired?" said I.

"Tired? No. Was I dreaming?"

"Yes," said I. "Won't you lie down?"

"Well," he answered, looking toward the sofa sleepily, "if you've no objection. Yes, I think I will for five minutes. I shall be all right in five minutes. Eh?"

He always said "five minutes," but his sleep usually lasted over the night and often far into the day that followed. He pulled off his coat, threw my rug over his shoulders and lay down.

"I say, Field, old fellow," said he, in a scarcely audible tone, as he turned his weary face to the wall, "what a hospitable—old chap—you are! I say—dear boy—I'm—going—to—trav"——

Then I heard his heavy breathing and knew that he was fast asleep.

How long I sat in my armchair before the fire after Scroggie had fallen asleep I do not know, but hours must have passed before the incident occurred which I am now about to relate. I felt no inclination to retire to bed, and in this wakeful mood many strange fancies took possession of me, and the most strange of them all was that a sound like the clink of gold was ringing in my brain.

I could not dismiss it. It kept my thoughts constantly fixed upon Frank Bowser until I became absolutely haunted by scenes in which I imagined that he formed a central figure—scenes on the docks, in noisy taverns and dark streets, where men lurked about with villainous looks, until at last the river and its mysteries rose up before me, and I became troubled with a presentiment that some harm had really befallen my friend, for when the sound of a footstep echoed in the court below my windows or a heavy tread on the staircase outside reached my ear I feared it was a messenger who had come to confirm what was passing in my mind.

Suddenly he raised his arm.

In this nervous, dreamy condition my thoughts became so completely separated from my immediate surroundings that when, with a suddenness that appalled me, the dead silence of the night was disturbed by a prolonged and dreadful shout, my heart seemed to have ceased to beat and my limbs to be paralyzed with terror.

The impulse was strong within me to spring to my feet; but, although my brain was remarkably active, strange to say my body was dead to all sense of volition. Yet, although I could not move my head, objects which passed within the limits of my vision were not even clouded, but distinctly defined, and there I saw, with the pale and haggard face of one who is haunted, my old schoolfellow, Scroggie.

His eyes were wide open and seemed to express an irresistible fascination for some beckoning spirit. Presently he spoke in whispers, as though addressing this phantom of his brain, but in a voice so low that not a word reached my ears.

At last he looked about as though the shadow had vanished, though his breath fell more quickly from his lips, and his right arm now stiffened from the shoulder, and he grasped, in fancy, some heavy weapon which he was handling, with a look of dogged energy and resolution. His face had changed into the expression of a demon, dark as night, and he seemed to be groping his way, as if blind, and stopping in a listening attitude, and then groping on again, but with one overmastering purpose.

Suddenly he raised his arm, and with his imaginary weapon aimed at the air a blow so full of concentrated force that he staggered under it, uttered a low cry and fell heavily to the ground.

Then, and only then, the power to move came back to me, and I sprang to his assistance. He was lying on his back, gasping. He had become as black in the face as if he had been transformed into a veritable demon. With great difficulty I succeeded in loosening his collar. Each moment it seemed to me must be his last.

I raised him from the floor and placed him on the sofa, and slowly signs of consciousness returned. After staring around the room in a strange, bewildered fashion his eyes settled upon my face.

"Are you all right now?"

He put his hand to his forehead, and a look of pain passed over his face such as I shall never forget.

"All right," said he, "all right. It was only a dream."

Then he again turned his weary face toward the wall, muttering, "Only a dream," and then he fell asleep.

At this moment the flame of the reading lamp fluttered, like a heart, and expired, and I was left in darkness. The fire had burned out, and the midnight air had a ghostly chill in it as it touched my cheek, and my pulse, beating loudly, sounded in my ear like ghostly whisperings that seemed to warn me that I was alone in my chambers with the man who had murdered the father of Alice Darell.

self-help

You are weak, "run-down," health is frail; strength gone. Doctors call your case anæmia—there is a fat-famine in your blood. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites, is the best food-means of getting your strength back—your doctor will tell you that.

He knows also that when the digestion is weak it is better to break up cod-liver oil out of the body than to burden your tired digestion with it. Scott's Emulsion does that.

AN ORDINANCE

locating the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and regulating the construction and operation of the same, and also concerning the compensation to be paid by said Plainfield Street Railway Company to the City of Plainfield.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield:

Route 1. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung ave through Watchung ave to East Fifth street, through East Fifth street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to Putnam avenue, and through Putnam avenue to Woodland avenue, through Woodland avenue to South avenue, through South avenue to the station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Netherwood. Also from Watchung ave., through Fourth st to Grant ave.

And in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on map filed in the office of the city clerk of said city entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turn-outs and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway, No. 2, and signed by John T. Fritts, Vice-President, dated, Sept 1895," to which reference is made and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance; and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to; the same being such restrictions and regulations as the common council hereby deem requisite for the public interests, as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereafter enacted by said common council. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the City Clerk by said company, and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Sec. 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of the street, except on Watchung avenue; between North avenue and East Fourth street, and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the points and places indicated for the same on said map.

The poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground, and wires strung on poles on the line of street railways now operated in the city of Plainfield by the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Sec. 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets, the paving or other surface materials of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double tracks, or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks" shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of a street, the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's tracks and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repair, said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Sec. 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said track or tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when moving said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its officers, servants agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately levelled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practicable to level the same as aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall pay its pro rata of the expense of the removal of said snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for every city block on which any such violation shall take place but said penalty shall not aggregate more than one hundred dollars in any one day; said penalties to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employees so offending for each and every offence.

Sec. 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city, entitled, "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars", approved April 27 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as a part of this ordinance.

Sec. 6. That the guage of the tracks of the said company to be hereafter laid shall be four feet eight and one-half inches, and the other tracks of said company already laid may be made of the same guage. That all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the common council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity, and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs, and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks.

For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Sec. 7. That said company shall on or before the first day of March, 1896, equip each street railway car by it operated or run within the city of Plainfield, with fenders of the most approved pattern, to be approved by the Mayor of the city, and so attached to the car as best to protect from injury persons or vehicles using the streets or riding on the said cars; that after said last mentioned date no street railway car, the motive power of which is electricity, shall be operated or run upon any of the streets of said city, unless such car is equipped with fenders as above required, and in case any such car is operated or run contrary hereto the said company and every person or persons who shall either as president, manager, conductor, motorman or otherwise be engaged in so operating or running any such car shall be deemed to have violated this section and on conviction shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for each day during which such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars for any one conviction.

Sec. 8. The said company shall build or construct its extensions in the order specified in Sec. 1 and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 1 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within nine months after the passage of this ordinance, and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 2 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within twelve months after the passage of this ordinance; or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance, shall thereupon cease and determine, and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such right, power and privilege to said company is concerned, and in either of such cases the common council expressly reserves the right to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them, and to sell and dispose of the materials therefrom by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets, and of restoring the same nearly as possible to its or their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company, or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the federal courts in New Jersey, shall not be included within the nine and twelve months within which the said extensions are to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Sec. 9. The said company shall for each and every mile of street occupied by its tracks laid already or that shall hereafter be laid by said Company, whether under the provisions of the ordinance hereinabove referred to, approved April 27, 1891, or the amendment thereof approved May 4, 1892, or under the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance authorizing the Plainfield Street Railway Company to extend the location of its tracks", approved Oct. 4, 1892, or under this ordinance, or under any other ordinance, and also for every mile of street occupied by tracks that may be owned or operated or that may be hereafter owned or operated by said company within the limits of the city of Plainfield, pay or cause to be paid to the collector of taxes of said city for the use of the said city, the following sums, to wit: For the year beginning Jan 1, 1896, fifty dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1897, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1898, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan 1, 1899, one hundred dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1900 one hundred dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1901, one hundred and twenty-five dollars a mile, for each and every mile of track; said payments to be made each and every year on or before the last day of each year.

For the years succeeding that beginning 1901 the said company shall pay at the same rate as for the year 1901, provided that when the gross receipts in any one year from the entire system within the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield shall equal or exceed eighty thousand dollars, then for that year and annually thereafter, the said company shall pay annually to said city collector for the use of said city five per cent. of the gross earnings of said company, and said gross earnings shall be construed to include all earnings of said company and full proportion on all earnings on through traffic to be calculated according to the proportion between the entire length of the journey and the number of miles travelled within the limits of the city of Plainfield or the borough of North Plainfield or both as the case may be. That to enable the city to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of said company the books of the company shall be open to inspection by the finance committee of the common council or such other person or persons as the common council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall be in lieu of all license fees for cars, whether provided for in prior ordinances or not.

Sec. 10. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks, and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U.S. mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company, and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corners, and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Sec. 11. That in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer, a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance, and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto, and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons or corporations shall acquire any rights in the premises except subject to the same terms and conditions as herein provided.

Sec. 12. That said company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby, shall as a condition precedent file with the city clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the corporation counsel, wherein said company covenant and agree with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein, on the part of said company required to be observed, kept and performed; that it will, at any and all times hereafter, fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained, or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of, the adoption or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns, of said electric system aforesaid, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or any of its agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Sec. 13. That said company shall also at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract, file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the common council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained, on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the conditions or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by said company, its successors or assigns.

Sec. 14. The company shall file with the city clerk, within thirty days next after the passage of this ordinance, their acceptance, under their corporate seal and signed by their president, of the terms and provisions, restrictions, and regulations hereof, and every one of them, and, in default thereof, it shall be understood and held that they decline to accept the same, and thereupon all rights, powers and privileges, to them granted thereby, shall forever cease and be at an end, in the same manner and with the same effect as if this ordinance had never been passed.

Approved by the Mayor Jan. 3d, 1896.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Insurgents Seem To Be Getting the Worst of It Now.

Matanzas, Cuba, Jan. 1, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 11.—Yesterday at 3:30 p. m. the column under Lieut.-Col. Galbis returned from Alfonso XII. At noon it had a sharp encounter with the enemy. Galbis had six killed and fourteen wounded. One of the latter died on the way to Alfonso XII. The body of rebels had fired all the cane fields traversed by them. The casualties of the rebels are unknown. From a native of Roque it is learned that following the engagement at the Union sugar estate he and others were compelled to transport the wounded of the rebels, ninety in number, for a considerable distance. When he and his companions were released the rebels were moving in the direction of Cienaga. Many families who are threatened with starvation have left for populous centres. Last night the train from Union de Regas, Pedrosa, Baro, Manguito and Guareiras brought many children and elderly people to the city. The locality where the rebels had passed the night was visited by royal troops. The rebels had slaughtered 105 head of cattle, simply using the choicest portions. Hides and heads of cattle were strewn around.

Ruin and Devastation.

Colon, Cuba, Dec. 30, via Tampa, Jan. 11.—People have arrived here who visited the scene of the recent engagement between the forces of Gen. Navarro and the rebels, near the Maria sugar estate. They counted eighty dead horses in that locality. Gen. Navarro's column followed the enemy, who instantly abandoned their camp when the royal troops approached. On the Indio sugar estate the rebels had slaughtered seventy-four head of cattle. After leaving Indio they passed through the town of Yaguas, firing many of its houses. A trail of ruin and desolation marked their passage. The royal troops marched from that point to Cumanayagua. On the route they counted five railway bridges destroyed by fire.

Another Rebel Defeat Reported.

Havana, Jan. 11.—Gen. Suarez Valdes telegraphs officially from Guanajay that the columns commanded by Cols. Navarro and Arizon have dispersed Maceo's force on the Regalado and Begona estates, inflicting a heavy loss on the rebels. Five men belonging to Navarro's column were wounded. Col. Arizon's loss is unknown. The rebels retreated in the direction of Cabanas, whence Cols. Navarro and Arizon are pursuing them. It is said that Gomez is on the south coast marching westward. Telegraphic communication with many points west has been interrupted by the rebels cutting the wires.

Moving Troops into Matanzas.

Matanzas, Jan. 4, via Tampa, Fla., Jan. 11.—The steamship Julia has arrived here with the Havana infantry regiment of 800 men and twenty-seven officers. They bring with them 120 horses and mules to expedite service in the field. As soon as possible the infantry will be mounted, thus enabling them to cope with the rebels, nearly all of whom are mounted. On Dec. 28 fully 8,000 rebels were in the central provinces of Cuba.

RENOUNCES THE WORLD.

A Wealthy St. Louis Woman Takes the Vows of the Sacred Heart.

St. Louis, Jan. 11.—Miss Celeste Thompson, one of St. Louis's wealthiest and most accomplished young women, has taken the vows of the Order of the Sacred Heart and dedicated her life and fortune to religious work. She will be known as Sister Celeste, and on account of her wealth will be given a position of authority at once. Miss Thompson was graduated from the convent of the Sacred Heart only two years ago, and immediately thereafter made her debut in society, where she at once became a favorite. Her family has known for some time of her disposition to renounce the world.

GREEK PRIEST GOES FREE.

He Was Accused in Boston of Violating Marriage Laws.

Boston, Jan. 11.—The complaint against the Greek priest who was tried early this week for having undertaken on Dec. 17 last to marry a Greek couple knowingly having no license from the municipal authorities to do so has been nolle prossed in the municipal court by the district attorney. At the trial it appeared that the defendant was a regularly ordained priest of the Greek church; that he has been in this country only two months; is now settled in a parish in this city, and that he acted honestly in the matter.

TO MEET NEXT TUESDAY.

Senate Finance Committee Expects To Report the Tariff Bill Then.

Washington, Jan. 11.—There will probably be no meeting of the senate finance committee until next Tuesday, the regular meeting day. The republican members say that at that time they expect to report the tariff bill just as it came from the house. They understand that Mr. Jones of Nevada will not longer insist upon the imposition of the additional 15 per cent. on raw sugar. Messrs. Allison and Aldrich of the committee are both out of the city for a few days.

To Prison for Life.

Boston, Jan. 11.—In Cambridge yesterday Cornelius Nagle, Patrick Sullivan and Patrick J. Foley, the murderers of Duroy S. Foster at Billerica on September 11, 1894, were sentenced to imprisonment for life by Judge Sherman.

Made a Clean Profit of $197,000.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11.—It has just come out that the Philadelphia syndicate which sold the Meriden Electric railway to the Consolidated road made a clean profit of $197,000 on the transaction.

At Work Again.

The recent cold wave prevented all work on the new Powlison & Jones building, but this morning the mild weather allowed the workmen to continue their work of plastering. The last coat of white card finish will be put on in a few days and the building will then be ready for the carpenters to put in the front.

Welcome Words.

To the Editor of The Daily Press: It is with much satisfaction that the many friends and old pupils of Miss Carrie Bettman, a former teacher in the Scotch Plains public school, welcome her return to assume charge of the borough post office. Trusting she has come to stay we extend to her a most cordial greeting.

A Place For Latin Teachers.

A proud mother was congratulated recently on the remarkable record of her daughter in her Latin studies at college. "I am glad when I see a pupil's proficiency in 'Latin,'" the teacher who spoke went on, "from a mercenary standpoint, if from no other. It is a fact there are not so many ready and able to teach Latin in this country as Greek, for instance. I feel as if a girl or a boy who is an adept at that has the means of earning a livelihood, as well as an elegant department of learning thrown open in which to acquire what cannot be gained from any other language."—Philadelphia Press.

NOW 99 YEARS OLD!

Mrs. Grinnell Credits Her Vigorous Old Age to Paine's Celery Compound.

It is an uncommon thing to learn of persons reaching the age of Mrs. Emyle Hyde Grinnell, and years of good health such as hers come only to those who make use of the very best means of keeping well.

No one will wonder that the bright eyed old lady, whose mind today is as alert and clear as ever, should be anxious for others to try Paine's celery compound.

Mrs. Emyle Hyde Grinnell was born in Bennington, Vt., July 6, 17[illegible]6, and is today living with her granddaughter, the wife of Martin Fowler of Colchester, Vt., a beautiful town near Fort Ethan Allen. Her father was a farmer and hotel keeper, and she lived upon the farm until her marriage. Mrs. Grinnell has none of the infirmities of old age. She rises at daylight, works about the house, and when the weather will permit walks outdoors. Her eyesight is so good that she threads a needle and spends many hours crocheting and doing fancy work. She keeps abreast of the times and is remarkably well-informed upon many subjects. She declares that she does not feel any older than she has for years, and if people half her age enjoyed such good health as she they would consider themselves fortunate. She has seven children, four boys and three girls, two of whom are living today. Mrs. Grinnell writes:

COLCHESTER, Vt., Oct. 11, 1895.

"Paine's celery compound has been my health preserver during the last few years. Whenever I have an ache or a pain a few doses of this medicine gives me relief and strength. Few women, even though much younger than I, enjoy as good health, for my appetite is natural, my sleep refreshing, and I can walk quite a distance without feeling tired. People are surprised at my vigorous appearance and activity, which I believe is the result of my using Paine's celery compound. It has cured me of constipation, and is of great help to me when over tired.

Gratefully yours,

MRS. EMYLE HYDE GRINNELL."

Paine's celery compound is especially valuable for recruiting the strength and spent energies of men and women advanced in years. It is the one preparation considered worthy the name of a true nerve food and blood remedy by physicians throughout the country. It is prescribed by them in every State in the Union to tone up the system, regulate the nerves and restore health and strength.

Nothing in the past has ever approached it in power of building up weakened nerve tissues and giving strength to the tired body. In severe cases of persistent headaches, dyspepsia, neuralgia and sleeplessness, due to nervous feebleness, Paine's celery compound has a record of rapid and lasting cures that embraces every city and town in the wide sweep of the United States.

Its remarkable power over disease lies in its active replacing of worn-out parts by new, healthy ones, and in its healing and purifying action among the most minute tissues of the body. It searches out the weak parts at once and sets to work to build them up. The tired body feels the strengthening effects of Paine's celery compound forthwith.

Give the nerves a chance to recover, and the entire body will regain its health and strength. Take Paine's celery compound.

FELL INTO ICY WATER.

The Shock Half-Crazed the Lad and He Did Nothing But Scream.

The skaters turned out in full force Saturday morning and thronged Hyde's pond but, while there was plenty of falls and tumbles, there was only one accident of any serious moment. A small lad, apparently about eight or nine years old, in some way, walked or fell into the water in the flume at the outlet of the pond. Some of the young men, who happened to be skating nearby, went to the rescue and pulled the struggling boy out of the icy water. The shock of the sudden plunge seemed to temporarily unsettle his mind, for he sat upon the bank in his freezing clothing and screamed with all his might, not paying the slightest attention to those who tried to find out who he was and what was the matter. At last it was learned that his last name was Runyon and that he resided at the corner of Church and East Third streets. A carriage was secured, but the lad resisted all attempts to put him in it and was finally carried by main force to the vehicle, in which he he was driven home.

The incident cast a gloom over the gay crowd for some time after it happened.

Better Every Year.

Time was when the "glorious climate of California" did not attract tourists. But year after year the tide of travel sets in stronger every fall and winter toward this favored region. There is no climate like it on this continent for a winter resort, and the usual fine service on the Union Pacific System has this season been brought to a degree of perfection which leaves nothing to be desired. For further information call on your nearest ticket agent or address R. Ten Broeck, General Eastern Agent, 287 Broadway, New York.

Uncle Sam Will Stand It.

The Postmaster-General has transmitted to Congress the claim of Mrs. Bridget Lane, postmistress in Summit, for a credit account of loss by burglary on Nov. 20th, 1895. A department inspector reports that postal funds to the value of $605 and postage stamps valued at $5,340.60 were stolen, without fault or neglect of the postmistress. The Postmaster-General recommends that Congress relieve her of the loss.

A Bicycle Collision.

A bicycle collision occurred on Park avenue, near North avenue, yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, when Samuel Vail, a Postal Telegraph messenger, ran into John F. Mowry, of 52 Pearl street, with the result of wrecking the latter's front wheel. Mr. Mowry claimed that he was on the right hand side of the road and that the Vail boy deliberately ran into him. The affair attracted a large crowd, but Chief Grant appeared and dispersed them.

Dr. Lewis in Demand.

A meeting of the American Sabbath Tract Society was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and one of the important resolutions adopted was one asking the church to give Rev. Dr. Lewis six months leave of absence for the purpose of developing the movement for observing the seventh day as Sabbath.

Not Itinerant Peddlers.

McManus Brothers, of Newark, state that they have no agents in Plainfield or elsewhere and the report, therefore, that they are itinerant peddlers who the borough police are looking for for not taking out a license, is erroneous. They sell goods only direct from their store in Newark.

Ministers Meet.

The Ministers Association met this afternoon at the home of Dr. A. H. Lewis on Central avenue. A paper was read by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis entertained them with a sumptuous dinner.

An Evening On the Ice.

A number of the clerks in Edsall's Commercial Palace are planning to go to New Market pond Tuesday evening for a skating party should the skating continue until that time.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

A SATURDAY BLAZE.

FIRE IN DAN HOGAN'S BARN BRINGS OUT THE DEPARTMENT.

The Flames Are Supposed to Have Been Started by Children—Several Chickens Roasted to Death—Loss About $150.

While Michael Flynn was returning to his home on West Third street Saturday afternoon, he noticed that smoke was coming out of the second story of Daniel Hogan's brick barn at 428 West Third street. He called to his brother, Peter Flynn, who was a short distance away, and told him to send in an alarm. The latter met Letter-carrier Daniel Shea, and securing his key sent in an alarm from Box 46, corner of West Second and Liberty streets. On account of some work being done at the electric light station around the gong, the latter did not blow right at first, but the register was correct at the fire houses. In four minutes from the time the alarm was sounded, there was water on the fire.

The barn, a substantial brick structure, had been out of use for sometime, and a number of valuable chickens owned by Mr. Hogan were kept there. In the building there was a quanity of rubbish and hay, and the supposition is that the fire was of an incendiary character. It was necessary to use a large quantity of water to extinguish the flames which caused a dense smoke, making it very difficult to reach the flames. The damage will probably reach $150. Several of the chickens were destroyed. Chief Doane arrived home from Newark just as the fire broke out, and quickly reached the place. He ordered the firemen to break several panes of glass in the barn, so that the fire could be more easily reached.

There was no insurance on the building.

SKATES TWO FEET LONG.

They Are Used On the Hudson River But Seldom Seen Here.

Skates may be found of many different patterns but those which have attracted the most attention, perhaps, of the skaters of this city, are those which are the property of John E. Hall, of East Fifth street.

They are the kind known as "straights," and are used almost exclusively on the upper Hudson river, although very seldom seen in this neighborhood. The skates are constructed of wood and steel. The tops, on which the foot rests, is made of cherry and is twenty-three and a half inches long. The steel runner is attached to the wooden foot rest and is about twenty-five inches long. The skates weigh about one pound each. They are fastened to the heel with a screw and a strap passes around the toe. The skates were manufactured Mr. Hall who is quite a mechanic.

He is an excellent skater and seems to find his style of runners much preferable to the ordinary.

Thompson, North Plainfield, lot West Seventh street, $1; Jeremiah Manning et ux, et al, Plainfield, to Caroline L. Moore, lot Plainfield, $300; Jeremiah Manning et ux, et al, lot Plainfield, West End Park, $4,375.

The following contract has also been recorded:

Robert W. Barnes, Plainfield, with Edgar C. Schenck, Plainfield, carpenter, mason, etc., two stores, frame dwelling, West Fifth street, $1,500.

Protest Against Licenses.

When the applications for license of John Shea and Joseph Campbell, of Summit, came up in the Union County Court of Pleas Saturday the Christian Endeavorers presented a strong protest against Shea, and backed it up by several of them going on the stand and swearing the place was not a necessity, besides being obnoxious to the people living in its vicinity.

Good Work, Low Prices.

For the next 60 days Dr. C. R. Thiers, of 13 Grove street, will make sets of teeth for $8 and $10. The best teeth and excellent workmanship will combine to make these teeth just as good as those that generally cost $12 or $15.

JUDGE DEMEZA HOLDS COURT.

Two Offenders Ride Without a Light and Two More Quarrel.

The regular Monday morning installment of offenders awaited City Judge DeMeza this morning.

A High School student name Irving Clark was the first and he had to pay a $2 fine for riding without a light Saturday night. Albert Cole, a colored man, was arrested on the same charge Friday evening, but he dismounted as soon as he noticed that his light was not burning. Sentence was suspended on him.

The other two prisoners were two colored individuals named John Wilson and Willis Walker, who were arrested Saturday evening by Officers Vanderweg and Totten, on the charge of quarreling, cursing and being drunk. The policemen claimed that the prisoners had caused a disturbance in Sullivan's saloon. The prisoners emphatically denied it, but pleaded guilty to the charge. The Judge gave them their choice between paying a fine of $3 each or go to jail for fifteen days. They paid the fines.

GOING TO THE INAUGURATION.

Union County Republicans Charter a Special Special Train for Trenton.

The Union County Republicans are making arrange to attend in force the inauguration of Governor-elect Griggs. The county committee has the matter in hand, and a special train has been chartered on the Central Railroad to carry the enthusiasts to Trenton.

The train will stop at all stations on the Central from Elizabeth to Plainfield to take on those who wish to participate in the demonstration. Republicans from Rahway, Summit, New Providence, Springfield and Union, will board the train with the Elizabeth contingent. Charles N. Codding, chairman of the county committee, estimates that between 500 and 600 Republicans will go from Union county. Each man will wear a handsome red badge.

A HERMIT FOUND DEAD.

$900 in Gold Found in the Tumble-Down Shelter of an Elizabeth Recluse.

Peter Schwartz, an old German, aged seventy-five, always supposed to be a miser, was found dead at his home in Linden township yesterday morning. He lived in an old house on the property of John Westcott, who found him and reported the matter to the overseer of the township, George W. Bauer. He had been ailing several days, Dr. H. P. Heugh, of Rahway, was sent for yesterday, but, not being home, he did not go until the afternoon. The overseer of the poor, while hunting around the house, found over $900 in gold in the house. It is believed the old man died of exposure.

A Signal for the Police.

The mystery of the pistol shots that were fired on West Seventh street on last Friday evening, has been solved. A resident on the street thought that there was some one in his cellar that did not belong there and he fired several rounds from his revolver to summon Officer Hartpence, who soon responded. There was no one to be found in the cellar then, however.

Praise Meeting.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian churches of Plainfield will hold a praise meeting and thank offering service in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church on Tuesday, January 14th, at 3:30 p. m. All women are earnestly requested to be present. The offerings made will be used to extend the Gospel in foreign lands.

For Literary People.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall is arranging a course of three entertainments for February and March. The first will take place about February 6th at the home of Mrs. Charles Case, on Central avenue, when Mrs. Hall's sister, Mrs. Laura E. Richards (author of Captain January) will read selections from her own writings.

More Room for Commuters.

Another change has been made on the 7:53 train. Instead of leaving five cars at Plainfield and bringing five on the regular train from Flemington, this morning there were seven cars on the sidetrack to accomodate the commuters, while the train that takes them up was made up of only three cars.

Unitarian Women.

A regular meeting of the Study Class connected with the Alliance of Unitarian Women, will be held in the lecture room of All Souls church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The subject will be "Lucretia Mott." All women interested are invited to attend.

TO BUILD A NEW TOWN.

It Will Have Several Large Factories and Shops and Thirty Houses.

The transfer of sixty-five acres of land north of Cranford has been just made, the purchaser being the Orange Improvement Association. The sale of such a large tract has given rise to a rumor that it was secured in the interest of the Pullman Company. This is denied by the officers of the association, who, however, are careful not to give any definite information as to the actual object of the purchase further than to state that there are to be several large factories and shops erected in early spring and a model town built.

Already there has been a large force of workmen employed and the work of clearing away the trees and undergrowth is being rapidly pushed. A number of streets have been laid out and the men are grading and forming the same.

The manager in charge of the work has stated that there are to be thirty houses begun at once, the plans for which are now in the hands of the architect.

From present indications there will be a large amount of work done here during the coming summer, as the members of the association are moneyed men and are giving evidence of large building projects.

A GREAT DAY FOR SKATERS.

New Market and Hyde's Ponds Attract Most of the Young People.

Saturday was a delightful day for skating and although the recent snow had in a measure spoiled the best sport, an unusally large crowd was present at all the ponds in this vicinity. New Market presented the most attractions as a portion of its surface had been swept off and a horse scraper was at work all the afternoon cleaning off the rest of the pond. Smalley's pond was not disturbed as the snow was too thick for pleasure. Within the city limits, Hyde's pond was the most crowded. All day the skaters made the place a lively one and in the middle of the afternoon it was filled to overflowing with the young people.

The skating promises to continue for some time after all. The approaching storm passed to the north and now a small cold wave promises to lower the temperature ten or fifteen degrees.

WILL HANG MARCH 11.

That is the Sentence of Johnson by Judge McGee.

Jacob S. Johnson, a former colored preacher, was Saturday found guilty in the Somerset County Court of murder in the first degree, and he is now in the county jail awaiting sentence on the charge of having strangled Ann Rogers, otherwise known as Annie Beekman.

Johnson was brought into court this morning when Judge McGee sentenced him to be hung to death between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock on March 11th.

Borough Justice.

Special Marshal Peter Hansen arrested Frank Conshee, of 57 Pearl street, Saturday afternoon for being drunk, disorderly and threatening to shoot him. He was taken before Justice Crosley and in default of paying his fine was committed to the borough lockup for ten days. This morning a man named Conners, living at Netherwood, was fined $5 by Justice Crosley for being drunk and disorderly on Greenbrook road Saturday night. He paid his fine and was released.

The Press Read All Over.

The silver thimble advertised in The Press last week as lost was found by Mrs. August, of Westfield, and returned to the owner, Miss VanEps of this city.

An Informal Dance.

A number of the young people of the city and borough enjoyed an informal dance at the Park clubhouse on Saturday evening.

De Witt's Little Early Risers for biliousness, indigestion, constipation. A small pill, a prompt cure. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

PROGRESSIVE PLANFIELD

PITHY OBSERVATIONS OF THE NEW JERSEY CONTRACTOR'S EDITOR.

Pays a Compliment to The Daily Press—There is No Fictitious Boom in Plainfield—Its Growth is Substantial.

The New Jersey Contractor last Saturday published the following:

Unquestionable, Plainfield is forging far ahead of any of the cities of the State. A walk through the city finds the hitching posts in front of the business houses fast to a team of horses either the property of a farmer, or a wealthy resident or with a liveried coachman, and in numerous cases a footman at the head, a pair of well groomed and fed horses. The fact that there are over eighty houses, not a few being business houses, in course of erection, is another evidence of the growth of the city. To a Contractor reporter, who walked through the city, this did not appear to be a fictitious boom, but an honest sign of thrift and industry, and an expenditure of money whose investors appeared to be assured of a speedy return of their investment, and a sign of local pride and energy. Stepping into one of the newspaper offices (The Press) the reporter was pleased to notice the air of bustle and business of the office, and the clamor of the newsboys, it being the hour of issue, who were lustily crying out, "give me seven," "give me fifteen," "give me thirty," etc. The lively sale of a daily paper in any city is proof of the wide awake character of the community.

Dropping into the office of A. D. Thompson, President of The Plainfield Real Estate Company, and inquiring of the movement of real estate in the city and at Watchung Park, near the Watchung Mountains, which is less than eight minutes from the station. Mr. Thompson said that there has been erected recently 30 new houses, none of them costing less than $5,000, and all sold, with 16 lots left, every one of which is desirable at $1,000.

At Netherwood, said Mr. Thompson, no more desirable location in the city can be found. Houses in this vicinity are the very finest. We have just completed a handsome residence, price $30,000, and are erecting two more to cost $10,000 each. They are complete in every particular. Anyone desiring high-class property cannot help but be suited. On the tract at Sixth and Seventh streets, five minutes from the station, we are building ten houses with all modern improvements, to cost from $4,000 to $6,000. Desirable lots in this vicinity are only $15 to $20 per foot.

A call at several of the real estate agents and owners found them jubilant over the business in hand, and of the unusually cheery prospects of a big spring sale of all classes of property. Before the reporter left the city, he was convinced from the number of passengers carried by the darting trolley cars almost on every street, and by the business done by the hackmen from the railroad, surely the people of Crescent do move.

REVIVAL AT SCOTCH PLANS.

The Entire Town Is Stirred and Many Convertions Have Been Made.

During the week past Scotch Plains has been stirred to its depths by a series of revival meetings which have been carried on by Rev. Arthur Crane, of this city. Great interest has been taken in the meetings, not only in Scotch Plains alone, but in Fanwood and the adjacent villages. The church life has been quickened and a large number have come forward as a result of the movement. The meetings are being held in the Baptist church of that place.

So interested were the people in the revival that the church officials telegraphed to Franklin, N. H., where Rev. Mr. Crane was to go this week, asking that he be allowed to remain in Scotch Plains for another week.

Rev. Mr. Crane is assisted in his good work by the famous gospel singer, H. A. Woolfsohn.

Cases in Justice Newcorn's Court.

The contract cases of Douglass against Peebles and Boone against Johnson, were tried in Justice Newcorn's court this morning and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff in both. An execution was issued in the latter case. A summons in the case of Hamilton against Elliott, landlord and tenant, was issued, which is returnable January 17th. A writ of attachment was also issued in the case of T. Whitenack against R. B. Riley.

Purity Alliance Conference.

The American Purity Alliance conference will be held in New York on the 14th and 15th of this month. The opening address will be made by Aaron M. Powell, of this city, who is the president of the organization. On Wednesday Mrs. Anna Rice Powell will read a paper on the American Purity Alliance and its work. Rev. A. H. Lewis will also deliver his address on "The Sacredness of Fatherhood."

A SOCIETY SURPRISE.

Miss Annie Opdyke to Wed Aaron Kaiser Tomorrow Morning.

Society people will be surprised to learn of the approaching nuptials of Miss Annie Opdyke, daughter of Charles W. Opdyke, of Watchung avenue, and Aaron Kaiser, of the same avenue. Miss Opdyke resides with her father in his palatial residence opposite the club house of the Hillside Tennis Club. She has lived here all her life.

Mr. Kaiser moved to this city several years ago with his family from Salt Lake City. About a year ago his wife died. Mr. Kaiser resides in his handsome new residence on Watchung avenue just beyond Hillside avenue.

The wedding ceremony will take place in the Grace P. E. church tomorrow morning at ten o'clock and will be a private one. Rev. E. M. Rodman, D. D., will perform the ceremony.

CAMPAIGN OF CHRISTIANITY.

Revival Meetings to Commence in the Methodist Church Tonight.

The revival services under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor societies will open this evening in Vincent chapel. The plans for the meeting are now completed and nothing remains but the hearty support of the Christian people of Plainfield. Dr. Yerkes will have charge this evening and a chorus of 150 voices, under the direction of H. J. Martin, will have furnish the music, which is to be a feature. Everyone is urged to bring their books, Nos. 5 and 6, if they have them; if not, arrangements have been made to purchase them at the chapel.

The members of the chorus are urged to meet the music committee this evening at 7:30 sharp at the chapel. The meeting will open with a fifteen minute song service commencing at 7:45. Everybody is cordially invited to attend and participate in the services.

Water Pipes Burst.

The maid in Mrs. Edward D. MacCarthy's residence on Central avenue, was startled yesterday afternoon by what she supposed was an explosion. She hunted about the house and at last found that one of the water pipes under the piazza had burst and partially flooded the cellar. Thomas H. Pittis, the owner of the house, was notified and a plumber sent for who shut off the water and repaired the break.

Memorial Service Programme.

The following programme will be rendered at the Memorial service to be given by Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., at the Y. M. C. A. building, Friday evening, January 17th: Instrumental music, P. Off For Trenton.

Assemblymen Codington and Reed left this afternoon for Trenton to participate in the Republican caucus tonight and the opening of the Legislature tomorrow.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

HOUSE FORECAST.

Consideration of the Rule Under Discussion To-day

Washington, Jan. 13.—The house will continue to-day the consideration of the rule regulating the counting of a quorum, which alone remains to be acted upon. That can be disposed of at one session, it is believed, but whenever it is out of the way the general pension appropriation bill will be called up. These are the only matters now in sight to engage the attention of the house this week, and they may occupy the entire time. A number of members, it is understood, are anxious to make speeches on the pension question, and, as there is nothing else on the docket as yet, their longings are likely to be satisfied. Whenever the senate shall return the revenue or bond bill with amendment its consideration will at once suspersede all other business, but neither one is expected to reach the house this week. There may be a diversion by the presentation of a reply by the secretary of state to any one of the four or five resolutions of inquiry which the house passed week before last, but no intimation has been given so far as known that any of the replies will be transmitted by the president this week.

WILHELM'S LETTER.

Received by the Czar Who Promises the Support of Russia.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 13.—The autograph letter of Emperor William to the czar was brought to this city by Prince von Radolin, the German ambassador to Russia. The letter reviews the general situation, especially the Transvaal and Egyptain questions. The czar told Prince von Radolin that he entirely concurred in the views and aims of Emperor William, who was taking the lead against England's arrogance, and added that the German emperor could firmly rely on his support and the support of the states friendly to Russia, namely France and the United States. Prince Lobanoff Rostovaki, Russian minister of foreign affairs, who was present at the interview between the czar and Prince von Radolin, commended an anti-English policy.

COL. DUNLAP'S FUNERAL.

The Floral Decorations Were Elaborate and Beautiful.

Westfield, N. J., Jan. 13.—The funeral of Col. Thomas Dunlap, who at the time of his death was the oldest member of Tammany Hall, took place here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. Tonnele. About fifty members of the Tammany Hall association and officers of the New York city administration and postoffice department were present. Rev. Newton W. Cadwell of the Westfield Presbyterian church, officiated and spoke eloquently of Col. Dunlap's long public career and record. The floral decorations were elaborate and beautiful. The interment was in the family plot in Cypress Hills cemetery Brooklyn.

GLADSTONE NON-COMMITTAL.

He Declines To Discuss the Venezuelan Question.

London, Jan. 13.—The Daily Chronicle, whose dispatches from Washington anent the Venezuelan dispute have attracted much attention, telegraphed to Mr. Gladstone, who is at Biarritz, France, asking: "Can you, with reference to the pending controversies reaffirm your agreement with the house of commons resolution in favor of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain?" In his reply, which the Chronicle publishes to-day, Mr. Gladstone says: "My opinion on arbitration is unchanged, but I think that I cannot usefully appear in a public discussion at this moment."

BLUE LAWS ENFORCED.

Trenton's Mayor Acts on the Advice of the Ministers' Union.

Trenton, Jan. 13.—An attempt to enforce the blue laws was made here yesterday. At the instance of the ministers' union, the mayor directed the police commissioners to enforce the laws. They at once issued an order that all traffic on Sunday must cease save that in milk, drugs and newspapers, and further exceptions were made in favor of the street cars, barber shops and telegraph offices. The result has been the closing of confectioneries, cigar stores, saloons and restaurants. A few business men who refused to close their places had their names taken and may be fined to-day.

A CORRESPONDENT ARRESTED.

New York Newspaper Man in Prison in Cuba.

Havana, Jan. 13.—Charles A. Soloman, who claims that he is a New York newspaper correspondent, was arrested here on the arrival of the steamer Seneca, on which he had traveled from New York. The authorities had been notified of his departure and of the fact that he was suspected of being in league with the insurgents. It is supposed that compromising letters were found in his possession. He was lodged in jail, and the officials refuse to allow anyone to communicate with him.

Baratieri's Situation Desperate.

New York, Jan. 13.—A special cable to the Herald from Berlin says; Alarming news as to the position of Gen. Baratieri, commanding the Italian troops in Abyssinia, has arrived here from Cairo. His present condition is said to be desperate.

$9,500 Fire at Newburgh.

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Fire yesterday damaged the dry goods store of R. H. Travis & Co. to the extent of about $8,000 and the building, which is owned by Major Benjamin Odell, about $1,500. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

FOUR REBEL VICTORIES

Spaniards Severely Beaten in Several Battles.

Insurgents Capture Many Mules Laden with Military Stores and Medecines—Col. Benitez's Horrible Crime—Campos Sends for Reinforcements.

Santiago de Cuba, Jan. 4, via Key West, Jan. 13.—On the 26th ult. the guerrillas of Col. Tejeda and the battalion Constitution, 1,200 men in all, had a bloody engagement with rebel leaders Brigadier Cebreco and Col. Pancho Sanchez with 500 men in Loma de los Ciegos and in San Prudencio. The Spanish troops commenced the attack with such a hurried and continuous firing from different directions that the insurgents abandoned the first mentioned place and took positions in San Prudencio after inflicting some losses to the troops. Col. Tejeda, after giving some rest to the soldiers, again attacked the rebels in their new position. A terrible fight ensued, but when the Spaniards arrived about half way up the mountain they began to show signs of weakening in consequence of the constant and deadly fire of the rebels. Col. Tejeda then ordered an attack with the bayonet, and the insurgents seeing that suddenly attacked the guerrillas with machetes. The latter disbanded, and in running disorganized and scattered the battalion Consitution, leaving them alone in the field. Col. Tejeda, being unable to rally the dispersed guerrillas, had to retire with his wounded. In this engagement the Spaniards had Dr. Gomez, four officers and fifteen soldiers killed and Commander Punet, seven officers and forty soldiers wounded. The rebels had six killed and fifteen wounded. The insurgents captured several horses, three mules laden with ammunition, many weapons and a large box of medicines.

Benitez's Horrible Crime.

Another encounter has taken place lately in La Tontina between Spanish Col. Sandeval and Cuban leaders Buen and Dominguez. After a short but hard fight Dominguez defeated the Spanish column. The troops hod nine killed and thirty wounded. The rebels captured ten mules laden with ammunition and medicines. A horrible crime was committed near Manzanillo on Dec. 24 by the Spanish guerrillas commanded by Lolo Benitez, a bandit, whom Martinez Campos took out from the prison where he was serving a sentence for crimes and raised to the rank of colonel of the Spanish army. Lolo Benitez is a Cuban by birth. On the evening of the 24th he went from Manzanillo with sixty guerrillas with the object of inspecting the surroundings of the city. In the middle of the night they arrived at a country seat called San Francisco, where about twenty-five persons were celebrating Christmas eve, the majority of them women and children. The guerrillas went to the front of the house, fired a volley at it, and then entered, machete in hand, killing an old man, the owner of the place, two other men, two women and two children, and wounding four men, three women and four children. Benitez took three men with him to Manzanillo as prisoners, saying that he had dispersed a party of rebels.

Rebels Capture a Convoy.

On Dec. 24 a Spanish column, 500 strong, under Col. Ochoa, left Mayari to carry a convoy of provisions and ammunition to the detachment of troops stationed in La Juliana. On their way they were met by rebel leader Matias Vega with 900 men. The insurgents attacked the convoy and captured forty mules laden with provisions and ten with ammunition. The troops retreated to Mayari, having eight killed and thirty-seven wounded. The rebels had three killed and fourteen wounded. The rebels also made prisoners of eight soldiers.

Another Rebel Victory.

On Dec. 28 the Spanish columns of Cols. Rodon and Pablos with 1,100 men left Tignani by different roads, with the object of meeting in Manacahueca and continuing together to the Venta dez Casanova to fortify it and to place there a garrison. The insurgents under Col. Lora and forces of the brigade of Cambute, who had learned of the plan of the Spaniards, took up positions in Manacahueca ahead of the troops. Rebel commander Abed Reyes with 100 infantry and twenty cavalry began to fire at Rodon's column, who, trusting in Col. Pablo's arrival, entered the trap which the rebels had prepared for them. They were fired upon from all sides and afterwards a terrible charge was made with machetes, scattered the troops. The forces of the Spanish Col. Pablos arrived too late to be of service. More than 100 Manseur rifles and twenty mules laden with ammunition were left in the hands of the rebels. The Spaniards had three officers and thirty-nine soldiers killed and five officers and ninety soldiers wounded.

Planters Between Two Fires.

Lieut.-Gen. Pando has issued an order threatening to court-martial all owners of sugar estates if they do not grind the cane on their plantations. Of course, some planters, fearing that Pando would carry out his threats tried to comply with the order, but the very day the order was published in Guantanamo newspapers all the cane fields of those who were grinding were set on fire, and of course they had to stop. Jose Maceo and Rabi have notified the planters that if they attempt to grind again, not only the cane will be burned but their houses and machinery too. Gen. Pando has particular interest in the grinding in Guantanamo, because his wife, who belongs to that city, has a sugar estate.

Campos Wants More Men.

Marshal Martinez Campos sent an order by cable last night to the authorities here to send him immediately 1,500 men for Batabano. It is said that so many men cannot be spared, as there are numerous rebels around the city awaiting a chance to pay a visit to Santiago. The arrest of persons on suspicion continues in all this district. Some are taken in the middle of the night and shot; others are sent to Africa. A detachment composed of a sergeant and twenty-five soldiers, who were on duty in the suburbs of the city, have joined the rebels with their arms and ammunition.

FLYNN'S LATEST MOVE.

Oklahoma's Delegate Still Warring on Secretary Smith.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Delegate Flynn of Oklahoma continues to make war against Secretary Hoke Smith. Recently he attacked that official in a speech on the floor of the house, alleging that the secretary had appointed relations in Oklahoma in connection with the work of the general land office. Mr. Flynn's latest move is an effort to block the nomination of W. H. Anderson of Kentucky as register of the land office at Enid, Oklahoma. Mr. Anderson was formerly a chief of division of the interior department, and was appointed register last summer to succeed Robert W. Patterson of Georgia, who was killed in a difficulty with an editor at Enid. Mr. Flynn bases his objection to Mr. Anderson's confirmation on the ground that he is an outsider, and he contends that residents of the territory should hold the offices in accordance with the declarations of the democratic platform.

ANOTHER SHAKE-UP EXPECTED

Dismissal of More Patent Office Employes Contemplated.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Another extensive "shake-up" is contemplated in the United States patent office among the force of examiners with a view, it is said, of raising the standard of efficiency among that corps of officials. Some eight or nine months ago two principal examiners, whose service dates back a number of years, were relieved from duty "for the good of the service." It has been reported within the past few days that a similar fate would be meted out to several other aged officials in the immediate future.

OFFICIAL TURKISH NEWS.

With the Exception of Zeitoun All Is Quiet in the Empire.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The Turkish legation has received from the sublime porte the following telegram. "The imperial authorities of Diarbekir having been informed that, owing to a few indecent words of two Armenians at the bazaar, some Armenians began closing their shops, hastened to give the latter proper advice, thanks to which the shops were opened again and order has not been disturbed. With the exception of Zeitoun, public tranquility is perfect in all the empire."

A COMPLETE FAILURE.

Poultney Bigelow's Mission To Germany Anent Insurance Cos.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—Poultney Bigelow has left Berlin on his return to New York. His mission, which was to obtain the readmission of American insurance companies into Prussia under the old conditions, has been a complete failure. Contrary to his expectation the emperor will not receive him. The Berlin papers say he spoiled his relations with the emperor by mixing up a commercial enterprise with the imperial name.

176 TOWNS DESTROYED.

15,845 Armenians Killed in Harpoot and Diarebkir.

London, Jan. 13.—The Constantinople representative of the United Press says that more complete tables of the persons killed and the property destroyed in the provinces of Harpoot and Diarbekir show that 176 towns and villages, containing 8,050 Armenian houses were burned. The Armenians in those towns numbered 91,000, and of these 15,845 were killed. This excludes the uncertain reports of killings.

Wishes to Lead the Populists.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Lyman Trumbull, of this city, who previous to 1855 was successively representative in congress and justice of the state supreme court, and for the three terms beginning that year and ending 1873 represented Illinois in the senate of the United States, is said to be a candidate for the standard bearer of the populist party in the approaching presidential campaign.

Prince Henry of Battenberg Ill.

London, Jan. 13.—The war office announces that Prince Henry of Battenberg, husband of Princess Beatrice, who is attached to the Ashantee expedition, has arrived at Prahou. He was taken sick soon after the expedition left cape Coast Castle, and his condition has since become worse.

HOW MANY WOMEN DO YOU KNOW

Who Can Say They Are Thoroughly Well? How They Can Be Strong.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

I don't feel very well; I am so tired all the time; I don't know what is the matter with me.

You hear these words every day. As often as you meet your friends, just so often are the words repeated. More than likely you speak the same pregnant words yourself, and there is no doubt but that you do feel far from well most of the time. There is a cause, And — There is a remedy for all that is covered by those words so constantly spoken by women.

Lydia E. Pinkham discovered the source of nearly all the suffering endured by the sex.

"Women's Complaints," — these two words are full of more misery to women than any two words that can be found in the language of the world.

Sudden fainting, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or to do anything, backache, "bearing down," and kindred symptoms of serious disturbance seldom imagined by your family physician, and reluctantly mentioned by you.

The remedy is found; the same noble woman who discovered the cause of all your misery also worked out the remedy. All druggists have it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest blessing that ever came into the lives of suffering women.

EUROPE NOT INVOLVED

Germany Seeking No Allies Against England.

Berlin Government Has Not Suggested a Conference of the Powers on the Transvaal Question—Boer Envoy Consults with the French Government.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—In view of the fact thatthe future of Germany's relations with England is involved in doubt, Chancellor Prince von Hohenlohe has sent assuring communications to the governments at Vienna and Rome pointing out that any diplomatic action which might be taken by the Berlin government would not involve either the triple alliance or the individual interests of Austria or Italy. It is understood that the chancellor's communication expressed entirely pacific intentions on the part of Germany towards England and also a belief that a good mutual understanding between Germany and Great Britain would be restored at an early day. It is known that the Italian government, fearing that the agreement with Lord Salisbury for the co-operation of the Italian and British squadrons in the event of certain contingencies in the Mediterranean might be disturbed by a rupture between England and Germany, has asked certain explanations from Germany, and it is probable also that Austria has wanted to know how the emperor viewed England's warlike demonstrations. In these circumstances Prince Hohenlohe, having nothing to conceal, could reply frankly that the whole matter was a question between Germany and England alone that it is not deemed possible that the chancellor could have given such assurances while German diplomacy was seeking to form a coalition of European powers against England. The story of the attempt to form a European coalition originated in England, and ought now to be knocked in the head.

Germany Not Seeking Allies.

Germany has not sought, nor does she seek, any active allies in her endeavor to check English encroachments in the Transvaal, endangering Germans and German investments there and in Delagoa bay. It is not a question to disturb the peace of Europe or to cause any European powers to intervene except those concerned in the recent hinterland conventions. The government here has not suggested any European conference, but the envoy of the Transvaal republic, Dr. Beelaerts von Blokland, while in Berlin, spoke of such a conference as among possible expedients. The Boer envoy has been in Paris consulting with the French government in regard to the situation in the Transvaal, and if the troubles there become more aggravated and England refuses the Boers a just settlement, the result will be that the Boer government will make an appeal for a conference of the powers to dispose of the whole matter, but there is no reason why Germany or France should insist upon such a conference. This is the semi-official view of the situation, but it obviously omits from calculation the results of England's rejecting the offices of a conference and also England's declining to accept the view taken by the Berlin government that the allied powers composing the dreibund could not be affronted or that diplomatic hostilities could and should be limited to fixed areas.

A Significant Feature.

It is significant, too, to find Prince Bismarck, who is no friend to British pretensions, warning the Berlin government through the Hamburger Machrichten against making external and internal peace by the adoption of a policy of adventurous intervention. The Machrichten describes the task of the German government as that of walking at a great height upon a tight rope. The operations of the bourse during the past week show that considerable attention has been directed to the excitement prevailing in England with a view of taking every advantage of it, and the consequence has been that steady orders have been quietly made to buy on any marked decline in London. The operations of the week have disclosed a strong reliance in Berlin and Frankford financial circles upon the maintenance of peace. Imperial loans, Prussian consols and some bank stocks have declined, but the decline is not sufficiently heavy to indicate that there is any fear that the country is on the eve of war.

William's Quarrel with Leopold.

The quarrel between the kaiser and Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, husband of the empress's sister, over the prince's harsh treatment of his wife after her recent accident in breaking through the ice while skating near Glenicke castle, Potsdam, is still the absorbing topic of discussion in society. The prince's period of arrest and confinement in a room in the castle is over, but the feud between him and the emperor is not terminated by any means. During the period of the prince's confinement in the castle, guards with loaded rifles were placed before every entrance to the castle, and all lights were ordered extinguished at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Rome, Jan. 13.—The government has prorogued parliament until the end of next month.

KILLED HIS SUPERIOR

Buffalo Patrolman Murders a Sergeant.

The Former Had Intended To Report the Officer for Neglect of Duty and the Shooting Was in Revenge—Coolly Smoked a Pipe After Committing the Crime.

Buffalo, Jan. 13.—Sergeant Timothy Cantlin of the Seventh precinct was shot and killed by Patrolman Michael Sammon yesterday because he found the latter off his beat and intended to report him therefor. Sammon had entered a malt house where he remained for more than fifteen minutes. Sergeant Cantlin had arrived on Sammon's beat and finding him absent began a search for him. When he saw him emerge from the malt house he suspended him and ordered him to the station house. Sammon pleaded to be excused, but Cantlin said: "I can't do it. You'll have to go to the station house and see the captain about it." "Take that then," said Sammon, who had quietly drawn his revolver and leveling the weapon at Cantlin he fired a shot into his right side, the bullet lodging in the spine. Cantlin fell and Sammon walked to the station house which he entered, saying he wanted to get warm. Lighting his pipe he chatted for some time with the reserve men and then started out again. As he was leaving the station house Patrolman McClure entered and laying his hand on Sammon's shoulder said: "You are under arrest for shooting Sergeant Cantlin." Sammon made no reply, but filled his pipe again and was locked up. Cantlin lay where he fell for nearly half an hour, but did not lose conciousness. Taking his whistle from his pocket he blew alarms until he attracted the attention of Patrolman McClure to whom he told the facts of the shooting.

THE JAMESON EXPEDITION.

Rank and File Start for the Natal Border—Officers To Follow.

Pretoria, Jan. 13.—The rank and file of the Jameson expedition, who were captured by the Boers and brought to this place, have started for the Natal border. The officers of the expedition are expected to follow shortly. The customs officials have opened a large safe that was consigned to Farrer, one of the leaders in the Rand who was arrested, and found that it contained 100 revolvers and 7,000 rounds of ammunition. President Kruger has issued a proclamation to the people of the Rand saying he believes they have been deceived by a small number of designing men outside of the country. He urges the Rand residents to co-operate with the government to make the republic a country where all nationalities can live fraternally together. He promises that Johannesberg shall have a mayor and a municipal council, and concludes: "Let the inhabitants of Johannesburg make it possible for the government to appear before the Volksraed with the words 'forget and forgive.'"

To Legalize Passes.

Albany, Jan. 13. — Assemblyman Bondy of Syracuse has prepared a bill which has for its object the evasion of the constitutional provision against the use of passes by public officials. He says the bill has been passed upon by Attorney General Hancock, who believes it to be constitutional. The bill will be introduced to-morrow in the assembly.

France Is for Peace.

Paris, Jan. 13. — Prime Minister Bourgeoise attended a banquet at Lyons last evening and delivered a speech, in the course of which he said changes at home never rendered France's policy abroad in the least degree uncertain. The whole policy of France could be summed up in the declaration that she was for the maintenance of peace and development of justice.

Shot at a Christening.

Vineland, N. J., Jan. 13. — At a christening of an intant on the farm of Angelo Formesan, near this city yesterday afternoon, Frank Angelo of Newfield was shot and probably mortally wounded by his cousin, John Gordiana of Vineland. Angelo had been courting Gordiana's sister, and Gordiana objected to his attentions. Gordiana escaped.

Hon. John P. Bennett Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Hon. J. P. Bennett of Williamson, Wayne county, is dead. Mr. Bennett was 72 years of age and was a widely known politician. He served during his life twice as assemblyman, twice as sheriff of Wayne county and for many years was supervisor of the same county.

Final Advance on Coomasie To-day.

Cape Coast Castle, Jan. 13.—The Ashante expedition has reached a point within twenty-eight miles of Coomasie, the capital of Ashante. The final advance on that place will be made to-day.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 12.—Abram Hauze, 47 years old, died in terrible agony in Conyngham township, this county, yesterday, with hydrophobia. He was bitten by a dog eleven weeks ago.

Sixty Reformers Under Arrest.

Pretoria, Transvaal, Jan. 13.—Sixty members of the reform committee at Johannesburg are now under arrest. It is believed that only the five ringleaders will be detained.

TALMAGE IS INDIGNANT

Says Many Newspapers Have Wronged Him.

Reads a Notice from the Pulpit of His Church Stating His Position. Absolutely Refuses To Preach at Sabbath Morning Services Under Any Circumstances.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The Rev. Dr. Talmage read among his notices last evening, Jan. 12, 1896, the following: "An outrageous wrong has been done me by many of the newspapers of this country concerning my pastorate of this church, and I call upon all newspapers who believe in fairness to state the following facts: I have been preaching here in the evening by my own choice. As very many more people come to our church in the evening than can get inside the building, many of them standing in the street an hour and a half before the time of service, there was a petition, signed by all the elders and all the board of trustees and sanctioned by Dr. Sunderland, handed me, inviting me to preach Sabbath mornings as well as Sabbath evenings. I much prefer to preach only in the evenings and certainly am not to blame because I have been petitioned to preach in the mornings. I now wish it distinctly understood that I will not in any circumstances take the Sabbath morning services."

THE ABYSSINIAN WAR.

Natives Attack Italian Troops and Are Repulsed.

Rome, Jan. 13.—A dispatch from Massowah, capital of the Italian colony of Erythrea, says that the Abyssinians made three attacks on the town of Makalle on Friday last. The Abyssinians had cannon and used them against the town, but they were repulsed with heavy loss. The Italians had five killed and twenty wounded. After their defeat the Abyssinians entrenched themselves on the neighboring heights in such positions as to enable them to prevent the garrison at Makalle from drawing water. The garrison has reserves of water that will last until the end of January. The garsison is in good spirits. Reinforcements continue to arrive at Adigrat.

THE REWARD DOUBLED.

$10,000 Now Offered for the Return of the Burden Jewels.

New York, Jan. 13.—I. Townsend Burden has doubled the reward offered for the recovery of the jewels stolen from his residence two weeks ago. Mr. Burden said last night: "I have doubled the reward to encourage the thieves to return the jewels. That is the only motive. I have no new information. If I had, I probably would not have increased the reward from $5,000 to $10,000. It is the lack of information that causes the increase. We have no clue at all, and we have received no genuine offer to negotiate for the return of the stolen goods.

Rhodes Leaves for Kimberly.

Cape Town, Jan. 13.—Rear Admiral Harry H. Rawson, commanding the Cape and West Africa squadron, who was recently ordered to take his flagship the St. George to Delagoa bay, arrived here yesterday and at once proceeded for that place. The St. George is a twin-screw cruiser of the first class. She mounts twelve guns. Ex-Prime Minister Cecil Rhodes has started for Kimberley. His intentions are unknown.

The Commodore To Be Sold.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 13.—News from Wilmington gives particulars of the removal of all the military stores from the alleged filibustering steamer Commodore. They were, it is said placed on board a schooner from the Bahamas, which had brought fruit, and which sailed the day before Christmas, apparently only in ballast, and which went direct to Cuba. The steamer Commodore will be sold.

Coal Discharged at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 13.—During the year 1895 there was discharged and shipped from this city 333,000 tons of coal to inland cities of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. This is over 100,000 tons more than during the previous year. In addition to this amount 160,000 tons more were landed for use in this city.

Completing Venezuelan Papers.

London, Jan. 13.—The Standard today says the foreign office is busily engaged in completing the papers relating to the Venezuelan dispute. These papers will be published with as much dispatch as is consistent with the satisfactory execution of the laborious task.

Wreckage at Nantucket.

Nantucket, Mass., Jan. 13.—Wreckage, consisting of fruit barrels, butter tubs and various fruits, continues coming ashore on the east side of the island. Nothing has been found that definitely explains its presence in these waters.

England's War Preparations.

London, Jan. 13.—Work was carried carried on all day yesterday at the Plymouth and Devenport ordnance yards, the men being engaged in completing the supply of shells for the use of the flying squadron.

Dies of Her Injuries.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Mary Saymour, who was badly burned Friday night at her home on Temple street by explosion of a kerosene lamp, died at the hospital yesterday.

January 15—Prof. Riggs' lecture in the Crescent Avenue Church.

Lincoln's birthday, February 12th, will be observed a holiday in this State hereafter.

The Legislature convenes tomorrow. The Assembly Speakership contest is still undecided between Alfred E. Skinner and Louis T. Derousse.

The movement in opposition to the consolidation of the cities of New York and Brooklyn is developing along new lines. In the Eastern District of Brooklyn the action taken in Albany is creating considerable discussion, and the feeling is on the increase among thoughtful people that the preponderance of "hayseed" legislators who are unacquainted with the wants of a great metropolitan community must sooner or later be overcome. There is talk of convening a meeting to take steps for the creation of a new State of Long Island, and call it "the State of Long Island." This idea is not put forth by politicians, who are, of course, favorable to it, but emanates from substantial business men, who feel their interests and those of their rent-paying employes affected by the proposed consolidation.

Why should New Jersey Governors, New Jersey Generals, New Jersey Colonels and Jerseymen generally betake themselves to New York whenever they want to have a feast or a frolic? If Gov. Werts is to be entertained at dinner, his friends drag him off to New York. If it is desired to honor Governor elect Griggs in a similar manner, the cry is "On to New York," and on to New York they go. There is nothing new in this temporary emigration. It has happened so for years, and it will happen so for many years to come, unless future entertainers prove more loyal to their own State. When the citizens of Newark wanted to honor Ambassador Runyon previous to his departure for Berlin, the emigration was to the Waldorf, and a steady stream of entertainers and entertainees has flowed to the Waldorf ever since. Now the Waldorf is surpassing lovely, and New York is very attractive, but it really seems as if the proper thing to do on occasions of a public character, and especially where New Jersey officials are entertained, is to entertain the guests on Jersey soil. No doubt if this is done, the demand will eventually create the supply and our own State will be the better for a temporary period of self-sacrifice.—Newark Advertiser.

Here is the list of the offices, with the dates upon which their incumbents will step out, which will become vacant this year:

Clerk of Chancery—Allan L. McDermott, March 30.

Justices of the Supreme Court—Alfred Reed and Jonathan Dixon, April 8.

Keeper of the State Prison—John H. Tatterson, April 22.

District Court Judges—Jersey City, John A. McGrath, deceased, and Henry Puster; Elizabeth, Patrick H. Gilhooley; Trenton, Chauncey H. Beasley; Camden, Howard Carrow; Paterson, John N. Kerr; Newark, John G. Truesdell and Thomas S. Henry, all April 1.

State Board of Assessors—Anthony R. Kuser, March 10.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sebring, of Craig place, leave next Monday for Jacksonville, Fla.

Charles French of New York, spent Sunday with his friend, E. H. Clevely, of North avenue.

Mrs. King, of West Second street, returned last week from a visit with her son at Passaic.

Richard G. Simpson, of Watchung avenue, is spending the week with friends in New York.

Miss Ethel Murray, of West Fourth street, who has been ill with scarlet fever, is able to be out.

Patrick Marron, of H. M. Sherwin's shoe store, spent yesterday in New York, the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Miller, of Somerset street, have returned from a visit in Newark and Bloomfield.

Mr. Dexter, of Princeton College, spent Sunday with his friend, Harry Maxson, of West Fourth street.

Mrs. Deliah Squires, of Somerset street, has been called to Prattsburg to the death bed of her uncle.

Miss Emily Moon, of Easton, is expected tomorrow at the home of C. T. Nightingale, of Sandford avenue.

Charles VanWinkle, of Central avenue, is able to be out again after a long confinement with rheumatism.

Miss Smith, of Nyack-on-the-Hudson, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Randolph, South Plainfield.

Chief Doane, of the fire department, spent Saturday in Newark, the guest of friends in the department at that place.

Mrs. Harry M. Porter has returned to her home in Newark after visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. D. Hedden, of Somerset street.

Motorman Harry Seymour, of the street railway, is confined to his home on West Fourth street suffering from brain fever.

Miss Ryder, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Ryder, of East Front street, spent Sunday with friends at East Orange.

Edward Waring, of Willow avenue, did not return to Lehigh University as he intended, but is detained at home by illness.

Edwin Maynard, the Park avenue barber, is kept at home with a slight illness. He expects to be out this week, however.

A. V. D. Honeyman, of Duer street, expects to be at his place of business this week, having about recovered from his illness.

Edward Randolph, who is attending college at Philadelphia, is spending a few days at the home of his parents, South Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gieblehouse, of 1045 Arlington avenue, on Wednesday go to Savannah, Ga., to be absent about three months.

F. J. Shattell, of Liberty street, fell on a piece of ice on West Front street Saturday, sustaining injuries that will confine him to the house for some time.

Captain Voight, of No. 1 Truck, Newark, and Mr. Tripp, of No. 5 Truck, Jersey City, were guests Friday afternoon of Abner Bartlett, of Westervelt avenue.

Rev. Lewis Pollard, of Philadelphia, exchanged pulpits yesterday with the Rev. Mr. Gibson, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and two excellent sermons were preached.

W. Francis Hyde, of Boston, formerly of this city, and a student at the High School, is now a member of the Class of '99 in the Massachusetts School of Technology.

A. V. D. Honeyman, who has been ill with the grip for the past two weeks, is convalescing, and if the weather permits hopes to be at his office the latter part of the week.

Miss Lorenzon, who was educated at the Misisonary Training School, of Chicago, and who has been doing missionary work at Buffalo, is the guest of Miss Denton, of Prospect avenue.

John Campbell, John Burke and William Brace, three of Buffalo Bill's men, were the guests yesterday of Percy C. Ohl, of Park avenue, and Joseph Bolsterli, of Chatham street. Col. William Cody is expected to visit this city in a few days.

Clarkson Mundy, sexton of Trinity Reformed church, was taken with a chill at the church early yesterday morning, while attending the furnaces, and later was compelled to go to his home on Pearl street, and today it is feared he has an attack of the grip. His son George took charge for his father during the day and evening, and will so continue until his father is able to work.

IN AID OF THE FAIR.

Hope Chapelites Enjoy Themselves at a Pleasant Reception.

The fifth of the series of receptions in aid of the Hope chapel fair fund was given on Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, 311 East Fourth street, from 7 to 11 o'clock. Songs and recitations were given by some of the company and games were played till 9:30 o'clock, when coffee and cake were served by the ladies of the committee.

During the evening Mr. McClay arrived and entertained the company with songs and dances. Miss Sarah Head and Master Hugh Gray sang the "May Queen." Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInnes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray, Mr. and Robert Gow, Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wharton, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Head, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Croah, Mrs. Cox, Mrs N. Head, Mrs. Rounsville, Mrs. Radin, Mrs. Manchester, Mrs. Wallace; Misses Barbara Gray, Agnes Head, Fannie Hayden, Sarah Head, Laura Radin, Lizzie Firstbrook; Messrs. John Tait, David McInnes, Burt Davis, J. Loughlin and A. Laythie.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE

—Quite a number of young people spent Saturday skating on Ohl's pond.

—A subscription dance will be held at the Olympia on February 21st, Washington's Birthday Eve.

—The next meeting of the Crescent Wheelmen's minstrels for rehearsal will be held Thursday evening in the Babcock building.

—The officers of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will be installed this evening by District Deputy Grand Master Pocock and staff.

—Daniel Hogan, whose barn was burned Saturday, desires to thank the fire department for their prompt service.

THEATRICAL.

The brilliant run of "The County Fair" at the Star Theatre ends January 25th. The play, with Neil Burgess, goes on tour according to contracts made early in the season and which cannot be broken nor postponed. The remaining opportunities of witnessing this wonderfully successful play in New York city are thus limited. All those who have not seen it should not let this chance pass by. Many who have seen it before will desire to see it again. The present production is magnificent and upon a larger scale than ever before. Neil Burgess as "Aunt Abby" was never so richly humorous; Bartley McCullum as "Otis Tucker" is convulsingly funny and little Emma Pollock as "Taggs" is delightful

The Tribune Almanac.

An almanac ought naturally to be "up to date" and The Tribune Almanac for 1896 is just that. It has certainly not reprinted any of the pages of the almanac of a year ago to get out "on time." Furthermore, the publication is as fresh in tone, youthful in spirit, and frankly suited to the time in which we live as any number ever issued. Of course, the Tribune Almanac is mainly for the use of people who take some interest in public affairs and need to have exact information. It is sold for 25 cents a copy.

The "Clyde Line" Between New York and Jacksonville, Fla., Without Change.

Has excellent accommodations for the poor as well as the rich, each of their steamers having superior first-class, intermediate and steerage accommodations. The "Clyde Line" service is par excellence, their steamers being built of steel, and are large, new and speedy. Rates about forty per cent lower than all rail. Write "Clyde Line," New York, for descriptive matter, mailed free.

Wife—Here's an account of a man who shot himself rather than suffer the pangs of indigestion. Husband—The fool! Why didn't he take DeWitt's Little Early Risers? I used to suffer as bad as he did before I commenced taking these little pills. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

THEATRICAL.

All that has been said in praise of "Hands Across the Sea" and the company presenting it, was more than justified by the fine production last evening at Music Hall. The scenery also met expectations, being plentiful, handsome and effective, especially where scenes changed as if by magic by the use of rolling scenes. One great inducement in the attraction, doubtless, was the announcement that Maurice Freeman, always a great favorite at this house, was cast for the leading part, Jack Dudley.—The Wilkesbarre Leader. At Music Hall Friday night.

Dunellen.

The Board of Education will have a meeting Tuesday evening.

Mr. Touzeau, who has been visiting at Pittstown, has returned home.

Mr. Dineen, of Washington avenue, is entertaining friends from Brooklyn.

Mrs. Ayers, of Front street, is entertaining Miss Camerson, of Glen Gardner.

Frank Smith, who has been visiting friends on North avenue, has returned home to Nyack.

Dan Knutter, of Greenbrook has returned home from a visit with friends at Pottersville, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyd, of Staten Island, are spending a few days with friends on Front street.

Mrs. Philip Harman and children, of Front street, are visiting her parents for the winter at Somerville.

Miss Libbie Dennick, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dennick, has returned home to New York.

Miss Janie Churchill will entertain the Progressive Euchre Club Thursday evening, instead of last week, as announced heretofore.

Mrs. T. J. Jones, of Front street, entertained at her residence, Saturday evening, a number of her friends and relatives from New York, Brooklyn, Elizabeth and this place. The guests enjoyed many recitations and singing. Prof. York, of Elizabeth, furnished the music, which was greatly enjoyed by all. The guests enjoyed a collation which was served about 10 o'clock. Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Cluson, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Leister and family, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Moton, of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. F. Lewis, of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis, of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Cogan and Miss Loretta Cogan, and company, Mr. Lamagae, of Elizabeth; Miss VanMiddlesworth and many others

THE MARVELOUS SUCCESS OF

The Commercial Palace,

during the year just closed inspires the proprietor to still greater efforts during the coming year. The figuring up of the business year of 1895 shows a gain on sales of a good many thousand dollars over last year.

This is taken as conclusive evidence of the growing popularity of the house and that the great masses of the trading public like to patronize just such a large, up-to-date metropolitan house in Plainfield instead of going to New York.

In fact we feel so good over the magnificent showing that we are going to celebrate the same by inaugurating our first

A game is being arranged between the Y. M. C. A. bowlers and the Park Club Juniors.

The Crescent Wheelmen Juniors will roll a return game with the Y. M. C. A. team Wednesday evening on the latter's alleys.

Fred P. Taylor rolled a score of 245 at the Park Club alleys last week but as he rolled it alone it did not count in the high score contest.

The Park Club Juniors are going to challenge the "Big Five" of the club to a bowling match for Saturday evening, January 25th. The Juniors think they can make the veterans hustle. The "Big Five" consists of Brooks, Smith, Thiers, Matthews and Worth, while the Junior team will probably be made up of Brown, Dupee, McCutchen, Thiers and Taylor.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The adjourned meeting of sportsmen to consider the game laws will be held tomorrow evening.

Henry Ryder, of East Front street, played on the Yale hockey team in a practice game Saturday afternoon. He is looked on as a good candidate for a regular position on the team.

The billiard tournament at the Park Club is almost concluded and Charles H. Lyman, is, so far, the leader with eight games won and one lost. He met his strongest opponent, Augustus VanDeventer, Saturday evening, and defeated him in a brilliant game.

At present there does not seem to be any one in the Park Club that can defeat Percy Sandford at pool. He is victor in the pool tournament among the members of the club, having won eight games and lost none. The tournament is not quite yet completed but it is impossible for any of the other competitors to catch him now.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Captain Charles Lister, of the Crescent Wheelmen, has been appointed local consul by Chief Consul Robert Gentle of the L. A. W.

Johnson, Mosher, Callahan, McDonald and Davidson, all bicycle racing cracks, are in the first rank of skaters. Cooper, the Detroit flier, talks of skating this winter and if he does as well on the runners as on the wheels, he will make a fast one.

Tried to Steal Church Money.

A Plainfield youth, who has a reputation for being bad, made an attempt yesterday noon to steal the collection money at the Crescent Avenue church, after the service. Failing in this he tried to hide in the church for the purpose of taking what he could find. Tucker Johnson, the assistant sexton, discovered him in a pew just as he was locking the church door, and chased him out. The boy will probably be arrested this afternoon and given a hearing.

Art Department to Be Added.

A number of changes are being made in the rooms of the Plainfield Business College. A plan is being made for the art department which is to be added to the college.

A. A. Marsh, one of the firm of Marsh, Ayers & Co., returned from Rock Ledge, Fla., on Saturday, after an absence of over three weeks, much improved in health.

—The service at the East Third Street mission last evening was especially interesting. H. E. Needham was in charge and spoke on "The Power of Prayer." The special services to be held this week was made a special object of prayer. About fifty remained to the after-meeting.

Piles of people have piles, but De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. When promptly applied it cures scalds and burns without the slighest pain. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

The Horse and the Ass.

A horse, proud of his fine trappings, met an ass on the highway. The ass, being heavily laden with a cane and a large chrysanthemum, moved slowly out of the way. "Hardly," said the horse, "can I resist kicking you with my heels." The ass grew real angry and dashed his cigarette at the horse, saying: "You howwid cweatuh, if you dare to kick me I shawn't evah go to anothah of yonah beastly old shows in the gahden, so thaiah!"

Moral.—The horse should have kicked him instead of talking through his hames.—Truth.

"My dear Susan, I wish you would keep your trousers on your own side of the closet."—Life.

Inexcusable.

"I never felt so provoked in my life," said the girl in blue when telling of her experience the next day.

"What was the matter?" asked the girl in gray. "Your new gown was all right, wasn't it?"

"Oh, yes."

"And your new hat is certainly a beauty."

"I realize it."

"Then what was the matter?"

"Why, I wore them both for the first time last night, and George hurried me so that we reached the theater before the curtain had gone up for the first act."—Chicago Post.

Critical.

It was a new map of South America done in colors that caught the passing glance of the artistic girl.

"That's a good thing," said the young man who is interested in current events.

"Yes," she replied, "that one is very nice. But I do think some of these posters they are getting out are perfectly horrid."—Washington Star.

No Aim but to Please.

"You can let them out and make them a little larger, can't you?" asked the young woman, turning herself around in front of the mirror and ascertaining the effect from all possible points of view.

"Yes'm," replied the dressmaker. "Just as sleeves do it as not."—Chicago Tribune.

PARTIAL TO PIPES.

How Royal Personages Prefer to Indulge Their Love For Tobacco.

The pipe is the preferred method of savoring the herba nicotina for many crowned heads and royal personages in Europe. No one is fonder of his brier wood pipes than King Leopold of Belgium, and the pagoda of the bronze elephant that stands on the mantelpiece of his sanctum at Laeken is filled regularly every morning with a fragrant mixture of the finest English bird's eye and honey dew.

Another devotee of the pipe is the Duke of York, England's future king, and probably the most trusted confidant of his thoughts as well as his oldest friend is a very grimy and badly burned brier wood pipe of the "cutty" order of architecture which he has had in his possession ever since his midshipman's days, when it used to be smoked surreptitiously. The young czar of Russia follows his ducal cousin's example in this respect, and when in England at any rate seemed to find infinitely more solace in his good pipe than in the cigarettes which he smokes when in company.

The late Emperor Frederick was devoted to his pipe, one of those porcelain bowled German arrangements, and never looked more genial and kindly than when he had it dangling from his lips. His son, Emperor William, however, restricts himself to cigarettes, of which he smokes an extraordinary quantity. Old King Albert of Saxony is also fond of smoking a pipe, which is of the same character as that of the late Emperor Frederick, and his brother and heir, Prince George, one of the paladins of the German army in the war of 1870-1, takes after him in this respect.

Archduke Joseph of Austria, the head of the Hungarian branch of the reigning family, is the only living member of the house of Hapsburg who may occasionally be seen smoking one of those cherry wood pipes that are so common among the Hungarian and Austrian peasantry, although the Crown Prince Rudolph as well as the late Archduke Albrecht, the generalissimo of the Austro-Hungarian armies, used both to prefer this form of smoking to any other.

The emperor of Austria himself, who is a great smoker, restricts himself to those awful so called Virginia cigars, which, manufactured of the rankest tobacco at Triest, have a straw running right through the middle of them in order to enable them to draw, and are so green that they have to be held in the flame of a lighted candle or spirit lamp for several minutes before they will condescend to ignite. King Humbert of Italy is addicted to identically the same kind of weed, of which he receives every New Year's a case of 10,000 from his imperial ally at Vienna.—New York World.

A LASH FROM THE WEST.

An Arizona Man Says Real "Wooliness" Exists Only In the East.

The eastern press and people never allow an opportunity to pass to cast a slur upon the sturdy men of Arizona. Our people are held up as the quintessence of ignorance, vulgarism, etc. Arizona is not alone in this connection, the entire west and southwest are included in their category of simplicity. Every joke published by the eastern press relating for its body an exhibition of ignorance or uncouthness is shouldered upon western men.

The remarkable primitiveness of the western editor, the simplicity and swagger of western men, the double fisted, big footed western maiden—all constitute themes of undying mirth for the paragraphers of the eastern press. Western people do not permit such pleasantries to disturb them, realizing that such liberties are due to egotism arrayed in ignorance.

It is perhaps impossible to find, outside of the Virginia and North Carolina mountain districts, more rustic simplicity and a deeper shade of mental green than in the rural sections of New England. Compared with the rural sections of the east, the western farmer bristles with knowledge. The average westerner is a man of spirit, snap and enterprise; did he lack these qualities he would have remained in the antediluvian ruts of his ancestors and laughed at western ignorance, instead of carving fame and fortune from the undeveloped opportunities of the land of the setting sun.

Time is on the wane, and in a few short years the seat of political power will follow commerce and the hum of industry to the west. Then will our brethren who live on the borders of the codfish reservation wax humble in their pride and doff their hats to the hurrah of Arizona and the wild southwest.—Phenix (A. T.) Gazette.

Clinching a Bargain.

A farmer in the neighborhood of Lanark lately took unto himself as his better half a young damsel who officiated as his kitchenmaid. The newly made mistress was no sooner installed in her new position than she began to give herself the airs of a duchess, and naturally the other servants about the farm resented this, and sometimes treated her with scant courtesy.

A week or two after the marriage the farmer betook himself to a neighboring fair for the purpose of hiring another kitchenmaid, his wife strictly enjoining him to get a "ceevil spoken hizzie." On meeting with one whom he thought would be suitable for the post, he engaged her, after expressly stipulating that she was to be "rale ceevil to the guid wife."

"An, mind ye," he continued, "if ye an her can 'draw' thegither, there'll maybe be a bit 10 shillings or sae mair at the term end for ye."

"I' faith, maister!" exclaimed the girl, "I'se dae her biddin, an I'll tell ye what," she added, with a quick perception of the situation, "gin ye mak' it a poun mair, I'll say 'ma'am' to her!"—London Tit-Bits.

Education and Crime.

There is no doubt that there is a relation between education and crime. British statistics show plainly enough for a blind man to see that the wider the educational privileges are extended the lower is the ratio of crime. How could it be otherwise? A great many crimes are committed by men who are not totally depraved, because they have no resources and don't know how to get a living. An education gives them opportunities. It makes them self reliant, and if they can't do one thing they do another. The temptation to lead a vicious life is thereby weakened. The world is a pretty bad world, and yet I believe that the men who prefer crime to virtue are very rare exceptions. Nearly everybody would be reasonably honest if he had a fair show.—New York Herald.

Sure of His Choir.

A peppery parson down east, who was disturbed by his choir during prayer time, got even with them when he gave out his closing hymn by adding, "I hope the entire congregation will join in singing this grand old hymn, and I know the choir will, for I heard them humming it during the prayer."—Lewiston Journal.

AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Before the erection, construction, removal or alteration of any building or structure, or any part thereof, or any platform, staging or flooring to be used for seating or standing purposes is commenced within the City limits, the owner or his agent or architect shall obtain a permit therefor from the Inspector of Buildings, and unless such permit shall expressly waive the same, shall submit to the Inspector of Buildings such drawings as may be necessary to show the construction of the building or structure, and a detailed statement, in duplicate, of the specifications, on appropriate blanks to be furnished by the Inspector, giving also the location, the proposed use of the building or structure, which shall be accompanied with a statement in writing, sworn to before any person authorized by law to administer an oath, giving the full name and residence of the owner or of each of the owners of said building or proposed building, staging or flooring.

If such operation is proposed to be made by any other person than the owner or owners in fee, the person or persons intending to make such erection or alteration shall accompany the application for permit with sworn affidavit, giving the full name of the owner or owners of the land, and also of every person interested in said building or proposed building, either as owner, lessee or in any representative capacity.

Such statement may be made by the agent or architect of the person or persons hereinbefore required to make the same, and any notice served upon such agent or architect shall be binding upon the principals.

Said sworn statement and copy of application and plans shall be kept on file in the office of the Inspector, and the said operation or any part thereof shall not be commenced or proceeded with until said statement and plans shall have been so filed and approved by the Inspector in writing.

A permit may be granted for the erection or construction of any part of a building, when accompanied by a statement and plans of said portion, before the entire plans and detailed statements of said building have been submitted.

Ordinary repairs may be made without notice to the Inspector, but such repairs shall not be construed to include the cutting away of any constructional support, whether wall, pier, column, girder or beams, or the removal, change or closing of any staircase or exit.

All applications for permits shall be passed upon by the Inspector within ten (10) days from dates of receiving the same respectively.

All permits to construct or alter any building shall be valid for one year from the date thereof and no longer.

Permits for removal shall specify the time within which the removal shall be made.

As herein used, the term "removal" means to change the location of building or structure. To take down or remove shall be termed "demolition."

Section 2. Outside of the fire limits prescribed herein, buildings of frame or wood may be erected subject to conditions hereinafter prescribed for chimneys, flues, hearths, steam or heating flues, electric wiring or any fire-causing factor of construction.

Frame buildings to be occupied or used as a stable, workshop or manufactory shall not be built or so used if more than thirty (30) feet in total height.

No frame or wood dwelling house hereafter erected shall exceed fifty (50) feet in height to highest point on main roof.

In no case shall a wooden building be erected within three (3) feet of any inside line of a lot, unless the space between the studs of any and every such side be filled in solidly with not less than two (2) inches of brick or other hard fireproof material.

When three (3) or more frame houses are built continuous the dividing wall between each house is to be of brick not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation wall to a point up to the under part of the roof.

No spire or tower of wood shall be built or rebuilt within the City limits to a greater height than sixty (60) feet.

Section 3. All excavations to be made and protected as per Section 13.

Section 4. All cellar or basement walls for frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick; if of brick, to a depth of eight (8) feet below grade on street; and to be not less than eighteen (18) inches thick and well bonded if of stone. If of greater depth than above, or if carried up eight (8) feet or more above grade to frame, the foundation wall is to be not less than twelve (12) inches thick if of brick, and not less than twenty (20) inches thick and well bonded if of stone.

All foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar mixed with sharp sand.

Section 5. All frame or wooden buildings exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be built with sills, posts, inter-ties or ribbon strips, plates and rafters, all of suitable and sufficient size, to be properly braced and framed, and with suitable studs set at proper distances apart, with fire cut-off at each floor. The floor beams shall not be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth, except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth, well bridged.

Whenever frame construction is of wood, even if partially or wholly covered with veneer of brick or stone, it shall be deemed a frame building.

Section 6. The removal of any wooden building or structure from without to within the fire limits is absolutely prohibited, and if accomplished before discovery the Common Council may, at its discretion, order its return or demolition within twenty-four hours after notice, at the expense of owner or owners of said building.

Section 7. The fire limits of the City of Plainfield are hereby established so as to include all that district of said city contained within the following boundaries, and also within the space of one hundred and fifty (150) feet beyond and parallel to the centre lines of the streets or avenues constituting the said boundaries: Beginning at the point of intersection of the centre line of Washington Avenue with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line of Washington Avenue to the centre line of West Front Street; thence along the centre line of West Front Street to the centre line of New Street; thence along the centre line of New Street to the centre line of West Fifth Street; thence along the centre line of West Fifth Street and East Fifth Street to the centre line of Washington Street; thence along the centre line of Washington Street to the centre line of East Front Street; thence along the centre line of East Front Street to the centre line of Elm Place; thence along the centre line of Elm Place to its intersection with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the City line in Green Brook to the place of beginning.

Section 8. Every wooden or frame building, with a brick or other front within the fire limits, which may hereafter be damaged by fire, the elements or otherwise, to an amount not greater than three-fourths the total immediately previous value thereof, may be repaired or rebuilt pursuant to the provisions of this ordinance.

But, if such damage shall amount to more than three-fourths such value, then such building shall not be repaired or rebuilt, but shall be demolished.

Section 9. Should the decision of the Inspector or of Appraiser as hereinafter prescribed permit of the repair or restoration of any building, every damaged wall or part thereof shall be repaired or restored to its full original strength, but only within the limits of its original height and other dimensions and uses.

Section 10. The previous value of such building and the proportion of such damage, the extent of re-use of any wall or walls or parts without repair, and the amount of repairs or restoration may be determined by the Inspector, subject to appeal as hereinafter provided.

Upon the written demand of the owner or owners of such premises, to be sent to the Mayor, he shall appoint one appraiser and one appraiser shall be selected by said owner or owners.

They shall at once examine the said premises, and if they agree their decision is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Should these two appraisers not agree, they shall select a third appraiser or umpire to take part in such impartial and disinterested examination and verdict.

The joint decision of any two of them is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Each appraiser is to receive ten ($10) dollars for such service, to be paid by the owner or owners of said building before said report is filed, and no repairs or alterations except to the extent necessary to make safe as directed by the Inspector, shall be made or begun until said report is filed and permit obtained.

Said report is also to include a separate detailed statement in writing as to causes or probable causes of damage, and of the general or special conditions making favorable thereto in each case, and may also include the suggestions of the appraisers as to effective future remedy and prevention.

These reports are to be kept carefully filed by the Inspector in a special docket, to be known as the Fire Inquest docket.

Section 11. Temporary one-story frame buildings within the fire limits may be erected for the use of builders within the limits of lots whereon or adjacent to where buildings are in course of erection, upon permit of Inspector, said structure to be used only for the purpose specified.

Temporary stagings, platforms or floorings for seating or standing purposes may be constructed of wood, upon filing of plans and permit from Inspector.

All temporary structures of wood are to be demolished by owners upon the completion of purpose specified.

Fences of wood shall not be over ten (10) feet in total height.

Signs of wood shall not be erected over two (2) feet high on any building.

Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams, may be erected upon any detached dwelling house, occupied by not more than three (3) families.

One wooden bay or oriel window may be built of wood upon any face or front of any building, if but one (1) story in height and not more than one-third of the width of said face or front.

If but two stories in height and of said proportionate width, it may be constructed of wood, but shall be covered with metal, slate or tile.

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any one side or face it or they shall be wholly built of fireproof material.

The roofs of all permanent new wooden constructions are to be covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

Existing shingle roofs may only be repaired or renewed on old lines and heights.

If altered or reconstructed in any way, a metal, clay tile or slate roofing is to be substituted.

Sheds of wood not over fifteen (15) feet to highest point of roof, and constantly open on at least one side, with the closed sides and roof thereof covered with metal, clay tile or slate, may be built on permits from the Inspector, but no fence shall be used as any side of such shed.

Exterior privies, wood or coal houses not exceeding one hundred and fifty (150) square feet in superficial area and not over eight (8) feet in heigh, may be built upon permit from the Inspector, with roofs only, covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

Section 12. The walls of all buildings within the fire limits other than frame buildings and constructions herein authorized, shall be constructed of stone, brick, iron or other hard incombustible material, and the several component parts of such buildings shall be as hereinafter provided.

The height of all walls shall be measured from the curb level at the centre of the building, to the top of the highest point of roof beams on flat roofs, or to the average or middle height of gable for all high pitched ridge roofs having no deck.

When the walls of a structure are twenty-five feet or more distant from every street line, then the average level of the grades at walls may be taken instead of curb.

If the wall is practically entirely carried on iron girders supported by masonry piers or iron columns, the measurements as to height may be taken from the top of such girder, for such wall only.

The width of buildings for the purposes of this ordinance shall be construed by the direction in which the beams are placed, the lengthwise of the beams to mean the width wise of the building, and the bearing walls are those on which the beams are carried.

Section 13. All excavations shall be properly guarded and protected by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, so as to prevent the same from becoming dangerous to life or limb; and shall be sheet piled where necessary to prevent caving in of adjoining earth.

Whenever an excavation for building or other purposes shall be intended to be, or shall be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet, below the street curb, the person or persons causing such excavation to be made shall at all times, from the beginning to the completion thereof, at his or their expense, preserve any adjoining or contiguous wall or walls from injury and support the same by proper foundations, so that the said wall or walls shall be, and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, whether the said adjoining or contiguous wall or walls are down more or less than ten feet below the street curb.

If such excavation shall not be intended to be, or shall not be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet below the street curb, the owner or owners of such adjoining or contiguous wall or walls shall preserve the same from injury and so support the same by proper foundations to full depth of such excavation, that it or they shall be and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, and for that purpose shall be permitted to enter upon the premises where such excavation is being made, when necessary, and shall complete the same within reasonable time.

If in either case entry at reasonable times is refused, the Inspector may determine such difference, or prescribe the best and most practicable way of making safe as herein required.

If an adjoining party wall is intended to be used by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, and the use of such wall is approved by the Inspector, then the said person or persons causing the excavation to be made shall at his or their expense amply protect and secure such party wall by proper foundations as before described.

If the person or persons whose duty it shall be to preserve or protect any wall or walls from injury shall neglect or fail so to do, after having had twenty-four hours' notice from the Inspector, then the Inspector may enter upon the premises and make same secure and safe at the expense of the person or persons last herein referred to.

Section 14.—Except on rock bottom all foundations shall have footing courses, and all footing or base courses under foundation walls shall be laid not less than three (3) feet below the permanent surface of the ground, on a good solid bottom; and in case the nature of the earth and the character of the building should require it, on a bottom of driven piles or laid timber, of proper kind and sufficient size and thickness, or such other approved foundation as the Inspector and the nature of the case may require, to keep and maintain the walls firm and secure.

All piers, columns or posts, resting on the earth, shall be set upon a solid bottom, in the same manner as required for the foundation walls.

Except in the case of adjacent excavations as hereinbefore provided, should any grade be lowered the foundational supports shall be also carried down to the depth above prescribed.

The footing or base course under all the foundation walls, and under all piers, columns or posts resting on the earth shall be of stone or concrete, and if under a foundation wall shall be at least six (6) inches wider than the bottom width of the wall; and if under piers, columns or posts, shall be at least six (6) inches wider on all sides than the outside bottom lines of said piers, columns or posts.

Except that in case of dwellings, where a good gravel bottom exists, the footing or base course may be only four (4) inches wider instead of six (6) inches wider, as hereinbefore provided.

The thickness of all footing courses shall be not less than one-third their width, but no concrete footing course shall be less than six (6) inches thick.

All base stones shall be well bedded and laid crosswise, edge to edge.

Section 15.—In buildings, where the space under the sidewalk is utilized, a sufficient stone or brick wall shall be built to retain the roadway of the street, and the side, end or party walls of such building shall extend under the sidewalk, of sufficient thickness, to such walls.

The roofs of all vaults shall be of incombustible material.

Openings in the roofs of vaults for the admission of coal or light shall be covered with lights of glass in iron frames, or with iron covers having a rough surface, and rabbeted flush with the sidewalk; these lights shall not be more than four inches square.

When areas are covered, iron, or iron and glass combined, stone or other incombustible materials shall be used, and sufficient strength in such covering shall be provided to insure safety to persons walking on the same, and to carry the loads which may be placed thereon.

Open areas shall be properly protected with suitable railings.

Section 16.—Foundation walls shall be construed to include all walls and piers below the curb level or tier of beams nearest to the curb level intended to serve as supports for all superimposed weights.

All foundation walls shall be built of stone or brick.

If built of stone they shall be at least eight (8) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

If built of brick, they shall be at least four (4) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

All stone walls shall have at least one header extending through the wall in every three (3) feet each way, of good flat stones.

All stone to be laid on its natural bed, to be built flush and true with struck joints, on inside, and all foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar.

Section 17.—When walls herein prescribed are of diminishing thickness upwards, the said decrease of thickness shall be construed to mean at the top line of tier of beams nearest to the height specified.

The ends of all wooden beams in all walls, especially in all party walls, are to be separated by at least four (4) inches of brick work.

And in eight (8) inch walls, to be strapped together on the tops of every fourth beam strongly spiked, for cross tie.

As many stories as desired may be placed within the given total heights.

If a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet is desired for the walls of any building, the entire building must be built of approved fireproof construction.

If any tower, or part of any building or structure is to be built of a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet above curb, it shall be built of fireproof materials as approved by the Inspector.

Section 18.—All outside walls of dwelling houses within the city limits shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick, if under and not more than twenty-four (24) feet above curb level.

If over twenty-four (24) feet and not over fifty (50) feet above curb level, the walls shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick.

If over fifty (50) feet and not over sixty (60) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

All party and interior walls over twenty-five (25) feet high, and not over forty (40) feet high, shall be not less than twelve (12) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than eight (8) inches thick from thence to top.

All party and interior walls over forty (40) feet high, and not over fifty (50) feet in height above curb level, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over fifty (50) feet high, and not over sixty (60) feet in height, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over sixty (60) feet high, and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, shall be not less than sixteen (16) inches in thickness to the height of fifteen (15) feet, and from thence upward twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches in thickness more than fifteen (15) feet in height.

Section 20.—Excepted from the requirements of previous sections are all dwelling houses built in continuous blocks of three (3) or more, when each is not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and thirty-five (35) feet in height, which may have interior and party walls only, of brick, not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundations. And also:

All the walls of dwellings not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and not more than twenty-five (25) feet or two (2) stories in height may be built not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation.

One-story structures not over twenty (20) feet wide, thirty-five (35) feet deep, and fifteen (15) feet in height, may be built with all the walls not less than eight (8) inches in thickness.

Section 21.—In dwellings where the distance between the bearing walls is not over thirty-three (33) feet, and no clear span is over twenty-six (26) feet, brick partition walls not less than eight (8) inches thick, nor more than thirty (30) feet high, may be built to support the floors.

Over any room with a clear span of more than twenty-six (26) feet, proper supports of iron or masonry, of approved sizes and strength, may be used to support walls or floors, inclusive of support from overhead trusses or girders, but in every such case the bearing walls shall be increased four (4) inches in thickness for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or part thereof that said span is over twenty-six (26) feet.

Where dimensions of buildings are given in the preceding sections, the width or depth may be changed, providing the area is not increased and additional inside walls are added if deemed necessary by the Inspector.

Section 22.—The outside or party walls of warehouses, stores and factories shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick, if under and not more than forty (40) feet in height.

If over forty (40) feet and not over sixty (60) feet in height, the walls are to be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, the walls are to be twenty (20) inches thick to the height of twenty-five feet, and from thence sixteen (16) inches thick to a height of fifty (50) feet above curb, and from thence twelve inches thick to top.

Front and rear non-bearing and intermediate bearing walls may be four (4) inches less in thickness than is above given, in buildings not more than twenty-five (25) feet clear span between walls, provided none are less than twelve (12) inches thick, and piers or columns supporting ends of girders are of sufficient strength.

When bearing walls are less than twenty-five (25) feet apart, or are intersected by cross walls, or strengthened by piers of sufficient size, the Inspector may permit the reduction of thickness of interior walls in just proportion to such added strength, except on walls less than forty (40) feet in height.

Where the clear span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet in any part of a building the walls supporting said span shall be four (4) inches more in thickness than is in this section specified, for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or fraction thereof, that said span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet.

Where any bearing wall or part thereof shall, in its horizontal section or plan be weakened by excess of flues or openings, or at any other point not herein provided for, the Inspector shall require its amendment to a sufficient total bearing thickness.

Section 23. In all warehouses, stores and factories over twenty-five (25) feet in width between walls, in which there shall be brick partition walls, or girders supported on iron or wooden columns or piers of masonry, the said partition walls or girders shall be spaced not more than twenty-five (25) feet apart on longitudinal centres, and the columns, girders or piers shall be of sufficient strength and size to bear safely the weight and any strain to be imposed upon them.

Section 24. The walls of churches, theatres, foundries, machine shops and other buildings of a public character, shall in no case be less than is in this ordinance specified for warehouses; and said buildings shall have in addition thereto such piers or buttresses as in the judgment of the Inspector may be necessary to make a safe and substantial building for its purpose.

Section 25. In all walls the same amount of materials herein required for walls, may be in part used in piers or buttresses, provided the wall or bars between shall be of a thickness approved by the Inspector.

The inside four (4) inches of all walls may be built of hard burnt hollow clay or porous terra cotta blocks, if laid at the same time with brick work and properly bonded into the walls and of the same dimensions as the brick used.

In all walls that are built hollow, the separating space shall not be counted in the total thickness of wall, but the same quantity of material shall be used as if it were built solid as herein provided. No such hollow space shall exceed four (4) inches in width, nor shall such wall be built unless the parts of same are strongly bonded together by proper ties either of brick, stone or iron placed not over twenty-four (24) inches apart each way.

Recesses may be left in the foundation or walls of lower stories, but in no case shall these walls be of less thickness than the walls of third story, or less than eight (8) inches.

No recess for alcoves, water or other pipes shall reduce to less than eight (8) inches in thickness at that point.

If it is desired to increase the height of any existing party or independent wall, when said wall is less in thickness than is herein required, it shall be done by a lining of brick work to form a combined thickness with the old wall of not less than four (4) inches more than is required for a new wall at total height desired, and no lining shall be four (4) inches thick for more than one story or fifteen (15) feet.

Said lining is to be supported on proper foundations, and whenever four (4) inches thick is to be applied only to firm, cleaned wall and thoroughly anchored by wrought iron anchors driven into the old wall.

No existing wall shall be used for party wall or other purposes unless approved by the Inspector, and all supports of walls shall be only of brick, stone or iron.

The walls of each story shall be built up to the full thickness to top of beams.

All walls shall be carried up to all roof sheathings, and to top lines of all cornices, and all party walls shall be built twelve (12) inches above the roof and coped with stone, iron or terra cotta.

No coping wall shall be less than eight (8) inches thick.

In all buildings occupied by three (3) or more families over a lower portion used for any other purpose than a dwelling, the hall partitions of first story and basement shall be of brick or other fireproof material and underside of staircases covered with metal lathing and plaster.

All walls shall be properly bonded together, or anchored to each other by tie anchors built not less than sixteen (16) inches into side walls every six (6) feet in height, anchors to be not less than one and a half by three-eighths of an inch in size.

All walls shall be anchored to each tier of beams with iron anchors not more than eight (8) feet apart, and extending to within at least four (4) inches of the outside face of the wall; between all openings there shall be at least one anchor, and where beams with anchors rest on partition or girders, in two or more lengths across the building they shall be strongly bolted or strapped together to obtain cross tie.

All walls to be strongly braced during their construction from the beams of each story, and when required and necessary shall also be braced from the outside until the building is enclosed.

All piers shall be built of stone or brick laid in cement mortar; all isolated stone piers to carry girders supporting walls, or columns or posts over, shall be well bonded and well covered on all exposed sides.

Isolated brick piers shall not, in height, exceed twelve (12) times their least dimensions.

Every brick pier less than nine (9) superficial feet in area at its base, supporting any beam, girder, arch or column on which a wall rests, or lintel spanning an opening over ten (10) feet and supporting a wall, shall at not greater intervals than thirty (30) inches apart have built into it a bond stone not less than four (4) inches thick, or a cast iron plate of sufficient strength, and of the full size of pier.

Under all iron beams, girders, trusses, columns of posts there shall be a cap or template of sufficient size and thickness, of stone or iron.

Ashlar shall not be counted as a part of the thickness of walls as herein provided, unless built and bonded as prescribed for foundations, and the walls so faced laid with, and ashlar bedded in, cement mortar.

All stone used for the facing of any building or part thereof, shall not be less than four (4) inches in thickness, to be strongly bonded or anchored to the backing.

Section 26. The brick used in all buildings shall be good, hard, well burnt brick, every sixth course to be a header course; all to be laid wet except in freezing weather, with closely filled joints, to be built to true lines and carried up plumb.

Where walls are faced with brick in running bond every sixth course shall be bonded with whole brick diagonal bonders, or by splitting the face brick into halves and backing the same with a continuous row of headers.

The sand used in all buildings shall be clean, sharp grit sand.

All mortars to be thoroughly mixed by careful and persistent working.

Cement mortar shall be made of sand and cement in the proportion of not more than three (3) parts of sand to one (1) part of cement, and shall only be used immediately after being mixed.

Lime mortar shall be made of not more than four (4) parts of sand to one (1) part of lime, and shall not be used until throughly slaked.

Cement and lime mortar shall be made of three (3) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and one (1) part of lime.

Concrete for foundations shall be made of two (2) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and not more than five (5) parts of small, clean broken stone or good sharp gravel, all to be carefully mixed immediately before using.

Section 27. All openings for doors and windows in all buildings shall have a good and sufficient arch of stone or brick, well built and keyed and with sufficient abutments, or a lintel of iron of sufficient strength, or of stone not less than four (4) inches thick, with a bearing not less than four (4) inches at each end.

When the lintel is of less thickness than the wall to be supported, there shall also be a good timber lintel with bearings of not less than three (3) inches, and a double rowlock or bonded arch turned over same.

Section 28. In computing the weight of walls: Brick work shall be estimated at 115 lbs. per cubic foot; facing stones shall be estimated at 160 lbs. per cubic foot.

The safe bearing load for good brick work shall be estimated at 8 tons per su. ft. when laid in good lime mortar; 11½ tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement and lime mortar; 15 tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement mortar.

The strength of floors to be estimated for in buildings, in addition to the weight of materials, is to be not less than: For dwellings, 75 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for office purposes, 100 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for public assembly, 120 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for stores, warehouses, etc., 150 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for all roofs, 50 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface.

Section 29. Every iron column, post or other vertical support, and all trusses, beams and girders shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely its intended total load, and if of iron, the manufacturer or contractor shall cause to be plainly marked upon said girder or column, the weight it will safely sustain, and no greater weight shall be imposed thereon. All beams and girders to have ample bearings upon sufficient capstone or templates of stone or iron.

Iron supports to walls, whether beam, girder or column shall, if required, be thoroughly incased with brick or other approved fireproof material.

Section 30. No wooden floor beam shall be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth. Except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth.

All header and trimmer beams shall be double or one inch thicker than the beams, and where more than six (6) feet long shall be hung in stirrup irons.

All floor and roof beams to have bearings of not less than four (4) inches at ends, and where they rest upon brick or stone walls, shall be cut to a bevel of three (3) inches on their depth.

All wooden beams shall be framed away from all and every kind of flue in walls and chimneys, the trimmer beam to be at least eight (8) inches from the inside of any flue in a straight way, and four (4) inches away from the outside of a chimney breast, and the header not less than two (2) inches from brickwork.

All tiers to be strongly bridged with sufficient rows of contiguous herringbone bridging well nailed for every ten foot span.

Each tier of beams to be anchored to all walls every six (6) feet with one and one-half by three-eighths inch wrought iron anchors well secured to side of beams.

All timbers and wooden beams to be free from weakening imperfections, and of full strength of dimension and kind.

Stud partitions are to be continuous wherever practicable, that is, to run down between the beams and rest on the plate of the partition below.

All wooden girders supporting beams shall be carried by brick piers, or iron, locust or other suitable hard wood posts of sufficient strength, on proper foundation.

Section 31. Every hoistway opening is to be provided on each story with a substantial railing, and strong battened trap door securely hinged, such railings and doors to be kept closed at all practical times, except when in actual use by occupants of builings, but especially to be carefully closed each and every day at the completion of business.

Any failure to provide such trap doors, and for every neglect to close the same as herein prescribed, the owner or occupant of said building shall be respectively liable for the violation of this ordinance.

The interior of all elevator or dumb-waiter shafts to be lined with metal or covered with metal lathing and plaster. The doors at each story to be covered with metal on the inside.

Section 32. In the fire limits, all roofs and cornices, the tops and sides of all dormers and gables, all balustrades, pediments and details generally, both constructional and ornamental, shall be of slate, metal or terra cotta.

All cornices and other metal features to be secured to brick work with iron anchors.

The roof sheathing of every building shall in no case be extended across the front, side or end of any party wall.

All buildings shall be provided with metallic gutters and water leaders, the latter in no case to discharge upon the sidewalk.

The roofs of all buildings within the fire limits shall have a scuttle or bulkhead, covered with approved fireproof material, with fixed ladders or stairs of iron leading thereto. No scuttle is to be less than two by three feet in size, and the frames of all bulkheads are to be filled with brick or fireproof block.

All skylights shall be made only of metal and glass.

Section 33.—No chimney shall be built upon any floor, or be supported in whole or part with wood, but shall be wholly supported on stone, brick or iron.

Corbelling out a chimney shall not exceed eight (8) inches, in not less than six (6) courses of brick, and if supported by piers, said piers shall not be less than twelve (12) inches on the face, and be properly bonded into the wall.

All fireplaces shall have hearths of brick, stone, slate, or tile, not less than eighteen inches in width, to be supported on arches of brick or stone, and under all portable ranges such hearths shall be at least sixteen (16) inches wider on front than depth of range.

All floors under kitchen cook stoves and other stoves shall be covered with metal the same to extend at least one (1) foot, on all sides, beyond base of said stoves.

All stud partitions back of portable kitchen ranges shall be framed sixteen (16) inches higher than smoke pipe opening and one (1) foot wider each side of range, and the opening filled in with brick or fireproof blocks. No stove shall come within two (2) feet of any wooden partition. No wood work shall cross the brick breast of any portable range.

All ash holes, ash houses or ash depositories of any kind shall be built wholly of brick, stone, iron or fireproof material.

All smoke flues with walls less than 8 inches thick shall be lined on the inside with cast iron or fireproof terra cotta pipe, to be built in with brick work, from the bottom of the flue or from the throat of the fireplace, and shall be carried up continuously to the extreme top of chimney, which is to be not less than three (3) feet above the roof, to be coped with stone, terra cotta or iron.

All smoke flues for manufacturing or steam power boilers shall be built with double walls, with an air space between, the inside four (4) inches to be of fire brick or fire clay slabs or blocks laid in fire mortar, to the height of twenty-five (25) feet from the bottom.

All such flues to extend at least ten (10) feet above the highest point of any roof within a radius of fifty (50) feet, and be covered on top with a heavy wire netting.

The fire backs of all fireplaces shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick of solid masonry.

The brickwork on outside faces of all fireplace flues shall not be less than eight (8) inches, unless lined with tile.

All blind and dead flues to be shut off at the underside of the beams of each story.

Section 34. No wooden casing, furring or lath shall be placed against or cover any smoke flue or metal pipe used to convey hot air or steam.

All such flues to be covered with metal lathing, and all flues to be left smooth and clear on the completion of building.

No stovepipe shall pass through any floor or roof of any building or through any woodwork or partitions, unless protected by a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation, and not less than three (3) inches of air space between.

All stovepipes shall in all cases be kept twelve (12) inches away from all beams or unprotected woodwork; if protected by metal work the least distance from woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

All smokepipes from laundry stoves or any kind of heating furnace or boiler must be kept at all points not less than eighteen (18) inches from all unprotected woodwork.

If protected by metal the least distance from the woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

Where such pipe passes through any woodwork or partition it shall be protected by an iron thimble with at least eight inches of brick work around it, or a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation and not less than six (6) inches of air space between.

Section 35. All brick set hot air furnaces shall have two covers, with an air space of at least four (4) inches between, the top to be of brick or metal supported by iron bars, to be made perfectly tight, and there shall not be less than four (4) inches of space between the ceiling or floor beams and top.

All brick set furnaces except hot water furnaces shall have two four (4) inch well bonded brick walls with a not less than three (3) inch air space between. In every case to be built at least four (4) inches from all woodwork.

All portable hot air furnaces shall be kept at least two (2) feet away from any unprotected woodwork or ceilings (plaster not inclusive), and when protected by metal lining the distance shall not be less than one (1) foot.

No furnace shall be placed upon a wooden floor, but if such floor is adjacent thereto, the furnace must in every case be set upon brick or stone base of full size of furnace and to extend not less than two (2) feet beyond the furnace in front of the ash-pan.

Section 36. All hot air flues or shafts in stone or brick work to be lined with metal or burnt clay pipe.

All hot air flues in stud partitions shall be made double, with not less than one-half inch air space between, the back and sides of said channel and all other contiguous beams or woodwork to be lined with metal.

The outer faces of all hot air flues to be covered with metal lathing.

Horizontal hot air pipes shall not be less than three (3) inches below plaster ceilings, and where carried through wood partitions or floors they shall be guarded by either a double collar of metal with two (2) inches of air space and with ventilating holes, or be surrounded by brickwork at least four (4) inches in thickness.

Section 37. Registers shall not be located within four (4) feet distant horizontally from the furnace. When registers for hot air furnaces are placed in any woodwork or combustible floors the sides shall be lined with tin. All register boxes to be made of tin plate with flange, the register to rest upon the same, the sides of boxes to be not less than two (2) inches from all woodwork.

All indirect radiator boxes and all wooden boxes and casings enclosing steam pipes shall be lined with iron or tin.

Section 38. No steam pipe shall be placed within two (2) inches of any timber or woodwork unless same is protected by a metal covering, when the distance shall not be less than one (1) inch.

All steam or hot water pipes passing through floors and ceilings and plastered partitions shall be fully protected by a metal tube one (1) inch larger in diameter than the pipe, and the space filled in with mineral wool, asbestos or other approved non-combustible material.

All cutting of beams for gas, water or other pipes shall be not more than three (3) feet from bearing of beams, and shall be not more than two (2) inches in depth in any case.

Section 39. Every electric wire for furnishing light, heat or power, led into any building from the outside thereof, shall have proper and sufficient appliances to cut off the current where it enters the building.

All inside wires shall be properly insulated and all work throughout be in accordance with the rules and requirements of the Underwriters' Association of this Department, a copy of which said rules and requirements shall be kept on file in the office of said Inspector.

Section 40. No gas burner, unless protected by a bell, shall be placed less than three (3) feet below any ceiling or woodwork, and all side lights and swinging brackets shall be so placed as not to endanger any woodwork, curtains or other combustible material.

Section 41. Every dwelling house occupied by three or more families above the first story, and every building already, or to be erected, occupied or used as a hotel, lodging or boarding house, school, theatre, or place of public assembly, and every factory, mill, manufactory or workshop, hospital, asylum, or institution, or office building shall be provided with suitable strong iron fire escapes as may be determined by the Inspector, to be constructed in such manner as he may direct and approve.

The owner or owners of any building upon which any fire escape may be erected is to keep the same in good repair, and no person shall at any time place any encumbrance whatsoever thereon, or remove or disturb any part thereof without committing a violation of this ordinance and incurring penalty and fine thereof.

Section 42. In all buildings of a public character, such as hotels, churches, theatres, restaurants, railroad depots, public halls, and other buildings used or intended to be used for purposes of public assembly, amusement or instruction, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, passageways and aisles, and all lighting and heating appliances and apparatus shall be arranged as the Inspector of Buildings shall direct, to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident, and to afford the requisite and proper accommodation for the public protection in such cases.

All aisles and passageways in said buildings shall be kept free from camp stools, chairs, sofas and other obstructions.

The Inspector of Buildings may, at any time, serve a written or printed notice upon the owner, lessee or manager of any of said buildings, directing any act or thing to be done or provided in or about the said buildings and the several appliances therewith connected, such as halls, doors, windows, seats, aisles, fire walls and fire escapes, so as to afford such security to the public in the uses to which they may be severally applied as he may deem necessary.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize or require any other alterations to existing theatres than are specified in this section.

Upon report to the Mayor of said city by the Inspector of Buildings that any order or requirement of this ordinance in regard to theatres or places of public amusement has been violated or not complied with in any such building, the said Mayor may, in his discretion, revoke the license of such theatre or place of public amusement and cause the same to be closed.

Section 43. That the owner or owners of any building or structure or part thereof, upon which any violation of this ordinance in any part or section may be placed, or shall exist, and any architect or building trade mechanic or employer or other person who shall assist or direct in the commission of any such violation, or who shall fail to comply with any of the requirements and provisions of this ordinance in each and every particular, or any order or regulation made thereunder, or who shall in any degree depart from the conditions of the detailed specifications and plans submitted, or of any permit issued thereunder, shall severally be deemed to have violated this ordinance, and upon conviction shall, for each and every violation, respectively, be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty (20) dollars, provided that the penalties provided by this section shall not apply to the next succeeding section of this ordinance.

Section 44. That any and all of the aforementioned persons who, after service of due and proper notice, as hereinafter prescribed, shall fail to comply with said notice within ten (10) days after such service, or who shall continue to violate any requirement of this ordinance in the respect named in said notice, shall, on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding One hundred (100) dollars.

Said notice of violation shall contain a description of the building, premises or property upon which said violation shall have been put, or may exist, or which may be deemed dangerous or unsafe, or to which said notice shall refer; shall specify the dangerous or unsafe condition or other violation of the ordinance complained of, and require removal of any dangerous or unsafe conditions, and strict compliance with the ordinance; and may be served personally upon the person or persons liable for violation, or by leaving said notice at the residence or place of business of such person or persons, or by leaving said notice with a member of the family of such person or persons over sixteen years of age, informing such person with whom said notice is left of its contents.

If the person or persons or any of them to whom the said notice is addressed do not reside in said city or State, and cannot by diligent search be found therein, then the said notice may be served by posting a copy of the same in a conspicuous place upon the premises, and by also depositing a copy thereof in the postoffice of said city, enclosed in a sealed wrapper addressed to the said person or persons at his or their last known place of residence with the postage paid thereon; and said posting and mailing of a copy of said notice shall be equivalent to a personal service of said notice.

The Common Council may, in its discretion, good and sufficient cause being shown therefor, remit any fine or fines, penalty or penalties, which any person or persons may have incurred, or may hereafter incur under any of the provisions of this section; but no fine or penalty shall be remitted for any such violation until the act or omission constituting such violation shall have been satisfactorily corrected.

Adopted by the Common Council Dec 30th, 1895.

Approved by the Mayor Jan. 3d, 1896.

TO MAKE A FORTUNE.

DISCOVER OR INVENT A SURE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Who Does This May Live Like a King and Be Sainted—Hundreds of Thousands of Sufferers In This Country—Talks With Several Unfortunates.

If ever a man discovers a sure cure for dyspepsia, he may live thereafter in a marble palace, keep a French cook and own a steam yacht—and be canonized after his death. The world is waiting for a dyspepsia cure. It is a pity that while Mr. Porter was taking his census he didn't find out how many dyspeptics there are in this country, but in the absence of exact information it may be safely said that the number runs up into hundreds of thousands. They all want to be cured.

Anybody can see that this country is full of dyspeptics if he will take the trouble to make a list of his friends and then put crosses against the names of those who suffer more or less from dyspepsia.

The testimony of all the dyspeptics is that neither doctor nor medicine cures them. Whenever a new man enlists under the dyspeptic flag, he is sure to get advice from one of the veterans something like this:

"Keep away from the doctors. They can't cure you. I've had more than 50 doctors myself, and I might as well have saved my money."

Here are a few statements from neophytes, inveterates and fortunates who have escaped from the tyranny and torture of the disease:

"Dyspepsia! You ask me if I've ever had it! I should think I had had it."

It's a young woman of 30 who is talking, and she goes on to tell how she has suffered.

"Always when I don't want it it comes," she says. "Get an invitation to dinner, and it's sure to attack me at about 5 o'clock. If father buys tickets to the theater, I'm bound to stay at home because just about the time for starting that horrible dyspepsia comes along and says: 'I guess I wouldn't go to the play tonight. You'd better remain in the house and enjoy my society!'

"Do you know, I really believe that I should have married long ago if it hadn't been for this dyspepsia. Wouldn't it be nice to have the wedding fixed for 4 o'clock and then have one of my attacks come on at about 3:45 and be compelled to spend the rest of the afternoon saying, 'Oh! oh! I wish I was dead!' And then the papers would come out and tell how the groom was at the church, and the ushers, and the invited guests, and that all hands waited two hours and then went home without seeing the bride."

This young woman's uncle is an ex-dyspeptic. He used to have dyspepsia so badly that in his agony he would throw himself upon the floor and writhe there.

"What gave it to me," said he, "is more than I know, but that I had it I know very well. I went to doctors and took medicine, and I dieted and exercised, but, like the girl in the swing, the more I said 'Whoa!' somebody else said, 'Let her go!' and I kept having the thing worse all the time. All of a sudden it stopped, and I've been free ever since. Why it stopped is more than I know. I wish I did know; it might be worth millions to me."

This sudden abandonment of a victim after torturing him for months or years is one of the peculiarities of the disease. A woman who is in the same social circle as the two already quoted tells her experience in this way:

"After having had dyspepsia steadily for three years I came to New York from the country and found my brother-in-law ill. I began taking care of him and worked day and night superintending the nurses and managing the house. From that time to this I've been absolutely free of dyspepsia."

"How do you account for it?"

"Why, I quit thinking of myself and worrying about my digestion. I suppose that that was what cured me."

"I don't see how that can be," said the person to whom this experience had been narrated. "My attacks are quite likely to come on me when I am thoroughly forgetful of myself. For example, I had one yesterday while I was enjoying myself ever so much. I just had to run away from my friends and get home and go to bed. It seemed as though I'd die riding up in the street car."

"Well," said a barber, who has been in the dyspepsia business off and on for the last 30 years, "they's a good many kinds of dyspepsy."

He said this when he was asked to explain the apparent inconsistency exhibited in the two cases last spoken of.

"Yes," continued the barber, "they's several kinds of dyspepsy, and the only thing for a person to do is to study his own case and govern himself accordin. Now, I've spent a fortune on myself, but I ain't got no cure. I can relieve myself now though. When I feel dyspepsy comin on, I get a crust of rye bread, and I chew it and chew it till it's as fine as powder. That makes saliva, and that's what the stomick wants. The crust of bread is my reg'lar cure, that and bein careful about what I eat. Never eat no pastry, nor potatoes, nor anything that's rich or heavy. It's an awful disease, dyspepsy is, but they's lots of 'em that's got it."

Talk about dieting is something that comes from every dyspeptic, but it is seldom that one meets a person who has hit upon a diet that agrees with him and guarantees him exemption from the attacks he so much dreads.

There is, however, a current prescription in regard to diet which dyspeptics generally believe to be a good one. It prescribes a constant diet of chopped beef, dry bread and warm water for a whole year. It is seldom, however, that one hears of a rigid adherence to this prescription, and when a person does adhere to it, his fame travels far and wide.

Practically, then, the coming man, the inventor of sure cure for dyspepsia, has the field to himself. He will not be required to furnish a machine with a sign over it, "Drop a nickel in the slot and get rid of your dyspepsia;" he may take a week, two weeks or even three months, to cure his patients. All that is required of him is to provide a thing that will do the business in a reasonable time, and his name is Astor, Vanderbilt and Gould, all three in one.—New York Times.

A Collision of Aristocrats.

"My good man," said the titled gentleman who had been violating a municipal ordinance, "I am not subject to the laws here. I belong to the nobility."

"Well," replied Mr. Terence Flynn, "for the matther o' that, nayther am Oi. Oi belong to the police force."—Washington Star.

The word tomboy, now applied to a rude young woman, formerly meant a rude young man or boy.

HIS SMILE DISAPPEARED.

And So Did He, Taking a Prize Bee Along With Him.

The old man in the "L" smoking car was absorbed in his newspaper when the burly youth entered. A pasteboard box was on the seat beside the old man, and with the air of a man who knew his rights and was prepared to enforce them, the youth sat down on it.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said the old man politely, "but you're sitting on my box."

"I know it," replied the burly youth as he took a cigar from his pocket and prepared to light it. "Why didn't you get it out of the way? You only paid for one seat, I guess."

"If you had spoken to me," explained the old man, "I would have made room for you. I was reading the paper and did not see you."

"It ain't my business to keep your things off the seats," retorted the burly youth. "I paid for a seat and took it."

"But I have something in that box that I wouldn't have injured for a great deal," expostulated the old man.

"Well, I guess it's done for now," said the burly youth, with a taunting laugh.

"Perhaps it isn't," urged the old man. "If you'd kindly get up for a minute"—

"But I won't," returned the youth shortly.

By this time some of the other passengers were becoming interested, and one or two of them evinced a desire to throw the burly youth out of the car. A faint smile that seemed to lurk around the old man's mouth, however, made them hesitate. He looked like a man who thought he had the best of the affair in spite of the other's calm assurance.

It was perhaps two minutes later when the burly youth emitted a wild yell and bounded from his seat into the aisle. Another yell followed, and he bounded down the aisle toward the door with both hands in the vicinity of his coattail pockets. On the platform of the car he began making frantic endeavors to take off his coat, but before he succeeded the train pulled into a station, and he sprang off and dashed into the waiting room.

The old man had thrown a paper over the box when the burly youth got up, and now he carefully raised the edge of it and inspected what was underneath.

"Confound him!" he exclaimed at last.

"What's the matter?" asked one of the others.

"Why, he's run off with one of my prize bees," said the old man ruefully.—Chicago Post.

Buying and Selling.

Connoisseurship is beset with temptations, and it is hard to lay down rules. It is clearly fair to buy a young man's work at its market value, say a Rossetti in the pre-Raphaelite days, for £50 or £100, but to purchase below the known value, say, a Shakespeare quarto from an ignoramus for a crown is trading beyond reason on another's ignorance. The same considerations apply as in betting. In fair betting a man buys a chance, but when the chance you sell is no chance at all, and you know it, you are swindling. Betting ethics, which are vague, forbid betting on a certainty, but really the morality of the matter is that a man should get his money's worth in the way of a chance. Still if it is not fair to trade on another's ignorance one may profit in reason by one's own knowledge.

For instance, a well known writer picked up in a twopenny barrow at different times the only two known copies of a Shelley pamphlet. The pamphlet was unsigned, and perhaps not another man in the kingdom would have identified the book, so that the purchaser almost created the value of what he purchased. In horse dealing caveat emptor is taken in its widest sense, yet even in buying horses cases may arise where the buyer should not take too good care of himself. No doubt in such bargains as well as in connoisseur purchases one has to take into account all the times one is "done," and the professional horse coper or bric-a-brac dealer makes it his trade to sell, not at a fixed price, but at the largest possible profit, so that the tables may fairly be turned on him.—London Spectator.

His Wedding Fee.

The pastor of a prominent church in a city of New York was discussing with one of his country parishioners the subject of ministerial salaries. The parishioner insisted that his pastor must be laying aside a great portion of his salary—which, by the way, was not large, as city salaries go—and when the minister attempted to explain that there were many demands for money on a man in his position the farmer intimated that the wedding fees for a year would amount to a tidy sum. Unable to disabuse the farmer's mind of this impression, the minister asked him what he would give for the first four marriage fees.

The farmer replied, "I will give you the best cow on my place." It was a year when cows were worth two or three times the price they have been bringing this season.

"It is a bargain," said the minister.

In a few weeks the first wedding party arrived. As soon as they were gone the minister drove out to see his parishioner. "I have come to pay the first installment on the price of that cow." The preacher went out to his carriage, returned with a covered basket, and, opening it, disclosed two small puppies.—New York Press.

Compensation.

"One of the things that irritate me," said Mr. Glimmery, "is to have the man whom I sit down next to in a street car persist in sitting slewed round so that he takes up more room than belongs to him and deprives me of some that belongs to me. One of the things that rejoice me is the expression on the face of the man who has been occupying three-fifths of a cross seat on the elevated, and who looks up, but fails to move when somebody comes along looking for a seat, when the big man sits down beside him, and, calmly, irresistibly and conclusively, crowds him over to where he belongs."—New York Sun.

Worked Too Well.

Agent—I have called, sir, to show you our new patent cash register which I am introducing—prevents all peculation, sir; makes it utterly impossible for any clerk to steal a cent.

Mr. Slowgo—Don't want 'em.

Agent—You don't?

Mr. Slowgo—No, sir; my neighbor next door put in one o' them things last Monday, an before night the hull force had struck for higher wages.—New York Weekly.

MECHANICAL LEGS.

Artificial Limbs So Natural Nowadays That They Defy Close Scrutiny.

The degree of progress shown by the artificial limbs now constructed is astonishing. Time was when the man who lost a leg carried the advertisement of his calamity continually about with him in the shape of a crutch or staff or peg. Now that is all done away, and the cripple moves, undiscovered, among his fellows.

Many walk the streets with two artificial legs, and the lack of their natural instruments of motion is not detected by the ordinary observer, while those who have but one artificial leg often defy close scrutiny. To accomplish such results the maimed must purchase the most approved devices and must devote some care to the cultivation of the "knack" of swinging the contrivance, but these pains in the end are a triumph, though caution must be used not to put the best leg foremost too prominently.

A universal motion at the ankle joint has been introduced, with good results, for the peculiar comprehensiveness of the natural movement of the ankle has always offered tremendous difficulties to the maker. For a long time one joint was used at the ankle, but a second is now used, and the result is most satisfactory. By the use of springs and cords at the knee also it is possible for the wearer of an artificial leg to sit without the annoyance of a protruding leg, which has always been a cause of difficulty.

The mechanical skill shown in the manufacture of hands and arms is no less ingenious, for they are so well constructed as to be for use as well as for ornament. One maker seems to regard the latter as the primary attraction, however, for he says, "I make them so that the hand can be detached, and a hook, ring or any instrument suitable to the wearer's business can be attached, and the hand can be kept neat and clean for dress purposes."

The arms now made can be moved forward or back, while the fingers of the hand are made so that they can be opened or shut. By such adjustments the wearer is enabled to perform many feats which one would suppose to be impossible for the maimed. By one movement of the arm the fingers are made to open, while by another they are made to close, in which position they are retained firmly by a spring, giving a firm clasp.

A violinist who lost his right arm was fitted so skillfully that he was enabled to play again with something of his former ability, and one man, well known in New York, has two artificial legs, yet he attends balls, and is by no means a "wallflower," though he shuns the round dances. There are machine legged cripples who skate on roller skates, and there are men with artificial arms and hands who play a good game of billiards.—New York Herald.

The English Officer as He Is.

The mess dinner, no longer a gorge sometimes accompanied with intemperance, has been curtailed into a well cooked, gracefully served meal, at the conclusion of which the wine is passed round once or twice, and then five out of six of the diners betake themselves to the smoking. Neither is the evening capped with the rowdyism of practical joking, the wit of which consisted in stupid outrage, and the results in quarrels which many a time cost those concerned their commissions.

A bumptious young officer is rubbed and wheeled into line until he has been reduced to a due diffidence of self, and this remedy has been found far preferable either to deluging an offender's bedclothes with slops or to thrusting his dress uniform up the chimney. By the bye, the word "uniform" reminds us of a transformation as complete as that in a pantomime. In lieu of head dresses as topheavy as a milkpail, of packs as killing as those under which we may still see French conscripts staggering, and of coats tightened by belts and buckles to a tension approximating to splitting, we have adopted a light kit and loose clothing specially favorable to work, comfort and economy, and there seems little justification for the assertion of the late Sir George Brown that in abolishing the wonderful old dog collar stock we had ruined the morale of the British army.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Petroleum.

A peculiar fact in respect to petroleum is the difference of conditions under which that oil occurs in Russia and America. In the former it is found in strata of the tertiary period, usually a formation resembling a quicksand and at depths of only a few hundred feet. In our own country it occurs at great depths in the older compact sandstones and limestones of the carboniferous, devonian and silurian periods. The oil of Russia consists of a class of hydrocarbons known as naphthenes, belonging to the benzine groups, while our American oil is mainly composed of paraffins. It is to this difference that the great variation between the products from these oils is due, for, while American oil yields a very large proportion, say, about 70 per cent, of illuminating oil exactly suited for combustion in our ordinary lamps, the Russian oil produces far less of such oil and a larger proportion of high class lubricating oil. The Russian illuminating oil also requires to be burned in a modified form of lamp, with a more perfect draft, in order to overcome its tendency to produce a smoky flame, and it is largely this fact which has prevented the consumption of Russian oil for light abroad.—New York Sun.

IT IS WAR FOR THE LORD

THE BATTLE OF RELIGION AGAINST SIN STARTED LAST NIGHT.

The First Meeting Was Largely Attended and an Enthusiasm Shown—Among Those Who Were Present.

An earnest spirit and a large attendance were hopeful signs at the beginning of the evangelical meetings which are to be held at the First M. E. church for the present week. Ever since last spring this movement has been underway and last evening saw the climax of the efforts of the earnest workers who have spent the last few months in preparing for this occasion. One feature of the meeting was designed to be the singing, and a large chorus choir was secured. The singers met in Vincent chapel at 7:30 o'clock and at about 8:15 o'clock marched in and took their places on the large platform. The regular platform had been greatly increased in size to provide for the seventy-five singers that gathered there.

Soon after, the service of song began under the leadership of Horace J. Martin. Howard Case acted as pianist. The well known hymns, many of which had been prominent in the Mills revival meetings, were rousingly sung by the choir in true Christian Endeavor style, while the fast increasing throng in the pews united to swell the melody.

To a Plainfielder, there seemed nothing unusual in the union of the different denominations on the platform and in the audience, but to a stranger, this exhibition of brotherly love between the denominations would have great effect.

After the delightful song service was over, Rev. Cornelius Schenck arose and offered a simple prayer for the success of the meeting. Rev. Charles R. Barnes, D. D., who acted as leader, next announced another hymn which was sung with a vim that showed the earnestness of purpose of the many singers. Rev. D. J. Yerkes read a few verses from the first and from the second chapter of Acts, which he took as his text in a short discourse. He spoke of the growth of the church and the magic change that had been made in all the new additions to the church. The object of Christ's life on this earth and all his miracles was, he said, to save man, and he declared that the object of the church was not fulfilled until men had been brought to Christ.

He next spoke of the power which enabled Christ and the apostles to preach such wonderful results and declared that "we must have that same power or our words will have no effect." After a closing exhortation, Rev. Dr. Yerkes took his seat. Rev. Dr. Barnes then told something of the meetings of which this was the first. These meetings, he said, were not a monstrosity but a natural growth and then he told of the offer of the young people's societies, made sometime ago, to do anything they could to assist in a series of revival meetings. How the Minister's Association had replied that they could greatly help and how the offer was renewed in the fall. He spoke of the great work the young people had done in their house-to-house canvass of the city. The meetings, he said, would not be a success until everyone was willing to be unheard or unseen if it would help the meeting in any way. He spoke of the length of the meetings and said that neither he or anyone else could say how long they would last; then they should follow the will of the Master. Then followed a prayer and praise service. Prayers were offered by zealous workers in all parts of the church while hymns by the congregation were intermingled with them. A few closing words from Rev. Dr. Barnes brought this service to an end and Rev. C. L. Goodrich pronounced the benediction over the congregation that filled every available seat downstairs and many of those in the gallery.

The difficult matter of seating such a crowd to the satisfaction of all was accomplished by a committee composed of George R. Cornwell, chairman, Everett J. Kimball and Joseph M. Hawkins, assisted by Messrs. John McLoughlin, Case, VanEmburgh, Searing, Abbott, Winckler, Beekman, Cranford and Brokaw.

While the revival meetings are really under the joint auspices of the young people's societies and the Minister's Associaiion, a central committee, composed of three ministers and three representatives of the societies, is in direct control and have the arrangement of the meetings to look after. This committee is composed of Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D., Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., Rev. C. R. Barnes, D. D., E. E. Anthony, G. R. Cornwell and I. W. Travell.

The meeting tonight will begin promptly at 7:45 o'clock. The service of song will last until eight o'clock and then Rev. Cornelius Schenck will make a short address. All who expect to attend are reminded to bring Gospel Hymns, Nos. 5 and 6. They can, however, be obtained in the lobby of the church at cost price from the representatives of the central committee.

SCOTCH PLAINS REVIVAL.

It Will Be Continued Another Week and Franklin Must Wait.

Rev. Arthur Crane, of Carleton avenue, was taken ill Friday night and was unable to continue the revival services at Scotch Plains Saturday and Sunday. The Scotch Plains people had telegraphed to Franklin, New Hampshire, where Mr. Crane was to hold revival meetings this week, asking that he be allowed to remain in Scotch Plains another week as the revivals were so successful. The New Hampshire committee replied that everything was all prepared for Mr. Crane's coming and they did not want to wait. So, on Sunday, a committee from Scotch Plains went to Mr. Crane's home and there asked him to remain this week. He finally consented to stay.

PLANS FOR THE NEW GLEE CLUB.

W. E. MacClymont Will Probably Be the Leader of the Club.

The glee club, which was organized last week at the home of Robert B. Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, will meet tomorrow night instead of tonight at the home of Wyatt Barnes, of Norwood avenue. W. E. MacClymont has been asked to take the leadership and will probably accept. The plan is that the glee club shall consist of sixteen young men. Should the club be successful, and there is not much doubt but that it will be, a concert will be given sometime during the spring. The idea of a local glee club has found great favor with the local talent among the young men and a number have expressed a desire to join. With such a leader as Mr. MacClymont the club would be an honor to the city.

Grocers Association Elect.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Grocers Association was held in their rooms in the Babcock building last evening. Reports were read by the secretary and treasurer, showing the association to be in a first-class condition. The expense of entertaining the State Association can be met without making an assessment on the members. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, J. Fred MacDonald; vice-president, J. A. Smith; secretary, R. W. Barnes; treasurer, F. W. Dunn. It was reported that all arrangements had been completed for the meeting of the State Association tomorrow.

Honored the Name of Frelinghuysen.

Mrs. William S. Stryker, of the New Jersey regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and wife of Adjutant General Stryker, of Trenton, is pushing forward the work of organizing the chapters of the patriot society throughout the State. Some months ago a few Somerville women were interested in the matter of forming a chapter at the county seat, and Mrs. Stryker selected Miss Balcheller, of Millstone, to do the preliminary work and serve as the new chapter's first regent. The name chosen for the new organization is General Frelinghuysen Chapter.

After The Bank Burglars.

Henry Haurand, George Voehl, P. Schmidt, J. J. Kenney and cashier F. S. Runyon of the First National Bank accompanied Chief Grant to New York today noon on the 12:06 train, where they will attempt to identify Ned Yennie and George Carson, the notorious bank burglars who were arrested in New York as the men who committed the First National Bank robbery last May.

He Lit Out.

A "Knight of the Road," who gave his name as Robert Wilson, was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza yesterday afternoon on the charge of vagrancy. The Judge suspenped sentence on condition that Wilson get out of town inside of twenty minutes.

Many merchants are well aware that their customers are their best friends and take pleasure in supplying them with the best goods obtainable. As an instance we mention Perry & Cameron, prominent druggists of Flushing, Michigan. They say: "We have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to our customers, as it is the best cough medicine we have ever sold, and always gives satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50c per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

THE ASSEMBLY OFFICERS

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS HELD IN TRENTON LAST EVENING.

Louis Derousse Gets the Speakership by Five Votes Over Alfred F. Skinner—John Robertson, of Passaic, Leader.

The Republican Assembly caucus was held last night in Trenton and resulted in the choice of Louis Derousse, of Camden, as the candidate for Speaker by a vote of 24 to 19 over Alfred F. Skinner, of Essex county.

The strength of the candidates was developed in the caucus in the choice of a Chairman, who by virtue of his office is then the recognized leader on the floor of the House. The Derousse men named James Robertson of Passaic, who studied law with Governor-elect Griggs, and is now associated with him in practice. The Skinner men named Edward W. Hicks, of Middlesex county. The vote resulted in Robertson's election by 25 to 18.

The stiffest fight was over the office of Sergeant-at-Arms, which pays only $700, and for which Essex county furnished the only candidates. Andrew G. Breidenbach was backed by Assemblyman Christie, who had allied himself with the Derousse men and against the remainder of the Essex delegation, who supported Daniel H. Hunt. Breidenbach was elected by a vote of 23 to 20. For Clerk, James Packer, of Passaic, was chosen without opposition.

Lysander E. Watson, of Monmouth, who was sergeant at-arms last year, by dividing his delegation until his plans were all arranged, succeeded in landing the engrossing clerkship, which pays $1,500 for the session.

The other officers chosen were: Assistant engrossing clerks, Charles H. Folwell, of Burlington, and Henry C. Stratton, of Middlesex; journal clerk, Alexander Hunt, of Mercer assistant, Andrew Pierson, of Sussex; bill clerk, G. Frank Sutherland, of Hudson; assistant, Frank Paulin, of Cumberland; reading clerk, Samuel S. Lyon, of Morris; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Philip Beyer, of Bergen, and Thomas Graham of Ocean. The offices have been reduced in number by thirty since last year, mainly in doorkeepers and pages, of whom there were twenty-five each. This year there are to be but twelve each, and a committee, consisting of Austin, Benedict, Christie, Lower, King and Hicks, was appointed to allot them among the counties.

Gen. Sewell, ex-Senator Hobart, Congressmen Gardner, Loudenslader, Fowler, and other Republican leaders were at the Trenton House, but the Republican legislators have transferred their headquarters, and the caucus proved more attractive than the leaders.

Assemblyman W. R. Codington, received a happy and pleasant surprise this morning when he took his seat in the House. A large handsome horse-shoe made of choice cut pinks and roses intermingled with asparagus vine, very gracefully adorned his desk. Credit for this beautiful gift is due James Morrison, of 314 East Fifth street, an ardent admirer of the Assemblyman. He together with several Plainfield friends arranged the affair and Florist Peterson did the work. It was gracefully received by Plainfield's representative.

The Speaker in the Assembly this morning appointed W. M. Conover, of North Plainfield, page to Assemblyman Reed and Willie Sebring, of this city, page to Assemblyman Codington. The doorkeepership went to Elizabeth, James Dabb being the one selected.

Won the Battles, but Lost a Dog.

A cocking main between Plainfield, Orange and Scotch Plains birds took place a few nights ago between this city and Scotch Plains in which the Orange birds won four out of the five battles. But little money changed hands. The Orange sports brought along a bull dog as a mascot and a protection, but some of the other sports stole the dog while the battles were in progress.

Feel Sure This Is the Assailant.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxson Dunham, of South Plainfield, who were summoned to Somerville a few days ago to see if they could identify a colored man in custody as the one who assaulted them at their home sometime ago, are quite positive that he is the one, judging from his appearance and especially his voice, which is feminine. An effort is now being made by the authorities to fasten the identity on him.

Killed at a Crossing.

George Hand, a well-known resident of Basking Ridge, was struck by an express train on the D. L. & W. Railroad Saturday afternoon, and died from his injuries several hours later.

CUPID'S MORNING EVENT.

QUIET MARRIAGE OF MISS ANNIE OPDYKE TO AARON KEYSER.

The Ceremony Performed in Grace P. E. Church This Morning and Witnessed by Only a Few of the Near Relatives.

The marriage of Miss Annie Opdyke, daughter of Charles W. Opdyke, of Watchung avenue, to Aaron Keyser, also of Watchung avenue, was performed in Grace P. E. church this morning at 10 o'clock, by Rev. E. M. Rodman, the rector, as exclusively reported in The Daily Press last evening. The affair was an exceedingly quiet one, owing to a recent death in the groom's family.

The bride was becoming in a green traveling gown. She also wore a hat. The ceremony was performed with a ring. Immediately after the bridal couple received the congratulations of those present they left on the 10:54 train for a two-weeks trip south.

On their return they will reside at Mr. Keyser's handsome residence on Watchung avenue. They received a large number of very costly presents from their friends and relatives.

Among the guests present at the church were: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Opdyke, Dr. Ralph Opdyke, Alfred Opdyke, Geo. W. Farlee, Miss Strobell and Mrs. H. B. Opdyke, of New York; Edwin Opdyke of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Shepard of Montclair.

The bride was a granddaughter of the late ex-Mayor Opdyke of New York, who served during the war as the executive head of the metropolis. It is understood that the wedding does not meet with the approval of the bride's father, who did not attend the ceremony.

ODD LADIES INSTALLED.

The Grand Lodge Officers Had Charge of the Ceremonies.

Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies, had a grand, good time last evening when their officers-elect were installed by Right Worthy Lady Grand Mrs. Julia Burroughs, of Charlestown, Mass., Right Worthy Vice Lady Grand Mrs. S. E. Mitchell, of Worcester, Mass., and Right Worthy Conductress Mrs. Ellen A. Atkins, of Charlestown, Mass. Following are the officers: Past lady, Mrs. Mattis; noble lady, Mrs. Bushby; vice lady, Mrs. Mattox; chaplain, Mrs. Corwin; recording secretary, Mrs. Snyder; lady reporter, Mrs. Page; financial secretary, Mrs. Demarest; treasurer, Mrs. Brokaw; senior warden, Mrs. Randolph; junior warden, Mrs. Sweeney; conductress, Mrs. Angleman; guardian, Mrs. Terry; right-hand assistant, Mrs. Bolsterle; left-hand assistant, Mrs. Weigmann; supreme representative, Mrs. Radin; junior representative, Mrs. Cox; trustees, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Kurzhals, Mrs. Mattis; pianist, Mrs. Cortwright.

After the ceremonies a programme consisting of speeches, recitations by W. R. Mattox and Miss Try Mattox, and a vocal duett by Miss Ada Westphal and Miss Mamie Richards was enjoyed. Miss Maggie Sheppard was the accompanist.

Conflagration Avoided.

Last night about 10 o'clock the small lamp in Collier's jewelry store, which is usually left burning during the night, was discovered smoking by Night Watchman George A. Rockafellow and Policeman Joseph Cooney. They at once sent word by William De Meza to his brother, John De Meza, who is employed at the the store. He was not to be found. Policeman Vanderweg attempted to find Louis Mohring, another employe, but he could not be reached. A Daily Press reporter being present, rode his wheel to the home of Mr. Collier and aroused him from his slumbers. Mr. Collier was made acquainted with the facts, and gave the reporter his keys to open the store and fix the lamp, which was done with the assistance of James Martin and Policeman Vanderweg. The chimney was broken which caused the trouble. The light was extinguished and thus a serious conflagration was prevented.

Made a Slight Mistake.

A little girl living on Jackson avenue has quite a nice collection of afternoon tea cups and souviner spoons. The other day she went after fancy crackers to serve with the set and quite astonished her mother and her guests by bringing in pretzels instead of crackers.

CHARITY PEOPLE CONFER.

Public Meeting of the Organized Aid Association Last Night.

The meeting of the Organized Aid Association was held last evening in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. With Colonel Mason W. Tyler, president of the association, in the chair, the meeting was called to order. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary John D. Miller and approved.

The constitution and bylaws of the association which were adopted before the association had been incorporated, were readopted by the incorporated association. The report of the Treasurer, H. P. Reynolds was as follows:

January 1st, '95, balance brought forward	$ 83.70
Receipts from members for the year ending December 31st	482.00
Collections	34.30
Total	$600.00

The following are the payments during the year ending December 31st:

Office expenses	$189.23
Outside expenses	14.95
Salary of agent	300.00
Printing, stationary, postage stamps and cards	59.80
Employment committee	21.10
Total	$585.08
Balance	$ 14.92

It was moved and carried that this report be referred to the finance committee.

The secretary's report was then given by John D. Miller, Esq., secretary of the association. This report was also accepted and ordered to be placed on file.

The next reports were those of the several committees.

The report of the District committee was one of great interest and will appear in printed form sometime in the near future. This report was given by the chairman of that committee, Rev. G. Kennedy Newell. All the reports were accepted and approved by the motion of Dr. Reynolds.

A motion to the effect that the care of the city poor be referred to the district committee was made by the Rev. Mr. Newell and after some discussion and explanations, was unanimously carried.

John D. Miller offered the motion that a vote of thanks be extended to David P. Hall for his faithful service in the work of incorporating the association. This motion received a full vote.

ACROSS THE BRINY DEEP.

Whereabouts of Some Plainfielders in European Climes.

The pursuit of pleasure, health, education and business is a continual temptation to Americans to cross the Atlantic. At the present time, some of the representatives of Plainfield in the old world are located as follows: Miss Caroline F. Randolph, daughter of ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, studying at Berlin; Mrs. Charles Sykes and the Misses Sykes, of "Mapleside Lodge," Scotch Plains, at Dresden; Mrs. Morgan S. Taylor and Miss Taylor, of Rockview terrace, North Plainfield, in Switzerland; Paul Tuzo, of Netherwood, studying in Paris; William Tyler, son of Col. Mason W. Tyler, of West Seventh street, studying in Germany; A. W. Haviland, of Rockview avenue, in Paris and Miss Julia C. Ackly, formerly of West Seventh street, in Paris, the head of St. Margaret's French and English School, a successful church, boarding and day school for girls.

Hoe Printing Press Patent Sustained.

An opinion by the United States Court of Errors, filed yesterday at Trenton, sustains a decision rendered by Judge Green, of the United States Circuit Court of New Jersey, in which he decided in favor of Robert Hoe & Co., in a suit against Walter Scott and others for infringing on a patent for a printing press.

Henry S. La Rue Dead.

Henry S. La Rue died of apoplexy on January 8th and was buried in Westfield last Saturday. He was born in New Brunswick, March 20th, 1817, and was nearly seventy-nine years old. In his prime Harry La Rue was well known among political leaders in New York.

Not a few who read what Mr. Robert Rowls, of Hollands, Va., has to say below will remember their own experience under like circumstances: "Last winter I had la grippe which left me in a low state of health. I tried numerous remedies, none of which did me any good, until I was induced to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The first bottle of it so far relieved me that I was enabled to attend to my work, and the second bottle effected a cure." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

A SCIENTIFIC LIBRARY.

COMMON COUNCIL TAKE NECESSARY STEPS TO ESTABLISH ONE.

The Funds Are Furnished in the Bequest of $10,000 by the Late George H. Babcock—Improvements Will Cost $6,000.

All the members of the City Council were present at last night's adjourned meeting except Councilman Fisk, who is detained at home by illness. After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, a petition was received from I. W. Rushmore and others asking for electric lights on West Eighth street, between Plainfield and Grant avenues. It was referred to the Light and Trees Committee, and another petition from the same parties, offering to pay their proportionate share for the macadamizing of the above street was referred to the Street Committee.

Constable W. R. Mattox submitted his bonds with G. W. Cole and W. W. Coriell as securieties. It was referred to the Finance Committee who later ordered it received and filed.

Mr. Stebbins stated the ordinance to create the office of building inspector would go into effect today, and in view of this fact he nominated T. O. Doane for the office temporarily, until Mayor Gilbert makes his appointments in February. The nomination prevailed. Mr. Stebbins then moved that 300 copies of the building and inspectors ordinances be printed in pamphlet form. It was so ordered.

Mr. Barrows stated that contemplated changes in the police force made it unnecessary to act on the petition received a week ago in regard to changing Policeman Saunders from night to day duty. He also reported that he had spoken to Chief Grant in regard to the hacks and wagons at the North Avenue station, and the ordinance would be enforced.

Mr. Dumont presented a communication from a committee from the Public Library in regard to proposed changes at that place. In substance it was as follows:

At a late meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, the undersigned were appointed a committee to bring before the Mayor and Common Council the situation of the above in regard to the bequest of the late George H. Babcock, in the sum of $10,000, to be devoted to the purchase of books and periodicals, and to constitute a Babcock Scientific Library. He also devised certain real estate, the income of which amounts to from $1,000 to $1,500 per year, to be used in making additions from year to year to such library. We have no place for improvements and no authority to make them. The gifts were to the city and they should take steps to provide such room and secure authority as is needed.

Two plans have been considered. One is to cut the rooom in the library building which is at present used as a reading room and for book cases, into two parts; make the north end a reading room and cut out the floor from the south end of the room and build stacks of book cases, running from the floor of the basement to the ceiling of the present library room with two perforated iron floors, the first 7 feet above the floor of the basement and these stacks would be book cases running within 3 feet of the side walls of the room, and situated 3 feet apart and filling the whole space south of the passageway in present library room. The bay window could be used for the librarian's distributing desk, and the part north of passageway could be used for a reading room. In this way 45,000 volumes could be accommodated. We now have 14,000 books and with the change we could secure from 5,000 to 10,000 more volumes.

The improvements could be made at a cost of $6,000.

The second plan would be to build a fire-proof addition in the rear. This could be built with low walls and the height increased as we needed the room. The advantages in this would be additional room and safety from fire.

The only way this matter can be arranged is by the city securing an amendment to the act under which the library was organized, so as to allow the city to raise by tax the fund required to make such changes. The undersigned have prepared a bill, a copy of which is enclosed. It provides for the raising by tax such money as we needed. We ask that a committee be appointed to secure the passage of the act.

Mason W. Tyler,
J. Evarts Tracy,
J. B. Dumont.

Mr. Dumont moved that instead of a committee being appointed, as suggested, the council approve the substance of the act and give such aid towards its passage as was possible. It was so ordered.

On a resolution offered by Mr. Dumont, certified copies of the act will be sent to Mason W. Tyler and he will see that the assemblymen are supplied.

The council then adjourned, there being no further business to transact.

A Well Known

Lady of this city in writing of the numerous merits of our "Omnia" Bread, states that it makes the most delicious toast she has ever tasted.

For a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is specially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by a cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. For sale at Reynold's pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, manager.

IN HOUSE AND SENATE

Pension Appropriation Bill Calls for $141,325,820.

Two Changes Made by It in Existing Laws—Senator Morgan Assails Senator Sherman in a Long Speech—Mr. Kyle's Resolution Favoring the Cuban Insurgents.

Washington, Jan. 14.—In the house the pension appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897—the first of the general appropriation bills reported—was taken up in the committee of the whole. It appropriates $141,325,820, which is some $50,000 less than the amount carried by the last bill and about the same amount below the estimates. W. A. Stone, rep., Pa., explained the bill and the two changes made by it in existing laws, which were to make a pension granted date from the time of the first application without regard to intervening rejections, and limiting to $500 the income which dependent widows may receive and yet be eligible to a pension. Mr. Graff, rep., Ill., gave notice of an amendment making a pension a vested right, and attacked the present policy. Mr. Bartlett, dem., N. Y., opposed any further extension of the pension system. Without disposing of the bill the committee rose and the house adjourned.

In the Senate.

Senator Morgan, dem., Ala., delivered a two hours' speech in the senate on the house bond bill and the free silver substitute for it reported from the finance committee. Mr. Morgan assailed bitterly the course of Mr. Sherman, rep., O., both as senator and as secretary of the treasury in hostility to silver as currency on a parity with gold. When he resumed his seat, the floor was taken by Mr. Butler, pop., N. C., who will speak on the bill this afternoon. A concurrent resolution empowering and directing the president of the United States to receive a deputation from the Cuban revolutionists and to extend belligerent rights to them, was introduced by Mr. Kyle, pop., S. D., and referred to the committee on foreign relations. A rather amusing colloquy between Mr. Hill, dem., N. Y., and the two North Carolina senators, Mr. Pritchard, rep., and Mr. Butler, pop., took place apropos of a sarcastic remark of Mr. Hill a few days ago to the effect that although the two North Carolina senators were elected at the same time and by the same combination, their statements were inconsistent, one of them claiming that the state was in favor of high protective duties, while the other asserted that it was in favor of tariff reform. Mr. Hill declared that it would be utterly impossible in the next presidential election for either of the two great parties to gratify the fickle constituency of North Carolina.

KOHL MUST DIE.

New Jersey Board of Pardons Refuses to Interfere.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 14.—The board of pardons last evening refused to interfere in the sentence of Henry Kohl, convicted of the murder of his cousin, Joseph Preinel, on the meadows, near Newark, June 15, 1894. Immediately after the decision of the board Gov. Werts issued the death warrant. Kohl's case has attracted much attention, as his counsel carried it through all the higher courts in this state and finally to the supreme court of the United States, where a decision was rendered on Dec. 23 affirming the decision of the state courts.

KILLED HIS MOTHER.

Harrison Carelessly Handled a Gun with Fatal Result.

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 14.—Robert Harrison, a machinist, aged 29, accidentally shot and killed his mother last night while she was reading a newspaper. Harrison in taking a gun which is supposed to have been at full cock from the wall carelessly pointed the muzzle towards his mother when the gun went off, the shot penetrating her eye and blowing her head nearly to pieces. Harrison gave himself up.

SYRACUSE'S WATER.

Rules To Protect the Supply from Contamination.

Albany, Jan. 14.—Attorney General Hancock and Dr. Smith of the state board of health are to prepare rules looking to the protection of Syracuse's water supply from Skaneateles lake from contamination. These rules will be presented at the next meeting of the board, when Dr. Smelzer, the secretary of the board, will present a report as a result of his inspection of the source of supply.

To Sue Willimantic.

Willimantic, Conn., Jan. 14.—Attorneys for August E. Herwig, leader of the orchestra of the "Fencing Master" company, have served notice on the town officials of an intended action for $5,000 to recover for injuries sustained while the company was here. The notice says that on November 14 last Herwig fell on Union street, breaking his leg and that the town is responsible.

The Cantlin Inquest.

Buffalo, Jan. 14.—The inquest in the case of Sergeant Cantlin, murdered by Patrolman Sammon, was held yesterday afternoon and a verdict found that Cantlin came to his death from a pistol shot wound inflicted by Sammon with the premeditated design of killing him. Sammon will be arraigned to-day and held for the grand jury.

AWAITING OUTSIDE AID

When It Arrives Gomez Will Attack Havana.

The Cuban Patriot General Reported To Have Secured a Sea Base—Secret Intelligence of Reinforcements by Sea—Reward Offered for Gomez, Dead or Alive.

Havana, Jan. 14.—The Spaniards are "all at sea" as to the movements of Gomez. One dispatch, allowed to be published here, would have it believed that his army is cut in two, another that he has begun a retrograde movement to Matanzas, and ultimately to Santa Clara and Santiago. It will be found, when the true reports are allowed publicity, that, as predicted, Gen. Gomez has secured sea base at either Cabanas or Baha Honda, whence he will turn and attack Havana. He has had some secret intelligence of reinforcements by sea, either from Florida or Mexico, and has made every exertion to meet them. If, as he expected, the vessels with needed munitions arrived at one of the ports on the northern coast, say Bahia Honda, Cabanas or Port Mariel, then most exciting news may be expected from Havana within the week. The great lack of the patriot forces has been artillery and ammunition for heavy guns. This lack the expected arrivals will supply. Then, and not till then, when Gen. Gomez has placed himself in readiness for the assault, he will advance upon the city.

Gomez's Superb Generalship.

He has played with Campos as a cat plays with a mouse. He has never yet made a single mistake, His onward march has been unretarded, notwithstanding the obstacles the Spaniards have attempted to throw in his way. He has shown himself possessed of caution, endurance and forbearance. The Spaniards are offering rewards for Gomez's head, for the delivery of the brave patriot, dead or alive, within the lines of Havana. This shows the desperate straits to which the Spaniards are reduced, when they treat an enemy as a bandit and ally themselves with assassins and cutthroats. The patriots have behaved themselves temperately and with great forbearance. They have won the respect of their enemies as well as the admiration of their friends. As far as can be learned here, Gen. Maximo Gomez is moving westward and northward, as if for this city, and his able coadjutor, Maceo, is at the port of Bahia Honda. This confirms the prediction that the patriots were aiming to secure a deep-water port on the northern coast, where they can await foreign aid, and which they can hold against any ordinary assault by land.

PULLMAN COMPANY LOSES.

Decision in the Suit Involving Several Million Dollars.

Philadelphia, Jan. 14.—Judge Butler filed an opinion in the United States circuit court yesterday dismissing the exceptions to and confirming the report of Theodore M. Etting, the master in the Central Transportation Company-Pullman Palace Car company case. Under the finding there is an award of $2,562,000 and eleven years' interest on this amount in favor of the Central Transportation company. The suit was brought by the Central company to recover rentals for its plant, etc., and has been in litigation for a long while.

DANIEL MILLS' WILL.

Division of the $2,000,000 Left by the Winsted Broker.

Winsted, Conn., Jan. 14.—The will of the late Daniel H. Mills, the millionaire broker, was offered for probate yesterday. Of the estate, valued at about $2,000,000, one-third is given to his wife and the remainder is equally divided between Rollin D. Baldwin and Mary Jane Brown, children of the late Darwin Baldwin; Adele Mills, Mary Daeniker and Alice Law, children of Seth D. Mills, and Mills D. Norton, son of Julia M. Norton. He left no public bequests.

Summer Residence Burned.

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 14.—The summer residence of Warren E. Smith on the Old Church road was destroyed by fire yesterday. The house was in charge of the gardener, the family being in New York. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue. The house was valued at $40,000. The amount of insurance cannot be learned.

Yale Baseball Officers

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 13.—The freshman class at Yale last night elected the following baseball officers: Dennie M. Hare, New York, president; Charles A. De Saulles, South Bethlehem, Pa., vice president; William H. Field, Rutland, Vt., secretary and treasurer.

Stole Money from Poor Boxes.

Boston, Jan. 14.—On a charge of stealing money out of poor boxes in the Cathedral of Holy Cross last Friday, Louis Massees, or "Louis Ober," as he is sometimes known, was arraigned in the police court yesterday and held in bonds of $300 for the grand jury, which comes in next month.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, Jan. 14.—At the opening of business to-day the treasury gold reserve stood at $55,469,975. The withdrawals at New York yesterday were $637,000, of which $622,000 was in gold coin.

MAY STRIKE TO-NIGHT.

The Philadelphia Traction Trouble Not Yet Settled.

Philadelphia, Jan. 14.—The citizens' committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon and it was decided to meet President Walsh and the directors of the Union Traction company this afternoon. The committee of the Amalgamated association appeared before the committee and assured them that no strike would take place until after the conference with the Union Traction officials. If this conference is not satisfactory to the Amalgamated association (which will not be unless the company concedes more than it has heretofore) then a strike will, in all likelihood, be ordered to-night. If the strike occurs the local bodies of the Amalgamated association will receive the full support of the national body, as the strike has received the sanction of the national executive board.

THE ARMENIAN QUESTION.

Sub-Committee on Foreign Relations To Report at Next Meeting.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Senator Cullom, chairman of the senate sub-committee on foreign relations, had a conference with Secretary Olney yesterday on the Armenian question. The sub-committee, Mr. Mills being the other member, will probably report to the full committee at the next meeting. It is believed it will take the ground that the United States can only declare its abhorrence of the crimes committed in Armenia and urge the powers of Europe who have relations with the Turkish government to extend their protection to the Armenians. The further display of force in Turkish waters by this government will not be endorsed.

FOUND DEAD IN HER ROOM.

An Inquest To Be Held on the Body of Emma Mank.

Portland, Me., Jan. 14.—Emma Mank, aged 21 years, daughter of Willard Mank, of West Rockport, was found dead in her room at the home of G. M. Barney, in this city, where she was employed as a domestic. Her sister came to the house at 8 o'clock in the evening to visit her and found her lying on the floor as though she had died instantly. Coroner Jenkins held an autopsy and decided that an inquest would be necessary. The girl has always borne an excellent reputation and has lived with the best families in the city. Various rumors are being circulated, but nothing definite will be known until after the inquest.

FROM OCEAN TO THE LAKES.

Proposition Before the Commission To Deepen the Welland Canal.

Detroit, Mich, Jan. 14.—James B. Angell, president of the University of Michigan; Hon. John E. Russell of Boston and L. E. Cooley of Chicago, the American members of the international deepwater commission, met here yesterday. The Canadian commissioners have been invited to join the American commissioners and are expected to-day. A proposition to deepen the Welland canal and the canals of the St. Lawrence and thus give ocean vessels access to the lakes by that route and another to reach Lake Ontario by way of a cut through New York from Albany to Oswego will be fully considered by the commission.

MAY HAVE FOUNDERED.

The Laurestina Probably Lost with All on Board.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 14.—The Stag line steamship Laurestina is now believed to have been lost with all on board. She sailed from this port on December 6 with a full cargo of grain for Sligo, Ireland, and should have reached her destination before Christmas. She has not been seen or heard from since she left Cape Henry and has undoubtedly foundered. If she was afloat disabled she would have surely been sighted and reported.

Beyond Description

at times and often it would seem as if I would have to have my leg amputated as the pain became almost unendurable. I suffered beyond description. Finally, hearing of Hood's Sarsaparilla I concluded to try it. After I had taken one bottle I felt much better and after taking several bottles can say I am well,

My Knee Has Been Cured

and that I can walk and go around as well as any one of my age. I am 63 years old and work my farm, and my ability to do so I attribute to the beneficial effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I advise all who are afflicted with rheumatism in any form to take Hood's Sarsaparilla." EZRA BENEDICT, Stromsburgh, Nebraska.

Fight for the Democratic National Convention.

Gathering of the Contestants in Washington—Advance Guards of St. Louis, New York and Chicago Already on the Ground—Late Convention Expected.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The fight for the location of the democratic national convention is under full headway. Ex-Gov. David B. Francis of Missouri with four of the St. Louis boomers got in yesterday, and, accompanied by Hugo C. Wallace of Tacoma, Chief Justice Fuller's son-in-law and national committeeman from the state of Washington, began their campaign by paying their respects to Secretary Lamont and several other democrats in executive offices. The Missouri people opened flag-bedecked quarters at the Arlington this morning, when their numbers were augmented by the arrival of fifteen St. Louis business men who are backing what they consider a plain business proposition of furnishing the same facilities that are being prepared for the republican convention and so dividing the expenses between the two political parties to the financial advantage of both.

Gathering of the Contestants.

The citizens' committee of Chicago, ten in number, are expected this afternoon. The secretary, D. J. Rosenthal, came yesterday, and has already had a parlor at the Arlington draped with American flags and large woodcuts of Cleveland and Stevenson. Mr. Rosenthal says $40,000 has already been raised by the committee. He regards New York as Chicago's most dangerous competitor, but the New Yorkers who are coming in say that Chicago will not be it at all with any of the cities. Seven of the advance guards from New York arrived last night; twenty-five more are due this afternoon, and Tammany Hall's big delegation of forty is booked to arrive at the Shoreham to-night.

A Late Convention Expected.

About that time the race between the rival cities will begin to give an indication of its finish. Secretary S. P. Sheerin of Indiana arrived yesterday and has been making calls about the departments ever since. Everybody who has come in so far seems impressed with the idea that the convention will not be held earlier than the middle of July, but that impression has no very substantial basis as far as can be learned, and may be modified radically before the committee meets on Thursday. A sub-committee of the national committee will hold a meeting at the Arlington hotel to-night to consider a resolution which was offered by Mr. Collins of Massachusetts at the last convention, limiting the attendance at the convention of 1896 to delegates and alternates, members of the national committee and newspaper men. It is not believed that the subcommittee will act favorably upon the resolution. There are repeated evidences already that the attendance at the meeting of the full committee on Thursday of this week will not only be large, but that in nearly every case those present will be members and not persons holding proxies.

NOT FRUITFUL IN RESULTS.

No Vote Taken at the Republican Senatorial Caucus.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The republican senatorial caucus yesterday afternoon was not fruitful in results. Beyond the understanding, reached without a vote, that when the opportunity presented itself Mr. Frye should be placed in nomination as the party's candidate for president pro tempore nothing was done. There seems to be a disposition to put off the further reorganization of elective officers of the body until the new senators from Utah arrive. The caucus was of short duration.

THE BEHRING SEA TREATY.

An Entente Between England and America Quite Possible.

London, Jan. 14.—Inquiries made at the foreign office here relative to the statement that Canada had not agreed to the Behring Sea arbitration treaty elicited the statement that an entente on the subject between Secretary of State Olney and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was quite possible, but that the foreign office had not heard of it.

Immigrants at New York.

New York, Jan. 14.—A resume of the immigration at the port of New York for the year 1895 has been completed by the commissioners of immigration, and it shows that 370,605 immigrants entered this port during the past year.

Residents Fleeing from Cuba.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 14.—A cablegram from Key West, says the steamship Olivette brought from Havana last night over 100 passengers, who report that all residents of the island of Cuba who are able to leave are leaving.

Central Oil & Gas Company.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 14.—The assignees of the Central Oil & Gas company have decided to start the plant in Gardner that is inventoried at $75,000. The creditors agree to take it and will pledge $150,000.

Fifty Years in Prison.

Mexico, Mo., Jan. 14.—Gov. Stone today commuted the death sentence of Joseph Donnelly, the murderer of Samuel Turner, to fifty years in the penitentiary.

RESENTS THE OFFER.

Turkey Will Not Permit the Armenians To Receive Foreign Aid.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The Turkish legation gave out last evening the following official communication: "The imperial government will not permit any distribution among his subjects, in his own territory, by any foreign society or individuals, however respectable the same may be [as for instance the Red Cross society] of money collected abroad. Such interference no independent government has ever allowed, especially when the collections are made on the strength of speeches delivered in public meetings by irreconcilable enemies of the Turkish race and religion, and on the basis of false accusations that Turkey repudiates. Besides, the sublime porte is mindful of the true interests of its subjects, and distinguishing between the real state of things and the calumnies and wild exaggerations of interested or fanatical parties, will, as it has done heretofore under its own legitimate control, alleviate the wants of all Turkish subjects, living in certain provinces, irrespective of creed or race."

NEW HAVEN NAVAL RESERVE.

A Member Says It May Not Have a Very Long Existence.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 14.—Speaking of the resignations of Lieuts. Raynolds and Buckland of the naval reserves, New Haven division, last night, a member of the company said that unless the engineer corps was appointed in the near future the division would not enjoy a very long existence, and that the monitor Wyandotte would be taken to some other port. This gentleman said that the term for which the majority of the members of the company had enlisted would soon expire, and but few would re-enlist unless something was done to keep up interest in the company.

CHOYNSKI-HALL BOUT.

Both Pugilists in Fine Form for Next Monday Night's Meeting.

New York, Jan. 14.—Joe Choynski, the California heavyweight pugilist, is putting the finishing touches on his training for the bout with Jim Hall before the New York Athletic club. Choynski says he is in first class condition and never felt better in his life, and if he does not win next Monday night he will quit fighting forever. "Parson" Davies, who is traveling with John L. Sullivan, will join Choynski in a few days. Reports from Pittsburg, where Hall is in training, say that he is in fine form and has never worked harder in his life in preparing for a fight.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

Louis T. Derousse Elected Speaker Over Alfred F. Skinner.

Trenton, Jan. 14.—The caucus of the Republican members of the assembly was held at the Hotel Windsor from 8 to 10:30 last night. Mr. Robertson of Passaic presided, and Mr. Vice of Middlesex acted as secretary. The contest for the speakership resulted as has been frequently predicted during the past two weeks in favor of Louis T. Derousse, of Camden, who was elected over Alfred F. Skinner, of Essex, by a vote of 24 to 19.

RAILROAD RUMOR DENIED.

Morgan & Co. Not to Control the B. & O., P. & R. and N. J. C.

New York, Jan. 14.—J. Pierpont Morgan says that there is no truth in the story that a syndicate of bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co., is to acquire control of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, the Philadelphia & Reading railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey. President Samuel Spencer of the Southern railway also denies that he is to become president of the Baltimore & Ohio.

AGREED TO BY THE SENATE.

A Resolution Calling for Estimates for Coast Defences.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The following resolution, introduced by Senator Squire was agreed to by the senate yesterday: Resolved, That the secretary of war be and is hereby directed to inform the senate what amount is required to be appropriated to pay for the sites which are required for the erection of fortifications and coast defences.

THE OUTLOOK BETTER

War Excitement in England Dying Out.

Very Little Evidence of a Desire for Active Hostilities Against Germany—All Serious Trouble Concerning the Transvaal Ended—To Protect the Reform Committee.

London, Jan. 14.—There has been a dearth of news to-day regarding the situation in South Africa and England's relations elsewhere, but it can be said that the outlook in general is better now than it has been for some time past. The excitement has almost completely died away, but the naval preparations of the government are proceeding apace and so far as is known to the public have almost been completed. Nothing has yet been learned as to the destination of the flying squadron, although much conjecture is indulged in as to where its field of duty will be. The fact that Count von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador, has left London to make a visit to Brighton is pretty strong evidence that there has been no further tension in the Anglo-German relations. The ebullition of popular feeling against Germany caused by Emperor William's attitude towards the Transvaal was altogether too violent to last long, and there is now very little evidence of any great desire to open active hostilities against Germany.

All Serious Trouble Ended.

It may be stated that the suggestion made by the Manchester Guardian, that the preparations now under way are intended to support a new British policy anent Armenia, contains some germ of truth, but doubters ask why it was necessary to make all these naval preparations against Turkey when one of the strongest fleets the world has ever seen was lying at anchor within easy distance of the Golden Horn. So far as the Transvaal is concerned all serious trouble in that direction is undoubtedly ended. As stated in these dispatches yesterday the rank and file of Dr. Jameson's expedition have started for the Natal boundary, and the release of the officers of the expedition is expected shortly. Every effort will be made to protect the members of the Rand reform committee who have been placed under arrest, including the Americans. It is certain that a bitter fight will be made against allowing the Boer government to confiscate their property as punishment for the alleged offense.

Watching Cecil Rhodes.

The statement of ex-Prime Minister Rhodes at Kimberly that his political career was just opening and that he hoped to live long enough to do much good for South Africa again arouses the idea that the objective point of his ambition is the establishment of a South African republic that will include all the territory south of the Zambesi river, including the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. In or out of office he wields vast influence, and his doings in the future will be watched with even greater interest than in the past.

Would Hesitate To Attack England.

Little reliance can be placed in many of the newspaper dispatches published here purporting to explain the attitude of the powers towards Great Britain. The continental nations may not be friendly to this country, but it is thought that any one of them would hesitate for a long while before striking a blow at England. The representative of the United Press, collating all the information it has been possible to obtain, has all along predicted that storm clouds would blow away, leaving the political atmosphere clearer than it was before, and this prediction bids fair to prove true in a very short time unless some hidden trouble, whereof the public knows nothing, complicates the present situation.

THE ABYSSINIAN WAR.

Natives Again Repulsed at Makalle—Plague Raging in Their Camp.

Rome, Jan. 14.—A dispatch from Massowah, capital of Erythrea, states that on Saturday the Abyssinians renewed their attack on the town of Makalle, where they had been defeated with heavy loss the day previous. The Italian garrison fought bravely and again repulsed the enemy with heavy loss. It is reported that the plague is raging in the Abyssinian camp, due to fact that the dead have not been buried and the decomposing bodies have poisoned the air.

SIX PERSONS INJURED.

Newcastle, Pa., Jan. 14.—A powder explosion, with six persons burned, is the result of one of their number throwing powder into a stove in a shanty. One of them, John McGaw, will probably die. Walter McGregor and James McGlynn were badly burned but may recover. Charles Henline's back and legs are full of powder. Benjamin Blair and Robert Varley escaped with badly burned hands and faces.

Death of Mayor Sullivan.

Erie, Pa., Jan. 13.—Edward F. Sullivan, mayor of North East, died suddenly while attending church. Deceased was a prominent business man, a leading member of the Grand Army and a masonic Knight Templar. Death was due to heart disease.

Dr. Nevin Calls on Humbert.

COMING EVENTS.

Announcements of all meetings, etc., will be made in this column, free of charge, if copy is furnished by 10 a. m.

January 14—Lecture of Mrs. Maria Huntington Elwell, at the home of Mrs J. K. Myers, 139 East Seventh street.

January 14—Prof. Riggs' lecture in the Crescent Avenue Church.

Governor Griggs is acquiring all the things that fame brings. Now a brand of cigars has been named after him.

Governor Griggs yesterday appointed A. Hobart Tuttle, of Paterson, as his private secretary. The position is for three years and carries with it a salary of $2,000 per annum.

The building ordinance went into effect today. The selection of Chief Doane as inspector is proper. He is particularly qualified to fill the position. The Mayor will doubtless make his appointment permanent.

Assemblyman Butts, a member of the New York Legislature, who opposes the Greater New York bill, yesterday tried to amend the measure so as to take in the cities of Jersey City, Weekawken, Hoboken, Bergen Point and Rahway. He wanted a committee appointed to confer with a committee from this State to take steps to learn the sentiment of the dwellers in the cities in this State who it was proposed to annex.

California's experiment of printing the text-books used in the public schools of the State proves to be a costly one, the San Francisco papers report. The idea was that the books, when thrown upon the market, would not only fully repay the cost of production, but would yield a handsome revenue, which in a few years would fully reimburse the State for the amount of appropriations made to establish the original plant. This was fallacious. The estimate now is that the State has lost about $200 000 on the venture.

The wisdom of the last Legislature in passing the act declaring the 12th of February, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, the martyr President, a State holiday, remains to be seen. A holiday which is more honored in the breach than in the observance, would be better no holiday at all. There is no doubt that the day is deserving of being set apart in some manner, and its observance by public exercises, meeting and speeches has in recent years been growing in several States under the fostering care of rising Lincoln clubs, but whether it yet occupies a place in the public mind which would make it an appropriate legal holiday is a question. It is true, however, that patriotic observance is apt to follow upon the track of the legal declaration, and it is to be hoped that the people need only the leisure from labor to celebrate it in the proper spirit.—New York Press.

Young VanNest Arrested.

Chief Grant and Sergeant Kiely this morning at five o'clock went to the home of Henry VanNest on Monroe avenue, and arrested him on the charge of attempting to steal the collection money in the Crescent Avenue church Sunday, as reported exclusively in The Daily Press yesterday. He was arraigned before Justice Newcorn at nine o'clock this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was held to await the action of the Grand Jury in $100 bail.

Successful Young Attorney.

Lawyer C. L. Murphy, commenced seventeen cases in justice's court yesterday. This is, no doubt, a record breaker for the number of cases brought in one day by one lawyer. Lawyer Murphy was admitted to the bar only last February, but since that time he has appeared in over eighty cases in justice court, and has been remarkably successful. He is the attorney for the Retail Merchants Association, of this city.

Preparing for the Grocers.

W. J. Stephenson will act as caterer at the convention of the Retail Merchants Association to be held tomorrow in the Babcock building. Extensive preparations are already being made.

Expensive Color Work.

No one ever thought of introducing so expensive a feature as lithographic color work in the days when the leading magazines sold for $4.00 a year and 35 cents a copy. But times change, and the magazines change with them. It has remained for The Cosmopolitan, sold at one dollar a year, to put in an extensive lithographic plant capable of printing 320,000 pages per day (one color.) The January issue presents as a frontispiece a water-color drawing by Eric Pape, illustrating the last story by Robert Louis Stevenson, which has probably never been excelled even in the pages of the finest dollar French periodicals. The cover of The Cosmopolitan is also changed, a drawing of page length by the famous Paris artist Rossi, in lithographic colors on white paper takes the place of the place of the manilla back with its red stripe. Hereafter the cover is to be a fresh surprise each month.

—A meeting of the Crescent Avenue church members will be held Monday evening, Jan. 20th, at which time seven trustees will be elected.

No excuse for sleepless nights when you can procure One Minute Cough Cure. This will relieve all annoyances, cure the most severe cough and give you rest and health. Can you afford to do without it. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front st.

THEATRICAL.

The well-known melo drama, "Hands Across the Sea," was presented at the Bijou yesterday and will be repeated today and tomorrow. The piece and the people who present it are so much above the usual popular price play that it is indeed a rare treat. The story is a pleasant combination of English and French scenes. The scenes are laid in Dovenshire, Paris and Sydney Harbor, Australia. The company is a fairly good one, and is headed by Maurice Freeman. George Mack as "Tom Bassett" is quite clever.—Binghamton Herald. At Music Hall Friday night.

Dunellen.

Mrs. Howard Bird has returned home from her visit with friends in New York.

Miss Mamie Brower, of Newark, is spending a few days with relatives on Front street.

Mrs. Edgar Giddis, who has been visiting her parents at Newark, has returned home.

A company of young people from Bound Brook will hold a dance at the Park Hotel Friday evening.

Mr. Wells, who has been visiting feiends on North avenue, has returned to his home in Philadelphia.

Miss Annie Fenner, of Pluckamin, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Swackhamer, of Lincoln avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Brower, of Millington, are spending a few days with relatives on Dunellen avenue.

Evangelist Huffman will conduct revival meetings at the Seventh-day Baptist church at New Market this week.

The teachers of the Sunday-school of the M. E. church will hold a business meeting tonight in the lecture room.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones and niece, Miss Phillips, of Scranton, Pa., were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Vail, of Grove street.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will hold a leap year sociable at the residence of Miss May Apgar, Thursday evening.

Judgment Against the Trolley.

Henry A. Voehl, a well known business man, was badly injured on July 1, 1895, by a collision between his wagon and a trolley car in Elizabeth. He was laid up for five months and maimed for life. He sued the Consolidated Traction Company for $10,000 damages, and the trial took place yesterday in the Union County Court. The jury awarded the plaintiff $1,500.

THE GREATEST SORROW.

Can There Be Any Doubt As to What It Is.

But Even the Greatest Grief May Have an Added Pang.

And This Added Pang Be Sorrow's Crown of Sorrow.

An empty cradle.

You, mothers, with tearful eyes and sorrow racked souls, alone know the despairing grief of bending over the couch of your dead child.

And if you have to add to this sorrow the knowledge that through your neglect you lost your little one, that you allowed it to slowly sicken and die, it will be a sorrow's crown of sorrow, a bitter regret.

But you do neglect your children.

Infants and children are peculiarly liable to nervous disorders; they become nervous, restless, fretful, cross and irritable; their night's sleep is not calm and restful, but they toss restlessly from side to side, murmur or talk in their sleep, and wake tired and unrefreshed in the morning. They have an irregular appetite, grow thin and pale, look slight and puny, and their growth and development become stunted.

If your children are sick, do not use stupefying medicines, but give that greatest of all children's remedies, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the great nerve invigorant and health restorer. This wonderful remedy is, above all, a family medicine, and its name is a household word in thousands of homes all over the land. It is made from pure and harmless vegetable remedies, is calming, soothing and healing to the nerves, and at the same time, strengthens and invigorates the entire system, restoring a healthful color to the cheek, refreshing sleep, strong nerves, stout limbs and that bounding health and vitality which all children should have. It is perfectly safe to give to infants or children of any age, and its curative and restorative effects are wonderful.

Mrs. Laura Cluton, of Brunswick, Mo., writes concerning her little daughter's cure as follows:

"In November last my little daughter, Birdie Lee, aged 10 years, was taken sick. The first we noticed of her sickness was when she went to sleep. She was very nervous; she would turn over on her face in bed, and would act as if she was badly scared.

"She complained a great deal with her spine, top of her head, eyes, ears, and finally all over, even to her fingers and toes. As soon as she was taken we called in our family physician and he commenced to treat her. He treated her from the 15th of November until the 10th of March. In the meantime she grew so much worse that we called another physician in consultation with our family physician, and he said our doctor was treating her on the right course of medicine.

"From the time she was first taken sick until I began to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy she never slept a night unless under the influence of medicines to make her sleep. She cried pitifully and said she could not help it. I knew nothing about Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, but seeing so many testimonials praising it so highly I thought I would try it. I quit using all other medicines and commenced to give her the Nervura and before she had taken one-half a bottle I had noticed a great change.

"She has taken four bottles and as far as I can see she is well. A great many people were surprised to see such a change in so short a time. I have recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura to several of my friends, for I am satisfied it saved my daughter's life."

Use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in all nervous diseases of infants and children, and see them improve in health and strength every day and hour.

What gives parents almost boundless confidence in Dr. Greene's Nervura is the fact that it is a physician's prescription, and that its discoverer, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City, the successful specialist in nervous diseases, can be consulted concerning any case without charge, personally or by letter.

The Commercial Palace,

during the year just closed inspires the proprietor to still greater efforts during the coming year. The figuring up of the business year of 1895 shows a gain on sales of a good many thousand dollars over last year.

This is taken as conclusive evidence of the growing popularity of the house and that the great masses of the trading public like to patronize just such a large, up-to-date metropolitan house in Plainfield instead of going to New York.

In fact we feel so good over the magnificent showing that we are going to celebrate the same by inaugurating our first

The E. A. C. bowling team will meet the Crescents in this city tomorrow evening.

The game between the Crescent Wheelmen and the New Jersey Athletic Club, on the former's alleys this evening, will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

The next game in the Standard Bowling League will be rolled this evening on the Roselle alleys between that team and the Westfield Athletic Club. Tomorrow evening the Cranford bowlers come to Plainfield to roll two games on the Union County Country Club alleys.

The Plainfield contingent of the Park Club bowlers will roll the regular team of the club on the Park Club alleys Thursday evening. The team will be composed of five men each and the match will be the best two out of three games. The teams will be made up of the following:

REGULARS.	PLAINFIELD.
Lyman.	R. Erickson.
Smith.	VanBuren.
Matthews.	Leonard.
Worth.	Waring.
Thiers.	Runyon.

There was a great bowling match on the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys last evening when the "Has Beens" met the "Will Be's". The "Has Beens" consisted of the regular team, while the "Will Be's" was made up of the younger contingent. The game was a lively one throughout, and although the "Has Beens" led most of the way, their opponents were close enough behind to keep everybody on the jump. The last frame, however, showed the veterans sixty-eight pins to the good, the score being 1438 to 1370, in their favor. The prize for the game was a bowling pin which will be suitably gilded and inscribed with the name of the victor and the score. The game was only the first of a series which will be played during the rest of the winter.

There is only about a month longer in which the games in the Standard Bowling League will be rolled and still the championship is by no means decided. Although the Westfield team leads at present they are apt to be overhauled at any moment by either the Roselle or Park Club teams. The following list of the averages of the ten highest men in the league show that Westfield is right on top, for, out of her five men, she has four of them in the list. Worth, of the Park Club, leads it, while of the men who have bowled in all the games Matthews is ahead. The following are the players and their records:

GAMES ROLLED.	NAME.	CLUB.	AVERAGE.
14	Worth	Park Club	167.
12	Baker	Westfield A. C.	165.3
16	Matthews	Park Club	165.1
14	Love	Westfield A. C.	164.12
14	Greves	Roselle	163.12
16	H. Cox	Cranford A. C.	163.13
14	Smith	Westfield A. C.	161.10
16	Thiers	Park Club	160.12
16	Voehl	Westfield A. C.	158.12
10	Patterson	Roselle	155.5

A meeting of the delegates of the Plainfield High School and the Stevens Preparatory School, who comprise the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association, was to have been held on Saturday. One of the Stevens delegates was ill, however, and so the meeting was not held. A call, however, will be issued by the High School delegates, George Proctor Smith and Wilbur F. Cornwell, and sent to the Stevens boys for their concurrence, after which it will be sent to all the schools in New Jersey, asking them to send delegates to a convention to be held in Plainfield early in February. At that convention, a constitution similar to the constitution of the National Interscholastic Athletic Association will be adopted, and officers elected.

CYCLING COMMENT.

All members of the Crescent Wheelmen can secure tickets for the New York cycle show by applying immediately to C. E. Teel, president of the club.

Clarence E. Teel will represent the Hunter Arms Company at the cycle show which begins Saturday evening. The Hunter Arms Company make the L. C. Smith gun, one of the best in the market, and have just put their wheel, the "Hunter," on the market.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

Summons were issued yesterday in the following cases: Plainfield Beef Company against Michael Weber; J. A. Smith against Daniel S. Cole; G. A. Hallock against John Mortimer; Plainfield Ice Company against Wallace V. and George Miller; John G. Bicknell against Joseph A. Flack; V. W. Baker against Fred Schmidt: Neuman Bros. against Albert C. Wyckoff; George D. Morrison, Administrator, against John Grace; George D. Bremmer against John V. Beekman; George D. Bremmer against Louis C. Beekman. All the above returnable January 27th. Executions were issued in the case of S. P. Dunn against David Rockafellow; G. W. Eddy against Arthur Wyckoff; G. W. Eddy against William H. Smith. Lawyer C. L. Murphy represents the plaintiff in all of the above cases.

The Great Tobacco War.

Many readers know of the war existing between the manufacturers of plug chewing tobacoo, but few, perhaps, are familiar with the cause.

For years some manufacturers have been making enormous profits by giving consumers a small piece of plug for ten cents. Recently a very large manufacturer, seeing that the time had come for better things, had placed a new brand called Battle Ax on the market, which gives the consumer a very large piece of most excellent quality for the same price. This has raised a great storm among those who are hurt by it, but it gives to those who use the goods. In Battle Ax they get a greater quantity for their money, while the quality is equal to the finest of other brands. This has naturally had the effect of greatly decreasing the business of those who have held to the old way, and it has materially curtailed their enormous profits. On the other hand Battle Ax now taxes the resources of three large factories, which, by running night and day, are still unable to make the goods fast enough to satisfy the enthusiastic demand.

The people want a good thing and the most of it that they can get for the price. The manufacturers who do the best by them will get their trade. Their rivals naturally do not like it. They raise a mighty howl, but the AX will cut them down.

Justice Mattison's Court.

Summons were issued yesterday in the following cases: Leonard & McCoy against David Arthur; J. F. MacDonald against Charles Greader; A. M. Griffin against Clarence Rice; Plainfield Ice Co. against Henry Windham; A. M. Griffin against Jas. Bailey; Plainfield Ice Co. against David S. Vail; all returnable January 24th. Lawyer C. L. Murphy represents the plaintiff in each case. The case of Baker against Warman, in tort, trover and conversion, was discontinued upon motion of defendant's counsel, Lawyer Murphy, upon the ground that the summons was defective. Justice Mattison granted the motion.

Oak Tree Boom.

Great improvements will be made this summer at Oak Tree on the Lehigh Valley. The parties that a short time ago purchased the Noe and Randolph farms have just completed a contract for the erection of sixteen houses, costing $100,000, to be built on Noe avenue, a street to be opened from the depot back to the Wander's grove on the hill.

Officers Installed.

There was an unusually large attendance at the meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., when District Deputy Grand Master Pocock and staff installed the newly elected officers. An elaborate collation followed the ceremonies and the members of the lodge received an invitation to attend the installation at Queen City Lodge on the 27th.

Hackmen Must Observe the Law.

Policeman McCue this afternoon served a copy of the hackmen's ordinance on all of the hackmen at the North Avenue station and warned them not to violate it. It provides that that vehicles must be kept thirty feet away from the depot and hackmen must not go on the walk to solicit trade.

IMPURE FOODS.

Some of the Many Things We Eat That Are Adulterated.

A recent report of the dairy food commissioner of Pennsylvania names so many food products which are adulterated as to raise a query as to what is not adulterated. Among the many impure things sold are allspice, which often is mainly composed of ground and roasted cocoanut shells; baking powder; beef, wine and iron prepared as a tonic; butter, buckwheat flour, candy, catchup, cider, cheese, cinnamon, cloves—the latter made almost entirely from ground cocoanut shells, the odor and taste of cloves being scarcely perceptible; coffee—consisting chiefly of coffee screenings or damaged coffee, but sold at a high price as a pure article; fresh "Java" made from wheat and barley hulls, roasted with sugar and containing no coffee; codfish not codfish at all—merely cheap dried fish; cream of tartar adulterated with flour; flaxseed adulterated with starch; fruit "butters," such as apple butter, peach butter, etc., very seldom pure, being adulterated with starch waste and salicylic acid; the same is true of grated pineapples; ginger adulterated with ash, rice hulls, rice flour and cayenne pepper; lard; maple sirup, made from commercial glucose thinned with about 20 per cent of water; mixed spices; orange juice, lemon oil, lemon phosphate, molasses, mustard, olive oil, pepper, vinegar, vanilla extract, all kinds of preserves, extract of strawberries and tea.

To add to the deception a few apple seeds are scattered through the so called fruit jams, or timothy or other seeds are added to the mixture to represent raspberry, strawberry, etc. The production of artificial colors is particularly common in confections. Indigo, tumeric, annotto, logwood and cochineal are used in great quantities, and are probably not harmful; arsenic, copper and leads are very deleterious, but are not now used as much as in former times, before sanitary officials made such persistent attacks on them. Milk and milk products are often colored. Annotto is very commonly used by dairymen to give a rich yellow color. In itself annotto is probably harmless, but it produces deceptive results.—New York Post.

ODD BILLIARD FACTS.

Making a Table In a Day—The Balls Seasoned In Incubators.

A billiard table can be built in 24 hours if carte blanche is given to the manufacturer, but he prefers to have time to get the right effects from one month to six. The wood needs to be seasoned for a period of nearly seven years. Rich, deep Spanish mahogany is used, pollard oak, ebony and satin wood.

Tables are not always covered in green. Blue is sometimes used and a pure olive green. The late Prince Leopold was the first to make use of the latter color, and olive green is known today in the billiard world as Prince Leopold's color.

The balls must be well seasoned before they are used for play. Manufacturers have incubators in which to store them that they may undergo the drying process. Some incubators will hold fully 3,000 balls. When they are first made, they are "green." Solid ivory is the only satisfactory material of which to make them; "artificial balls" (those made of composition) are much heavier and do not wear well. English makers, to give the red balls a perfect color, steep them in a decoction that is sometimes described as the "guardsman's bath." This is extracted from the old coats of Tommy Atkins, and for billiard balls it is the finest scarlet dye known.—New York World.

A Brave Chinese Officer.

Huang Tsu-Lien, who was a returned American student, was killed before the surrender of Wei-Hai-Wei. He was first lieutenant of the Peiyang cruiser Tsi-Yuen, having succeeded the late Shen Shou Ch'ang, another returned American student, who was killed while commanding the Tsi-Yuen in the first naval action of the late war at the mouth of the Yashan river, Korea, July 25, 1894, owing to the cowardice of his subsequently decapitated captain, Fong Peh-Kien. During the fighting at Wei-Hai-Wei Lieutenant Huang Tsu-Lien was badly wounded and was therefore advised to leave his ship and go to Chefu for treatment. This he resolutely refused to do, declaring that "his duty to the emperor demanded his remaining at his post." After having had his wounds hastily dressed, the late lieutenant went on with his duties on board, although he had to be supported by an attendant in doing so. Shortly afterward a shot struck his thigh, but he still refused to retire, remaining with his guns. A few minutes afterward a shell from the enemy's batteries almost annihilated the gallant officer. —Blackwood's Magazine.

Mr. Gratebar on Fishing.

"I think," said Mr. Gratebar, "that the talent for fishing, like many other talents, is a gift. No doubt the true fisherman, like the poet, is born, not made. Fishing is a faculty that can be cultivated, like many others; one can learn by rote about tackle and baits and tides and so on, but when it comes to actual contact with the fish there comes in the art of the fisherman. The fact is that some men can catch fish and some can't. I am one of those who cannot; time and again I have sat in a boat alongside of men catching lots of fish and caught none or next to none. But I love to go fishing, all the same." —New York Sun.

Oddities of Sight.

The two eyes really see two objects. If the two forefingers be held, one at the distance of one foot, the other two feet in front of the eyes, and the former be looked at, two phantoms of the latter will be observed, one on each side. If the latter be regarded, two phantoms of the nearer finger will be observed mounting guard, one on each side.

OF

Muslin Underwear, Waists, Wrappers, Corsets.

Greater in all its proportions than ever before—far greater and far better in every way, than anything ever attempted in Plainfield.

Look Before You Buy.

So thoroughly familiar has the public become with the importance of our underwear sale, and absolute superiority of the merchandise offered, that we deem it only necessary to mention the conditions, which govern this sale.

We sacrifice all profits, and in many cases offer the articles at less than the cost of the material only. We offer only goods made of standard muslins. The cheapest at 25c. are as well made and finished as the best. All we ask is, that those who intend buying Underwear, Waists, Wrappers and Coats will carefully compare our goods with others usually offered at so called sales.

Keeping Clean

As Far as One's Person is Concerned, is Easy Enough - -

Keeping one's clothes clean is quite a different matter. The most careful man will accumulate grease spots—they're a mysterious sort of thing, as to their coming. They leave just as mysteriously when we clean your your suit. We take them out, and those particular spots stay out—a whisk broom, a sponge and a hot iron will make a grease spot disappear—that's not the way we do it. We get 'em out by the roots, so to speak. When your suit needs dyeing, we do that too. Maybe give it a color that you'll like better than the old one. We do either sort of work, very reasonably.

Laundry drivers will receive your bundle.

THE CLINK OF GOLD

CHAPTER III.

When I had found my way into the bedroom and had struck a light, I formed a resolution to act promptly as soon as morning dawned. I drew back the curtain from the window and looked out into the night.

My chambers were a top "set," facing the Thames, and the bed was so adjusted that when lying down upon it my face was turned toward the southeast, and there in the black horizon—for not a star was visible—with the dark river flowing below, the first reflection of sunrise must, I knew, meet my eyes.

Never did man look out into the night more keenly; never did a sailor, wrecked at sea, watch more anxiously than I watched for morning. If I raised my head from the pillow once and strained my eyes until they ached, I must have done so dozens of times.

I had thrown myself upon the bed in my dressing gown, ready to carry out my plan of action. At last, as though moved by a breeze, I saw a faint glimmer breaking beneath the blackness. At the same time, with that strange confidence which one places in the will at its weakest moments, I closed my eyes and waited, and so I fell into a sleep against which I had struggled successfully for hours, and which I cannot even now look back upon without a pang, for much of the trouble which soon followed might have been averted, I have little doubt, if I had kept wakeful and watched.

I soon began to dream that some one was knocking at the door—a knocking which seemed to continue for hours—when suddenly I opened my eyes and found myself in broad daylight.

As the knocking still went on I sprang up and exclaimed, "Who's there?"

"Only me, sir!"

It was the voice of my laundress, Mrs. Billings.

"Why, what's the time?"

"Struck 3, sir, if you'll believe me."

I opened the door and glanced quickly toward the sofa.

Scroggie had vanished!

"Where is Mr. Scroggie?" said I.

"Gone, sir, hours ago," said Mrs. Billings. "Says he, sir, 'Don't disturb Mr. Field.' Them was his words. Says he, sir, 'Mr. Field ain't well,' and, says he"——

"What time did he go?"

"Mr. Scroggie?" said my laundress meditatively. "When I comes into the rooms, sir, he jumps up and goes out, if you'll believe me"

When I had given Mrs. Billings any reason to suppose that I doubted her word I could never discover, but she seldom answered any question I put without taking the precaution to add "if you'll believe me," as if her principal ambition was to establish confidence in her statements.

"Do you know if Mr. Bowser is in?"

Mrs. Billings gave me a smile through the black patches on her red face and said:

"Lor, sir, Mr. Bowser went out early too."

"But he may have returned."

Again my laundress smiled and this time as if there was some fear that I was losing confidence. She placed her head on one side and looked at me thoughtfully out of her fishy eyes, while I took a glance at her bonnet, which never failed to interest me. It was crushed and neglected, as usual, and looked as if it had been long forgotten in the midst of domestic affairs of more immediate importance.

"No, sir; he ain't returned," said Mrs. Billings. "I was in his rooms not five minutes ago, if you'll believe me."

I now remembered my engagement to take tea with Miss Pilkington and Alice Darell, and it occurred to me as not improbable that Frank Bowser had already gone to Guilford street, where they lived. It was nearly 4 o'clock, so I hastened to make my toilet.

As I drove to Miss Pilkington's, meditating over Bowser's scheme to awaken a guilty conscience with the clink of gold, a thought which had hitherto only taken shadowy form in my mind now took a shape. I became convinced that Bowser suspected Scroggie, and Scroggie was the man he was hunting down.

When his suspicions had been first evoked, it was impossible for me to determine. The men had met frequently for a year or more at my chambers, and yet it was only within the last few weeks that Bowser had invented the plan of clinking his gold. He had never told me that the scheme had been suggested by Scroggie's remarks or manner, and yet this now seemed to be the only possible explanation. But what seemed most certain was that he had been intentionally concealing these suspicions from me.

The necessity for seeing Bowser concerning this strange affair appeared every moment more urgent. Yet as the cab drew up at Miss Pilkington's door I felt unnerved and disinclined to meet him. His conduct required some explanation. He had not, I thought, behaved to me like a friend.

Miss Pilkington's house in Guilford street had an old fashioned appearance of comfort which was exceedingly inviting. Passing through the snug entrance hall, where a strong inner door seemed to be holding all drafts at defiance, and up a softly carpeted staircase, I was shown into a room in which the air was as warm and pleasant as a well ventilated conservatory, and here I found Miss Pilkington sitting in an armchair near the fire wrapped up as if she were some rare exotic.

Alice Darell came forward to welcome me in that unaffected manner in which she received all Frank Bowser's friends.

"And where is Mr. Bowser?" said Miss Pilkington.

Alice seconded the question with her large, dark, inquiring eyes.

I said I had not seen Frank Bowser since the previous evening, and that I had expected to find him already here.

"He is not ill?" said Alice.

My face must have expressed anxiety, for Alice Darell gave me a quick searching look which I had difficulty in meeting without betraying my thoughts.

"No," said I. "Why should you think that?"

"I don't know," said she, twisting her engagement ring nervously round her finger, "but I'm sure you are concealing something."

"Nonsense, child!" said Miss Pilkington, straightening her back—"nonsense! Make the tea."

And the "exotic" aunt glanced from Alice to the tea tray which stood on a side table near her chair. Miss Pilkington prided herself upon her punctuality in all her domestic arrangements.

"Won't you wait a little while for Frank?" said Alice.

"Certainly not," said Miss Pilkington, forcing out the words in an exhausted voice.

Alice pouted her pretty lips, and tears came into her eyes as she rose from her seat.

If I now could have dismissed from my mind the extraordinary events of the previous evening, Frank Bowser's absence would not have given me further concern, but that midnight scene with Scroggie was constantly recurring, and the remarkable contrast between this quiet domestic hearth and my own dreaded thoughts seemed to give an undue importance to the situation. The most trifling events became connected in my mind with this one relating to Scroggie. I believed that the darkest deeds were being enacted while I sat idly here.

Miss Pilkington's kettle, singing on the hearth, suggested artificial gayety. Miss Pilkington's cat, lying on the rug at my feet, had never seemed to look into the fire so seriously before—it reminded me of Scroggie sitting over mine last night—and when Miss Pilkington presently began to pour out the tea in her dignified fashion, and then proceed, with a still greater air of grandeur, to extinguish the teapot with a suffocating "cozy," some tragedy appeared close at hand.

To escape as soon as possible from this disturbing domestic calm seemed to me a grave necessity. It was impossible for me to consult with these ladies now concerning this scheme of Bowser's. Without loss of time Scroggie's arrest must be effected. This was my duty, and Frank Bowser, I had reason to conjecture, could aid me. Yet I knew, unless I took my leave with considerable tact, that I should cause Alice Darell great anxiety, for she sat reading my thoughts.

I therefore passed another half hour in a state of mental agony, conversing on trivial subjects with Miss Pilkington over cups of tea, and when I rose and held out my hand she said in a lofty manner:

"Tell Mr. Bowser when you see him that I like punctuality. I have been accustomed to it, in India, all my life. Good evening."

I had scarcely reached the first landing when I was arrested by hearing Alice Darell's voice.

"Stay one moment, please," said Alice as she descended the staircase and stood looking up beseechingly into my face. "I must hear the truth. If anything has happened to Frank, do not conceal it from me."

I no longer doubted that she knew of his mad scheme and disapproved of it strongly.

"Nothing has happened," said I, "that I know of."

"But you have some reason to be so anxious?"

"Yes," I said. "It's no use trying to hide that from you."

"Where is he tonight?"

"I cannot tell you. I am going to look for him now."

Alice glanced up the stairs and then into my face distractedly.

"I wish I could come too."

I took her hand and said:

"Trust me, Alice. I will find him. It is cruel to give you so much anxiety."

She kept hold of my hand for awhile, as though it linked her to her lover,

"Trust me, Alice. I will find him."

and then she gave me a grateful smile, released my hand and allowed me to leave her without another word.

I glanced back when I reached the hall. She still stood motionless on the staircase where I left her, with her hands clasped and her eyes bent thoughtfully to the ground.

CHAPTER IV.

As soon as I reached the street I sprang into a cab which was passing and drove back to the temple. If I had been released from prison, I could not have experienced a greater sense of freedom, though the position of affairs appeared no less serious—far from that. But I seemed to have thrown off heavy fetters and to be grappling with the situation now in good earnest.

First I stepped across to Bowser's chambers, but as I ascended the staircase I saw, with a sinking hope, that his outer door was closed, a sure sign that he was not there. Nevertheless I knocked loudly, but I received no answer.

Next I went to my own rooms. I searched in my box for letters. There were several, but not a line from Frank.

I stood for some minutes meditating over what course I should now pursue. Suddenly I remembered Frank Bowser's words, "I'm hunting about near the docks at Limehouse."

It seemed like a voice, and I was eager to start.

Having put on a thicker coat and selected a heavy walking stick, I hastened out again into the night and turned my steps toward Limehouse.

When I reached the railway terminus, near Fenchurch street, I was told that a train would start for the docks in a few minutes, and as I hurried up the staircase it came slowly into the station.

A journey across the tops of houses and through smoke issuing from a forest of chimneys is not, at the best of seasons, calculated to awake cheerful thoughts. To me, glancing out of the window at this dismal prospect, or what glimpses were visible in the dark night, the effect was so depressing that I again became troubled with melancholy forebodings, and yet as we tore along toward the docks these forebodings developed into no distinct fear in my mind. They were shadowy, like the housetops and the smoking forest of chimneys. They conveyed no meaning beyond a general sense of gloom.

Limehouse was reached at last. Turning down the street to the left after leaving the station, I walked quickly along in the direction which leads through narrow ways and over iron bridges into the Old Ferry road. It was my intention, when I got there, to make inquiries at the police station concerning Frank Bowser, for he had mentioned having taken detectives into his confidence, and there, I thought, I should be most likely to gain information about him.

The way was straight and sufficiently well lighted until I came to the Bridge road, but here the great dock walls, like the walls of a prison, rose up on each side, and the lamps were dim and far apart, and as I hurried along not a person passed me on the way.

I had walked some distance along this dark roadway, sometimes gaining a glimpse of the canal or of a wharf as I crossed the bridge, but always coming again into the shadow of these high walls, when suddenly I saw, in this dim light, a solitary figure approaching—a figure with a slouching swing about the shoulders, which made my heart beat quickly. Walking with a hurried step, this figure soon became more distinct, and in another minute I had recognized the face.

But as the figure passed by I could find no voice. If a sound had escaped my lips, it must have been a cry of horror. As I had seen the face of Scroggie on the preceding night, so I had seen it now, pale and haggard, with the eyes of a hunted animal, dead beaten and nearly brought to bay. But there was something more than that. There was an indescribable expression of some fresh crime committed overshadowing him, and he seemed to be groping his way, like a man who is eager to avert his own destruction. So he went by, and not a word or a look was exchanged between us. So he passed into the darkness and out of sight.

Voices now reached me from the direction in which Scroggie had come, and I ran on, for I fancied that I recognized Frank Bowser's voice among them.

As I came in sight of the Old Ferry road some one stepped abruptly in my path and turned the light of a dark lantern full in my face. It was a constable, who eyed me with evident suspicion.

When I mentioned Bowser's name and told him who I was, the man appeared satisfied, for he said, "Come this way," and making a beckoning motion with his lantern walked down the road. Something in his manner suggested a dreadful thought. A question was on my lips, but I feared to ask it and followed him in silence.

At a corner of the road we found another constable. He came forward as we approached and turned his lantern upon me as the other had done.

"Friend of his," said my conductor, introducing me, "friend from the temple."

"Right," said the other in a snapping manner.

I now observed a third lantern flashing about down a dark turning, which appeared to lead to some entrance into the docks, for there was the shadow of a gateway beyond.

The man I had first met again beckoned with his bullseye and led me toward this gate, while the other remained stationed as though on the watch.

I groped along after the bullseye under a high wooden fence, on the other side of which I saw the dim outlines of the masts and rigging of a large vessel. At the farther end of this fence, near the gateway, three men were bending down, and one of them, apparently a surgeon, was bandaging the head of a person who was being supported by the others.

The constable who had conducted me to this spot now gave me a quick look as he threw the light from his dark lantern upon a deathlike face.

A cry escaped me. It was Frank Bowser!

He uttered my name in a faint voice when I leaned over him.

"Tell her," said he, speaking so low that I could scarcely hear the words—"tell her that my scheme succeeded. What I said I would do, tell her, I have now done. I have found the man. I have hunted him down. Tell her"——

No further words reached my ear. His lips still moved, but unconsciousness quickly followed.

Many days passed before he spoke again.

He then told me—as he lay upon the sofa in my chambers with Alice Darell seated beside him and Miss Pilkington near the fire in an armchair looking very stern—he then told me how he happened accidentally one day to be clinking some gold in his pocket in Scroggie's presence when he noticed that a strange look came over his face which roused his suspicions, and he then and there determined to adopt this plan and thoroughly satisfy himself before giving the affair more serious thought. He acknowledged his fault in omitting to take me into his confidence, but he did not wish to destroy my belief in Scroggie without a stronger proof.

Upon the eventful night on which he related the details connected with the bank tragedy his suspicions had been confirmed. He had gone to Limehouse, where Scroggie was known to the police, and where, it was supposed, he lived, and a warrant had actually been granted for his arrest. That evening—as Bowser supposed—Scroggie must have followed him, and there, near the gateway, had nearly succeeded in his evident design to take his life.

It will be remembered that Scroggie had told me in confidence that he was "going to travel." Whether the dreadful meaning which has ever since attached itself in my mind to his words passed through his brain when he uttered them can never be known. He was found drowned in one of the dock basins at Limehouse upon the day following his attempt upon the life of Frank Bowser.

These incidents which I have related occurred some time ago, and Frank has been married for years to Alice Darell, but every detail must remain fresh in my memory as long as I live.—Belgravia.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 6, 1896.

An Ordinance for the suppression of Vice and Immorality.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That no person or persons shall on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, sell dispose of or offer or expose for sale or cause or permit to be sold, disposed of or offered or exposed for sale any cider of any description, under penalty of a fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 2. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances so far as they are inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS.

U. S. Grant Club Make Arrangements to Go to Trenton.

The U. S. Grant Republican Club of North Plainfield, held a very large and enthusiastic meeting last night in the borough council rooms. President R. M. Fountain was in the chair and H. N. Spencer acted as secretary. Arrangements were completed by the members to attend the inaugural ceremonies at Trenton, January 20th, and it was voted to attend in a body. The president was instructed to secure suitable badges. The members will also carry rustic dog wood canes, cut from the property belonging to H. N. Spencer, on Somerset street. It was reported that Assemblyman Charles A. Reed would provide dinner at Trenton for all representatives of the club attending. The meeting was then adjourned to Thursday night.

The balance of the evening was devoted to sociability, during which Theo. Vroom, pianist, H. N. Spencer, violinist, rendered several choice national airs. There was also singing by the members of the club.

The Mission Opened.

The Christian Men's Union Rescue Mission opened last evening on West Front street with a crowded house. Through the use of American flags, bunting and curtains, the place was made very attractive. Col. H. H. Hadley was in charge, and he was assisted by Walter Hinman, of Buffalo, and Joseph Tompson, of Philadelphia. The two latter will be in charge for the next three months. The service last evening was entered into with zeal and earnestness and the testimonies were very helpful. The motto "Young Man Keep Your Record Clean" is displayed prominently over the platform. The meeting this evening will be led by Walter Hinman. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services.

Scheutzen Corps Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Independent Scheutzen Corps last evening the following officers were elected: Captain, J. A. Blatz; first lieutenant, C. Stoeckle; second lieutenant, Chas. Giese; corresponding secretary, G. Reupert; treasurer, R. Speigel; sergeant-at-arms, M. Weber; committee on trap shooting, Henry Haurand, R. Mack, Lewis Van Dyke; committee on rifle shooting, M. Barry, M. Weber, William Rummel. The club will have a trap shoot next Thursday.

Plainfield Leads Them All.

Alben Coombs won a horse at a drawing recently held at Plainfield, for sixty-four cents, and the first trial to test the speed of the animal was to take the Westfield Club Bowlers to Rahway Thursday night. The fiery steed was in the lead of the competing horses all the way to that city and return.—Westfield Standard.

Turned Too Short.

When turning from Second street into Park avenue this morning the horse attached to W. H. VanWinkle's grocery wagon stumbled and fell. He had to be unharnessed before he could be released from his uncomfortable position. No damage was done, however, to horse or wagon.

A Stag Racket.

A number of the young men of this city are planning a stag skating party for Saturday evening. They will go to New York where a party of young men from that city will join them and they all will go to Central Park. That is, providing there in any skating at that time.

Briefly Told.

A little boy, a little slide,
A little joy when first it's tried.
A man, a slip—it's smooth as glass—
A sled, a trip, alack, alas!
He wavers, reels, and shows all there
A pair of heels high in the air.
In sorry plight, his hat a wreck,
He's seen to light upon his neck.
A joyous cry of boyish glee
From one close by, and then—ah, me!
A swish of cane, a fearful whack,
A cry of pain—alas, alack!
A boy who's lame nor thinks of fun;
A man the same—the story's done.

May Have Been a Volcano.

The theory is now advanced that Ascutney mountain at Windsor, Conn., was once a volcano. Recent analyses of the green granite from the mountain shows that it is not really granite, as it contains no mica, but a different mineral, so that the stone is more valuable than granite. It is said to be absolutely imperishable, as it contains none of the natural elements which cause stone to decay. The stone has at some time been subjected to intense heat, which has driven out all the metals and made it remarkably compact.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ants' Eggs.

Ants' eggs are considered a choice dish in some countries. They are spread upon a slice of bread and butter, and sauces considered excellent are made with them. They are esteemed as a costly food in Siam, within the reach only of well to do people. They are the object of an important trade in some countries of northern Europe, where they are cooked in boiling water and yield a kind of vinegar or formic acid.—Popular Science Monthly.

Judge of thine improvement not by what thou speakest or writest, but by the firmness of thy mind and the government of thy passions and affections.—Fuller.

Ocean Steamers.

"Few people," says the Philadelphia Record, "have any idea of the enormous expense of keeping the big ocean greyhounds in shipshape. It costs the International Navigation company on an average $10,000 a month for repairs to the various vessels. They are thoroughly overhauled every month, and the amount of small repairing necessary would astonish even the old voyager. In the shops at Jersey City there is a duplicate of every bit of machinery used in the make-up of an ocean liner, from enormous pieces of shafting down to the smallest bolt. At the conclusion of each voyage the company hires a professional ratcatcher, who clears the ship of the little pests. He baits his traps with the core of a head of lettuce and places a rat in each one, his experience being that the others will then more readily enter. On an average 50 rats are caught in this manner after every voyage."

So It Seemed.

"Oh, papa," said a little 7 year-old Milwaukee girl the other day, pointing to some workmen who were on the roof of a very high building, "see those little brownies up there!" "Those are not brownies, my dear," replied the matter of fact parent, "those are big men, like me, and they look little because they are up so high." "If they were up twice as high, would they be twice as small?" pursued the little one. "Yes." The juvenile brain was at work some seconds before reaching the logical conclusion, "They won't amount to much when they get way up to heaven, will they, papa?"—New York Tribune.

Unforgivable.

"But you ought to forgive his pulling your nose. He was so intoxicated he didn't know what he was doing."

"Didn't know what he was doing? Do you mean to tell me that when a man hunts around for ten minutes until he finds the tongs and pulls my nose with them that he doesn't know what he is doing?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Nothing Inhuman About Him.

Professor Witherdupp had, during an afternoon walk in the country, picked up a particularly interesting and particularly slimy lizard. He was anxious to preserve it for the college museum. But Professor Witherdupp was a man of tender feelings, and the infliction of pain was odious to him. So when he handed the lizard to the janitor, "Kill him, Cox," he said, "in as—er—humane a manner as possible, and then kindly put him into alcohol for me."

"Yes, sir," said the janitor, with a deferential bow. The janitor was of recent appointment and anxious to cultivate the favor of the professor.

An hour or two later the professor returned to the laboratory to find the unhappy lizard lying at the bottom of a jar of alcohol, looking limper and slimier than ever.

"Is he dead, Cox?" he asked.

"Oh, 'e's dead enough, sir," said the janitor, with an emphasis to imply that the lizard might or might not be satisfactory in other respects, but was certainly dead.

"How did you kill him?" asked the professor.

"'E's drownded, sir," said Cox, solemnly, lowering his voice and speaking as if the lizard had perished in some great naval disaster.

"You don't mean to say," said the professor, with much severity, "that you put that unhappy animal into alcohol alive?"

"Oh, no, sir!" said the janitor in his most deferential tone. "I put 'im in first and put the alcohol in atop of 'im."—Truth.
